Some News and Views On West Canada Conditions

By M. HALSTEAD HORN

(6th Instalment)

We had planned on going to Banff and over the Big Bend highway and on to Salmon Arm to spend a few days there, but the travel bureau in Calgary advised us against going that way as we were liable to run into much snow, so late in the season and since I am quite good on the push if we were stuck, we decided to go by MacLeod and on to Cardston.

More years past than I like to think of I taught school in Cardston and while there the first and was turned for the Mormon Temple or the Temple of "The Latter Day Saints", Being in the vicinity I thought I would like to see the finished edifice.

Cardston is right in the Rocky hills and the town is built on rolling land and I did not find the hills any steeper or higher than when I was there years ago. It is a good farming community and many of the earlier settlers came from the States and belonged to the Mormon faith. The name of the town is named after one of the first families to settle, the Card family.

I did not find many I had known, during the years, many of my pupils had moved away while others had passed on. I did meet two daughters of the lady with whom I had boarded when in Cardston. The old frame school had burned down to be replaced by a fine larger brick one. There were twelve teachers on the staff when I was there while now there are 22. The population has increased from 1,400 to 3,200.

Beautiful Building

Before leaving we drove around to see the Temple. It is a very beautiful building of British Columbia white granite and is built in the form of a Greek Cross—all four sides being alike. It is built on a knoll, the grounds are terraced and beautifully kept. I noticed in one part of the grounds quite a large greenhouse. I presume to supply flowers and plants for within and without. I was told it had cost one million dollars and were it built now would cost nearer three million dollars. I have read that many of the mosaics and woods used inside came from across the seas, also much of the furnishings. I did not ask to be shown inside as I understood only those of their faith were allowed within.

The day the first one was turned, teachers and pupils were at the ceremony and one thing that impressed me was that not one of the older elders told his people that no one using liquor or tobacco in any form would be allowed to work on the building. They have a very beautiful tabernacle built before the Temple and I have attended evening service there.

A Social Centre

Across from the Temple and Tabernacle, is another large, modern-styled building called the one "Social Centre", where all social activities take place. As a people they are sociable, very fond of music and dancing so I presume this building will be where teas, bridge parties, dances, meetings of welfare organizations will be held. A very nice idea. Many of their youth served during the two World Wars. The ladies used to be keenly interested in Institute work and no doubt still are.

Looking at the map I find we are twenty-three miles north of the International boundary and twenty-six miles from the Alberta Columbia boundary so you see we have practically driven across the three prairie provinces, so shortly after we say "good-by" to Cardston and her friendly citizens we shall be crossing into the States to make our way to Vancouver, before I write you of that very interesting part of our trip, there are some thoughts that came to me, that might interest you as fellow Canadians.

Throughout this letter I have dealt mostly with only one side of the Prairies' possibilities that of farming in its various phases, but Alberta has been widely recognized as Canada's "bread basket", still I would not be detracting to those who claim if I did not try to show you another side of the picture.

Rich in Resources

We speak of natural resources, what have these provinces other than farm lands. The mines have gold, silver, iron, nickel and coal, then there is natural gas and oil fields in many parts of the provinces. Clay suitable for tile and pottery making is found in abundance. I have seen some beautiful pieces of pottery such as trays, water jugs, vases, etc., made from the western clays. We have lakes on the Prairies with salts that can be used commercially. At Watrous, Sask., is Manitou Lake with its healing waters and we were told there is only one other like it in the world, Turner Valley, Leduc and Lloydminster are the more prominent oil and gas centres, yet there are others, we noticed, as we drove in the vicinity of Hanna in Saskatoon. A small lake had an oily surface and it was not long until we spied one of those derricks that is associated with oil wells.

Extensive Coal Areas

Coal is in quantities at Estevan, Drumheller, Edmonton and in fact part of the City of Edmonton we are told is built over a coal mine.

Then, too, parts of the provinces are well covered with tamarac, spruce pine and other woods, that can be used for lumber and for our pulp mills.

We have mentioning clay; most important of all in many ways. Our Western universities have a very large enrolment and every year hundreds of young men and women graduate after graduating in medicine, law, science, pharmacy, nursing and arts. Here arises the question will are we doing to absorb these educated young Canadians? A small percentage may find employment here, but the vast majority will leave our country to go south of the line or other countries to find a good job. Figure out, if you can, what it costs the average taxpayer to help keep up these universities, not only to lose the educated youth to some other country. What is wrong with the educational things? We have plenty of everything by way of resources in the West. We have natural gas and coal, we have potential water power, why, we will be a land of middle-age and old people! Not a pretty picture to contemplate aside from the fact of who is going to pay the Old Age pension of those who are here.

Why is capital not encouraged to manufacture the implements so handy and stop hauling ore and timbers to smelters and mills at the east and do so doing make the finished article more expensive through the long freight haul.

Vulnerable Places

I drew to your attention how vulnerable the locks at the Soo might be. Well, did you ever stop to think that this applies to many eastern industrial centres?

Just now we are reading in our papers of a scheme to pipe natural gas from Alberta through the northern States to Seattle and on to Vancouver for industrial purposes. I would hate to have an American firm, that Vancouver be dependent on that pipeline, should there be a shortage of gas some fine morning. Some of you say, "Oh, no danger of that happening."

I well remember, when a young girl, my parents left Ontario and lived in a small city in Pennsylvania, where there were oil wells around the city. So many that even the water taken from a pump within the city limits tasted of oil and good drinking water had to be filtered. There they considered they had plenty of gas. Maybe they did. The street lights of jets of gas burned day and night but I can also remember some cold days in the Autumn that there was scarcely enough gas fed to our cook stove to cook the breakfast.

We should we pipe gas out of our provinces for industries outside? Let Vancouver's base industries come and build factories where the gas is and employ those who otherwise will be lost to us. If those industries leave the gas long enough they will come where it is when they find we have looking after our own a little, like bears in mind, once we dissipate our resources. In spite of all his skill cannot replace those resources.

Must Offer Encouragement

If we have industries to employ our own people and move we can encourage immigration to a greater extent because if we do not encourage people to come to our country, some of these more densely populated countries who have cast envious eyes on our wheat lands, settling Dominion, may decide to take a hand and help us settle these parts and we may not be very glad at the prospect but may have to take it or leave it. Is there any reason why we should have so much breathing space when others are literally scrambling to find a foothold on some barren spot on this old ball. I think we should be more trying to tell what Canada will be in the year 2000. Not too many of us older ones will be here to see, but I think we owe it to our children's children to be surveying that we at least make an effort to see that the descendants of those pioneers at least have a place to live and, in this beloved Dominion of ours.

Deplores Lack of Highway

Here is something else that hits one right in the face, much as we like travelling over our neighbors' good roads south of us, where are yeoiro our kindness as and the courtesy of all we are certain enough to come in contact with. Is it not a sad state of affairs that we Canadian during certain seasons of the year are dependent on the highway of our neighbor to the south if we do go by car to our most westerly province?

I certainly have no quarrel with the folk south of the border, but I am a third generation Canadian of British stock and personally do not like to see our Canadian youth on the tail to someone else's string with the added result, that is that at certain seasons of the year, we are forced to travel through our neighbor's yard to reach Vancouver by car, just because we have no all-weather highway built and adequately maintained. I believe we have the materials for road making and by building and maintaining this highway we give employment to men who might otherwise be on relief. Then this setup is fine, just as long as our neighbor continues to be friendly, but what if he should not so friendly, or if he becomes embroiled with some other country? Stop a moment and think!

Must Stand on Own Feet

We are having growing pains, and are prone to chafe at the bit or the apron strings of the mother country and become a nation. That is very commendable, providing we are ready to stand on our own two feet, and do not become a leaner or a satellite, hoping some one else will hold the apron strings.

Then, too, we hear so much about conserving the dollars, and we are told how much money we can make on the Canadian, and are asked in a very kindly manner but nevertheless we are asked when we return to Canada, "How much money did you spend?" One has to be fed and bedded for the night, and be as conscientious and economical as you possibly can. Dollars must be spent and still we do not have our trans Canada highway.

What is happening to our wild birds and why it is necessary to spray everything because of the many insect pests? Reading our Bibles we are told Noah took into the Ark two or every living thing that to me means two of every species of birds, two of every beast and two of every creeping thing that the Supreme Being considered that two birds of every kind were sufficient to look after the offspring of two of every kind of insect.

What has happened? We saw very few birds of any kind other than a few magpies and gulls, and it is amazing that there are still some of those outside of a sanctuary or sitting stuffed in a museum.

Reason For "No Birds"

From my own observation I would like to partly answer why there are no birds". There probably are other reasons, but this I know well, that I can also remember some cold days in the Autumn that there was scarcely enough gas fed to our cook stove to cook the breakfast.

We should we pipe gas out of our provinces for industries outside? Let Vancouver's base industries come and build factories where the gas is and employ those who otherwise will be lost to us. If those industries leave the gas long enough they will come where it is when they find we have looking after our own a little, like bears in mind, once we dissipate our resources. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1949

Controversy Between County Council and City Over Hospital Surcharge Debated at Length

Following a lengthy, sometimes bitter discussion of the controversial subject of payment of indigent accounts existing between the County of Hastings and the city of Belleville through the Belleville General Hospital, the county body yesterday tabled a motion "that the Ontario Department of Health be requested to study the records of indigent patients, increase provincial grants and inform municipalities what the amount of their grants should be."

The controversy arose last year when the County Council after granting the hospital $8,000 to apply to stated hospital deficit on indigent patients, refused to accede to the latter's request for a similar sum, which the hospital claimed was owing by the county.

The controversy flamed anew when the hospital later placed a surcharge of $2.00 per day on patients residing outside the city. Opposed to this Reeve Ernest Grant of Reeve Harry Harrison, opening the discussion told council he was strongly opposed to the system of indiscriminate grants, but at the same time he felt the county should bear its fair share of the load.

"I have studied the hospital situation and recently with the hospital auditor checked at accounts of average cost. Some of these accounts are terrific. One was that a baby from a municipality which cost the hospital $1,800 for which it received $186." "The cost of drugs is also terrific" he said.

Speaking of indigent costs, he said that if the hospital board feels that $2.00 per day and a grant of $8,000 is not sufficient then the Department of Health should say what the county should pay.

Reeve Arthur Rollins, Wollaston, said that he was 100 per cent opposed to giving Belleville hospital a grant. "The grant we gave them was not appreciated by the board. It was the most hostile body antagonistic with the result the $2.00 surcharge for rural patients was put on."

Further stated that there were rumors in the north county to the effect that rural patients with friends in Belleville who, when sick come to the city, and pose as city patients. In the Belleville hospital is to get these grants from those in Bancroft, Kingston and Peterborough with which we have had no trouble should get the same financial treatment. Belleville is sahing a lot. There was no discrimination shown when the city wanted to buy the House of Refuge.

"I feel," he went on, "that this county council should get a quarterly statement of its indigent liabilities to the hospital. instead of giving grants indiscriminately."

"I am not in favor of handing Belleville anything but it is coming to them," Reeve Theodore Tryon, Bancroft said. "But if it is the duty of this council to pay the hospital, or any other institution, I'll do it. I should see that it gets value for its money. We have got to put the brakes on this spending or it will get out of control. The only revenue the county has is taxes and there is a limit to what the taxpayer will stand. I am not saying to turn everything down, but we must not say 'yes' to everything."

Says Figures Misleading

Concurring with the motion, Reeve Harold Wells, Stirling said he attended a meeting with the Chamber of Commerce with Warden R. A. McCarey and other members, and he understood that the surcharge was taken off and everything toned out. "Now, I learn it is different."

"I feel the county should pay its way. But it should get correct statements of figures. Those received from the hospital board last year were misleading." he charged.

"The residents of the village of Stirling are very unhappy over the application of the surcharge," he went on, "and all who can, are going to Kingston hospitals".

Reeve Asks Question

Stating that the geographical position of Deseronto put the picture in a different light, due to its proximity to the Indian reserve Reeve A. Sharp, demanded to know if the hospital board had petitioned the Department of Indian Affairs for more money to apply to indigent accounts.

He charged maladministration on the part of the hospital authorities in the case of an Indian baby, born deformed, whose father was earning $50 to $55 per week. The baby was born in May and left the hospital in August. "Then," he charged" the hospital started worrying about collecting the account. The baby came back in hospital again on three weeks and remained till June 9th. Year when it was removed because the Deseronto Lions Club was sending the child to Toronto for an operation. No attention was paid to collection of the account of over $935 by the hospital.

The attitude of the hospital, the Deseronto reeve said was that if the patient is an Indian the Indian Department will pay for it. It does nothing about collection of accounts."

Talks on Salaries

"Furthermore," he went on, "I would like to know what business man in Belleville is getting close to $25,000 a year salary. If he is, he's running a pretty big business. We are told that the hospital salaries doubled to $270,000 in two years. I do not know of any big industry doubling its wages over that period of time. And I am vouch for it, that the nurses did not get a raise.

"I cannot see this discrimination against outside-the-city patients. The surcharge has dropped a lot of municipalities into the lap of the municipalities into the lap of the municipalities into the lap of a number of borderline and paying patients are going to other hospitals. The whole trouble, I believe is a bad administration on the part of the hospital. Perhaps it has plenty of room now and that fact is beginning to worry it."

Disappointed in Council

He was rather disappointed in the Belleville city Council in that it did not invite more members of the County Council for discussion of the matter, before passing the by-law authorizing the surcharge for rural patients, Warden S. A. McCarey told the council. "I have since learned from the Chairman of Finance that there has been no material change in the cash surplus for operating the hospital since this surcharge was put on," he said.

"A city paying patient pays $10.50 a day for a private room," the warden said, "Many friends come to the city to see him, which means there is a considerable spent in the city. I do not think the business people of Belleville measure what it means to them to have a hospital here. We want to feel that Belleville is the 'friendly city'. But what better model for business is there than a modern hospital which in its functions attracts many people from the outside. It is far better to do that than to place a surcharge on outside patients which has created ill-feeling."

Should Assume Fair Share

The warden maintained that the county should assume its fair share of its obligations. He reviewed his experience with the hospital during his five years as a county councillor. "The first three years," he said we had no trouble with indigent accounts or administrators. Then this thing burst like a bombshell.

"It is time the city and county had a thorough revamping of the different phases of municipal cooperation, and placing the proportion or cost where it belongs. Administration of justice and juvenile and family court cost of which the city has a large share load should be overhauled and revamped with regard to proportionate cost," the warden declared.

Discussion Did Not End

At this point of the discussion Reeve Wilfred Spencer, Rawdon, rose to second the motion of Reeve Harrison of Thurlow, that the matter be referred to the Department of Health.

But the discussion did not end here.

A number of reeves from both north and south of the county voiced the impression that the "sad part of the controversy was that the blame is being placed on the county."

"Had we paid the $8,000 demanded by the city in excess of the grant, and which would not have made much difference in the financial situation of the hospital this thing would not have happened, yet the county is being blamed."

Never Given Statement

The Belleville General Hospital has never given the County Council a statement of actual indigent patient losses, said County Treasurer Ross Bailey. It is in their books, but they won't release it. We could be that it is less than the $18,000 they claim."

Reeve Ben Bleecker, Sidney township, told council that "If this is the case, and this county council is being imposed upon then we should do something about it. We should have a full statement of losses. This controversy has stirred up a lot of bad blood between the city of Belleville and the County of Hastings.

"How ver," he said, "we should not worry too much and if we are matters and money will iron themselves out."

Defending the Purpose

County Treasurer Ross Bailey, told council that the Deseronbugh Hospital has a surcharge of 50 cents per day that is payable by the county. He quoted figures that definitely denotes a lower rate than there is a surcharge in Belleville. He told council "that the medical fraternity have had, for the past 25 years been striving to make the hospital an institution of which the city might be proud, but the surcharge is defeating the purpose."

He further added that the doctors of the city are opposed to the surcharge.

Reeve Sauer, Deseronto, interjected at this point with the query that does the $2.00 gain made by the surcharge, make up for the loss on the city might be.

Warden McCarey told council that a statement on a piece of paper" in 1948 revealed that the indigent cost was $6.00 per day, "it is strange," he added, "that the same year, pay patients paid $6.50 for semi-private rooms and $5.00 a day for ward patients." Warden also interjected.

He had arrived at the conclusion, he said, from the last meeting of the hospital board, that the administration of drugs to indigent patients should be placed under a system and not "dished out" as the doctors saw fit. It has been proven that many more drugs have been used by indigents than by paying patients. Is this an experiment? he asked.

"We thought that the grant of $8,000 was fair ,but if we grant another $8,000 we will be paying a dollar a day more than other patients. How can we face the taxpayers of the county with this expenditure?

The warden added at the moment "I concur with the reeve of Thurlow that we let the Department of Health settle the issue."

Trade Association, regretted that although Canada was a great cheese producing nation, Canadians as a whole took but little interest in cheese. There was little advertising to encourage the domestic consumption of cheese, he said.

He referred to the present Canadian cheese consumption of about 4.2 pounds per capita and said if this could be raised to seven pounds per capita, Canada would not have to be concerned with an export market for cheese.

The speaker spoke of the value of publicity in developing a domestic market for Canadian cheese and noted that as result of the recent National Cheese Week, over the counter sales in some stores had been increased as much as 300 per cent.

He said National Cheese Week should become an annual event.

The purchasing people in not understanding the fine food value of cheese was principally responsible for the low consumption of this product. To remedy the situation would be a matter of education which could be best carried on by government.

Quality Maintained

Reference was made to the quality of Canadian cheese which was said to have been maintained throughout the years. However the cheese industry had been hampered by the merchandising of its product. People were being asked to buy cheese under the same conditions as had existed for 60 years.

"As a result the cheese industry is not getting its fair share of the Canadian dollar," concluded Mr. Cooper. "The responsibility is that of the entire dairy industry to promote the cheese industry on a profitable basis."

Dr. C. K. Johns, bacteriologist and Central Experimental farm, Ottawa, and E. C. Hood, dairy research science service, also were heard.

Roucoe Robson, M.L.A. for Hastings East, spoke briefly, stating that cheese producers needed greater control over the sale of their products.

Agriculture Facing Critical Days Don Baxter, M.L.A. Tells Cheese Makers in Convention

Warning that there were critical days ahead for Canadian agriculture was given Wednesday afternoon at the concluding session of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association annual convention.

As one of the speakers of the afternoon, J. Donald Baxter, M. L.A. said that Canadian eggs were no longer wanted in Britain and the Canadian bacon contract had been drastically cut. "Fortunately", he said, "Canadian cheese was still acceptable in the United Kingdom."

In stating there were critical days ahead for agriculture, Mr. Baxter said he did not want to be an alarmist. There was already talk of another depression in the offing. He said that mistakes on the economic front in the first world war had been avoided in the last war.

He felt that the same lesson could be applied in considering remedies for a possible depression, in that mistakes in the previous depression could be avoided.

Believer in Metis

Mr. Baxter said he was a firm believer in the motto of "live and let live" and said this should be applied to world trade. There was no point in building up trade barriers if the country was to suffer. There were surpluses in Canada while in some other countries people were on the verge of starvation. The government was now working on trade agreements but it needed pressure from the right quarters.

The dairy industry was a great power and a vital force in Canadian economy. Agricultural groups could bring pressure to bear on government's demanding trade agreements with other countries in need of the products.

Mr. Baxter was introduced by Dr. G. H. Stobie of Belleville, who spoke of the need of a world food bank being established to act as a food distributor for all nations.

Final Argument In Freight-Rate Battle is Heard

Ottawa, Dec. 8. (CP) — The latest round in Canada's three-year freight-rate battle will end in the Supreme Court of Canada today.

The highest court has been asked to rule on the propriety of last September's rate-increase award, and today will see final argument of a case fought out between seven provinces and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The C.P.R. called on the court for an opinion that the Board of Transport failed to do its duty in the September decision, which aloed a railway 20-per-cent increase application to eight per cent.

Chief C.P.R. ground before the court was the Board's alleged impropriety in deferring full consideration of the railway case until ii knew the results of the current Royal Commission done into transportation and had consulted other rate studies of its own.

The seven provinces opposing rate increase—all except Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland —argued before the high court that the board decision was proper and denied the C.P.R. claim that "injustice" had been done the railways by the deferment.

The argument of the seven provinces— Wilson E. McLean, Manitoba's freight-rate counsel— completed his argument to the Board late Wednesday after running into 3 1-3 hours of stormy weather from justices critical of some aspects of the Board judgment.

Under particular fire was a section of the judgment which declared railway wage costs, not challenged during the rate hearing, would have to be backed up by further evidence before the board made a final determination of the 20-per-cent application. Major basis of the rail application had been a $76,500,000-a-year wage increase negotiated in 1948 under the threat of a general strike.

Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret said he was "scandalized" that the railways should be told their wage increase was to be reviewed now when it had not been challenged before.

Both he and Mr. Justice I. C. Rand described this principle as "incredible".

Few Forecasts Made on Result Of Elections in Australia

By ANTONY WITLOCK
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 8 (CP)—A £50 ($123.50) fine can be imposed on anyone convicted of betting on Australia's general election Saturday. But it's not the threat of being fined that is restricting wagering in this election in which Labor seeks to continue in office.

Never before have so few forecasts been made on the result of an Australian election. All party supporters are agreed that voting is likely to be close.

Favoring the return of the Labor government under Prime Minister Ben Chifley are general prosperity, high wages and full employment. No one need be without a job in Australia today. Nearly 100,000 jobs are waiting to be filled. For this, Labor takes credit and asks to be judged on its record.

The Liberal-Country party joint opposition is staking its changes on "it's time for a change." "Throw out the Socialists" and "let's get back to the free enterprise that made Australia." Another vote-winning plank is 1' promise to end gas rationing by importing more non-dollar gasoline.

Public opinion polls say Labor may be beaten. But many persons thought Labor would be beaten in the 1946 election after five years of difficult wartime administration, but Chifley brought his party back to power comfortably.

Has Hostile Press

Labor has a hostile press. One major exception is the Melbourne Argus, which after long years of Conservatism has been given a new lease on life. The London Daily Mirror interests who now have a controlling share.

The southeastern states of Australia have the bulk of the population and return most of the members of the House of Representatives in the new House of 123 members, New South Wales will have 47 and Victoria 33. Western Australia will have only eight and Tasmania five.

The 60 members of the enlarged senate will by the constitution be divided among the six states. Each senator gits for six years and half the House every three years' election. With the increase this election and redistribution, there are 45 to be elected, seven from each state.

As usual, the Australian Communist party is nominating a number of lower House and senate candidates, its leading senate candidate for New South Wales, however, will not now be on the voting papers. He was Laurence Louis Sharkey, general secretary of the party, now serving a three-year penitentiary term for sedition." None of the Communists are expected to get a seat.

Voting for the House of Representatives will be by the usual Australian system of preference marking, and for the senate by a complicated system of proportional representation. Returning officers say it may take as long as four weeks to work out just what senate candidates will be elected.

Seven Passengers In Panel Truck Injured in Crash

Peterborough, Dec. 8 —(CP)— Seven occupants of a panel truck —five from Peterborough and two from Port Hope — were injured late Wednesday night when the truck crashed into a hydro pole and then into a concrete wall on Highway 28 opposite the filtration plant half a mile north of here.

Four of them are still in hospital here. Most seriously injured is Miss Yvonne Hudson of Peterborough. She has a head injury, lacerations of the left hand and wrists and generally her condition is "not good," hospital authorities said.

The three others still under observation are:

Gwen Warrington, 19, of Port Hope, a back injury;

William Roberts, 22, lacerations about the head.

The three other occupants were all discharged from the hospital a few hours after the accident.

Joseph Devlin, 27, received a cut right eyebrow and a cut head. And the seventh occupant, Joseph Sealock, 22, suffered lacerations on the right side of the head.

The new panel truck is a total wreck.

Justice Favors House Member In Libel Action

Toronto, Dec. 8 — (CP) — There is no automatic libel attached to the word Communist, Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel ruled in assize court Wednesday night.

An assize court jury returned a verdict in favor of Stanley Knowles, C.C.F. member of parliament for Winnipeg North Centre, who sued John Hladun, editor of a Toronto labor weekly, for $50,000 damages on the grounds that statements in the weekly were defamatory.

His Lordship assessed nominal damages of $1 against Hladun.

In his address to the jury His Lordship said that "the allegations that the man was a Communist in 1946 are not in themselves libellous. But to impute that as a Communist he became the servant of a foreign state, that could be held as libel."

The jury asked His Lordship if the Communist organization was outlawed in Canada in 1946, when the alleged libel was published. He replied:

"No. The War Measures Act was no longer in effect at that time. To say that a man is a Communist may be libellous in time of war, just as it were said that he was a Nazi. It could be defamatory but it depends on the time."

Picton Man Dies Of Heart Attack Shovelling Snow

Toronto, Dec. 8 (CP)—Two more deaths Wednesday were attributed to the snowstorm which left up to six inches of snow in various parts of Ontario, bringing the total deaths attributed to the storm to seven.

James R. Jenkins, 72, died at Picton from a heart attack suffered while he shovelled snow and Frank McGarr, 79, collapsed and died at Toronto Wednesday night while shovelling his sidewalk.

Earlier deaths attributed to the storm were those of Fred Varndell and Cecil Regan, killed when their car hit a truck on an icy road near Peterborough late Tuesday. Ernest Reddick and Kosto Givens, who died at Toronto after clearing away snow from their homes; and Mrs. William Gore, killed by a car as she crossed the road in suburban Long Branch late Tuesday.

Snowplows kept all main highways open but up to six inches of snow fell in a wide belt between Orangeville and Markham, running east to west about 30 miles north of Toronto.

No immediate relief was in sight in the cold wave that covered the province. With variable cloudiness continuing forecasts were for temperatures as low as 10 degrees in southern Ontario and zero in northern Ontario, rising to about 20 degrees above zero in most places.

"Gave More Relief Than Anything I Ever Used"

This Man Tells How Syntona Helped Liver and Kidney Disorders. Also Backache, Dizzy Spells and Indigestion. Praises it Highly.

"I have used many different things in my day, but I am frank to say that Syntona gave me more relief in a short time than anything I ever used before," said Mr. H. R. Burroughs, 62 Park Street South, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent interview.

"I suffered for years from backache, indigestion and sour acid risings after my meals. My liver, stomach, causing attacks of dizzy spells and constipation and my kidneys plagued me at my worst at night. I would get up tired, worn out. My back ached so much at times, my sleep was poor and I would awaken every morning feeling tired and have no energy.

"Syntona seemed to help me from the first dose. Now it is over a long time since I have suffered the least relief I ever had from the gas, soreness and indigestion. My bowels soon began to function properly and my appetite improved and my backache and stomach pains have disappeared. I also sleep more soundly and feel as alight and never fall better in my life than I have in the past few weeks."

Syntona acts on the liver in a smooth, gentle manner, working on the principle of "one day's dose." Its action is not harsh or violent. The liver, digestive organs, stimulated bladder, kidneys and bowels receive kind, excited nerves. Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

U.S. Big Outlet For Nova Scotia Christmas Trees

By IRVING G. WHYNOT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax — (CP) — An estimated 3,000,000 families in the United States will enjoy Christmas this year around a tree grown in Nova Scotia.

The Christmas tree business, started 16 years ago, now has grown to a full-sized seasonal industry bringing thousands of dollars into the province. It's difficult to estimate its exact value.

The 3,000,000 trees being shipped this year will bring about $150,000 to the growers, owners of the land on which they were cut. These growers are paid from two to 35 cents a tree, depending on size, shape and other factors, if they do the cutting. If the buyer has to cut the trees the price to the grower is about 15 cents a tree or less.

But that is only half the story. Then men who truck the trees to the nearest railway siding make about $2.50 an hour. The railyman, who keeps the records, gets another $6 a day.

Then sorters and others take over to separate the trees according to size and shape and tie them in bales. These men receive about $8 a day but some, working on a piece basis, have earned as high as $17.50. Common laborers in the yards earn from $5 to $6 for burning scraps, cleaning up the yards and loading trees on railway cars.

The trees usually are sold through buyers who arrive from the United States far in advance of the cutting season opening late in October. They have received their orders previously from wholesalers and retailers at home and know exactly how many trees to contract for.

Once across the border, the trees are sold through florists, service stations, fruit and vegetable stores and street corner salesmen.

The balsam fir tree, only type permitted to be cut for this purpose in Nova Scotia, brings from $3 to $4 for an eight-foot tree, the controlled size. For others, the price ranges from 50 cents for table trees, to $15 and $20 for oversized ones for parks and other outdoor spots.

Contrary to the belief of some people, the lands and forests department of the province said this annual cutting of young trees will not ruin the forests "if sound forestry practices is carried out."

In a report tabled in the Legislature, District Forester R. H. Murray said he believed a Christmas tree crop should be an accepted part of every managed farm wood-lot, bringing a yearly income from the forest and getting the farmer more interested in the "farming" and management of his woods."

But he suggested that the growers themselves make contacts in the United States and sell their trees direct to obtain a greater return for their work.

BOY CYCLIST RESCUED

Says Russia Got Some A-Material During War Days

Chicago, Dec. 8 — (AP) — The Chicago Tribune, in a dispatch from its Paris correspondent, says Russia is making "intensive efforts" to prepare its Arctic regions for a possible war with the United States.

The correspondent Henry Wales writes that he has obtained his information from "an escapee from forced labor projects in the area.

The principal points of Wale's account are:

The two main military bases are newly-created cities Vorkouta and Tikal, at the mouths of the Pitshura and Dvina, Ob, Yenesei Inglika, and Amur rivers.

A straight railway is being constructed from Lake Baikal to the Bering Sea opposite Alaska, but the red army is utilizing frozen rivers as its chief highways.

Wales writes: "From bases in Franz Josef Land, Dickson Island and Severnaya, the red army plans operations via Northern Greenland to Northern Canada within easy range of the United States."

Fort Erie, Dec. 7 — (CP) —Until he sat down for a lie detector test Tuesday during a Fort Erie Junior Chamber of Commerce tour of Buffalo Police Department Banker Don Brown had maintained that his greatest interest was banking. After he took the truth test, Mr. Brown says he changed that to "fishing in Georgian Bay." He is a native of Owen Sound.

NEW LIBRARIAN

Anne Clutterbuck, 20-year-old daughter of Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, British High Commissioner to Canada, is working as a secretary in the Parliament library. Civil Service Commission officials says she is just Miss Clutterbuck as far as they are concerned, and got the job on her merits. — (CP Photo.)

San Francisco, Dec. 7 (AP)—Li Tsung-Jen, acting president of Nationalist China, arrived in the United States as a virtual political exile. The plain fact is that he has no safe place to go back to in China.

Li said upon arrival in San Francisco Tuesday night that his absence from China is only temporary.

Li left again by chartered plane for New York's Presbyterian Hospital for treatment of an ulcerated stomach. This treatment is described as his principal reason for being in the U.S.

Li also is lying in talk to American officials—presumably about aid for the Nationalist cause.

President Li, a lean man of medium height, with sparse, graying hair, sparkling eyes and a constant smile, is accompanied by his wife, Madame Li Tsung-Jen, and his son, Phi-Lien-Leon and Li Jackson, and several aides.

At a public reception here in San Francisco's Chinatown, largest in this country, Li said:

Came For Hope

The Communist threat to China and Asia is grave but there is cause for hope. "I expect all Chinese will support the Nationalist government. This is not to work hard enough for the people's welfare.

Li declared his absence from China in no way affected the campaign against the Communists and "as soon as my physical condition permits . . . I shall return to China and resume my personal direction of the struggle."

Won't go Home

But developments in Communist-overrun China make it improbable that Li will be able to go home in the foreseeable future.

Red armies are mopping up the last Nationalist remnants on the China mainland. The only forces considered loyal to Li are being evacuated from southwest China to Hainan Island.

The remaining centres of Nationalist resistance on the continent and the island bastion of Formosa are under the control of Chiang Kai-Shek. Li and Chiang are bitter political opponents. Despite their anti-Communist alliance, their hostility has now spilled into the open over the issue of Li's departure from China.

SET UP DESIGNING BUSINESS

Oakville, Dec. 7.—(CP)—A brother-and-sister team from Alberta is making a go of a venture into designing, manufacturing and painting fine china. Now, with three assistants and $2,000 worth of equipment, they work day and night on Christmas orders from department stores and other companies.

Merely a Statement

"It seemed to me that it would not be in keeping with the spirit under which the Massey Commission was established if the brief of the film board was merely a statement of existing government policy.

"In my opinion, what was wanted as an independent expression of views with which the Massey Commission could deal as they saw fit."

(The film board brief recommended that it be given an increase in staff and a greater allotment of public funds to expand work.)

Mr. Winters led off with a statement in which he said the government-owned film board is not seeking to become a movie monopoly in Canada.

On the contrary, he said, the board is attempting to encourage private enterprise in the Canadian film industry.

He praised the work of the film board and said that of the 81 employees who left the board this year, not one was discharged for being a communist.

Mr. Winters said later in reply to questions asked by Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary East) that the R.C.M.P. screening of film board employees for security purposes is not finished yet. Neither he nor any officials of the film board had received any report on the results of the screenings.

Investigation Routine

The investigation is routine, he said. Its purpose was to establish the trustworthiness of all employees so that the board could handle secret films for the Department of National Defence.

He regretted that "so many valuable employees or the film board should be obliged to work in an atmosphere of doubt, generated by the charges and criticisms of a few blind or other levelled at the board from time to time."

Every attempt was being made to protect the employees' rights and freedoms while screening by the R.C.M.P., was proceeding.

"The worst feature of all in the business is that we cannot wait for actual cases of espionage or sabotage or other offences; we simply cannot afford to employ or continue to employ persons about whose trustworthiness we have no definite assurance".

The government had retained the firm of J. D. Woods and Gordon to investigate and report on all aspects in the film business administration.

Regarding that the board is seeking a film monopoly and the destruction of the private film industry Mr. Winters said:

"I can state positively that the board has no such policy. On the contrary, it is the policy to encourage private film production in Canada. . . There are many cases in which . . . it has stimulated private enterprise to undertake operations which it might not otherwise have undertaken."

Concerted Barrage

Mr. Winters was subjected to a concerted barrage of questions from Progressive Conservative members who criticized the film board at length.

Mr. Harkness pressed Mr. Winters for information on the results of R.C.M.P. screening. He said he had learned from private sources that between 40 and 43 employees had been found unfit to be trusted with secret work. These were being moved to other government departments.

Mr. Harkness said that if this was true, he objected to the action. If an employee could not be trusted in one department he could not be trusted in another.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said one of the causes of misunderstanding about the operations of the film board was that the people were misinformed about it He urged establishment of a committee at the next session to learn of all phases of the board.

Mr. Drew described as a "farce" the situation which permitted film board employees to make films in the highly-secret atomic energy plant at Chalk River, Ont., while forbidding them from working on less secretive defence films. Carefully Screened

Mr. Winters replied after that the work at Chalk River had been done by several employees who were carefully screened beforehand and were under security guard all the time they were at the plant.

It was much easier to screen seven persons than to do the job for the several hundred employees of the film board. He promised that any action found necessary would be taken when the report of the R.C.M.P. is delivered.

Others of the widely varied remarks in the long debate:

Mr. Coldwell: "It is a great pity that we have an organization of this sort—and the same applies naturally to our Canadian Broadcasting Corporation — there are people in this country, . . . who went to tear it down and destroy it because they feel it interferes with some vested interest they may have."

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre): "One of the reasons why the film board has come under severe criticism is the fact that there is no direct responsibility to parliament and also the fact that it is one body from which it is almost impossible to get answers to questions asked in the House of Commons."

STROKE OF PEN

Senator Roebuck tried unsuccessfully in committee and in the Senate to get through an amendment which would have removed responsibility for crime magazines from news dealers.

The amendment would have confined responsibility to printers and publishers of crime magazines.

Thrown Into Confusion

It followed representations from the comic-book trade that the legislation has "thrown the industry into confusion."

Spokesmen for publishers and distributors told the Senate committee during consideration of the bill that it had been passed hurriedly by the Commons and was given "inadequate and unfair" treatment. They were William Zimmerman of Toronto, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Independent Publishers' Association, and W. F. Swindon of Toronto, representing distributors.

They claimed "frightened" news dealers all over the country were destroying not only crime books but all comics and other magazines as well. Only 13 per cent of comic books could be termed crime comics, yet the legislation might force publishers and some news dealers out of business.

Act as Censors

As it stood, he said, the bill forced the approximately 11,000 small news dealers to act as censors. It said ignorance of what constituted a crime comic was no excuse. Dealers either would have to know every page of every magazine passing through their hands, and they would throw out doubtful publications rather than take a chance.

Senator Roebuck said this would result in a substantial Canadian industry being killed and many persons entitled to read comics being deprived of their rights.

Mr. Zimmerman said he believed members of parliament had acted in good faith in what they believed were the best interests of the country, but none had taken the trouble to consult the industry regarding comic books.

The impression had not taken action previously because it believed —evidently wrongly—that there was no chance of the "far-reaching" legislation being passed since it was "seriously" considered by parliament. They first had learned of it at a public hearing through parliament only Monday night after it had gone through the Commons.

He urged either that the bill define crime comics more specifically so that dealers would know what was banned, or that a federal board of censorship be set up. Barring this, he suggested that the bill be amended so as to make only the publishers liable to prosecution. These publishers would be willing to accept this responsibility.

Forced Out of Business

Mr. Zimmerman said the legislation might force some publishers out of business, since the 12 per cent of their stock which involved crime comics might mean the difference between profit and loss. The effect might be still more serious for news stand dealers, who made 33 per cent of their receipts from sale of comic books.

He quoted various child-welfare authorities to back his contention that comic books do not have any real influence on youth.

Justice Minister Garson disagreed with Mr. Zimmerman's statement that the industry had not had an indication that the legislation was going through.

When the bill had been introduced last Oct. 21 Mr. Garson said he made a statement conveying practically all points, covered in the legislation and had made it quite clear that the government intended to try to get the legislation through at this session.

Hard to Decide

Senator Davies said he found it hard to decide on the banning of crime comics, particularly since the plates and mats, imported from the United States, were approved by a board composed of school superintendents and similar persons.

In any case, importation of the mats and plates could be banned under customs authority.

Introducing his amendment in the senate chamber, Senator Roebuck disagreed with Senator Haig that the amendment would take the teeth out of the bill. The teeth would remain, but they would bite only the proper persons.

Senator Davies said he was "wholeheartedly" in favor of the bill, but would support the amendment. He felt it would give the publishers a chance to "clean house" of objectionable publications and in a short time there would be no more trouble. But the onus should be placed on the publisher.

GREATER

Expect New Treaty

One of the U.S. representatives who asked not be identified, said that "every hope" that a new treaty will be ready for submission to the senate by early 1950.

United States' acceptance of treaties is dependent upon approval by two-thirds of the senate.

Canada and the U.S. both recognize that there has long been a need for "remedial" power works to use the hydro potentiality of the Falls to better advantage.

Water now used at the Falls for power—including temporary additional diversions—approximates 32,500 cubic feet a second by the United States, and 54,000 by Canada.

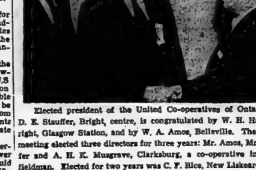
A substantial amount of the Canadian-generated power, however, is transmitted to the U.S

The U.S. Power Commission study estimated that the possible increased generation would be lower in cost than power from alternative fuel-electric plants under either public or private financing.

Total cost of the possible American improvements, the Power Commission engineers say, would range from $305,700,000 to $350,000,000—depending upon the type of construction adopted.

STROKE OF PEN

Speakers opposing the Roebuck amendment were Senators John T. Haig, opposition leader; George H. Barbour (L—Prince Edward Island), Jacob Nicol (PC—Quebec), J. J. Hayes Doone (L—New Brunswick), and C. P. Campbell (L—Ontario).



Senator Roebuck said no one would oppose the principle that objectionable publications should be eliminated. But he did not feel anyone would want to ban arbitrarily comics which were not objectionable.

"Two Most Pressing Problems" Unanswered, FAO Director Says

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP) — pressing problems."

Norris E. Dodd, Director-General of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, the agency's fifth annual conference shortly before it adjourned early today, that they had failed to answer "the world's two most

Dodd expressed disappointment and said the problems of (1) how to feed millions of starving people and (2) how to distribute commodity food surpluses to those people "will not solve themselves."

"I don't think," he said, "that any of us can feel in our conscience that we have given those starving people any help."

The Director-General added that maybe the "F.A.O. committee on commodity problems" which was formed here as an advisory body will be able to help some people. "But," he said, "it certainly cannot help the millions."

Dodd told delegates to the 63-country meeting that they have also let the world's farmers down. "How do you think they feel," he asked, "when they are now receiving instructions from their governments to cut down production, or food products?"

He had originally forwarded the proposal for an international commodity clearing-house to help member countries dispose of food surpluses by sending them to food-short states. His proposal was rejected — by the United States, Canada, Australia and Britain, and was killed by non-action.

Most of the 14-hour session Tuesday was consumed with routine matters, but a few controversial matters also were taken up.

The delegates decided that the next session of the F.A.O. is to be held in April, 1951, either in Rome or Washington—depending on whether the permanent home is completed in Italy.

CONFERENCE OVER AIR FACT

Ottawa Dec. 8 — (CP) — External affairs minister Pearson said today the government is willing to accept a United States proposal for a conference between representatives of the two governments in an attempt to resolve difficulties that have arisen out of the Bilateral Air Treaty.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The following is an excerpt from the Trenton sheet sports column under the by-line of Dick Bridgeman. Mark's well, inwardly digest, and then gaffaw. Here 'tis—

"It is still not too late for Trenton to be represented in OHA hocker circles this winter if something is done about it in the next few or three weeks. Those in Toronte last weekend we went in to see George Panter, assistant secretary of the OHA, is fired out a few things about the possibility of taking a local entry. I told him that we did not have sufficient players in the town alone to form a respectable Intermediate squad but told him that if we were allowed to use Belleville players who did not catch a place on the Diesel Electric Senior "B" squad we could. He said that that a ruling will be going through at the annual meeting of the OHA tomorrow in Toronto allowing us to use three Belleville players but that we would have to go Senior "B". I told him that we still wouldn't have a club of the same calibre as Peterborough, Kingston and Belleville squads but that we still might be interested in playing this higher but that we still might be interested in playing this higher calibre if we could be grouped in an Intermediate A group. He said that he would have no difficulty in placing us in the local Intermediate "A" group, which will likely consist of RCAF Flyers, Cobourg, Port Hope, Newmanville and Whitby. The would mean that Trenton would be represented by a fair brand of hocker players and would get in a better position for playoff berths during the winter. Then when complete schedule of hocker games was set up late in the the playoffs arrive, the local club would get a break by Senior "B" clubs with their opponents very likely the winner of the Kingston - Peterborough - Belleville - Senior "B" series. Regarding carrying on in the Senior "B" playoffs, we feel that the problem should be settled by a vote of the team players, if the boys feel that they can afford the time and the money to spend on the hocker game that plays "B" league

Windsor Winger Scores Five Goals Against Oshawa

(By The Canadian Press)

Glen Skov, speedy left-winger of second place Windsor Spitfires, emerged as the individual star of last night's Ontario Hockey Association activity, scoring five goals to pace his club to a 14-3 victory over Oshawa Generals. The win boosted Windsor to within three points of the top-slot Toronto Marlboros in Junior "A" standings.

In other junior games last night St. Catharines Teepees had their hopes of going alone into third place, quashed by last-place Stratford by losing to the Kroehl'ers and Guelph accomplished the same feat, hanging an 8-4 decision on Barrie Flyers. In the only senior contest, Toronto Marlboros made it eight in a row, thumping Hamilton Tigers 9-3.

With the 14-3 victory, Spitfires raised their total for their last three games to 39 goals, an awesome total. Last night, they pumped four goals behind Oshawa goalie Don Shropshire in the opening period, four more in the second and six in the third period. Chalked for counters, other than Skov with five, were Earl Johnson and Jim May with two each, and John Bailey, Erwin Grosse, Vic Howe, Earl Rebbel and Mike Dutch with singletons. Two of Skov's goals were tallied in the second and the others in the six-goal finale.

St. Catharines had a one-goal lead in the first period at Stratford on goals by Norm Corcoran and Con Switzer against a Kroehler single by Dinny Flanagan. Stratford came back in the middle frame with counters by Jim Renshaw and Don Heinbuch.

The Kroehler crew stepped up the win and carried it away with three markers in the closing minutes. Flanagan, Doug French and Dunnette were the marksmen.

Silver in Contention

At Barrie, playing before home fans for the first time in a week, the Flyers were never in contention during the opening frame. Right Halfback put Biltmores one up early in the first period. Red McCarthy got that back for Barrie seven minutes later but it was the closest Barrie got to the flying Biltmores.

Ernie Dickenson potted two for Guelph in the second against Kenny Connelly's Barrie staff. Andy Bathgate, Ken Plumb, Chas Konsenny and Bob Palmer rang the ball in the third for Biltmores before Rich Hogg and John Bobbitt notched Barrie's closing counters.

At Toronto, Marlboros showed no signs of slowing down in their quest for senior honors. Chuck Blair and Johnny McLellan rifled home markers in the opening session without an answer from Hamilton. With a sudden surge of life the Bengals tied it up within the first eight minutes of the second period, Max Taylor and Eddie Beach rapping in the counters. Marlboros took the game in hand at the 13:40 mark, with veteran Scotty Mair nothing the game winner.

The third period was anti-climactic. With the older Hamilton crew tiring, Toronto added two more to their total to stab Hamilton farther into the inky depths of the cellar. Red Johnson and Johnny McCormack scored the final Marlboro snipers.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

It was my South American friend who said: "Bridge she is a game I will never understand." He had the gender right, anyway. Just when you think you know all about her, you don't.

You can have the most perfect bidding system. Your slam method may seem faultless. Then comes a deal that makes a slam when there is no advance indication that you should be there.

Take your last look at this deal:

NORTH
♣ K J 10 8 7 4 2

WEST EAST
♠ A 10 4 3 ♠ Q J 8 7 6
♥ None ♥ 8 6 4 2
♦ A Q 6 5 4 2 ♦ K 10
♣ Q 9 5 ♣ A 6 5

SOUTH
♥ A K Q J 5
♦ J 9 7
♣ Q 3

South opened the bidding with a heart and the bidding ended in four spades with east as the declarer. Nothing in the bidding could tell east and west that 13 tricks would be taken.

Opening lead from south was the heart king. When dummy's hand went down, what were the prospects. A possible loser to the king of trump and a possible loser of the second round of clubs.

Seeing all four hands you know the trump finesse can be irrepressible. Also that the long west-diamonds can be used for slufting the club loser. But this was not known or shown in the bidding.

Ruffing each heart with trumps. Let the opening lead be a club. What would be the result? Declarer in east could take no more than 11 tricks. Even a small slam would thus be defeated.

But what actually happened? Dummy in west ruffed the opening heart lead. A small diamond entered east with the king. Spade queen was let down from east and trapped the south trump king.

Sooner or later the south spade king falls and the remaining trumps, if any, are taken from south. Then the diamond's establish. On the long diamonds can be shuffed all east losers.

The moral of this is very plain. No matter how accurate your bidding system, the game of bridge is never cut and dried. Slams should be deplorable as something unpredictable.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 8—(AP)—"In two years David Brian will be bigger than any male except Cable—and boy ever, stand on a par with the king himself."

This prediction comes from Joan Crawford, who does not often put herself out on a limb. Brian's first picture was with La Crawford and he's again appearing with her in "The Victim".

"I have never seen an actor with so much desire and capacity to learn, nor one who caught on to the tricks of our trade so fast," says the lettress.

Brian's studio apparently has a similar regard for the guy who used to tear tickets at the New York Roxy.

No Trouble

Jan Sterling is just about set for "Born Yesterday"—and thank heaven that picture is finally cast! As soon as she finishes "The Furies" and says she is working on a method to grow black roses. Hmmm, wonder if she played Medea too long.

Barbara Stanwyck is seeking a comedy after "The Furies," her fourth drama in a row. "Although I don't carry my work home, she says, "there is a bit of emotional strain after you've been bulldog yourself up to a high pitch all day."

Around the Town

Sign at Warner Bros. studio: "Beware of people who spread gossip and rumors — they may talk about you next."

Van Johnson will be returning to MGM. She gave it her two suicide pictures in order to make "Annie Get Your Gun." She'll be featured on an "Annie" record before she returns from the sound track. Otherwise, she has ended all her record commitments. She hates disc making.

Lana Turner sympathizes with Elizabeth Taylor's fretting over her critical press. "Why don't they leave her alone?" Lana asks. "She's only doing what any girl her age is doing. But because she is a movie star, she gets criticized. Believe me, I have been there. I know how it must be happening to me for 11 years.

MELR OSE

The Melrose Junior Farmers held their December meeting in the form of a banquet for their families and friends of the community on Dec. 2 in the Township Hall. Tables were set for over 100 and the Women's Institute catered for this gala occasion and an interesting program followed. Sherman Lazier, president of the Club, acted as chairman and proposed a toast to The King. Mr. B. Walsh, recve of Tyendinaga Township, welcomed all and complimented the boys on their zeal and enthusiasm. A toast to the guests was proposed by Earl Badgley and ably replied to by each representative, John Huffman of Codeyville, Community-singing, musical numbers by Jean and Marilyn Eggleton and piano solos by Garnet Sills helped to brighten the evening's entertainment.

The guest speaker, who was introduced by A. O. Dalrymple was Mr. R. Banbury of Northumberland. His talk was most timely as he urged the young men to accept the challenge thrown out to them by the Junior Farmer movement whereby they would gain valuable training in citizenship and competitive undertakings and leadership as members of junior clubs in their rural communities. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker. This was followed by the election of officers which resulted as follows: President, Sherman Lazier; Vice President, George Blabberwick; Secretary Treasurer, Chas. Bater; Directors — Chas. Long, Wilmot Embury, Wm. English, Mac Lazier, Harold McMechan; Reporter, Earl Badgley.

50 YEARS A WRITER

A half century of work as a novelist, historian and newspaper man was marked by Victor Lauriston, 68-year-old Chatham Daily News reporter, during the weekend.Tribute was paid to Mr. Lauriston, who has worked his entire career in Chatham, at a banquet attended by 175 friends and associates. Mr. and Mrs. Lauriston are shown following the presentation of a silver service to them. Health Minister Martin, who came from Ottawa for the dinner, is in the background, centre. — (CP Photo.)

Communist Tactics May Halt World-Wide International Tennis

London, Dec. 8. (AP)—Communist tactics in Eastern Europe may halt world-wide international tennis, the president of the British Lawn Tennis Association said today.

Baron Tempelwood, in a speech prepared for the association's annual meeting, said western countries can't remain indifferent to the communist players' efforts to spread propaganda while playing in tournaments.

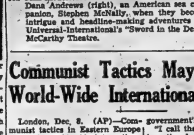
"Sport in a totalitarian country is regarded solely and only as a government activity for the furtherance of government policy," he said. "The players who represent a totalitarian country as sporting event are regarded as agents of their government and are expected to carry out in every respect their government's instructions.

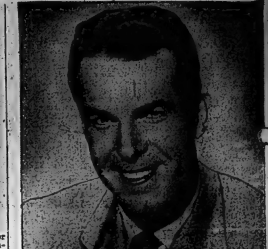
"I call the attention of the International Federation of Lawn Tennis to this state of affairs and I ask representatives of this and other non-totalitarian associations whether it is possible to maintain athletic co-operation with countries whose conception of games is so utterly opposed to our own."



This action in Eastern Europe Lord Tempelwood maintained "if it is left unchecked, may well endanger the whole future of international lawn tennis ... We who have always stood for the autonomy of sport and the encouragement of amateur sportsmanship cannot be indifferent to this attack upon the very foundations of the world-wide system of international tennis."

Lord Templewood said the trend was noticeable at Wimbledon the last two years but had come out in the open at the Swiss championships in July. He did not elaborate regarding Wimbledon.

It was during the Swiss tournament that the Czech government ordered its two star players, Jaroslav Drobny and Vladimir Cernik, to withdraw. They refused and became political exiles.



AT THE McCARTHY'— Each second holds danger and suspense for Dana Andrews (right), an American sea captain, and his companion, Stephen McNally, when they become involved in the intrigue and headline-making adventures of the Near East in Universal-International's "Sword in the Desert," now at Odeon's McCarthy Theatre.

SAYS ATOM DATA GIVEN TO REDS

Major George Racey Jordan, former U.S. air force officer, said in a radio interview with commentator, that Russia obtained the atomic bomb secrets, plans and uranium from the U.S. in 1944 through White House orders, and not by post-war espionage. Jordan, now vice-president of the American Pacific Industrial Corp, was an inspection officer at Great Falls, Mont., where planes were allegedly loaded for Russia. He said that H. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's "right hand man" during the war and director of lend lease, gave the orders and clearance for "Russians to take these top secrets to Moscow." Other U.S. officials deny Jordan's statements. — Central Press Canadian.

Two CNR Engines Are Derailed At Ingersoll

Ingersoll, Dec. 8. (CP)— Two Canadian National Railways engines were disabled when a London-Mimico freight train and a light engine collided here today.

Neither locomotive was derailed by the crash but Thomas Landick of London, Ont., fireman on the light engine was injured when he jumped from the cab and struck his head on a rock bank.

Railway officials said the freight was pulling on to the main line from a siding where it had parked to allow an east bound passenger train to go through, when it was struck by the light engine also proceeding east on the main line.

Another engine was dispatched from London to take over the Mimico bound freight.

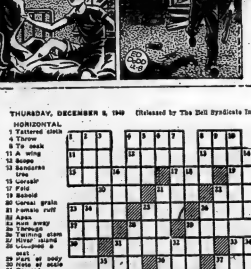
SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

I was on my stummick on the floor reading my funny library book, and ma called from the kitchin, benny, have you got the front door open?

No mam, i'm in the living room, so how can I? I said, and ma said, I dont know, but you can do some funny things.

And she came and looked in the living room, saying, I cant understand why the house should get freezing cold so suddinly for no reason, unless there is a reason. Ar- you sure you haven't been holding a long winded conversation with somebody while that front door was wide open to the elements? she said.



No mam, just the opposite, ma, I said. Nobody would come around, I said, Anyways, no, said ma, I was telling us in school about climate of climate being the best thing there is for people's health.

My helth is all rite, thank you, said, but's the way I'll like to keep it, with the temperature of the house free from icy gales, she said, and I said, But Jimminies, ma, Miss Kitty claimed if it wasn't for changes of climate our bodies couldn't resist germs and things half as good.

I dont want any changes of climate in my own house in the dead of winter with the heating bills going up every month and no gitty nollegs on the subject, she said, and I said, Well, maybe it was partly because I opened all these windows just long enough to see if it would have any effect on the thermometer. And it's okay, ma, the thermometer is working perfect. It went down 7 places, so I guess you dont need to worry about not having a good thermometer, I said.

Being the beginning of the 2nd part.

SOUND DOES IT

This column or water that looks like a snake, rising from a tank of water for no apparent reason is caused by sound the human ear cannot detect: Electrical engineers say that ultrasonic waves at a frequency of 2,000,000 cycles are emanating from the disc of barium titanate held in the clamps at left of the tank. A concave disc focuses the sound waves upward, causing the water above the sound waves to act up as shown. Just what use the knowledge can be is not immediately apparent. — Central Press Canadian.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

"Six months to live!" The words seared themselves into Ann Hampton's brain. Her ears were deaf to the hum of the luxurious automobiles, and her eyes failed to see the gaily dressed women who were hastening along New York's Fifth Avenue for tea at the Ritz, or to gaze once more on the paintings of the Old Masters.

"Why, Ann Hampton, what are you doing parading the avenue at this time of day?" questioned the laughing voice of Lucy Madison whose brief career in the same office as Ann had terminated in her marriage to a young man with money and position.

"Hullo, Lucy," responded Ann as though she were waking from a bad dream.

Slipping her arm through Ann's, Lucy carried softly, "What's the trouble honey?"

Ann was silent. There was a funny choking feeling in her throat. The great specialist's words echoed again in her ears. "Six months to live ... and it was the spring of the year when everything was awakening.

"Let's have a cup of tea, Ann. I know the cunningest little tea-room just around the corner." Lucy piloted her friend across its threshold. She hadn't seen much of Ann since she had left the office. When she was there Ann had always seemed such a self sufficient capable person that Lucy felt as though she had little use for the younger girls. But now their positions were reversed. As she ordered her tea she chatted gaily, then turning to Ann she said "What's worrying you?"

"I don't believe it," declared Lucy as Ann told her the dreadful news. "Doctors always tell you the very worst. They are the greatest killjoys in the world. You were always so strong. Just think of the colds we all used to have in the office."

"But, Lucy, Dr. Symon is a famous T. B. specialist. Besides Dr. Brown said the same thing, and when I went to another because I thought Dr. Brown had made a mistake his verdict was the same," Ann's voice was hoarse.

"Oh, these specialists make me sick." Lucy's eyes noted the unwonted flush on Ann's cheeks as she continued quickly, "They are always looking for something and of course they find it, or think they do. I don't believe you have T.B."

Ann's bright eyes looked accusingly at Lucy. Of course Dr. Symon said if I was very careful I might live a little longer, but I'll have to go to some of those places where they send poor wrecks." A note of despair was heard in Ann's voice.

"You'll do nothing of the kind." Lucy was racking her brains for some way of helping her friend. "Have you told your family yet?"

"Oh no, There's really no one to bother about me since mother and dad died. Amy and Alice are married, and I've no idea where Harold is."

"Doesn't one of your sisters live out West? Surely you could go out there for a while."

"Oh, it's years since I saw Amy and now that Alice is settled beside her I'm sure they have no time for me, especially when I'm sick. Amy never could stand sickness, and as she has two youngsters I know she wouldn't want me to come within a hundred miles of them. I guess I'll try and find a place in some little village and go there and die." Utter weariness was reflected in Ann's beautiful eyes.

"Ann Hampton, don't speak like that, I'm not a specialist, but I'll tell you what's the matter with you. You're simply fed up on your work. What you need is a change of scene and some adventure. Maybe you're a bit run down. I admit you look a little peaked. But that shouldn't worry you. Just look what a winter we've had! The sudden changes are enough to kill us all. Besides I always think you take your work too seriously, Why, Ann you used to carry all the responsibility of the office. It doesn't pay."

Ann wondered if it did as she looked at Lucy—so radiantly happy, so utterly carefree just as in the days of old.

"Won't you have another cup of tea? You know when I get started talking I really forget about my duties as a hostess," Lucy smiled bewitchingly.

It was dusk when they parted but even in the city streets there was a hint of spring. A street vendor of flowers thrust a bunch towards Ann. She bought them. Crossing the threshold of the house where she lived she opened the door of her tiny apartment. She was terribly tired. But, remembering something Lucy had said a new idea flashed into her mind.

Lucy had been the means of recalling something to Ann Hampton's mind. Her dark eyes were sparkling as she dragged an ancient seaman's chest from her cupboard. It was the only heirloom she possessed. Her father had kept his valuables in it. When he died she became its owner with all its contents. There were one or two bonds and a bunch of stock certificates of a copper mine. The latter had never paid any dividends, but her father had always held on to them. He had assured her some day they would be worth a fortune.

Unlocking the chest and swinging back the heavy iron clasps that added to its strength as well as picturesqueness, Ann rummaged amongst its contents until she found a small japanned black box.

"I wonder what I'll get for this," she exclaimed as she looked at the stock certificates. "Poor dad's expectations never came true. Well, I may as well sell them now for I want to raise all the money I can."

Picking up another paper Ann recognized the first government bond she had bought. Putting it once more in its envelope she said quietly, "Yes, were so interested for my old age, but now that I'm not going to have any I may as well dispose of you. You're worth at least a thousand, but I'll need all the money I can lay my hands on." Laying her bank book beside her certificates Ann closed the old chest whose hinges creaked as she pulled down the lid once more.

"You want me to dispose of everything?" questioned the broker next morning as Ann handed the man her securities.

"Yes", replied Ann. "How quickly can I get the money for them?"

"Oh, If you'll wait a few minutes I'll sell these government bonds for you at once."

"Fine," exclaimed Ann who was already weaving fanciful dreams around the money she would soon have in her hands.

"There you a little blown you, so you'll make something on them," exclaimed the man as he made some notations.

"That's good," said Ann. "What about the copper stock?"

"Well; I'd advise you to hold on to that. It's away down just at present although there are indications that it will rise before so very long."

Ann laughed, "Oh that's the same old story I've heard for years. I don't believe there will be any change for a few months. Besides I need the money. Go ahead and sell it for whatever you can get for it."

"Very well, but if you sell it now I'm afraid you're going to make a little blown you, as none of my business really to offer you advice, only we like to satisfied our clients."

For a fleeting second Ann hesitated. What if, after all, the doctors were wrong? A little money might come in handy six month's hence. She brushed away the suggestion. Of course the specialists were right. "I appreciate what you say, but I want you to sell it now." All indecision had left her voice.

A few minutes later Ann was on the street again. Never before had she had so much money in her possession at once. Five thousand dollars! How rich she felt. Suddenly she longed to buy something. Of course she knew that it would cost quite a bit for the idea she had in mind. Still she could surely be extravagant—extravagant at least for her. She had left the financial section of the city and was now walking slowly among the shopping throngs who were hastening back and forth along the avenue. What would she buy?

Strange now that she could really afford to gratify some of her desires she found that the longing to possess rare prints, musty old books, or even pretty clothes, had vanished. What had come over her? Well it was a good thing after all that this had happened, She was getting too set in her ways. She shivered. How dreadful to have lost all enthusiasm! Had she really come to that?

Hastily taking it Ann handed him a quarter. "Keep the change" she said, as she passed on.

With a whoop of delight the boy returned to his stand, while Ann, entering an exclusive tea-room, sought a table in a secluded nook. Turning to the back pages of the paper, an eager light flashed into her eyes. Would she find what she wanted there?

The spring sunshine was drifting into Ann's tiny apartment and dappling the gold of the gay daffodils that Lucy Madison had sent around with a message that she was coming a little later. Ann knew that Lucy would have a plan for her. Strange how Lucy had crossed her path at this time. Ann had seen comparatively little of her in the office. She was just one of the red-lipped bobbed-headed stenographers who seemed to spend their days delicately touching up their eyebrows or arranging their coiffures. Ann smiled as she thought of the bunch, yet acknowledged they were wonderfully efficient.

U.S. Investigators Tracing Leaks Turn to Canada

Inquiry May Become Hot Political Issue in 1950

Washington, Dec. 9 — (AP)— United States Congressional investigators, tracing reported uranium leaks to Russia, today turned their eyes toward Canada amid indications that their inquiry may become a hot 1950 political issue.

Two investigators for the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities, were reported in Canada, where Trade Minister Howe announced yesterday that 1,000 pound or uranium compounds were shipped to Russia via Great Falls, Mont., in 1943.

Committee sources insisted that these two developments were not related, but reports persisted that the committee may renew its once-abandoned effort to obtain records of a court action in New York by the Canadian government in connection with uranium sales. Howe, the committee's prime investigator, has said the investigation of the Canadian angle has been "reactivated."

Russell Nixon of two agents committee sources said left for Canada Wednesday night after the committee had received Lt.-Gen. Leslie R. Groves, retired, wartime chief of the United States' atomic bomb project.

The investigators are due to return before the committee's next scheduled hearing Dec. 19, when Groves and other officials are expected with the lend-lease program on the agenda.

On that date, also, the committee may reach a decision on Vice-president Henry A. Wallace's request for a hearing.

Request Denied

Wallace made his request after radio commentator Fulton Lewis, Jr., named him as a source of pressure in spreading wartime atomic shipments to Russia. Wallace has denied this.

The hearing told the committee that in the years before the war limited amounts of uranium compounds were available commercially. The Russians, he said, did not get enough from the U.S. during the war to make an atomic bomb.

During Groves' appearance before the House committee, two Democratic members were present — in circumstances that brought sharp contrasts Thursday from three Republicans, representatives Vorys (R-Ohio), Nixon (R-Calif.) Francis Case (S.D.) and Harold Velde (R-Ill.).

They told chairman John Wood (Dem., Ga.) that they weren't given opportunity to be on hand, adding that this "can only be explained by newspaper reports already published that the speed was prompted by a desire to embarrass the former administration officials accused."

Democrats Wood, Wallace and the late Harry Hopkins, who was a friend and adviser to President Roosevelt, died in 1946.

Girl Given Hormones for Arthritis Gets Diabetes, More Research Needed

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, Dec. 9 — (AP) — The case of a 10-year-old New York girl who got diabetes from taking the hormone cortisone for arthritis, was revealed here today.

She was first given cortisone for rheumatoid arthritis. The disease quickly disappeared, but was replaced by diabetes. When the hormone was stopped, diabetes went away and arthritis returned.

Acth was given, and the same thing happened.

A third trial was made. Again cortisone stopped arthritis and diabetes appeared. The hormone was stopped a few days ago. Diabetes has gone, but arthritis may return.

The report was made to the New Jersey Rheumatism Society by a member of the New York University - Bellevue Medical Centre study group on rheumatic diseases.

In August this girl's arthritis was so bad she could not get out of bed. Her weight had dropped from about 70 to 40 pounds. She did not want to eat. She could not close her fists. Joints were swollen like gnarled knots.

Two days after cortisone started, pain disappeared. She was hungry again and put weight rapidly. In weeks the big joints had shrunk to normal size.

The diabetes that replaced arthritis became fairly severe. When cortisone was stopped, the joints took only two weeks to swell again.

By reducing the doses of hormones it was possible to balance things so that the girl had both mild arthritis and mild diabetes.

Dr. Joseph J. Bunim, associate Professor of Medicine, and director of Clinical Research for the rheumatism study, said this case "emphasizes the need for much more research into the side effects of the two hormones."

FREE ENTERPRISE OR SOCIALISM ELECTION ISSUE

5,000,000 Voters in Australia Compelled to Cast Vote on Saturday

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 9 (AP) —Nearly 5,000,000 Australian voters will choose tomorrow between the present Labor government and the anti-Socialist Coalition of Liberal and Country parties.

Polls close in Australia's three time zones at 8 p.m. local time (6 to 8 a.m. EST).

The Labor Party of Prime Minister J. B. Chifley, a former locomotive driver, has been in power eight years. It has a longrange program of Socialization. It believes government controls are needed to stabilize the economy and insure full employment.

The opposition promises to halt nationalization and the Australian socialistic trend.

The Liberals are led by former Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies; a former Leader of the Country party—strong in rural areas—is Arthur W. Fadden, an accountant. Menzies would be the next Prime Minister should the Coalition win.

Public Stirred

This election has stirred the public more than any since the Commonwealth was born.

The Empire and many countries outside the Empire look to the result as IF Australia will follow New Zealand's anti-socialistic decision last week. The neighboring Dominion tossed out the 14-year-old Labor government of Prime Minister Peter Fraser in favor of a private enterprise National party.

The election also may have some bearing on the British General election next year, which a five-year-old Labor government appeals for endorsement of its policies.

House Enlarged

Labor held 43 seats in the last House of Representatives out of a total 74. To-day the House is now enlarged to 121 seats, all of which are being contested in tomorrow's elections.

Voting is compulsory in Australia and complicated. The House of Representatives is chosen by a preferential system. That is, the voter marks his first choice by putting "1" after the name of the candidate he prefers, "2" goes by the name of his second choice and so on.

Labor has a stranglehold on the elected Senate. It had 32 of the Senate's former 36 seats. The Senate is now enlarged to 62 seats and voting for these will be done by a proportional system.

New South Wales is regarded as key state. Whichever party gains the majority in this important industrial and agricultural state—with 39 per cent of the electors—will probably carry the election. The state government of New South Wales is in the hands of Labor.

SAFETY MEASURES TO BE ENFORCED ON ALL SHIPS

Prompt Action Planned On Noronic Fire Report

Ottawa, Dec. 9 —(CP)—Safety regulations on Canadian ships will be strictly enforced as result of the disastrous fire that killed 118 passengers aboard the ship Noronic in Toronto harbor Sept. 17.

Transport Minister Chevrier told the commons Thursday that prompt government action will be taken to put into effect safety measures recommended in the Noronic fire inquiry.

Enforcement of regulations will go beyond the Great Lakes where the Noronic operated. He told members that the transport department has ordered a complete investigation of all ships on the west coast for safety precautions.

Not only has the "complete investigation" of six ships under the steamship-inspection service been told to "make sure that all the steamship-inspection regulations are enforced."

The minister made the statements during study of the estimates of his department. Earlier members, aiming for prorogation by Saturday, completed study of the estimates of the Post Office and external affairs departments.

Still to be considered are the estimates of the defence services, Justice, Resources, Health, Veterans Affairs, Public Works and Trade.

Mr Action Taken

Mr. Chevrier's statement on shipping regulations was prompted by the fire investigation and lack of inspection which preceded the Noronic fire. He disclosed that

Labor Retains Bradford Seat In By-Election

Bradford, Yorkshire, England, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Labor Party retained the South Bradford seat in the House of Commons, centre of the woolen area, Thursday's by-election showed today.

The seat became highly important but the vote was viewed as a straw in the wind on the Labor party's prospects for the 1950 general election. The result was a sharp disappointment for Winston Churchill's Conservative party.

Today's victory was the 35th time in a row Labor successfully defended seats it held to fill vacancies, the districts they captured in the 1945 general election.

Craddock's majority of 1,140 votes over the combined votes of his two opponents compared with 1,576 in the 1945 election, ultimately 2,000 votes by which Craddock's predecessor in the seat, Labor M.P. Ellis Buckington, defeated two other candidates.

Research Resources Mobilized In Drive to Develop Drugs For Treatment of Arthritis

Ottawa, Dec. 9 (CP)— The resources of Canadian scientific research are being mobilized in the international drive to develop drugs which hold promise for the treatment of a number of diseases, including arthritis.

Health Minister Martin announced in the Commons Thursday night that Connaught Medical Research laboratories at the University of Toronto are going to undertake immediately to start production of Acth in Canada for investigation and clinical research by Canadian scientists.

Last week Ottawa announced that limited supplies of the other drug Cortisone—manufactured in the United States will be made available after Jan. 1 by Merck and Company of Montreal for research to be undertaken in Canada.

The sum of $250,000 will be available for the two projects in the first year.

Mr. Martin emphasized that all supplies of Acth made available in Canada will be allocated "exclusively" for research.

He also stressed that persons suffering from arthritis should not diseases for which Acth and Cortisone are used in combination should not neglect the treatment they may be taking at present.

No responsible medical practitioner would be made on when either hormone will be made readily available in quantities for treatment purposes.

As yet it is beyond the powers of scientists to produce these drugs in quantity, so six drives are being made to find better sources or less complicated and time-consuming production methods.

"Meanwhile, we are ensuring that funds will be available in Canada to further all useful lines of investigation both 'into the properties and the use of these drugs.

"To do this we must resolutely conserve them exclusively for research purposes as this is the surest guarantee of shortening the time that must elapse—and it might be a very long time—before they can be made available for all that they can benefit."

At present Acth is being extracted from the pituitary glands of hogs. It is estimated that 400,-000 hogs are needed to produce a pound of Acth. Current production of Acth in the U.S. is a total of 60 pounds a year.

The Canadian packing industry has agreed to co-operate in supplying the maximum amount of glands, Mr. Martin said.

Initial step will be to develop a method of production at Connaught Medical Research and store of the glands. The balance will be forwarded to Armour Laboratories in Chicago which developed successful processing techniques. Armour will make a supply of Acth available for use in Canada.

Acth, known to scientists as adreno-cortico-tropic hormone, gives promise of highly important discoveries which may lead to advances in the treatment of a number of diseases," Mr. Martin said.

"It is, for example, believed to stimulate the body to produce its own cortisone, which has already been found by doctors Kendall and Hench of the Mayo Clinic to be valuable in arthritis results' in the treatment of certain types of arthritis."

Mr. Martin said a secondary project will be undertaken in Ottawa. Acetate, hopeful research is made with Canada Packers of that type, to supply enough pituitary glands for the preparation at the food and drug laboratory of the Health department. Ottawa of "very limited quantities of Acth."

These will be tested "for potency and stability against preparations of known strength prepared in Chicago and Toronto."

The Mayo Clinic in 1948 designed a potency value and retained as a reference standard for the Acth and preparations from all manufacturers.

C.N.R. Trans-Continental And Freight Meet Head-on, Injured are all Walking Cases

Toronto, Dec. 9. (CP)— A Vancouver-Toronto passenger train collided head-on with a freight train today about eight miles north of Toronto. No one was killed, and the injured were all walking cases.

The 15-car passenger train was the Canadian National Railways' crack No. 4 Trans-Continental train. The freight consisted of 58 loaded cars and two empties, also en route from Toronto to Vaughan.

A C.N.R. spokesman said four cars on the head end of the passenger train were derailed as well as seven or eight cars on the freight, engine.

"There were some injuries to passengers and train personnel but none serious. Passengers and injured transferred to another passenger and train to complete the run to Toronto."

He said the passenger train, due in Toronto at 7.10 a.m., was running two hours and 40 minutes late.

The trains met between Oriole and Todmorden in the Don Valley.

An emergency call was sent for all available ambulances and doctors in Toronto and suburbs for the handling of the crash to go to the scene.

Among the first persons to arrive at the scene were Red Cross rescue workers. The Red Cross now is building a 10-day disaster institute here to plan a permanent organization to be sent into action in the event of large-scale disasters anywhere in Canada.

Police and ambulance men helped the injured out of the train and gave first aid on the railway siding until ambulances and doctors arrived.

The shotgun had discharged accidentally.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 9 — (CP) — A verdict of accidental death with no blame attached to anyone was returned Thursday in an inquest into the death Nov. 26 of James Running, 23, victim of the first hunting casualty of the season.

Running was shot by his brother-in-law George when mistaken for one of two deer the brothers were trailing 19 miles north of here.

Three Brothers Each Get Deer; Youngest Shoots Albino Doe

Derry, N.H., Dec. 9 — (AP) — For the three Webber brothers it's either a feast or a famine.

They started stalking deer when the season opened. Each got a hunting gun but never even glimpsed a deer. Then they got one dead—until yesterday when they bagged three of them—one each.

Henry A., 32, got a 110-pound doe at 1.30 p.m.

Richard A., 28, got a 70-pound buck at 3 p.m.

Richard was the smallest, it's true, but it was the most distinctive.

CONGRESSMAN THOMAS IS FINED AND IMPRISONED

Convicted of "Padding" His Office Payroll

Washington, Dec. 9 — (AP) — Representative J. Parnell Thomas (Rep. N.J.) today received six to 18 months in jail and a $10,000 fine for defrauding the government by "padding" his office pay roll.

Immediately after the sentence was pronounced, Thomas' wife announced:

"I intend to seek the congressional seat about to be vacated by my husband."

Mrs. Thomas told reporters her husband's resignation is in the mails.

Thomas is 54, his wife a little younger.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff gave an unusual lecture to Thomas along with the jail term and fine.

Seven Times Elected

He told the 53-year man who seven times was elected to the House as a Republican from New Jersey that he knew he had a good record in the First World War and "has done much good work" in Congress as chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

But, the judge said sternly:

"These can't properly be considered mitigating circumstances."

Thomas, 54, was convicted by a federal court jury in November.

Then he said, that the government produced testimony that "other employees" other than the 000 from salary "kickbacks" from fake employees he had put on his office pay roll and on the pay roll of the un-American Activities Committee.

Proposal for U.N. Supervision Of Holy Places Supported by Canada

By NORMAN ALLISTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 9 — (CP) — Canada long came out strongly against plans to give Jerusalem an international government and Thursday supported the super-vision of the Holy places by the United Nations.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton indicated to the U.N. Assembly that Canada believes a strict internationalization plan would not work but would only endanger the protection of the Holy places of Jerusalem.

However, first consideration is effective protection of the Holy places, Canada believes. It has made its the future of Jerusalem a matter for a plebiscite. The explosive question is the last major item on the Assembly agenda.

Referring to earlier discussions of the internationalization plan approved Wednesday in committee by a vote of 35 to 13 with 11 abstentions, McNaughton said:

"We did not vote then and we do not now see how it is to be implemented."

The Canadian delegate said the Dominion will vote for the Netherlands - Swedish proposal which calls for U.N. supervision of the Holy places and gradual demilitarization of Jerusalem.

Israel and other countries have contended that it might cost more than $34,000,000 to carry out U.N. plans.

There was intensive lobbying Thursday, with the United States delegation heading strong efforts to upset the 35-to-13 committee decision.

That vote supported a joint plan sponsored by El Salvador, Russia and Lebanon to carry out Assembly decisions of Nov. 29, 1947, and 1948 that a city be placed under U.N. rule.

Contained in the 1948 decision was a proposal that Jerusalem, Bethlehem Jordan the old city on the armistice lines now prevailing. Jordan is not a member of the U.N., but its representative was permitted to state King Abdullah's opposition to giving up its walled portion of the Holy City where most of the religious shrines of Christians, Jews and Moslems are located.

Action Taken Pending Consideration of Defence Pool

Ottawa, Dec. 9—(CP)—A temporary one-year subsidy of $3,000,000 to the Canadian shipping industry pending the creation of a proposed "allied defence shipping pool" was announced to the Commons today by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The Prime Minister told the House the government now has conversations under way—particularly with the United Kingdom —for the establishment of a shipping pool, which the government hoped would assure Canada's shipping needs would be fulfilled in time of war.

He emphasized that the subsidy was for one year only—1950—and was intended to keep the Canadian fleet intact until the proposed pool could be set up.

Canada's Merchant Fleet

Under the Prime Minister's plan, Canada would leave a remaining Canadian-flag merchant fleet of only 500,000 deadweight tons—40 ships—compared with the present 1,200,000, and the Canadian subsidiary growing out of the reduction.

The terms:

1. Ship owners who bought ships from the British government under restrictions against their transfer aboard, will have the restrictions relaxed at the discretion of the Minister of Transport. Owners will be able to transfer registry to other countries, while maintaining ownership, to enable them to obtain cargoes not now available because of restrictions against transfer.

2. Concessions will be given displaced merchant seamen to enable them to come under the government's "Vocational Training Plan."

The government's proposal for a shipping pool envisaged the transfer of some Canadian ships to the registry of other countries, with those countries taking as part of Canada's contribution to a defence shipping pool in the event of war.

The Prime Minister did not give any details of how the pool proposal would work out. He indicated the plans are still in the preliminary stage.

Aim of Understanding

The aim would be, he said, to complete preparations in advance which would "ensure the prompt, fair and efficient use and allocation of the available shipping in any emergency."

The announcement came as the shipping industry faced the threat of a growing decline in Canadian coastal, inland and cargo rates, and while a large number of Canada's deep-sea vessels were being laid up for lack of business.

Last week the Canadian Maritime Commission had pointed up the problem in its annual report, declaring the deep-sea fleet must be drastically reduced since it could not operate competitively against foreign competition without aid. The fleet is now running more than $20,000,000 a year.

Another lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of Canada was added to the realms of this popular order on Monday evening last, when Napanee lodge No. 527 came into being in colorful ceremony held in the IOOF hall with Mr. A. Moore Grand Organizer, in charge of the institution. Officers of Toronto lodge were present and with J. N. S. Dixon as its head—assisted in the various ceremonies of the evening. Other high officials of the order attending the meeting were P. A. Migeltin and Winnipeg. Dominion Grand Organizer and John F. Clarke, district Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler of Toronto. There were also several visiting members of Belleville lodge present.

Dignified decorum marked the ceremonies throughout and enthusiasm ran high among the 125 members forming the new "baby" lodge of the province — 25 strong.

The following local officers were elected and installed by District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler Dixon of Toronto lodge: Past Exalted Ruler, Chas. McConnell; Leading Kt., L. A. Paquin; Loyal Kt., R. Ham; Lecturing Kt., Ken Hamilton; Kingston; secretary, Reg. Hollis; treasurer, Ken Hamilton; inner tyler guard; Lynn Gordon; Tyler, F. Patton; trustees Geo. Sherman, C. Cooper and Ken Hamilton.

A midnight lunch followed the evening's ceremonies and was served in the banquet room of the hall where the table was handsomely set. was the presentation made to district deputy Dixon of a gift by the town of Napanee made by Mr. Pyne, representing the town. Several local citizens were also called on for brief remarks, all of these commending their institution at seeing an Elk's lodge instituted in the town and predicting that it would continue to grow and prosper to become a benefit and influence in the town and district. Short addresses were well received from Mr. Dixon and Mr. Clarkin. A stirring and most inspiring address by the Dominion Grand Organizer, Migueln, on the aims, ideals and objects of Order of Elks brought to a close, in the words of small hours an important event and a most pleasant function in the history of Napanee.

Quinte Amateur Radio Club Holds Meeting

Over sixty members of the Quinte Amateur Radio club including members from Campbellford, Trenton, Picton and Picton gathered at another successful monthly meeting of the organization held on the Wednesday Centre Wednesday night. President Roy A. White presided as chairman.

Neville Martin, a graduate of the University of London, England, in the course of the club's an informative talk on the use of short-wave radio in industry. Connected with the communications division of the General Electric Company in England and for the latter three years of the war dealing with air ministry problems, Mr. Martin held his audience with the latest information and knowledge pertaining to the short wave field. The speaker had wide experience as a research engineer developing frequency modulation for the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Mrs. Jack Warner officiated at a draw for prizes distributed among the members. The big prize of the evening was a new radio receiver complete in every detail and incorporating all the latest improvements. The lucky winner of this beautiful prize was Ed. Dafoe of Trenton. Secretary Jim Colligan read the minutes of the previous meeting and the correspondence. Charlie Young tendered his report.

Roads, Bridges Committee Spent $189,751 up to Nov. 30

Up to November 30th, Hastings County Council Roads and Bridges Committee, spent $189,751. Suburban expenditures are approximately $8,750 and accounts receivable amount to $11,151. The report of the Roads and Bridges Committee revealed yesterday.

Roads and Bridges Committee chairman John Bell, outlined in clear detail the activities of his committee which worked in conjunction with County Engineer W. L. Langlois.

Demand Increasing

Up to Dec. 1st, 208 tons of calcium chloride were purchased. The demand for this treatment is increasing but the fact that the quantity is restricted is the answer.

Fifteen tank cars, or 97,286 gallons were used on county roads some of which was purchased by village municipalities.

Cost of surface treatment this year was higher per mile, the report stated, but, it added, this is necessary if the county is to protect the investment already made.

Paid To Counsel!

Following a lengthy discussion, upset by a unanimous vote, went on record, that the subsidy of 25 per cent of cost of maintenance of 'wards of the Children's Aid Society should be paid to the county councils of Ontario as is stated in the act, and not to local municipalities as has been suggested.

The motion was an aftermath of a lengthy discussion which was reported yesterday.

Requests Remnants of Light Bulb That Nearly Took Child's Life

The name of Bobby Semark will be recorded for posterity along with the remnants of the Christmas tree light bulb that almost took the life of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Semark's little one-year-old son, last Wednesday.

The broken bulb will be sent to the "Edison Palace of Light" at Detroit, Mich., where it will be exhibited as an example warning to mothers and children against similar accidents. The remaining piece of the bulb which lodged in baby Semark's throat will make up a collection of some 20,000 bulbs of every make and manufacture from every nook and corner of the globe.

"Man of Light"

Mr. Charles B. Sero who signs himself "The Man of Light" is the founder of the "Edison Palace of Light" and has written Mrs. Semark for what he calls the near-fatal bulb being sent to the collector in Detroit. The letter containing "The Man of Lights" request reads as follow:

2740 Blaine Ave.
Detroit, Mich.,
Dec. 2, 1949

Mrs. Charles Semark
49 Station Street
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Mrs. Semark:

Thank God your baby was saved. Your name and address I have from the enclosed clipping from the Detroit News.

We would like very much to have that light bulb or part of it to add to this "Edison Palace of Light" to warn other mothers and children about this kind of an accident.

For 5 years I have collected old, odd, and historic electric light bulbs, have about 20,000 of all kinds from all over the world.

I want to set them up in an "Edison Palace of Light" in a permanent educational exhibit for the scientific advancement of the present and future generations. The apparently simple light bulb is the foundation stone of our entire electric light power and electronics industries, and the world's knowledge to be obtained by the intense study of them is unlimited. It gives to the youth of the world something besides cigarets, whiskey and night clubs, giving them a practical knowledge of Mr. Edison's inventions also as an entrance into the electronics field.

Most sincerely yours,
Charles B. Sero.

Pay Attention To all 10 Dollar Bills Tendered

Possibility that counterfeit Bank of Canada $5, $10 or $20 bills may make their appearance during the Christmas shopping rush has been expressed by the Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who suggests that all business, firms, particularly retail outlets, pay particular heed to bills which may be tendered.

The Commissioner stated that counterfeit notes invariably have weaknesses which generally can be quite readily discerned when compared with the genuine notes.

The portrait on a counterfeit bill may be smudgy looking with the oval background surrounding the portrait being generally much darker than the genuine. The serial numbers at times have a flat appearance, are out of alignment and uneven in appearance and the lettering is uneven and in some cases indistinct.

Broken Appearance

The numerals of the bogus bills generally have a broken and irregular appearance and do not carry the distinct symmetric pattern that is found in genuine currency.

The paper, however, is very similar to genuine currency paper.

Absence of planchettes, the small green spots present on genuine currency, denotes a counterfeit. Occasionally attempts are made to imitate the planchettes by using small spots of green ink.

10 White Russians Sent to Prison

Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, Dec. 8—(AP)—Ten White Russians, led by a 64-year-old priest, today were sentenced to prison on charges of spying for the Soviet Union against Premier Tito's regime and aiding the Germans in the Second World War.

The 10, including a former nun, were convicted by a Yugoslav tribunal and given prison sentences ranging Orthodox Father Aleksei Krishko was sentenced to serve 11½ years in prison. The heaviest sentence, 20 years, went to Anton Boremovic, a judge and state prosecutor under the pro-Nazi wartime government in Croatia.

The trial of the White Russians, who fled the Red revolution in 1917, only to become Soviet agents after the last war, was seen as Tito's answer to iron curtain trials accusing his regime of trying to surplant Russia's influence over her east European satellites.

Most of the Russians admitted giving information to the Russian Embassy in Belgrade and spreading anti-tito propaganda among Yugoslavs.

With few exceptions, the defendants conceded in their weeklong trial they "felt guilty" of the charges.

However, both Father Krishko and Boremovic, who were given the stiffest sentences, denied they were guilty.

All-Canadian Exercises Start Near Churchill

Ottawa, Dec. 9 —(CP)— The army's biggest winter in the north is shaping up.

On top of previous disclosures of a joint Canadian-American exercise in the Yukon in February, defence headquarters announced today that 350 soldiers will stage a month-long all-Canadian exercise near the Winter experimental base at Churchill, Man., starting Feb. 8.

The joint Yukon exercise will last 17 days, will involve some 8,000 troops, including more than 2,000 Canadians, and will check abilities to co-operate in facing potential enemy in the Arctic.

The newly-announced exercise —Sundog—at Churchill is much smaller but it represents a step in building such exercises around Churchill have generally been on a platoon level. This one will involve a so-called company group built around a company from the permanent force Royal Canadian Regiment.

Sissy Effects

Headquarters said the exercise will continue "the army's close study of the effects of Arctic conditions on men and equipment."

The R.C.R. company will be under Maj. C. C. MacNeill, 34, of Calgary, and the exercise director will be Maj. R. B. McDonald of Cornwall, Ont., now officer commanding the training wing at Churchill.

Until March 15 the troops will carry out a series of tactical movements and patrols over a pre-arranged 236-mile route in the Churchill area.

Accompanying the infantry will be officers and men from the signals corp who will be responsible for communications. The army survey establishment will be responsible for accurate navigation. The medical corps will take care of emergency medical treatment and the evacuation of possible casualties. The service corps will provide rations and transport and the electrical and mechanical engineers will look after the repair and recovery of mobile equipment. A meteorological team from the Department of Transport will also go along.

WHO-O-O-O'S A VAGRANT NOT ME!

This snowy owl has a haughty look for his captor, Marion Carter of Toronto. The big bird, native of Northern Ontario, must have found mouse-hunting in the north an uncertain means of livelihood for he dropped from the sky to a Toronto street and offered no resistance when Miss Carter picked him up and took him to police station. Police booked him as a vagrant, which might explain his look of hurt pride as they turned him over to the Humane Society. — Central Press Canadian.

Juries' Verdicts 'Not Guilty' In Two Cases

Floyd Woods, Sidney township was found not guilty of car theft this week by a General Sessions jury in the Hastings County Court before His Honor Judge J. C. Anderson.

The Crown had sought to prove that last August Woods had taken a car owned by William Vandoos of Ivanhoe. The car had been parked on Pinnacle Street and was later involved in an accident and was found off the highway near Foxboro.

John D. O'Flynn, defence counsel, argued the Crown had not proven the car had been stolen, resulting proof only of his client being in possession of the vehicle. The trial lasted approximately one-and-a-half days, the jury returning a verdict of not guilty.

Wallace Kenney, Tweed, appearing on a charge of indecent assault against a young boy in his district, was acquitted of the charge by the jury. John D. O'Flynn, local solicitor, appeared for the accused.

BUILDING GUTTED

Ottawa, Dec. 9.—(CP)—Fire of unknown origin gutted the four storey centre Laundri-Maid building on Bank Street in downtown Ottawa early today. The two-alarm blaze broke out on the second floor of the frame structure about 1.50 A.M. an estimate of damage was not immediately known.

POLICE COURT

One year's suspended sentence was given by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to a resident this morning in city magistrate's court when he pleaded guilty to two charges of assault. One of the charges was laid by the accused man's wife.

Four motorists paid $3.50 each for overtime parking, the extra $2.50 being added when they ignored receipt of parking tickets. Three motorists enriched city coffers by $3 for driving through red lights, while still another three motorists paid the same amount for failing to stop at Stop streets. Four motorists paid $8 each for speeding on city streets.

Several drunks were sentenced to jail terms when they failed to raise the conventional fines.

Farm Handling of Eggs

Toronto—The marketing of stale and dirty eggs results in a sales resistance which forces lower egg prices on the producer, says Mr. J. F. Walker, Poultry Department Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Through good breeding, feeding housing and management, the producer should be continually trying to improve his grade.

It is difficult, under any conditions, to reduce soiled shells below 5-8 per cent.

For the production of top quality eggs the flock should be fed a fresh, palatable, balanced ration, and should be confined to the laying house.

Needs Good Ventilation

The laying house should be bright, dry and well ventilated, with screened dropping boards or pits. Supply enough clean well bedded nests preferably the community type or roll-away nests. The openings in the nest should be closed at night to prevent the birds roosting in the nests.

Leaving eggs in the nest for 4 hours on a hot day effects the quality, therefore it is essential that they be gathered often in clean utensils and the attendant should make sure his hands are dry and clean. Immediately after gathering, the eggs should be taken to an egg room kept at 50-60° F. with a relative humidity of 65-80%. There the eggs should be spread out on wire bottomed trays on a stand to harden cooling. After cooling, pack the eggs, large end up in egg case the yolks well centred, in clean fillers, flats and cases. Overlarge eggs should be packed in separate cases so they will not break and soil the surrounding eggs.

A poorly ventilated and over damp egg room and use of dirt containers are factors in producing mould and rots.

Washable Protection

As eggs are a very perishable product and readily absorb foreign odor never hold them near such products as tar, coal oil, fish, onions or oranges.

Rough handling on the farm and in transit to the grading station may result in breakage or a tremulous of a cell. This damage is increased if the eggs are not packed large end up.

If the producer would market cleaner eggs and market them more often, 3-3 times weekly, and ask the grader where to improve on the grade, several thousand dollars extra a month would be made by the egg producers of Ontario.

APPRECIATE HYDRO POWER

Big Hydro developments are being pushed forward to more than meet the present needs of the Province. In the rural areas expansion of Hydro service goes on to help lighten the burden of water supply in the homes and to bring light into the homes and supply the energy for using electrical devices that ease labor.

The Hydro has a meaning of great significance to the people of Ontario by adding to their comforts and lightening burdens.

In the present time of shortage it is the part of wisdom for every user of power to save what he or she can and in this way have a share in tiding over the situation until the new developments are complete.

The heavy demand is proof of the advantages Ontario's Hydro system brings to the people.

Brockville Recorder and Times recently pointed out some of the advantages of electric power especially from the angle of the farm. The writer said:

"We noticed a news story recently in which a farm woman, who had lived some 50 years on a farm, was asked what in the way of recent modernization on the farm had meant most to her. Her answer was running water.

"The expansion of Hydro service in the rural areas is making life ever more comfortable for the farmer and his family, and any appliance or equipment that can now be installed means much more time for leisure — a commodity which is usually always on the short end of a farmer's life.

"Running water on the farm has other benefits too in that it permits the farmer to install inside plumbing comparable to that found in city homes.

"True, many of the more prosperous of farm homes have had both electricity and running water for many years, but the widespread expansion of the service will be a great change in the rural community, a change that we feel will be all to the good. Electricity has brightened the farm home in more ways than one and will probably be a deciding factor in keeping the young people on the farm.

"The expansion of Hydro cannot come too fast. The only people that will suffer are those who supplied the oil for the dreaded oil lamps.

"The farmer's life, always considered a hard life but a healthy one, takes on proportions, in regard to health, far exceeding those of the past."

DANGER OF PLAYING ON RIVERS, STREAMS

Children who play on the ice in a river or on other streams or bodies of water at this early season of winter are running a grave danger and should be warned of the risk they are running and the importance that they heed the signs that stay away from such places.

Running water has another hazard that of the possibility of anyone breaking through thin ice being swept away without the slightest chance of being rescued.

Incidents of the danger of playing on or crossing ice on a river or stream have been assembled by the Canadian Red Cross. One is from New Brunswick where a year ago a boy of nine was drowned when skating on a pond, he was plunged in as the ice broke. His companion managed to get out and raise the alarm but unfortunately the boy's body was recovered only after three hours — too late. A few days ago three tots were lost in the Nicolet River when thin ice gave away.

Other incidents record rescues even with the aid of a hockey stick or poles.

Advice given by the Red Cross is timely and should help to prevent tragic accidents which may happen when least expected and when no help or other means of rescue is near.

Let children and adults avoid such dangers as exist on thin ice at this dangerous season of the year.

The total revenue of the National Research Council, derived in part from royalties and laboratory fees but largely from a government grant, is about $7,500,000 a year.

Canada's population in 1600 consisted of 79 white and an unknown number of aborigines.

Ideals are the world's masters. — Holland.

And if either one should buy:

Then the other standing near

Hand in hand a loving pair
Window shopping stand and stare,
If some trinket shall admire the most,
That is all that he desires.

There his Christmas worries close,
What will please her, now he knows,
That he heard he won't betray,
But she'll have it, Christmas Day.

The speech of campaign in the re-organization of the Belleville Board of Trade closed last night when 150 members gathered to show that 350 new members have been secured. It is expected that this number will be increased to 400 by the end of the month.

The members of the G.W.V.A. will give the soldiers' kiddies a Christmas tree party in the armouries on the evening of Dec. 23rd. To date cash subscriptions have been received from citizens in aid of the undertaking amounting to $451.75

At the closing meeting of the Hastings County Council for this year, a motion was unanimously passed thanking the retiring warden, Mr. Judson Gunter, for the able and courteous manner in which he had presided over the deliberations of the council.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 9th, 1909

It is a long time since the oldest resident of this city have seen dust flying on the streets in December as is the case now. So far the snow crop is a failure.

Everyone, especially the merchants, would like to see sleighing from now until Christmas.

There is talk of a shipbuilding industry being established in this city. A proposition made to this committee is being investigated by a committee composed of representatives of the city council and the board of trade.

An old timer has brought to our attention that 47 years ago yesterday, Dec. 8th, 1862, a man and his wife were hanged at the court house here for murder, the outcome of a feud between neighbors in the north. It was a bitterly cold day according to our files and the execution took place in the open in the sight of thousands of spectators from all parts of the country.

Dec. 9th, 1899

The meeting of workmen at Marble Hall last evening was fairly well attended. The question considered was a special reform, but no definite action was taken. It was, however, the opinion of the meeting that there should be a change in the personnel of the city council.

Mr. W. P. Hudson is in Madoc today on business.

Mr. William McLean is home from Winnipeg on a visit.

Mr. Ed. Lear will spend the week-end with friends in Picton.

Mr. O. H. Day of Winnipeg is the guest of Mr. C. B. Scantlebury.

Dr. John Mott of Cincinnati, is home on a visit to his father, Mr. John Mott, Plainfield.

The Rev. St. A. MacLean of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. T. J. Thompson of John Street Presbyterian Church, are attending a meeting of the Kingston Presbytery in Napanee today.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Teenism is a word that may already have been invented: though I have not seen it. If not, I hereby invent it to serve, along with such words as modernism, realism, nudism, fascism, as a quick way to present an idea.

Teenism has always been a human problem. It is as old as the human family. Somewhere in their teens, children seem to be recognized as people. Precocious children begin agitating in their first teens. Most children are submitted to the people in their final teens. But the tradition of keeping teen-agers under as rigid a control as possible is age-old. In the past ten years, there has been brought about what might be called the emancipation of teen-agers that as a social revolution, is on a par with the emancipation of women a few years earlier. With that revolution arose teenism, with its serious problems, the chief of which is that presented by teen-agers who have gone rowdy. In every community now there is an element among the young which has got out of hand and constitutes a public nuisance if not a social menace.

The blame for teenism has been variously put upon the home, the movies, the comics, the magazines and the newspapers. As a matter of fact, industry is possibly the villain of the piece. Industry, both manufacturing and merchandising, is always searching for new figures and fanfots.

Back in the days of the Greeks, teenagers' life expectancy was 19 years. When the Romans came along, maybe because they invented baths, the life span jumped to 34. In the next 20 centuries doctors and dietists added about 20 years to the average joker's life — in 1900 it was to be 54. Carl Von Schmo, could expect to stay vertical until his 42nd birthday.

"In the past 50 years life expectancy has climbed up to around 68, and if the gents who are currently dirtying up a lot of test tubes find cures for a couple of more major diseases, folks may live to be 70, or even 100. In which event they'll collect pension checks for 30 years longer than companies figured, as a consequence big businesses will go broke and the government will have to take over.

"What a laugh!" concluded The Inch. "Alfred Sloan of General Motors finances a new Institute, and if one of his doctors comes up with a cure his company may have to go out of business."

"As usual, you pin the tail on the wrong end of the donkey," said George.

"Okay, wise guy," said The Inch. "Let me out a flaw."

"Well," said George, "according to the gents who study such things — and in my book they're the wisest guys — the average human's allotment is a fast three-score-and-ten. There are exceptions, of course, but science and sweet talk notwithstanding, a horse is old when he's 30, a man's a turtle is old when it's 400."

The Inch lighted another cigarette and let me get a point of difference," he said. "Would you decide?"

The bartender jerked a thumb toward the door. "That time," he said, "the rye bread wins."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE TRAVELER'S AID

For years I have travelled all over America, and in most all of the cities and towns I have found kindly faced women in neat uniforms, at a desk, or walking around in crowds, hunting out those that they might help in some way or other. Particularly of strangers, many from foreign lands, arrive daily in these cities and in stations all over this country, who look about them in wonder, and often in a confused manner.

It is to these people that thousands of travellers owe more than they can express, that they have been helped and befriended by the splendid and self-sacrificing Traveler's Aid Servants for more than a half century. I understand that this splendid society was initiated through the generous gift of a wealthy man who died many years ago. But this work goes on and on and is today largely kept alive and useful through voluntary gifts. I have an idea that many a gift has come from those helped in former years.

So many eyes kept on children and young people who travel alone, as well as those who might be misled in one way or another by unsuspecting evil doers. These Traveler's Aids know human nature, and are alert, considerate and kindly. They perform a wonderful service wherever they are stationed. Any traveller is always safe in their hands.

I have sat in many a railroad station and watched these fine, keen people work. I have seen them "spot" a lonely person, or a person in confusion on his mind, or one who seemed confused in his mind. I have seen unscrupulous workers, and I feel sure that they knew their work, from their faces seem to say just that.

I am told that there seems to be no end to the good services of these people who keep the Traveler's Aid Society a vital institution throughout America. Certainly it deserves wholehearted support as one of democracy's outstretching arms. I wish that I might salute each worker!

Personal Health Talks

CHRONIC ILL-HEALTH

Individuals needs.

Exercise can usually be depended upon to increase appetite. Exercise, however, is most physical activity which may be utilized in work as well as play. And by exercise, I do not have the business of working out in a gymnasium necessarily in mind. Walking, after a golf ball for instance, is a very fine type of exercise which can be adjusted to an individual's requirements. Housework entails even more exercise than is generally appreciated by those who never do any.

Perhaps the greatest obstacle to the adoption of a rational plan of living, is the mental adjustment which must precede it and endure it. Agreeing that it should be a good thing gets one nowhere. It must be actually accomplished, not just imagined. And it must be kept up, started as a temporary expedient. Rather, it should be regarded as a new and permanent manner of living. Anyone who can not regard the exercise does not profit. Those do just as well to dismiss the matter from his mind and go on their merrily enjoying ill-health to the utmost.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

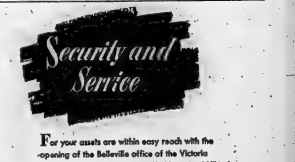
Kinderzucten

My son just starting high school, wants to play football, and I am worried. (W. A. F.)

Answer—It is bad enough for college freshmen to attempt to train for football. It is absurd and shameful to permit the same thing to happen to the unsuspecting boys of high school age who compete in the football burlesque.

Cigarette Smoking

Is cigarette smoking harmful to a pregnant woman? (Mrs. G. S.)



Answer—Doctors I noticed no good, although I cannot mention any physicians believe moderate smoking is permissible and that the developing baby is another matter.

Feeding the Baby

Which method of feeding the new born baby is right—the baby should be bottled in the hospital where my baby was born they said nursing was not so good as bottle feeding. (Mrs. M. J.)

Answer—Breast feeding is always better. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for either booklet—Preparing for Maternity or The Baby and Book Home is the safest place to have a baby.

Labor Government Survives Hectic Financial Crisis

London (CP) — British Socialism enters the New Year wearing a look of surface unity, confident of a favorable vote in the 1950 general election.

Despite all difficulties, the ruling Labor party expects fresh mandate when ballots are cast sometime before next August. But it concedes its majority of nearly 200 parliamentary seats may be reduced.

Sweeping Conservative gains in last spring's local elections gave anti-Socialists new hope, but the trend was attributed largely to Labor complacency. In a crucial London county council by-election in November, the Labor candidate obtained a clear majority over a Conservative and two other candidates.

Parliamentary Record

In parliamentary by elections, Labor maintained a proud record. Since 1945, not a single constituency which voted Labor then has gone over to the opposition parties.

Before the next general election—no date has been announced yet—Labors spirits will be buoyed by jubilee celebrations in February marking the 50th anniversary of the party's rise to power.

At the anniversary celebrations Socialists will look back on a year clouded by an economic crisis which taxed the brains of Britain's best financial thinkers. Money worries heaped new responsibilities on Labor in 1949 and made minor internal revolts seem relatively insignificant.

At the year-end, party ranks showed Labor's influential trade union wing, representing 8,000,000 organized workers, approved a virtual wages standstill in a statement that might have been written by Prime Minister Attlee himself.

Workers were advised to go easy on wage demands, thus aiding the government's program for economic recovery.

Co-op Stands Firm

The vast co-operative movement, Labor's "silent partner" was kept firmly in the cold. In November the Socialist executive discarded plans to nationalize insurance, pleasing Co-op members who were afraid their own big insurance business would be disturbed.

Political observers interpreted the compromise on insurance as a victory for moderate elements in the Labor hierarchy. Herbert Morrison, chief election strategist, was believed prime mover in a policy which placed emphasis on "consolidation" of industries already nationalized, rather than on ambitious new departures in state enterprise.

Morrison was believed to have engineered the compromise with the House of Lords which enabled the government's bill to nationalize iron and steel to become law before 1950.

Under the compromise, the actual operation of nationalization will be deferred at least until October 1950, giving the electors a chance to pass judgment on the scheme.

Another major piece of Labor legislation passed in 1949 reduces from two years to one the power of the non-elected Lords to delay non-financial legislation from the House of Commons.

Labor's notorious "left wing" reported headed by Health Minister Aneurin Bevan, seemed in full flight as 1949 drew to a close. There was still a lot of talk about Anglo-Canadian trade, with some Socialist back-benchers suggesting that Canada bears some responsibility for Britain's financial troubles, for the malcontents got no official encouragement.

Intending rebels remembered the Labor "purge" of last May. In a move to lighten discipline, the high command stripped the party tag from two members of parliament and dismissed five parliamentary private secretaries as "Rebels' Blanket."

The parliamentary secretaries were blacklisted for voting against the government. The two exiled M.P.'s Konni Zilliacus and Leslie Solley took the rap for allegedly following a communist-tinged line on foreign affairs.

Zilliacus and Solley later joined an independent group in the House of Commons, headed by D. N. Pritt and nicknamed "The Pritties." Their influence in debates was negligible.

May was a month of ferment for Labor. Just before the 'purge' the party banned all fellow travelling with communists. Fourteen organizations were black-listed, including the British Soviet Society and the World Federation of Democratic Youth.

A week later, in a move not connected with the Communist ban, a Labor M.P. in good standing launched what he called a "ginger group." The founder, Eirlis Smith, said it would fight for Socialism "in the spirit of the men who built our movement."

There was one important defector from the party. In June, Baron Milverton, 64, told a hushed House of Lords he was resigning from Labor because of his determination to nationalize Britain's iron and steel industry.

"I am unwilling to be a silent passenger on a sinister journey," said Lord Milverton, who later applied to join the Liberals.

An earlier Labor rebel on the iron and steel issue, Ivor Thomas, joined the Conservatives last January. He had resigned from the Labor party in October.

Western Europe May Take Cut In Aid Next Year

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP)—Western Europe may face a cut of at least $1,000,000,000 in Marshall-plan aid next year.

There is the possibility also proposed in economic aid funds by three Democratic senators just back from a first-hand look at the American experiment in combatting communism by recovery dollars.

Two of the three—Senators John McClellan (Dem. Ark.) and Burnet Maybank (Dem. S.C.)—will have important appropriations committee votes when the foreign aid program comes to a showdown in the next session of Congress. The other is Senator A. Willis Robertson (Deb. Va.).

The proposed cut of around $1,000,000,000 is from the $222,000,000 more than the reduction planned by the economic co-operation administration, which handles the aid program, Nell Dalton, E.C.A.'s retiring information director, said Thursday that E.C.A. plans to ask for around and $3,000,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1. For E.C.A. got $3,778,000,000 for the current year.

Dalton said the $3,000,000,000 request is in line with E.C.A. Administrator Paul G. Hoffman's hope for steady reduction in costs as the program advances.

While they represent only three of the senate's 96 votes, McClellan, Maybank and Robertson made it plain they intend to be extremely vocal about their idea that foreign aid spending can take a substantial cut.

With the treasury entering bigger figures in red ink every day, there are signs the trio's suggestions will be well received.

Murder Charge Against Wallace Is Withdrawn

Calgary, Dec. 9—(CP)—William Lee Wallace today is like the fly that escaped from the spider's web.

A few days ago a seemingly network of evidence supported a charge of murder in the autocamp slaying of 24-year-old waitress, Thursday the charge was dropped on the instructions of the Alberta Attorney-General because of lack of evidence.

Wallace, 45-year-old former Vancouver electrician, was arrested in Detroit Oct. 30. Apprehended for an immigration violation, he confessed to the Aug. 11 murder of pretty Yvonne Leveque of East Calgary.

On his return to Canada he was charged with murder.

At that time Calgary officials had a warrant out for Donald W. Henderson, 33, of Clive, Alta., a mechanical engineer who had shared Miss Leveque's cabin on the night of the killing. He vanished in the midst of the police investigation, and still eludes police.

Wallace and his wife were staying in a nearby cabin. His "confession" stated he had killed the girl in an attempt to rob Henderson.

The confession which police say they suspected almost from the start, was repudiated by Wallace in his preliminary hearing here. He also said he retracted it in Detroit.

George Salisbury, an acquaintance who stayed with Wallace and his wife on the night of the crime, flew from Yellowknife, N.W.T., to tender a statement saying Wallace was innocent. After his release, Wallace said: "I have never seen Yvonne Leveque or Henderson—alive or dead—and I was never in their cabin."

Detroit police first linked Wallace with the murder on information given by Mrs. Wallace and her mother, Marcelioness D'Autier de la Rochefriere.

Reynolds Begins $500,000 Suit Against Pegler

New York, Dec. 9 — (CP) — Quentin Reynolds, war correspondent and magazine writer, has begun a libel suit against columnist Westbrook Pegler, Louis Nizer a lawyer, said Wednesday night.

Pegler recently devoted a column to Reynolds and the late Heywood Broun, founder of the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.).

Nizer said King Features Syndicate, incorporated, are being made defendants with Pegler.

Pegler, who long has been an outspoken critic of what he calls "racketeering" in labor unions, could not be reached for comment on the libel action, the second one pending against him.

Drew Pearson, columnist and broadcaster, Wednesday sought to increase his libel actions against Pegler and others from $500,000 to $1,300,000. Pearson also is suing King Features and Hearst Consolidated Publications.

U.S. GETS MOST OF U.K. SCOTCH WHISKEY EXPORTS

London, Dec. 9 — (AP) — Most of Britain's scotch whisky is going to the United States this year. The distillery year runs from autumn to autumn. Harold Wilson, president of the board of trade, said Thursday that of 11,000,000 gallons released in the current year, 7,000,000 are going to North America, Belgium and Switzerland. The U.S. takes most of this. Only 2,000,000 gallons goes to Britain's home market.

Ladies' 1st, Mrs. Sid Demorest; Consolation, Mrs. Bruce Bell; men's 1st, Mr. J. L. Donohoe; men's consolation,' Mr. Bill Montgomery.

At this time Bill's sister, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, spoke briefly and reminded her audience that on Dec. 2nd, 1933, the wedding of Mr. William Montgomery and Miss Irene Bertrand took place at their home "Sunset Farm" 4th Concession of Rawdon, with Rev. F. G. Jobbin, pastor officiating. The bridesmaid was Miss Dorothy Donohoe, now Mrs. Reg. Morgan of Toronto, and the groomsman was Mr. Percy MacMullen. The wedding dinner was served by the Misses Eileen MacMullen and Marguerite White.

On behalf of the assembled guests, Mrs. Don Donohoe made the presentation to Irene of a beautiful pink satin cushion and to Bill, fancy wool hose and handkerchiefs. Although this part came as a surprise to them, the hose and hostess thanked their friends for their kindness. They were also the recipients of other gifts.

The hostess, assisted by her daughters, Miss Doris Montgomery, served delectable refreshments topped off with a beautifully iced anniversary fruit cake, and all enjoyed a happy social half hour.

The guests included, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tulloch, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Don Donohoe, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. J. ELECTRICITY IS PRECIOUS

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Surplus is the mother of invention.

The millions of dozen of eggs now held by the government as part of its price support program have inspired all sorts of plots and fancy dishes.

In New Jersey a producer has devised a way of canning enormous hard boiled eggs. The can is divided into two compartments; in the inner section the yolks are cooked, after which the whites are added and hard boiled. When ready to serve, the contents are emptied and sliced down. The inventor claims it could be used to feed the hungry populations of other countries.

At Louisiana State University Dr. Socrates Kaloyeeras has been able to freeze eggs in the shell successfully. Frozen eggs out of the shell are a staple item used by bakeries. In order to freeze them in the shell the Louisiana scientist drove off the fresh water in the shell—the substance which absorbs foreign flavors during storage. The flavor and cooking qualities are far superior to ordinary storage eggs, he is claimed.

Yo can solve the problem in your own kitchen in a much easier way by serving eggs as a luncheon or light supper dish. Eggs poached, shirred or scrambled can be transformed into a substantial main course by adding some novel fish or meat garnish.

Scrambled Eggs with Deviled Kidneys Serves 4.

Order 4 fresh veal kidneys or 8 lamb kidneys from the butcher. Split kidneys without cutting in half. Remove outer membrane and fatty section.

Fasten kidneys on metal skewers. This is necessary to keep their shape while broiling. You can broil them without skewers, but they curl up and are heated unevenly.

Let 1-4 cup butter stand at room temperature until soft enough to spread. Add 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce and 1-2 teaspoon lemon juice.

Spread half the butter on one side of the kidneys. Broil until brown, from 5 to 9 minutes. Turn on other side. Spread the balance of the butter on kidneys and broil until brown.

Scramble 8 eggs slowly in a large skillet, with 4 tablespoons butter or margarine. Season eggs with salt and white pepper. Place eggs on serving dishes. Cut kidneys into 1-2 inch thick slices and arrange over eggs. Garnish with toast triangles and sprigs of parsley or watercress.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed stamped, envelope for his reply —Ed.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

For adoptive parents . . . a lovely poem

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Not so long ago you published in your column a letter from a couple who wanted to adopt a baby and who requested you to repeat the lines in a John Masefield poem that beautifully applied to this. I was very much touched by this poem, and I have a little verse that I thought you and some of your readers might like to have to add to their "Poetry Treasures," and that perhaps "Mary R." who wrote to you, might like to have it, for it too, applies to her beautiful and charitable impulse to give some baby a happy home. May God bless them both, and may they live to enjoy many years of happiness watching the new joy grow and develop. This is the poem called "In the Heart of a Child":

In the breast of a bulb is the promise of Spring—
In a little blue egg there's a bird that will sing—
In the soul of a seed is the hope of the sod—
In the heart of a child is the kingdom of God."

Good luck to you!

L. G. S.

Thank you, thank you very much, dear lady. It's a beautiful poem, exquisite, and I hope the adoptive parents will read it. I know they would cherish it as I do, and I've added it to my "Poetry Treasures". You were very kind.

Printed letter-paper for business use

A married woman sends me a sample of some cards (3 1-2 by 6 inches) which she had printed in this form:

Janet W. Blaker
123 Wilson Street
Haven 2, Connecticut

This form is also printed on the back of the envelope. She asks:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please come to my rescue.

Is a card printed as the above correct for any purpose of correspondence? I asked my sister's opinion, and she said she thought it was for a business correspondence, but not for social use. My own idea now is that I should have had these cards printed with my married name (for example, Mrs. Henry W. Blaker), to be used for general use. And now I want to correct the error, if such it is, and have some paper and cards correctly printed. I shall be grateful for your opinion and suggestion.

J. W. B.

The card you sent me isn't correct (or really convenient, because it is so small) for either business use or social use. If you want paper for business use . . . letters to shops, public utilities, and so forth . . . the usual size is a single sheet about 5 by 7 inches, and on these sheets are printed the full formal name and the address. Either in three lines, like this:

Mrs. Henry Blaker
123 Wilson Street
Haven 2, Connecticut

or printed in a straight line across the top:

Mrs. Henry Blaker, 123 Wilson Street, Haven 2, Connecticut

Double business paper, the form Janet W. Blaker should not be used. And never on an envelope should the informal name be printed or written in the return address: Mrs. Henry Blaker is correct; Janet W. Blaker isn't correct.

For informal social correspondence (as well as for business correspondence, if you wish) you might have single sheets, 3 1-2 by 7 inches, or larger if you wish, with your printed address, not name:

123 Wilson Street
Haven 2, Connecticut

Or have the first form I suggested printed with name and address for business correspondence, and perhaps have some informals printed (or, much better, engraved) with your name in the centre of the front page and your address in the lower right corner. Or, use regular-size letter-paper or note paper stamped with your monogram or street-address.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mere widows need courage and character like this

So many widows write me about their loneliness, and the difficulty they have in finding interests to fill the empty place left in their life by their husbands' death.

In replying to the letters written me by women with this problem, I have invariably pointed out that life today holds so much, and such varied, interesting activity, that there seems no reason why any women should not be able to find an infinite number of things that would happily fill the hours of her day and gradually take her out of her loneliness.

Recently I received a note from a woman who requested a list of books on personality improvement and dating that I had mentioned in one of my columns. At the end of her short letter she said: "I am a widow with two teen-age daughters, I am also a law student."

This intrigued me so much that when I wrote to enclose the list of books she had requested, I said that it did not sound to me as though she needed much help on personality improvement since she had had the initiative, the wise foresight, and the good sense to take up a serious interest to keep her from loneliness after her husband's death.

In reply, I received a letter which seemed to me so full of fine philosophy that I felt it was worth passing on to other women who are struggling with the problems of widowhood.

Here is what the letter said:

"My grateful thanks for the list of books on personality development. My 19-year-old daughter will use the books to help a girls' club of which she is president.

"As for my own 'personality,' heavens, I am too busy to give it any thought.

"I get along nicely with people. Since my husband died in 1947, two men have proposed, but I'm not ready for remarriage. My girls tease me about my proposals, and say it's my red hair!

"I bless you every time you advise widows to have hobbies. Keeping busy has helped me keep my sanity. When my husband went suddenly with a heart attack, I wanted to die too.

"I have my own cozy eight-room home, and in summer a flower garden and a few vegetables. I knit, crochet and sat, play the piano, sing with the kids, am a member of the order of Sons of Italy—I am Scotch by birth, but was accepted for membership because of my Italian husband—and go to law school three evenings a week.

"At present, I do not know what I will do with the law course, but I am very interested in domestic relations and plan to specialize in that work— I also find it interesting to study languages; mastered French and Italian last year, Spanish and Latin in 1947.

"My two daughters and son are such a comfort. The girls are 16 and 19 and the boy 21. We are all students together.

"If it is God's will that I remarry sometime, I will. But now I have no time to be anything but peaceful and happy."

In a postscript, this high-hearted and courageous woman added: "Please tell the lonely ladies to have pets. I enjoy my kitty, Ritz, and my dog, Bonnie."

This letter speaks for itself and needs no comment. I would like to say, however, that I am quite sure it is this woman's sunny disposition which shines through all of her letter, far more than her red hair, which charms her own friends into wanting to take her out of the state of widowhood—a point it would be wise for widows to remember.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

Perhaps after all Lucy was right—she had taken life too seriously. Apart from a brief interval at boarding school where she had found a delightful friend in pretty Mary Lambert, she had always been the Cinderella of the family. She was the youngest and was still at the awkward age when her pretty sisters were sought after by every eligible man around. Then came the dreadful affair in which her brother was involved. A dark shadow seemed to hover over the Hampton family as her father went almost bankrupt in an effort to keep him out of jail. Harold was convicted of forgery. The shock killed his mother.

There were no more parties after Harold's conviction. Amy and Alice married and went west. At last Harold was released, but his father-like mind warped by his troubles—refused to have anything to do with him. Lucy, too young to understand her brother's need, and embittered against him by her sisters' talk, stood by her father. Harold passed out of their lives.

Soon afterwards the Hamptons left the thriving Middle West town which had been their home as long as Ann could remember, and her father made a valiant struggle to establish himself in New York. But with diminished capital and missing the companionship of his wife, he could not make a go of things. Ann was left alone.

Fortunately she had a good position with a patent lawyer, and the dependable qualities that her family had so relied on stood her in good stead. Her progress was steadily upward. In fact many a girl would have asked little more of life, for Ann, quiet and capable, was a success in business. Her interests centred around the work of the firm ad as she had a good logical mind she enjoyed the intricacies of law. When she reached the age of 28 she decided romance had passed her by, and she made no attempt to look for love. She read a great deal and was well up on the affairs of the day.

When Lucy entered the room she paused for a moment as she remarked, "Why, Ann, whatever happened to you? You look pretty."

As the words crossed Lucy's lips a sudden premonition came over her. Had Ann Tilt Didn't the victims of that dreadful disease often grow more lovely as it progressed? Her fear was partly stilled when Ann replied gaily: "I've just decided I'm going to be my real self for the next six months. I can't say I feel like passing on. Only a morning like this I simply don't want to die. From now on I'm not going to be repressed any longer. The real Ann who has always had to do the things she didn't want to do is going to live—even if it's only for six months."

"Brave Ann! Now you're talking. Then you don't intend to slink off and depart in some heaven for lungers? Not that I'd let you do it. In fact I brought the key of our cabin in the Adirondacks. Jack said that you should get right up there. He said he'd write to some friends who stay nearby the year round so that some one would be on the spot taking care of you."

"That's darling of you, Lucy," interrupted Ann.

"Oh no, Ann, it's the very least we could do. Besides Jack's thanking heaven I've got something else on my mind than Dodsley and Cheney—my pekes." Lucy laughed. "After all I don't believe you need me."

"Oh, don't say that, Lucy, I'd be in the depths of despair if I hadn't met you yesterday. I'd a brilliant inspiration last night, and I owe it to you, so there. Shall I tell you what it is?"

Lucy was listening wide-eyed as Ann revealed her plans when suddenly the clock struck 12. "Oh gracious, I promised Jack I'd go to lunch with him and tell him what you'd decided."

"Well, you'd better hurry," remarked Ann.

"Oh, but I'm so thrilled I hate to leave you. I do want to hear the rest of your plans. Where's your telephone? I'll just tell Jack I won't be down."

"Don't do it, Lucy. He'll be dreadfully disappointed if you don't lunch with him."

Seated once more by her friends side Lucy declared, "I think your idea's simply wonderful—a trip around the world—I envy you."

"Well," answered Ann as she leaned forward to inhale the delicate fragrance of the daffodils, "I've always wanted to travel, and I'm not so far gone that I have to take to my bed. Besides I don't need to be in a terrific rush. I've six months."

"I'll cost you quite a bit though Ann. Have you thought of that?" Lucy's voice held a faint hint of anxiety.

"Oh, yes, but I'll manage. You see dad left me a little and then I've been saving and I've saved something. I've got an off season together. I've a trifle over $6,000 to command a month. Must think how wealthy I am." Ann smiled as she glanced at Lucy.

"Well," remarked Lucy a little later as she rose, "I think it's a bully good idea and I'm sure I wish you luck. I don't suppose there's anything else I can do for you?"

"Oh, yes, Lucy, if you will." Ann's eyes were sparkling. "You know you're really responsible for this wild adventure so you've got to see that I'm nicely rigged out for the trip. Won't you come and help me choose some clothes?"

Of course I will. How sweet of you to ask me."

"Thanks Lucy. You see I've lived in drab clothes for so long I'm almost afraid I'll be tempted to go to the other extreme."

"Oh, no you won't. Besides all I sorts of gay clothes are now being worn." At last I'll be able to satisfy my love of color. Let's go to the shipping office afterwards."

"All right," answered Lucy as she pulled on her gloves.

"You're sure this won't interfere with any of your suppressments?" questioned Ann rather anxiously as she looked at the younger girl.

"Oh, no, Ann. I'm no society dame. In fact I've really very little to occupy my time. Sometimes Jack gets worried about, it poor old dear." Lucy's eyes were dancing.

After lunch as the two friends sauntered along Broadway Lucy decided that Ann was really a charming companion, now that the reserve with which she had surrounded herself at the office was gradually being broken. Tall and graceful, she had never sacrificed her wavy chestnut hair to the demands of the prevailing mode, although many a time she had been told how lovely it would look as it curled naturally. In spite of this Ann continued to dress her hair in the simple manner that stressed her individuality. Her skin was very fair and there was just a suggestion of natural pink in her cheeks. Her eyes, set wide apart, were deep blue as the sky on a winter night. Indeed some lights it seemed as though they were violet. There was the hint of a smile about her lips which somehow Lucy had never noticed in the office, although many years younger than her carefree companion, Lucy suddenly felt an infinite compassion for Ann as she realized how empty her life really was. If only some romance had come into Ann's life maybe she might not now be threatened with the spectre of T. B. Although Lucy stoutly denied its existence when speaking with Ann, she could not altogether shake off the dread though that after all it might claim her.

They entered the shipping office. A messenger, dodging from his friend, brushed against Ann and knocked her pocket book from her hand. "Allow me," exclaimed a deep voice as a tall broad-shouldered man with sunbronzed face picked it up and handed it to her. Ann's eyes were smiling as she thanked him. Her thoughts were on her trip. She did not see the sudden light of interest that flashed into his eyes.

"I guess I will," answered Ann as she approached the office manager.

"That's Too bad," Mr. Lytell remarked after Ann talked to him. "You know there's always the chance that doctors may be mistaken. However you had better go ahead and make your arrangements for Mr. Kenion won't be back for several weeks. Remember your position will always be waiting for you whenever you're ready. I know that's what Mr. Kenion would wish. Better leave us your address for I'm sure he'll want to write to you."

"Suppose I send it to you," said Ann.

"All right, and cheer up, Miss Hampton, for I'm sure we'll have you back with us again before very long."

A load seemed to have slipped from her when Ann closed the door of the office where she had worked so many years. Everyone had been very sympathetic yet somehow she felt glad that she would undoubtedly never return there again. Ann turned quickly to the passport office for very little to get some information. A "round the world cruise" was starting in a couple of weeks and she wanted to join it if possible.

It was nearly three o'clock and Ann was decidedly tired as she hung around the court hoping waiting her chance to get necessary information. All afternoon she had studied the different types of people attending to their passports. Foreigners eager to return to the countries their youth were talking excitedly in dialects that sounded strange to her ears. Uniformed attendants answered their excited queries and wild gesticulations in a peculiarly aggravating, cool and different way that but took away their volubility.

Revenue Minister Asks For $4,500,000 Loan

Ottawa, Dec. 8. (CP)—Canadian Television programs likely will hit the air waves by the fall of 1951, the Commons was told Wednesday night.

Under government plans to be carried out by the publicly-owned CBC, the first television stations will be established in Montreal and Toronto. Although work will start immediately, regular programming is not ..expected to begin until September, 1951. Toronto will have one station and Montreal two, an English and a French.

That was the information given to the Commons by Revenue Minister McCann, who reports to parliament for the CBC. He spoke during debate on an estimate providing for a loan of $4,500,000 to the CBC to cover initial capital costs of developing television in Canada.

The loan was criticized by two opposition spokesman — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod).

Mr. Drew said he could not see why public money should be allocated to provide television for the comparatively-small segment of the population living in the metropolitan areas around Toronto and Montreal. This would be unfair because people all over Canada would be paying for television for those two cities.

He said he was at a loss to see why it wouldn't be good business from the government standpoint to let willing risk capital carry television through the experimental stage. The government could move into the field later when the bugs had been worked out of television developments.

Will Never Repay

Mr. Hansell pictured the CBC borrowing possibly $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 during a period of years for television and said that it would never repay that amount. This would mean additional taxation on the people. He agreed with Mr. Drew that private enterprise should be allowed to risk capital on television developments.

Mr. Hansell and Mr. Drew sought to have a formal division on the vote, were shocked by the chairman who ruled that the vote had been carried Tuesday.

Dr. McCann recalled that the government had issued an interim policy last March. The government had stated that for the time being the CBC would be given control of television in Canada and would go ahead with the construction of production and broad-casting studies in Montreal and Toronto.

Given One Channel

Private operators would be given one channel in any city including Montreal and Toronto, where extra channels were available. "

The interim policy was to cover the situation until the Royal Commission on Arts and Science makes a report some time next spring or summer.

The government and the CBC had suggested that individuals or groups get together in applying for the available channels. So far no individuals or groups had agreed to make a joint application.

Five channels are available in Montreal, with two of them reserved for the CBC. There are three channels in Toronto, with one reserved for the CBC. There are three channels in Toronto, with one reserved for the CBC. There is only one channel in Hamilton.

Dr. McCann stressed the value of television to the electronics industry and estimated that the number of receiving sets in Canada will climb from 2,200 in 1950-51 to 168,000 in 1954-55.

Ward and Group May Now be At Tientsin

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—The State Department received advices today indicating that Angus Ward and the American consulate group from Mukden may now be at the north China port of Tientsin.

A message from the United States Consul General at Tientsin said the group's special train had passed Tangsan.

Based on the timing of the message, State Department officials figured the party of 20, headed by the Canadian-born Ward, should have arrived in Tientsin about 11 a.m. EST. today.

The Communist north China news agency said in a broadcast that Ward left Mukden at 9:40 a.m. Wednesday (3:40 p.m. Tuesday EST).

The State Department said it had confirmed through British sources that the party left Mukden on Wednesday with food supply for two days.

These reports were the first of the long detained consulate group since Ward got word that he expected to be able to leave Mukden early Wednesday morning.

At Taku Bar, down river from Tientsin, an American merchant ship is to take the Ward party aboard.

Commons Hears Discussion on Rural Mail Boxes

Ottawa, Dec. 8 — (CP) — The Commons heard a discussion today on whether or not a "monopoly" exists in the manufacture of rural mail boxes.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) claimed there is one, but Postmaster-General Rinfret denied it.

Mr. Fleming said the department buys all the boxes from one source and resells them to users without allowing them to buy elsewhere, even if other boxes complied with the department's specifications.

The minister said the boxes were obtained from one source for the sake of uniformity. The department did not want "makeshift" boxes used.

"There is very monopolistic arrangement," Mr. Fleming commented,

"There is no monopoly," insisted Mr. Rinfret. He said the boxes were made to government order under contract, and they were sold to the users at $4 apiece.

Hastings Biggest Producer Of Cheese in Dominion Says Agricultural Representative

Hastings County once again took the lead as the biggest cheese-producing county in the Dominion in 1949, A. O. Dalrymple, county agricultural representative told the county council in session yesterday.

"Hastings County" he said, "is a report of agricultural activities to council "produced six and one-half million pounds of cheese this year, leading all cheese-producing areas in the country."

Lowest Birth on Record

He was pleasantly surprised, he added to note that Lennox and Addington, neighboring communities, had produced five million pounds of cheese placing Canada fifth in the list of cheese production municipalities.

In his report, Mr. Dalrymple said that margarine had made inroads in the production of butter. Hastings County had finished in 11th position in production of this commodity.

Horse Population Down

Horse population of the county has decreased from 30 stallions of three years ago to 11 at the present time, Mr. Dalrymple pointed out that any horse breeder having a pure-bred mare is eligible for a government bonus of $25 when the mare foals. There are between 800-900 pure-bred mares in the county, he said.

Hastings county should be proud of its record as regard to T.B. tests of cattle. The percentage of reactors here is less than one with other counties much higher, Oxford County's percentage of reactors is 23.

Speaking of the artificial semination unit here, Mr. Dalrymple said the summer result had not been as good as expected. In June only 43 per cent first service conception was reported. July 53 per cent; August 64 per cent, and September 67 per cent. The unit, he said, was undergoing reorganization, and it is hoped this will result in the Hastings unit having highest October percentage of any unit in the province.

Sheep Losses High

Sheep losses, he said, were high in the county, especially in Tyendinaga township. These people lost up to $4,000 value in sheep destroyed.

This, he said, "is forcing many farmers out of sheep breeding."

There has been, he went on, a New Zealand innovation as regards to clipping. The wool is rolled in a solid ball instead of being scattered all over the lagscape. He hoped, he said, that next year with two men in training on the New Zealand scheme of shearing, that Hastings county breeders would benefit immeasurably.

Mr. Dalrymple spoke at large on the junior farmer angles of the county. There were, he said, seven junior farmer clubs comprising 330 members all of whom were taking part in the various projects laid down. Prospects for an additional number are bright for 1950, Mr. Dalrymple said.

He gave a detailed story of the trip to Ottawa where the junior farmer boys and girls from Hastings and Prince Edward counties were represented. It was such a success, he said, that "I would suggest to this county council that these trips be made an annual affair."

Says Imposition Of Head Tax Is Considered

Toronto, Dec. 8 — (CP) — The Telegram said today Mayor Hiram McCallum "is seriously considering the imposition of a poll tax or head tax on non-residents who earn their livelihood within the city," if a satisfactory solution of the metropolitan area plan is not soon achieved.

The telegram said "tens of thousands of residents of contiguous suburban municipalities make use of the services which the city provides almost as freely as residents of the city itself, but pay no direct contribution to the cost of supplying and maintaining the services."

Mayor McCallum is said to be convinced the surrounding municipalities must share increasing costs as partners or the residents of those municipalities must pay their individual share in some manner.

Delegation Will Attend Parley At Colombo

Ottawa, Dec. 9 — (CP) — A 10 or 12-man delegation under External Affairs Minister Pearson will leave about Jan. 1 to attend the Colombo, Ceylon, commonwealth conference and will visit other countries, including India, and Pakistan, to discuss trade matters, Mr. Pearson announced Thursday.

The minister told the commons, too, that Fisheries Minister Mayhew will head a delegation to a meeting of the governing body of the international labor office, at Mysore, India, starting Jan. 2.

The agenda of the Colombo conference of foreign ministers, starting June 9 has not yet been drawn up but, informed sources said, it is expected to discuss such matters as recognition of the Chinese communists, possibilities of a Japanese peace treaty, and the situation in Southeast Asia.

Mr. Pearson will travel by plane and will encircle the globe from east and west before returning about a month later.

Year-end Review:

Resolute Policy of Western Powers Firm Peace Base

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—Headlines and propaganda notwithstanding, diplomats at Britain's foreign office believe the political base has been laid for getting along "bested", if not "with", Russia and there now is greater scope for the forces of peace to operate.

"The outlook for peace has never seemed better since the war," said one spokesman, "and 1950 promises a continuation of the work for which 1949 proved the turning point."

East and West may not bury the hatchet, but neither are they expected to start swinging at each other.

Major Activity

Major British activity in 1950 is expected to stem from:

1. Continued attempts to reach East-West agreement on atomic weapons.

2. Vigilant supervision of the West German republic.

3. Firmness in the spirit of the Paris "live and let live" agreement.

4. The Tito defection from the Moscow—if not the Communist —line.

Concrete developments that may be expected next year are a peace treaty with Austria, a peace treaty with Japan and recognition of Communist China by the West.

Big achievement of 1949 is considered to be the "modus vivendi" worked out between East and West in Paris as a result of the Berlin air lift.

When the Russians lifted the Berlin blockade May 12, tension eased—a triumph for the West's policy of firmness. "The air lift convinced them that we were determined to stick it out and in the end they gave way," said one diplomat.

"As a result we reached a live-and-let-live agreement at the Foreign Ministers' Conference in Paris last May and that has regulated our relations since. That in turn has confirmed the split in Germany. . . . But we are showing that we aren't going to allow them to interfere with Germany's progress to peaceful, democratic recovery."

Far East Situation

The "modus vivendi", however, has not extended to the Far East, where Russia has obviously been greatly helping Red Japan by insisting that the drafting be by the foreign ministers and subject to veto. Britain has held out for drafting by the Far Eastern Commission, of which Canada is a member, and in which majority rules prevail.

For both Britain and the United States, the Japanese situation is intolerable and they intend bypassing Russia and negotiating independently with the Japanese.

A treaty is anticipated which will keep American troops in Japan as occupation garrisons to protect the still-shaky democratic government from Communist or nationalist coups. But the country will regain control of its foreign and trade relations.

Britain has already agreed in principle to recognition of China's new Communist regime. Only the timing remains. United States convenience will be the guide but combined action should come early in the New Year.

In the Far East spheres, much is hoped from Canadian-initiated resumption within the United Nations of attempts to reach agreement on atomic disarmament and banning of the atomic bomb.

An atomic agreement would enable Russia to retire within the lines of her unrivalled land forces and get on with reconstruction and development of her land.

The West, behind the walls of Western Union and the Atlantic Pact, could freely proceed with integration plans and supervision the development of the new Germany.

London believes that despite the smoke screens, desire for this is real on both sides.

The Council of Europe in August took tentative steps toward what may become a parliament of Europe. The Strasbourg Council became a reality and seems to have set the pace for European political and economic thought.

Britain has been active in the Organization for European Economic Co-operation, the Economic Co-operation Administration, and has kept abreast of developments in the Scandinavian, Benelux and French-Italian economic unions.

Another Combination

She will be an interested power if the projected "Benelff"—a Benelux, French-Italian and possibly West Germany combination —is formed.

Germany is regarded as the key to European peace during the next 25 years and the Allies agree that no preoccupation with Russia should distract them from their supervision of West Germany.

Her reconstruction as a democracy is an end in itself. She is not being rebuilt as a bulwark against Communism. But White hall believes that by handling first things first she will become one and for, the first time since 1939 there is a willingness to treat the Germans as equals. The year saw a West German parliament come into being and Russia set up a rival government in Eastern Germany.

But the Western powers insist on guarantees for security, including German participation in the Ruhr Authority which watches that German industry is geared to peace, not war.

The Austrian treaty, held up by Russia's support of Yugoslavia's claims for Slovene Carinthia, has benefited by Tito's dispute with the Cominform. Russia has abandoned support of Tito's claims and agreement on the remaining terms is expected early in 1950.

Meanwhile, the Atlantic Pact, signed in Washington April 4, has been acquiring teeth. In regional groupings the line extends from Norway, across to Denmark, along Belgium, Luxembourg, France to Switzerland, and along Italy's northern frontier to Yugoslavia. On the Iberian Peninsula, only Portugal is an adherent so far. But Spain plainly would like to come in and Downing Street is believed to be reassessing her position, as in France.

New German Drug Used to Treat Dreaded Cancer

Frankfurt, Dec. 8. (AP)—Successes in treatment of cancer with a new German drug were reported Thursday by European research specialists and doctors. The drug is described as still being in the experimental stage.

In more than 100 out of 300 cases of advanced cancer, the drug was reported either to have brought to a standstill the growth of cancer or to have positively decreased the infection.

The new development was reported by H. Siebold, spokesman for a meeting of 60 German, Swiss, Austrian and Netherlands cancer research specialists and doctors said to have helped in the first experiments. The specialists are meeting at Bad Kreuznach, in the French zone.

Seibold said the drug bearing the simple name "toxilan" was developed in 1942 by Dr. Wilhelm von Brehmer, 67, head of a cancer research institute at Bad Kreuznach. It has not been made available on the open market and is still being tested in experiments, he added.

SAFETY MEASURES

He identified the inspector as W. P. Craig of Toronto.

"In view of the fact that the man is about to retire, and has reached the retiring age (of 65) —in fact I believe he has gone beyond the retiring age—it was decided that no action would be taken by way of dismissal."

It was not yet decided whether legislation will be necessary to put the recommendations of the inquiry commission into effect.

The commission, headed by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada, recommended installation of fire-resisting bulkheads in passenger ships along with automatic fire alarm or fire-detection equipment in every section of the vessels

Will Train Crews

The training of crews for fire-fighting duties, the installation of sprinkler systems and of public address fire-warning systems were among other recommendations.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said that the laxity on the part of government inspection officers should be dealt with as severely as had the company of the captain. He was critical of the way safety regulations had been relaxed for the Norgnic in the installation of fire-resisting bulkheads.

Mr. Cherrier said regulations requiring fire-resisting bulkheads were passed in 1937. The steamship inspection board decided it would not be practical to make this regulation retroactive in the case of the Noronic and other such ships. Such regulations rarely were made retroactive anywhere in the world.

Only Shipowners Considered

Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra) expressed the hope the department would not take the stand that no new regulations would apply to ships already afloat.

Joseph Noseworthy (CCF-York South) said seamen had told him —and he agreed with them—that as far as inspection of the Noronic was concerned, the inspector might just as well have been hired and paid for by the company.

"The evidence indicates the only thing considered was the convenience of the ship owners," he declared.

On other estimates, Mr. Cherrier made two announcements of particular interest to the Maritime Provinces. He announced the government will consider establishment of a board of engineers to determine the economic possibilities of a canal across the Isthmus of Chignecto between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

He also announced that the government hopes to be in a position next March to call tenders for the construction of a bridge across the Strait of Canso, connecting the Nova Scotia mainland with Cape Breton Island.

FIFTEEN HURT,

Choir Rehearsing

The choir was rehearsing for the Victoria Skating Club's ice show to be held tonight and Saturday. An official said the show will go on as scheduled; "We are thankful it was no worse."

The stage was erected over an arena entrance and was built out from a row of seats. Lawrence Loman, the director, had summoned the choir to the centre of the stage when it collapsed without warning.

Few of the injured were able to give more than a vague account of what happened, so swift was the crash. Ruth Jordan, one of the injured, said "we were converging on the centre of the stage as Mr. Loman's instruction when it happened: I was on the outside and I guess that's what saved me from more serious injuries."

The rehearsal had finished so far as the skating was concerned, and the choir was the last item for the evening. An official said that if the stage had collapsed 30 minutes earlier many children children would have been injured.

Hollywood Beach, Fla., Dec. 9. (AP)—American investors were told Thursday of "the opportunities in Canada for profitable employment of capital in large amounts."

The Investment Bankers Association of America, in annual convention here, heard a report by its committee on Canadian securities. This marked the first time the bankers had named a special committee to study the investment situation in Canada.

The I.B.A. is the United States counterpart of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada.

Stating that there is "convincing evidence that frontier development is still a characteristic of Canadian life," the committee cited as particular examples of investment opportunity the oil and gas discoveries in the Prairie Provinces, the Quebec-Labrador iron fields and the discovery of ilanium-bearing ore in northeastern Quebec.

"Expert opinion contends," the committee reported "that there will be very large additional discoveries of oil in Western Canada as no less than 475,000 square miles are classified as prospective oil territory in the United States.

"If this opinion is well founded, the Canadian oil industry will require huge amounts of new capital. It has been estimated that expansion of Canadian production to a capacity of around 400,000 barrels would require capital expenditures of around $1,000,000,000 which might be raised in equal parts from operations and from capital market."

IVANHOE

Ivanhoe—The regular meeting of the Y.P.U. was held last Monday evening in Beulah United Church, with an attendance of 33.

The worship service was conducted by the president, Doris Twiddy, who used as the theme for the service "Christmas". A call to worship was given by reading several verses pertaining to the theme.

Mrs. Earl McMaster read the scripture lesson, taken from Matthew 2:1-12.

A few Thoughts for Meditation were given by the president. Minutes of the last meeting were read and a business period followed. The treasurer, Eleanor Reid, gave report, and a committee was formed to purchase a projector for the Union. It was also agreed to give a donation to Camp Quin-Mo-Lac to aid in the great work there. Membership cards are available, and it is hoped that everyone will obtain one and become a member of the Union.

An invitation was accepted to hold the next meeting, January 2nd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Reid. The offering was received by David McMaster amounting to $1.31.

The program which had been prepared by Eleanor Reid and Margaret Wright was presided over by Margaret Wright. Christmas carol "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing" was sung. A reading "Give Happiness This Year" was given by Clare Hagerman. Mrs. Earl McMaster and Mrs. George Wood rendered a duet, "There's a Song In The Air" and were accompanied by Mrs. Keith Bray.

The topic for the evening was given by Mrs. Keith Bray who explained the meaning of the crest of the Y.P.U. and who also gave some thoughts on Christmas, which were most interesting.

A poem "Jesus' Star" was read by Mrs. Clifford Mitz. Margaret Wright, recreation convener, conducted a contest which was enjoyed by all.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Any type of hand can be shown by a bridge player. It matters not whether the hand is held by an opener, a defender, a responder. Each, however, uses a different set of words in describing them.

An opening bidder has available several kinds of openings; one or two or three or four or five in a suit; one or two or three in no-trump. Each shows a different group of values.

A defending bidder may make a simple overcall, a double for a takeout, a jump overcall, an overcall in opponent suit. Each shows a different set of values, similar to openings.

Suppose your opponent opens the bidding with one in suit when you have a hand that was good enough to open. As the defending hand, how are you going to show that you could have opened?

You simply say "double." The word double in that spot is nothing but a signal, to your partner. It is a signal that says you were going to open the bidding. But that buzzard beat you to it.

It is not likely that your hand would have opened in the same suit as did the opener. It is probably in some other suit, or notrump. But open you would have if your opponent had not done so.

South opened with a heart when west held the hand shown here:

♦K Q 9 10
♣A 6 3 2.

The west hand has all the ingredients required for an opening of one spade. But it is too late for him to be the opener. Someone else has already opened. He is now a defender.

As a defender he would like to show his partner that he could have opened. So, he does not say one spade. Instead, he says double.

The double in this case is an artificial convention. But it is a very useful one. Even though it is unnatural, you'll should learn it.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

This testimony comes from John O'Malley, a tall Australian who has just arrived here to seek his fortune. O'Malley is one of the performers in the film, "The Rugged O'Riordans" which was 18 months in the making, most of it in the plains of Queensland.

"But it wasn't as bad as it sounds," he added. "I was out in the bush, which I like, and on a horse, which I like. They flew in movies twice a week and we had no particular worries. The only bother was wearing a beard for a year and a half."

Australian films cost anywhere from $14,000 to $200,000. Which was the tab on "O'Riordans." Most of the pictures are made on location, since the largest studio has but one stage. That accounts for the lengthy shooting schedules.

Low Productions

Australia produces only about two films a year, O'Malley said, so there are no actors who perform in pictures alone. Nor do they confine themselves to the stage.

"The big thing is radio," he declared, "but most actors take part in all mediums." He added that television has not progressed beyond the experimental stage.

Other comments: Australians are good movie fans, but quite critical. Big United States favorites are Bob Hope, Alan Ladd, Humphrey Bogart. American films are generally favored, but the best British films draw good business. The down-under public is pretty well fed up with the brightly-colored fluffy musicals coming from here.

Pacific Veteran

O'Malley was originally a newspaper man in his native Sydney. He jests about having "sunk lower to become an actor." In 1938, he served in the army during the war and was part of a group isolated in Timor during the Japanese occupation. He spent 14 months dodging Japs on the island.

O'Malley was about to leave for Britain a few weeks ago when his application to enter this country on the quota was accepted. Should he find favor in the United States, he will join a group of actor-farmers, including Judith Anderson, Alan Marshall, Cecil Kellaway and Ann Richards.

MAKE AWARD AGAIN

Brockville, Ont., (CP)—Alex White's most valued possession, a gold watch given him for 25 year's service with a local company, was lost in Brockville's recent million-dollar blaze. But it will be replaced by the company with the same engraving and the same sentiment.

WILL PROVIDE CONSIDERABLE RELIEF

Electrics Beaten by Flyers For First Time in Loop Play; Diesels Dunk Rocket Juniors

Bill Cook bought another gross of crying towels last night as his Belleville Rockets floundered deep in the cellar in the first game of the Belleville and District Hockey League, losing to Diesels by the score of 4 to 2.

But don't put the blame on coach Dan Cowley. He only took over last night from former coach Ken McNaught.

In probably the greatest game of organized hockey played here in the Hume arena this year the Cook machine went down to defeat before a stronger and better organized team of hard-hitting Irishmen.

Following fluke goals by both sides in the first seven minutes of play the game settled down to become a contest of shooting ranging up and down the ice until Ezzbber Day broke away alone to beat Tripp in the Rockets goal to give his group command. Hogan, Semark and Mulholland tried every sort of angle to sink the equalizer but LaForte in the Diesels net was just too good.

The Diesels were giving the Rockets some of their own medicine as the clock counted the end of the period.

Feeble Clearout

Man Mountain Goyer looked more like old man from the mountain as he feebly cleared the rubber up the ice while the Rockets pressed in the second frame. Tripp in the Rockets net, however, absorbed a lot of puck on the Diesel counter-attacks, while the Rockets on the other hand missed many chances right in front of LaForte. Defenseman Bill Hurst was sadly disappointed on two efforts close in.

The play in the final stanza went wide open as Gary Schrieder performed in the nets for the Rockets in place of Tripp. There were penalties and both squads were icing from the up front at times. Diesels had added another point to their lead on a Williams to Day combination that looked like a performance by, a set of Siamese twins. Jumbo Goyer seemed to return to his old form with a lone effort while his mates were gangling the Rockets net.

Thirteen minutes had elapsed, the losers were pressing at every opportunity when Murphy banged a pass to Fletch to raise the Rockets hopes in the dying seconds of the match.

The teams—

Diesels: Goal, LaForte; defence, Woodman and V. Goyer; centre, Day; wings, Williams and Mober; subs, Semark, Hurst, Adams, Wardhaugh, Nolan, Bastedo.

Battle of Goalies

The second game of the night will be known as the battle of the goalies. It was Plumley against Keys and vice versa.

Keys however came out on top leading his team to a 4 to 3 victory over Northern Electrics in sixty minutes of thrill-packed hockey. The air force netminder captured the Boland trophy awarded the best goaltender in the Belleville and District Hockey League with the lowest schedule average.

Plumley went into the game trailing Keys by two points, but by the end of the first frame his forwards had put him within grasp of the coveted old mug.

And up until Jackson rifled a whistler behind Plumley it looked like Mr. Specks would be the playing the cup on his fireplace for the next year. Pop Lawlor's pokie checking, Paul (Ias Canadiens) Gagnon's headwork and Jackson's little less than terrific break away for the airmen's second point blasted Plumley's fondest hopes.

Threw in Reserves

The Northerns threw in all their reserves in the final session which promised pile-up after pile-up around the nets in the both ends of the rink. Undoubtedly Keys made some beautiful saves while his wingman pressed for the evener. Auld's great efforts were finally rewarded with the tying goal and the air force boys went wild along with the crowd when Gagnon put the set-to on ice with a minute and a half to go.

The win gave the Flyers undisputed hold on the league's second place position.

Teams:

Northern Electrics — Goal, Plumley; defence, Williamson, and York; centre, Barrett; wings, Creighton and Semmens; subs—Wardhaugh, Jones, Mulvihill, Whiteman, Cousins, Markle.

Sports Roundup

New York, Dec. 9. (AP)— If Billy Southworth doesn't change his mind about refusing to sell any dissatisfied Braves, we think the Boston manager should qualify for the "most influential fortitude" award . . . Billy may be a stern taskmaster, because he believes a guy has to keep working hard to be a big leaguer . . . but he also learned the hard way that a manager should understand his men—individually—and do his best to satisfy their whims say guys who'd "revolt" against that kind of deal must be really hard to handle . . . did you know that Nate Dolan, one of the Cleveland Indians' new stockholders, is the gent who ran the box office at the Cleveland Arena for years and used to make the ice show excursion trains with a pocket full of pasteboards?

Whether Conn Smythe's well-played calorie contest was aimed at winning hockey games or just in publicity, it's paying off.

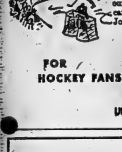
Smythe's Toronto Maple Leafs whipped Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 Thursday night, their third victory since the team's recent slump which saw leafs gaining only one point in seven starts and Smythe blasting overweight players.

Even Smythe must be surprised at the way the central object of his reducing orders, burly Turk Broda from Brandon Man., has come through.

The Turk has been keeping out goal-hungry forwards with less difficulty than he had shedding seven pounds to get under Smythe weight limit of 190 pounds. He's given up only two goals in three games—a 2-0 shutout of New York Rangers, a 2-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings and now this masterful showing against Chicago.

Thursday night's victory before 11,986 fans at Chicago shoved Toronto into sole possession of second place. Montreal Canadiens, previously tied with Leafs, were held to a 2-2 deadlock by the Boston Bruins at Montreal. Detroit Red Wings, idle Thursday night, still wing along at the top with an 11 point margin over Toronto.

Gus Mortson scored the first Toronto goal in the first period and Roy Conacher tied it up. Vic Lynn scored two in the middle frame and big Harry Watson scored the last in the finale. Broda had 26 saves as the Hawks outshot the Leafs, who had 19 shots on Frankie Brimacek.



A crowd of 13,576 at Montreal Forum waited 40 minutes past regular time before the first tired-weary Bruins started their tussle with Canadiens. Boston got both their goals in the first period. Woody Dumart and Johnny Peirson doing the honors. Canadiens got one back when Floyd Curry scored, and they didn't get the tying counter until Maurice Richard scored halfway through the last period.

Thrill on Ice

No winter visitor from south of the border willingly misses a chance to see the famous Maple Leafs in action. But all over Ontario there is fine hockey to be seen. Each arena can be made an attraction to tourists who contribute so much to the prosperity of our province. Let all of us do all we can to make them want to come back.

The second event, for the Tudhope Rose trophy, also went to a repeat winner as N. Burnett of Detroit beat Pete McCallum of London 11-3.

Coaker Triplett Inspiration to All Ball Players

(By The Canadian Press)

When a ball player can finish third in league batting and second in outfield defensive play, it would be a moderately safe assumption to say he is pretty good. But when a pair of 35 compiles these feats—well, it's downright astonishing.

Coaker Triplett, Buffalo's ageless, veteran, did just that last season in the International Baseball League. He batted .333, fielded .991, and in nine more years he'll be 39.

Triplett's antics must have been an inspiration to his teammates. They won their first pennant since 1924, fielded the loop's best defensive unit, and finished second in team batting.

Boxing promoters Doug Fairbanks and Wes Ramey said at Grand Rapids, Mich., Thursday they have offered Ezzard Charles a $75,000 guarantee to defend his heavyweight boxing title against Joey Maxim of Cleveland in a bout "somewhere in Michigan."

Fairbanks said that Jack Kearns, Maxim's manager, is enthusiastic about the proposed title, go which probably would be scheduled next summer, if Charles accepts.

The touring Hull Volants Thursday night at London wound up a 20-game exhibition tour of Europe and the British Isles by dropping a 7-1 decision to Wembley Cousines.

It was only the fourth defeat for the Quebec club, which has won 13 and tied two, in addition to playing two interleague games in the league. Altogether Hull notched 88 goals against 53 by the European and British opposition.

Bob Hamilton, veteran professional from Landover, Md., took the lead in Miami's $10,000 open golf tournament Thursday with a blistering six-under-par 64.

Hamilton holed a 12-foot putt on the 18th green for a birdie three in the dark. He carded a four-under-par 31 on the front nine and came back in 33. It was a dark when the second was completed that scores were figured by the light of matches.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By VIC MORRIS, JR.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Dec. 9—(CP)—The Grey Cup may be tucked away in lavender and old lace, but the future of the east-west final football classic is still a lively subject.

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara says there is opposition to holding the event at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds in Toronto, "but there shouldn't be too much for the one big game.

"They could accommodate 40,000 persons there. True, many would be far from the field, but they wouldn't be any farther than when we were, for instance, at the Notre Dame-North Carolina game, where we sat in the open stands."

The Montreal writer feels that the discussion of the future playing site of the classic will grow hotter as time goes on.

He doesn't think that a suggestion by Les Lear, coach of the vanquished Calgary Stampeders, will meet a kindly reception. Lear suggested that the Western football conference should become an "all out professional group."

Baz says there are quite a few advantages to the present setup, at least as supplied to eastern teams. Look Before You Leap

"They will look a long time before they leap," he says. "Besides, the Argonaut Rowing Club, which is really the Double. Blue Rowing Club, will never consent to such an arrangement.

"One couldn't imagine a big four football league without the historic Argos, the redoubtable Rough Riders or the flaming Alouettes.

"At one time, we thought the league could get by to do without the great Tigers, but it would be a wonderful thing if somehow or another they could be lured back into their old-time associations."

The Hamilton Tigers left the big four last season to play in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. They captured the O.R.F.U. championship but were defeated by Alouettes in the Eastern Canada final.

Bob Moran New President of Argonaut Club

Toronto, Dec. 9 (CP)— The famed Argonaut Rowing Club has a new president today, 40-year-old Bob Moran, who will take over immediately direction of the club's rowing and football destinies.

Moran was elected by acclamation at the 78th annual meeting Thursday night to succeed Tom Allison, 12 years president of Argos and for 33 years an oarsman, rowing coach and football director for the double blue. Allison is honorary president and next year will become president of the Canadian Rugby Union.

A former Argo oarsman, Moran is a member of the club's football committee and he said Thursday night that Argos would have a contending team in the Big Four next season.

Coach Teddy Morris and manager Earl Selkirk both spoke of the failure of Argos to win a title in last season's rugby battles. Morris said "a few of the boys preferred to have money instead of their pride" but reversed himself right after and said "these boys paid off in three straight games and perhaps a slump was inevitable."

Jake Lamotta Betting Favorite Over Villemain

New York Dec. 9 (AP)—Middleweight champion Jake Lamotta is the betting favorite to win and the fans' choice to lose in his non-title 10 round bout with France's Robert Villemain tonight.

The two clash for the second time in Madison Square Garden and the stout hearted little swinger from Paris will have most of the anticipated 12,000 customers rooting for him.

Anvil-chinned Jake never has been any too popular in his home town and the decision he received over Villemain last March 25 didn't bobp his fan mail.

The busy little Parisian who handily in the opinion of 19 of 20 boxing writers at the ringside. But two of the three officials saw things differently and voted for Lamotta. Villemain will be an underdog tonight at about 12 to 5.

SHROPSHIRE TO CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Dec. 9 (AP)—Cleveland Barons of the American League announced Thursday night the acquisition of R. G. Shropshire, an 18-year-old goalie now with Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association. Rights to Shropshire came from Toronto Maple Leafs, as part of the deal which recently sent goalie Al Rollins to the Leafs. The Barons also have sent goalie Al Rollins to the Leafs. The Barons also have added to their farm system Hal Tarala, a 22-year-old defenceman from Kansas City.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at her shopping accounts with rinkels in her forehead, saying to pop, I wish you could hear Laura Luise Lilkin on the radio some Thursday morning, William. Her talks on Home Economics are really inspiring. Really, William, I mean really, it would almost repay you to be indisposed some Thursday morning, just so you could stay home and listen to her, ma said.

I'll say. If I can eat something that disagrees with me some Wensday evening, pop said, and me said, She was unusually uplifting this morning. She talked about Household Budgeting, and she was really convincing. According to her, if you reduce your average weekly expenditures, your monthly sum totals are bound to take care of themselves, me said.

By gollies, why didn't anybody ever think of that before? pop said, and me said, When you come to think of it, it just can't fail. I've got my shopping lists here for the passed few weeks, comparing them by setting them up against the other. You've got a head for figures, William. Maybe you can help me reduce my average, she said.

What is your average? pop said, and ma said, Well, the nearest I can tell you is, each week seems to run about 5 dollers more than the week before. I've ferreted out that much. So I'll start you off with a suggestion. If I add 10 or 15 dollers more each week to what I usually try to allow myself, I'll have a sort of leeway, so to speak, and in that way I'm sure I'll be less likely to run over at the end of every week. What do you think, William? she said.

I think it's a woman's world, and it's a pleasure to starve in it, pop said.

Being sourcastic,

Mackenzie's Column:
China's Conflict Entering New, Terrible Phase

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

China's civil conflict appears to be entering a new and perhaps even more terrible phase—the waging of guerilla strife by the Nationalists against the now victorious Communist armies.

This means underground fighting. It means stealthy blows struck under cloak of night when no man knows whether he is facing friend or foe. It means destruction by the torch. It means the awful plague of the scorched earth for the hungry masses.

The orthodox phase of the protracted warfare was formally ended Thursday when the Nationalist government abandoned its temporary capital at Chengtu, Western China, and flew to Formosa. This great island off the southeast coast has been turned into a fortress by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and is defended by some 300,000 troops, supported by an air force.

Formosa long ago was prepared for just such a day for his last ditch stand. There the government will base. From there the Nationalist forces on the continent will be directed.

Symbol of China

Thus Formosa becomes the symbol of all Nationalist China. So long as the flag still flies over this stronghold and guerrilla-ism is Nationalists continue the fight on the continent, just as long can Chiang maintain that his government is a going concern.

The Nationalist troops defending the government in the temporary capital of Chengtu are being pulled back farther westward to Sichang, in Sikang Province. This will be mainland headquarters pending further developments. Whether this force will be split up into guerrilla contingents probably will depend on developments.

The loss of Chengtu and surrounding territory is a serious blow to the Nationalists. My colleague Charles A. Grumich, who served as an AP correspondent in China and now is on the AP staff with the United Nations, says the Chinese reds in their sweep on Chengtu are grabbing probably the richest farmlands in the world.

"The conquest of Szechwan province and the mountain-ribbed Chengtu plain," Grimsich adds, "is their most important triumph for control of food sources that may be exploited as a political weapon in hungry China.

36 Bonus Players Affected by Recent Ruling

Baltimore, Dec. 9 — (AP) — The failure of the minor leagues to wipe out the bonus rule affects 36 bonus players on major league rosters representing a total outlay of some $800,000.

Added to this sizeable bandle are 152 bonus-lagged minor league players to increase the total expenditure well above the $1,000,000 mark. It is small wonder then the "stuck" major league club owners went all out to ditch baseball's most controversial law.

Leading the fight for repeal was Bob Carpenter, president of the Philadelphia Phils, who own more bonus players than any other club.

The staunchest supporters of the rule and therefore Carpenter's most bitter rivals, were Warren Giles, president of Cincinnati Reds; Fred Saigh, owner of St. Louis Cardinals and Bill Dewitt, head of St. Louis Browns.

Needing 43 assenting votes of the 59 leagues, polled, or three-fourths, the proposal to repeal the bonus law got only 32 "Yes" votes with only one league abstaining. As a result, it is here to stay—at least for another year.

The bonus rule was adopted originally to stop big payments to promising players for their signatures on their first contracts in organized baseball.

It clamps tight on players who are paid more than a set scale for signing contracts.

Such a bonus player cannot be farmed out unless nobody claims him for the waiver price, which varies from $10,000 in the majors to $100 in class-D leagues. He is subject to unrestricted draft by clubs of higher classification as long as he stays in the minors.

Louis Finding His Retirement A Real Problem

Detroit, Dec. 9. (AP)— Joe Louis, a terror of the prize ring for 14 years, is finding his retirement a problem.

The former heavyweight champion's exhibition tour evidently has run away from him.

He says — emphatically —he's not interested in a comeback, but the "big money" proposals again are being waved at him.

The management of Lee Oma, who withdrew from a scheduled exhibition go with the Brown Bomber here next Wednesday, offers $35,000 for a "real fight."

And Jake Mintz, co-manager of the National Boxing Association champion, Ezzard Charles, wants a match next summer between his man and Louis. He sees a "million dollar gate."

But Tex Sullivan, Oma's manager, observes:

"That guy is in there throwing bombs. They're not exhibitions. They're real wars. Take it from me, he's already come back."

Community Chests Receive Total $9,757,300 in '49

Ottawa, Dec. 8—(CP)—Contributions totalling more than $9,757,300 have poured into the coffers of Canada's Community Chests this year, the Canadian Welfare Council announced today. The sum is $580,000 above the amount raised in 1948 and six chests still have to report their earnings. Council officials had set an objective of $10,000,000 this year for support of local and national welfare services during 1950.

The Red Feather, in ancient symbol of chivalry dating back to the time of Robin Hood, is the emblem of the annual campaign.

In all, 15 of the 48 chests that have reported on their 1949 campaign are over the top; another 18 are between 90 and 100 per cent of their objective.

Torontonians were rated as contributing the most dollars to a single chest—$2,340,350.

In Montreal, the four fund-raising organizations received a total of more than $3,000,000.

Smallest chest in Canada is in the pulp and paper town of Espanola, Ont., where citizens pushed their chest six per cent over its $5,000 objective.

Freedom Near For Angus Ward And His Staff

Tokyo, Dec. 9 (AP)— Freedom was just a day or so away today for Angus Ward and his staff from the Red-harrassed United States consulate in Communist-ruled Mukden.

The Consul-General and his party arrived Thursday night at the Communist north China port of Tientsin. By train it had taken nearly 27 hours to travel the 700 miles between Mukden and Tientsin.

But it meant the end of nearly a year's virtual imprisonment for Ward in the Manchurian capital. The consulate staff was in Mukden when the Chinese Reds marched in. Then it couldn't get out. The Communists finally agreed to "deport" the staff—but not until after they forced Ward to spend a month in jail on what the State Department called "trumped-up" charges.

State department officials here received word from Tientsen in which indicated the entire group of 20 was well and that it encountered no difficulties on the long railroad journey.

It still wasn't certain exactly when the party will board an American ship—or ships—for the voyage home. It could be tomorrow, but the pickup may not take place until Sunday.

Several vessels were nearing Taku Bar, 16 miles outside Tientsin. This is the designated rendezvous point.

Eight candidates were nominated to contest the four seats on Board of Control. Seeking re-election are Controllers Leslie Saunders, John Innes, David Balfour and Allan Lamport.

Nationalist China Loses Last Prov. In South Part

40,000 Troops in Kumming Reported to Have Deserted

Hong Kong, Dec. 10 — (AP)— Nationalist China today lost its last remaining province in South China.

Yunnan, bordering Indo-China and Burma, was reported to have gone over completely to the Communists after 40,000 Nationalist troops in Kunming, the capital, deserted this morning.

That leaves the Nationalists with only a narrow fringe along the South China coast, plus a small area of Szechwan and Sikang provinces.

Their government already has fled Chengtu, capital of Szechwan, and set up headquarters at Taipeh, Formosa, 11 considered Sichang, capital of Sikang, so precarious that original plans to move the capital there were abandoned.

Newspaper Kung Sheung Man Po said the Communists had launched a drive into the Indo-China border opposite Hainan Island.

Nationalist Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi has concentrated a considerable number of troops on the peninsula island, reinforced by an

UK READY TO BUY MORE CHEESE IF PRICE RIGHT

Would Also Like to Buy More Bacon in Canada if Price Reduced

BY HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 10 (CP)—Great cheese-lovers, those miners and factory workers of England.

They and their countrymen are willing to buy 80,000,000 pounds of Canadian cheese next year, it is learned. But the price has to be "right."

This virtual mountain of cheese compares with the 50,000,000 pounds Canada shipped to the United Kingdom this year.

Short of dollars, the U.K. is understood to have told Canada that if the price-per-pound can be reduced from 36 cents to about 23 or 24 cents, the U.K. will be prepared to go the limit and increase purchases by 30,000,000 pounds.

Cheese, it is learned, is receiving top priority in Anglo-Canadian food negotiations. The result of those negotiations likely will be made public by Agriculture Minister Gardiner next week.

$64,000,000 Said to be Available

The U.K. is believed to have told Canada that only $64,000,000 will be available for bacon and cheese purchases next year.

She wants the price or cheese brought more in line with those of southern Dominions—Australia and New Zealand—where she can buy cheese for about 18 and 20 cents a pound.

It appeared likely, too, that the U.K. would be willing to purchase about 80,000,000 pounds of Canadian cheese in 1950 on the basis that the price be reduced—from 52¢ a hundredweight to about 33 or 32.

However, Canadian government officials have given no encouragement to the requests for price reduction, it was learned.

In 1949, the U.K. spent about $72,000,000 for Canadian meats, cheese, eggs, salmon, and fruit pulp. She would have spent more but a short supply of Canadian bacon cut into U.K. shipments.

Out of a total expenditure of $100,000,000 pounds, it appeared unlikely that Canada would ship more than 80,000,000 pounds.

Wheat—biggest item in Canadian food sales to the U.K. — is not being discussed in current negotiations.

The 140,000,000 1949-50 wheat contract doesn't run out until next July and negotiations for shipments beyond that time likely will take place next spring.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Dec. 10 (CP)— Synopsis: A deep cyclonic storm centred this morning near Hudson Bay across Manitoba into Nevada this morning. To the west of this pulse air has plunged the western states into Montana in a cold snap which will be east, however, mild air is surging northward from tropical regions over the mid-west toward Eastern Canada.

The sudden change in temperature across the disturbance will result in the development of an active storm centre which is expected to speed northeastward to near Lake Superior by Sunday morning. Intermittent snow, changing to freezing drizzle or sleet will spread across Ontario today and Sunday, ending in southern sections Sunday morning.

RUSSIANS GOT 1,000 GRAMS OF HEAVY WATER

Shipment Made During 1943

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)— The House of Representatives Committee of Un-American Activities dug but today what it considers proof that the Russians got 1,000 grams of heavy water —valuable for atomic experiments—in 1943.

The committee also is thinking of calling in the Russian-born head of a Canadian firm for questioning about 1,000 pounds of uranium compounds the Russians got in the spring of 1943.

The heavy water was the fourth wartime atomic shipments to the Russians the committee believes it has nailed down.

Additional checks have shown that a report of a fifth—a shipment of uranium compound in mid-1944—was a dud.

While the committee was trying to find out just how much atomic material Russia got from the United States during the war—and how it happened—a casual remark by a former United States official about the country's activities was stored.

The Mexico, Mo., Ledger quoted Curtis Mitchell, who until a few weeks ago was deputy director of Public Information at the U.S. Defense Headquarters in Washington, as saying that "the first attacks on the U.S. in event of war probably will be aimed at "the caves in the southwest where our secrets are stored."

Defence Comment

Defence department officials declined comment.

The House Committee started looking into atomic shipments to Russia more than a year ago. Its information, most of which has been published before, indicates that:

Then came the 1,000 pounds about which the committee wants to ask Boris Pregel, head of the Nesbitt Company, in Canada. The House Committee started of New York City.

Descendants of Scots Pioneers Greet New Settlers From Estonia

Marshdale, N.S., Dec. 10 (CP) —In this Nova Scotia hamlet, a scotia town where the Scots came more than a century ago, the McNeils, MacDonalds and Rosses have some neighbors. They are the Baltic Estonians, Bessons and Murus.

Eighty-five Estonians, the flotsam of war, are starting a new life in this little community 10 miles from the bury steel town of New Glasgow.

But it isn't as if they were starting from scratch. When the first group of 37 arrived more than a month ago at Hopewell, the wheatie stop nearby, they found a station platform was crowded.

The descendants of rugged Scots who pioneered this area were there to meet a new kind of pioneer—one who instead of attacking the forest and swamp must tackle a new language, new customs, a new way of life.

The natives drove the strangers to their homes and offered them "all our spare clothing, some utensils and furnishings, food, building materials and money.

Harry Sutherland, publisher of the New Glasgow Evening News, and Rev. Donald MacKay, minister of the Hopewell Presbyterian Church, took the lead in organized aid.

The eight school children in the first group—30 more Estonians arrived last week and 28 are still to come—began studying English two hours a day at the Church hall. Miss Jessie Crockett, a retired school teacher. After Christmas the children will go to the Hopewell school.

The refugees, who fled before the Russian invasion from Estonia in 1940, created their own jobs— seven before they arrived. Within a day or two of coming in displaced persons' camps, they learned new skills. Now they are starting a handicrafts industry.

The community here was the idea of one man, David Wilson, who formerly worked with the United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

He expects that most of the refugee families will eventually go into agriculture and take up one of pioneer—the work they are attacking the forest and swamp must tackle a new language, new customs, a new way of life.

Govt. Action on Five Alleged Nazi Collaborators Debated

Ottawa, Dec. 10 — (CP)—Government action in allowing five alleged nazi collaborators from France to remain in Canada after they had entered illegally was alternatively condemned and defended in the commons Friday.

Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) charged that "these men have no right to come to this country, they entered illegally and have been kept here illegally.

He was supported by A. L. Smith (PC—Calgary West) in a demand that the government make public names for each of the men to remain in Canada after it was found they had entered the country after the war on false passport.

Resources Minister Gibson, responsible for immigration matters, said he could not give the house confidential reports on the men. They had been screened and the government decided on the basis of information supplied that they should be allowed to remain.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, backing up his colleague, said he accepted responsibility with other members of the cabinet for allowing the five Frenchmen to remain in Canada.

He added:

I hope that all the decisions were made on exactly the same basis as followed in the case of the decisions over many years, namely, that we would lend a hand to sure death at the end of a war because of political differences that may have existed in the country from which he came."

Five Identified

Mr. Stewart said he believed he had proof that the five men and another against whom deportation proceedings are pending were collaborators of the Nazis.

He identified the five allowed to remain as:

Jean Louis Huc, described as a local recruiting agent for the "dreaded" militia of Vichy, and sentenced to five years imprisonment and national degradation for life.

2. Julien Labedan, a member of the militia "who took part in operations against the Maquis," and sentenced to death for treason.

3. Dr. Georges Monjel, reputed to have urged that war be declared against Britain and the United States, sentenced to hard labor for life.

4. Dr. Andre Boussat, found guilty of dealings with the Nazis and sentenced to penal servitude for life.

5. Dr. Michel Seigmer an inspector - general in the Waffen S. S., sentenced to death.

The fifth alleged collaborator was Count Jacques De Bernonville, charged with having identified Jews who escaped into France and with the deaths of many Frenchmen. He was sentenced to death.

Butter Production In Nov. Down From Last Year

Ottawa, Dec. 10. (CP)—Production of creamery butter in November was down 3.3 per cent from production in November last year but stocks held Dec. 1 were higher than a year ago, production and holdings of cheese were higher.

The Bureau of Statistics Friday reported output of butter in November totalled 13,904,000 pounds compared with 16,434,000 in the same month last year and the 11 month total was down from 272,- 488,000 last year to 267,704,000 pounds.

Cheese stocks totalled 47,171,- 000 pounds compared with 46,- 168,000 Nov. 1 and 37,537,000 pounds Dec. 1 last year. Cheddar cheese production was sharply in November, totalling 5,510,000 pounds compared with 7,000,000 in November, 1948, and increased the 11-month total 28 per cent to 107,239,000 pounds over last year's 85,105,000.

Good Progress Made in Talks At Washington

Washington, Dec. 10. (CP)— Canadian sources reported "good" progress Friday in exploratory talks with United States officials on the question of increasing diversion of water from Niagara Falls with a view to boosting power output there.

A Canadian delegation including Ontario and Federal government officers has been meeting U.S. group in a series of closed meetings at the State Department here. The talks which began on Thursday, will end today.

A Canadian spokesman said the negotiations are preliminary and no statement can be made at this time.

Although the group of Mr. Smirle Lawson, Ontario's chief coroner was presided at the inquiry, the jury attached to its verdict a recommendation that "in future, hypodermics should be administered by a qualified medical practitioner and further, that the apparent practice of the administration of anaesthetic by unqualified persons be discontinued."

However, Dr. Lawson emphasized that the verdict was not intended as criticism of the medical student who acted as anaesthetist during the operation on the Orfankos boy. The student gave "a good anaesthetic," Dr. Lawson said.

See Long Wait Before Coffee Back to Old Level

Washington, Dec. 10 — (AP)— American housewives are likely to spend a long time at the present return of coffee prices to September levels.

That theory for this was outlined for congress Friday by a United States diplomatic official: Brazilian reserves virtually disappearing, world coffee production conditions have wrecked any chances for a bumper crop next year.

"I don't think Brazil ever again will be the free coffee producer as she was," Robert B. Elwood, second secretary of the U.S. embassy at Rio de Janeiro, told a senate agriculture sub-committee investigating high coffee prices.

Elwood took a somewhat different approach tothe coffee problem than Edward G. Cowgill, Gillette (Dem. Iowa). Gillette said:

"It is just as apparent to this committee as daylight that somewhere along the line in October and November there were speculative interests which had such an effect on the coffee market as to practically double the price of coffee to the American consumer."

Rio dispatches have told of retail coffee prices going up by 62 cents a pound, as compared with a little more than 22 cents two months ago.

Boy's Death Investigated At Inquest

North Bay, Dec. 10 — (CP) — A North Bay boy choked to death when food particles lodged in his windpipe and his medical tubes during an operation for a tonsil ailment, an inquest jury decided late Friday. The jury found the body of Darryl Orfankos, 9, died accidental and attached no blame to anyone.

HEALTH MINISTER DEFENDS MEANS TEST IN HOUSE

Contributory System Needed if Abolished

Ottawa, Dec. 10. (CP)—Health Minister Martin says the means test cannot be abolished without a contributory system of Old Age Pensions.

During a three-hour health debate in the Commons Friday he said it would cost $785,000,000 to put the pension at $50, lower the age and remove the means test.

"Our means test in this country is the lowest and most liberal found in any part of the world," he said. "I am not saying our utilization is perfect, but until such time as we have a contributory system of Old Age Pensions I say it is irresponsible to talk about the elimination of the means test.

Mr. Martin said the principle of contribution in respect to Old Age Pensions is "receiving our latest attention."

There has been speculation that the Dominion-Provincial Conference called by Prime Minister St. Laurent for next fall will consider once again the question of a national social security program.

On this count, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, expressed regret that the conference will not take place for almost a year.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) took issue with Mr. Martin's statements.

All Five Held Found Guilty In Assault Case

Sarnia, Dec. 10 (CP)—All five persons arrested in connection with a brawl in downtown Sarnia Nov. 23 were found guilty Friday on charges of assaulting or obstructing police, and were remanded for two weeks for sentencing. A crowd of about 250 took part in the fight which started when police attempted to arrest two men who were drunk and fighting with an unidentified tourist. Inspector S. C. Pratt suffered a knife wound in the arm and constables were hurt.

Archie McDonald was found guilty of assaulting Constable Douglas Janes. Harold MacDonald, Jr., was found guilty of assaulting and obstructing Cons. Ernest Duffield; Robert Smithers, 21, convicted of obstructing Inspector Pratt, and Lorne Brooks, arrested a week after the affray, was convicted of obstructing the police.

Fireman Leaps From Engine Cab, Flees Derailed Cars at Heels

Toronto, Dec. 10 — (CP) — Stories of close calls were told by passengers after a Canadian National Railways transcontinental train was derailed by a combined head-on with a C.N.R. freight near Orrell at noon Friday.

A total of 17 persons was injured, but only one required hospital today — Arthur Harrington, engineer of the Winnipeg-bound freight which hit the passenger train near Orrell, 20 miles north of Toronto. Mr. Harrington stayed at the throttle while his fireman, and the engineer and fireman of the passenger train, leaped to safety a few seconds before the two locomotives ipcked together.

The passenger train was slowed down by a curve and the freight was also travelling slowly at the time. Fireman Smith said the passenger train had right-of-way but the cause of the collision is still under investigation.

Four coaches of the passenger and eight cars of the freight left the rails. Most of the injuries were cuts and bruises suffered by passengers in forward cars of the passenger train.

Mrs. Jean Renault of Vancouver, holding her sixth-months-old baby Rita when the crash threw the baby to the floor, and toppled a heavy suitcase on the infant. The baby was apparently uninjured but Mrs. Renault and her husband, who termed it a "miraculous escape," complained of have X-rays taken to make sure.

Another narrow escape was that of fireman James Fisher of the Vancouver train. After leaping from the cab, he said, "I landed running, with two derailed refrigerator cars on my heels. I guess I never ran so fast in my life."

Eleven passengers were treated for minor injuries and four other members of the train crews received treatment.

Voters End Eight Years of Labor Government

New Party Wins or Takes Major Lead in 64 Seats

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 11 — (Sunday) — (CP) — Australia yesterday ended eight years of Labor government by voting into power a two-party anti-Socialist Coalition led by Robert G. Menzies.

His Liberal-Country party group, which made the election a straight fight against Prime Minister Chifley's socialist policies, early today had won or taken a commanding lead in 64 seats, enough to give them control of the House of Representatives.

Labor appeared to have won 30 seats.

Even before these results were published Liberal members in the Coalition were claiming success.

"I think we have won it," said R. G. Menzies, leader of the Liberal party, which combined with the smaller Country party to fight Prime Minister Chifley's Labor regime.

Eric Harrison, his deputy leader, said: "The Labor party has been defeated. The victory is a great personal tribute to the leadership of Mr. Menzies."

Increase in Strength

In the first hour of counting after the polls closed at 8 p.m. (6 a.m. EST) a trend against Labor appeared to be developing. It increased in strength and shortly before midnight radio Australia said the Liberal-Country party group was leading in 56 of the 74 seats contested.

In the last election three years ago only 75 seats were at stake. Labor won 43 of them.

Commenting on today's vote, the vice-president of the Australian Trades Labor Council, C. Anderson, said: "The people will soon realize the tragic mistake they have made. They will be glad to return to Labor when the next appeal to the people is made."

He accused the Liberal Party of "an unprecedented campaign of misrepresentation" in the election campaign and said "the Labor Party has done well in the circumstances."

Eastern observers said they thought the House of Representatives probably would wind up with 84 Labor members with at least 59 coalition—42 Liberal and 17 Country party.

In the last smaller House the Liberals had 19 seats and the Country party 13. There were two Independent Labor members and one independent.

Competing for the 123 seats to be won were 125 Liberal candidates, 123 Labor candidates, 33 Country Party candidates and 68 from minor groups, including 25 Communists. Most of the last-named were expected to be defeated at the polls.

The people also voted for 48 Senators to replace half the Senate. The vote are not expected for some days.

Arthur Fadden — known as "Artful Artie" to Australians— leader of the country party who is logical choice for treasurer in a coalition government, said of the country vote:

"The basic principles of Menzies and his policy remain unchanged and vindicated by the sane vote of the people. Naturally I am delighted with the result. The verdict shows the core of Australia is sound."

DREW DEMANDS RESIGNATION OF JUSTICE MINISTER

Revival of the Combines Issue Produces New Demand by Opposition

Ottawa, Dec. 10 — (CP) —Justice minister Garson brought new wrath on his head Friday in provoking a revival of the combines issue that produced a new demand for his resignation and statements that he could be jailed for a year for breaking the laws over which he presides as head of the department.

It saw these developments in the Commons:

1. A charge by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, that " the failure of the ministers to observe the law in different ways in the office . . . destroys confidence in this (combines) and other acts cannot be restored while he is Minister of Justice.

2. An interpretation of the law by Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Garson which J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto, Greenwood) found "most extraordinary."

DREW DEMANDS RESIGNATION OF JUSTICE MINISTER

Revival of the Combines Issue Produces New Demand by Opposition

Ottawa, Dec. 10 — (CP) —Justice minister Garson brought new wrath on his head Friday in provoking a revival of the combines issue that produced a new demand for his resignation and statements that he could be jailed for a year for breaking the laws over which he presides as head of the department.

It saw these developments in the Commons:

1. A charge by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, that " the failure of the ministers to observe the law in different ways in the office . . . destroys confidence in this (combines) and other acts cannot be restored while he is Minister of Justice.

2. An interpretation of the law by Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Garson which J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto, Greenwood) found "most extraordinary."

Large Frame Driveshed Burned With Implements

Fire of undetermined origin Friday night completely destroyed a large frame driveshed on the farm of Roy McArthur, two miles north of Belleville on the Foxboro highway.

Farm machinery, including grain binder, haying equipment and other implements were burned in the fire with loss to contents estimated at nearly $1,000.

The driveshed was situated on a hay valley about distance from the house and the heat set the frame siding of the summer kitchen ablaze. The home was saved from destruction only through efforts of the Belleville Fire Department and neighbors. Firemen from the city under the direction of Fire Chief Gerald Vance answered the alarm with one of the city-owned pumpers. Water was drawn from a nearby well to keep the house and summer kitchen free of the burning building died down.

The McMurrier truck and automobile were also kept in the threshold but these were fortunately out of the building when the fire broke out. The highway was lined with cars as passing motorists stopped to watch the blaze.

County Council Wants Actual Figures on Indigent Patients Before any More Grants Made

Assurance that the county will assume its financial responsibility in regard to the Belleville General Hospital, was voiced in the Friday morning session of Hastings County Council.

But, the county today demanded, "We want the actual figures. We are willing to pay our rightful share, but we want to know where our dollars are going."

To straighten out a possible misconception of a former report, Warden S. A. McCarvey, said that the rate for a private room in the hospital here was $8.50 for a city patient. The discharge of $2.00 was naturally added to this amount.

Speaking in Friday's session of the county council, Warden McCarvey in a further discussion on the hospital question said:

Can't Measure in Dollars

"I do believe that the good that could have been accomplished morally and financially, cannot be measured in dollars and cents."

"I believe," he went on, "that the slogan adopted by the city of Belleville "The Friendly City" could well be applied to the hospital in this controversy. Had the board of the hospital applied this slogan which means relief of suffering, distress, this controversy might not have arisen."

In furtherance of the discussion, it was agreed that the county council appoint a special committee, or a qualified chartered accountant, to get actual facts and figures of indigent accounts.

Urged to Consider

Warden McCarey urged his council to consider the facts. "I think", he said, "as a county council are treading on dangerous ground by intruding on the figures.

"The City of Belleville," he said, "should look after that, the county council with the proper cost, and figures have actual responsibility.

"If Hastings County is responsible for its just debts, and that is what it is, then it should pay its share, whether it knows what the share is, said Reeve Wilfred Spencer, Rawdon.

He doubted if a county council committee, specially appointed, would be competent to handle the job.

Something Must Be Wrong

"Years ago," Reeve W. H. Davis said, "when an administrator by the name of Barclay was in command, this council had no trouble. We were given indigent accounts and other things, and our rights and what we got were our rights and there was the best of feeling between this council and the hospital."

"There must be," the speaker added, "something wrong with

Junior Should Get Frequent Dental Care

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa — (CP) — Junior may stamp his feet at the thought of a trip to the dentist, but nevertheless mother should see that he gets there at least once every six months in this way she will save herself—an junior—a lot of trouble and money, later on.

Health and Welfare department officials say that three out of four Canadians receive no regular dental care; 99 out of 100 suffer from dental disease sooner or later.

In a booklet, "For Smiles That Last," the department's dental health division notes that a child's teeth start to form months before he is born.

By the time he is 2 1-2, all 20 of his "baby" teeth usually have appeared. When he is three, it is time to take him to the dentist.

The booklet warns that tooth decay attacks teeth early, possibly as soon as they appear. Acids, formed by germs feeding on food particles containing sugar, cause tooth decay.

At the age of 12, more than 9 out of 10 have it.

At the age of 16, the average child has already lost two of his permanent teeth this way.

Diet Big Factor

Tooth decay can be reduced by eating the right foods. The health experts say that milk, fruit, vegetables, whole-grain cereals, meat, cheese and eggs, help form sound teeth.

Children should be given milk instead of soft drinks; peanut butter sandwiches instead of candy bars; cereals and cheese instead of gum; fruit instead of cake.

Sound, healthy teeth need constant attention. They should be brushed within 10 minutes after eating. If brushing is not possible the child should be taught to rinse his mouth after eating.

The booklet notes that sodium fluoride cuts down tooth decay in children when properly applied by the dentist, and recommends it for children ages 5, 7, 10, and 13 years.

Frequent visits to the dentist also are important—at least once every six months. Health officials say that cavities won't grow—they never heal. Early and regular treatment saves time, money and teeth.

Carmel Church Enjoys Satisfying Bazaar and Tea

Rawdon.— On Wednesday last a large number of ladies gathered at Carmel United Church to enjoy their annual bazaar, programme and tea.

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, was master of ceremonies and a brief program was enjoyed with two vocal solos given by Mrs. A. E. Baker and Mrs. Ross Hart, with Mrs. Arthur Pyear as accompanist. Mrs. R Hagerman contributed a reading, all local talent. Mrs. Malcolm Sharp of Mount Pleasant, delighted with a piano solo.

Unity of Rural People

The guest speaker was Mrs. Roy Bush of St. Paul's, Stirling, who gave a splendid message on "The Unity of Rural People". She pointed out that even with many home responsibilities, rural women can do co-operation with each other are able to put across many things in their church committees. Rural women are good planners and always make their ventures pay.

Miss Marion Carlisle, president of Carmel Women's Association, welcomed the guests and thanked the guest speaker for her timely message.

The ladies displayed a large array of home cooking, candy, fancy work and Christmas gifts, and they had eager buyers, the proceeds of which netted a satisfying.

At the close, they served their guests light refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Every Man on His Own

By ROY L. SMITH

It is one of the fundamental principles of good religion, as well as of democracy, that in a very large part of his life every man is on his own.

This is a very popular doctrine in a time when the government is being made responsible for solving the personal problems of its citizens. But it is one which has the sanction of history and the force of destiny.

The Historical Situation

The prophet Jeremiah lived in a time when all the ancient life and civilization of the Hebrew people was breaking up. Kings, with incredible folly, had precipitated a series of political events which could have but one possible outcome—complete destruction. The people, grown apostate, were indifferent to the ancient standards of morality. A terrible calamity was eating away all the vitals of the nation.

A number of the times who had even less of a statesman's viewpoint than that of Isaiah could hardly have missed seeing the inevitable. But no one saw it. The last mad dash for oblivion had begun.

The Prophet's Faith

Jeremiah had complete conviction of Jeremiah that nothing could save the nation except a miracle. He was also his profound conviction that God would not allow the destruction of the ark, and he was entitled to respect on the basis of his character.

This means that men are not to be judged according to the race or nation of which they are members, but according to the quality of their lives. It means that individuals are not to be weighed according to the families into which they were born, but according to the use they make of their opportunities and the strength of character they develop. It means that no man's salvation does not depend upon the church to which he has given some vows, but the faith he maintains within his own heart.

The Sole Flyer

An army colonel, in charge of training young pilots, tells of watching a youngster take a plane aloft. He started intently after him, into a detail of the boy's handling of the plane escaping his attention. Then at the last levelled off and started across country for the destination, the colonel turned about, started for headquarters, and said: "Well, he's on his own now. We have given him the best training possible; put him into the finest plane built, and equipped him with every instrument known to flying science. It's up to him."

With Canada's Naturalists:

X-rays Reveal Unexpected Patterns In Structure of Swordfish Bill

(Written for The Canadian Press)
By PEROT GHENT

On a summer cruise to Labrador and other points in the east, a Toronto girl brought home the 60-inch sword of a swordfish as a souvenir. She picked it up at a Nova Scotian port of call.

When the "sword" was X-rayed, a remarkable pattern was revealed. It consisted in its entire length and evenly spaced at short distances, were tiny air-pockets of curious design. They were shaped, roughly, like the outline of a beaver with tail complete. At the tapered point of the sword the pockets were still present, but very small.

Another intriguing radiograph is that of the soft-shelled turtle. It was made by Dr. Rainer Zangerl, of the Chicago Museum of Natural History. Inside the reptile were eight unlaid eggs.

Roenigen, who discovered the X-ray, it is amusing to note, used to make caustic comments about the "unlaid eggs" when the results of physical research were discussed prematurely. Yet his own discovery demonstrates that eggs—turtle eggs anyway—can be counted before they are laid.

"If winter comes, can spring be far behind"? Thoughts of Shelley and of spring came with the arrival of still another application of the X-ray to nature study.

From Miss Elsie Cox, physicist and radiographer at the University of North Carolina, came a number of floral radiographs she had made—tulips, narcissus, orchids. There the X-rayed tulips had the greatest charm. Not only their beauty, as shown by ordinary photography, was displayed, but the inquisitive rays looked through and into the very fabric of their lovelliness. Lace-like designs of the fabric was revealed, and the whole radiant transparency brought out new degrees of beauty.

Experimental X-ray examination of tree trunk sections reveals the annular rings, by which the age of the tree is ascertained, as graceful lines; and when the radiographs are made at a slight angle these rings appear as circles of silky ribbon.

Through his binoculars, a Canadian amateur naturalist watched a bluejay carry from the sunflower seeds he had placed on a feeding shelf to the nearest fence and squeeze long blue fellows. Here is the technique of feeing he saw:

A seed is picked up and the bluejay immediately flies to a tree or shrub branch with a small diameter—usually less than one inch. Although the sunflower seed may be three-eighths of an inch long, it is placed length-wise with the bird's beak between it and tween the feet with the minutest edges held down. Then an savage of four strikes with the beak is enough to break the seed, extract the kernel, and knock the shell away.

A minor observation, perhaps, but a fascinating example of speed an efficiency and one which the observer had failed to find described in any text-book.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

SUCCESSION IN BIRD LIFE

Fifty years ago cows grazed inside the five-acre meadow enclosed by the stone fence; but when Farmer Smith died and the land was sold to a new owner, not interested in cattle, allowed Nature to have her way. The first summer little change was apparent, except the grass grew long and leaves sprouted low down on the trunks of the two big elm trees. As before, Song Sparrows perched on the fence and bubbling voices of Bobolinks filled the air.

By the following June low bushes had sprung up here and there, attracting Nashville and Chestnut-sided Warblers. The fifth year, small maples, black birch and poplar brough slate-colored Juncos, White-throats and Chipping sparrows. As trees grew taller and thicker, the birds were replaced by Redstarts, Hermit Thrushes and Red-eyed Vireos. A pair of goldfinches chose a maple sapling for their home, and Rose-breasted Grosbeaks built a frail nest in an alder.

Within twenty-five years the pasture was transformed into a forest. Trees stood 20 or more feet high, their branches meeting overhead. Oven-birds came instead of Nashville and Chestnut-sided Warblers. Chipping Sparrows were no more seen, but least Flycatchers appeared. Yellow and Magnolia Warbler took possession of a group of conifers at one corner of the pasture. When some trees grew 30 feet high smaller ones were shaded and died, and the forest floor became a carpet of Partridge-berry plants. By then song sparrows had vanished. Ruffed Grouse, Scarlet Tanagers Blue Jays and Black-capped Chickadees took up residence.

Now the big elms have fallen and some of the fifty year old trees have been reduced to stumps or logs. The Grosbeaks have left. Wood Pewees, Nuthatches and Ovenbird Pairs are beginning to arrive. Before many years even Chickadees will give place to Hairy and Downy Woodpeckers.

Thus as the pasture reverts to a forest, a change in bird life becomes necessary. Suitable accommodation must be had for each species. Food, water, cover, nesting sites and singing perches for song birds must be found. When cows cropped the grass there were no old stumps to provide insects for Chickadees' dinners, no bushes where Hermit Thrushes might sit to pour out his wonderful song. Later, there were no grasses for Bobolinks' nests.

RESCUE

Rescues by the latest means of communication, the airplane, are becoming familiar news of this age of discovery and new inventions. How often the news goes forth that there has been a gallant rescue of persons who have been drifting at sea or of others stranded in faroff desolate parts of the country or strayed into the forests or fallen victims to a mishap or to disease, in; say, the Arctic area which to most people is a great unknown but to the airman a challenge to discovery and to man's courage to extend the bounds of knowledge and civilization.

The spirit of rescue or saving lives is a dynamic fact in human life. Rescue has become a familiar fact in a day when man's extension of interest and knowledge has opened up unknown parts of the earth. This means that some will dare to enter these wastes and if need be others will go in planes to try and recover them if they are lost. All through history the yearning for the unknown has spurred many on to the heart and soul of human beings. No more inspiring tales are told than those of rescue of people from places of danger to save the lost child or strayed person.

It is one of the easiest organizations to effect—that of gathering a posse to drum the woods or perhaps take to lakes or seas in quest of persons whose lives may be in jeopardy.

Wherever it be that people need rescuers, there will be found the rescuer, often a person who has been given credit for more than the ordinary courage possessed by human beings, but who, it turns out, is the very spirit of enterprise, and salvaging or rescuing the lost.

Everyday newspapers tell of people who, without thought of self and never realizing danger, assume the greatest risks from fire or other agency of injury or death and immediately become heroes who have displayed resourcefulness and courage that their friends have never dreamed they would display.

Such people keep the balance of human nature. They not only save others but they set an example which influences the lives of others for their good and the good of humanity.

Many books of brave deeds in this modern age can be written for human nature is what it has ever been, brave and ready to risk self against great odds to save the lost.

There was related yesterday the story of the bush pilot who is to set forth to the rescue of eleven British scientists in the Antarctic wastes. Such an aviator as FO. Borden St. Louis is of that heroic mould that is fully prepared for this adventurous venture. He is equipped for the task on which he will set out across the Antarctic Ice.

ABOUT STORM WINDOWS

The storm window (or a substitute thereof) in our climate is a necessary evil in the strictest sense of both words. Beyond that it is an abominable nuisance. It has to be washed and put in place in the fall with toil and stress, taken down in the spring with more toil and stress to be stored somewhere for the summer. In many and many a home and on many a farm storm windows waiting to be washed and hung is a dismal sight. Invariably some do not fit, some glass will be found broken, and the spectacle of the householder carrying a big window up a ladder in a bit of gale arouses no sentiment but that of pity for a storm window. Some have been in the mind of the man who wrote of the accursed perversity of inanimate things.

But today, in this age of mechanical wonders, it's possible to build a house with permanent double windows, sealed into their frames or sliding softly in their grooves, nothing there to take off in the spring and put on in the fall, but the winter breezes kept out. And the fortunate possessor of a house so equipped tells us it's wonderful to come into April and October without that old overbearing consciousness of a dirty job to be done. He says the investor of the permanent double window is a real benefactor of humanity and ought to get a medal, and he is prepared to argue the point in any company.—Ottawa Journal.

A GADGET MAY SAVE THEM

The railways have given a great deal of thought to the frequency of level-crossing accidents, for the safety of their passengers and crews is also involved. Such a disturbing percentage of motorists, it has been found, pay little or no heed to the appeals for safety, that the final hope was felt to lie in some sort of automatic device which would save a careless driver from himself.

Such an appliance has now been created which holds the promise of greatly reducing the number of grade-crossing accidents. It consists of a magnetic eye which can be installed in a motor vehicle for an outlay of from twelve to fifteen dollars. — Hamilton Spectator.

BRIDGE SHAME

I am sorry, but I did
Make a very stupid bid.
Now by this regret I'm troubled:
Vulnerable! Six down! Doubled!

Only one men call a chump
Would have bit it: "Two no trump."
Now a sleepless night I'm facing.
Six down, doubled! What a lacing!

"Never mind," my partner said,
"That is apt to happen... Ed."

I shall lie awake and fret
Over taking such a set.

"True," I answered, "But it shouldn't,
And if I were careful, wouldn't!"

Muttering this because I blundered:
"Six down, doubled! Seventeen hundred!"

Keays Makes Plea Dismissal Case Be Reopened

Ottawa, Dec. 10 —(CP)— J. E. Keays claimed Friday that a Royal Commission which recommended his dismissal as chief of the Ontario Provincial Police was unlawfully constituted and appealed to Justice Minister Garson to reopen his case.

Keays was dismissed from the OPP after the Royal Commission reported there was no foundation for the allegations of fraud, perjury and maladministration of police affairs levelled at the police and Crown officials.

The commission, headed by Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay of the Supreme Court of Ontario, sat for more than five weeks last winter at Belleville, where Keays was stationed in the police force when he made the allegations.

In a lengthy letter to Mr. Garson, the ex-OPP chief contended he said he had not yet been officially informed of his dismissal nor of the commission's report.

He asked Mr. Garson to "move for an inquiry and declare the commission was "unlawfully constituted."

(Certiorari is a writ issued by a higher court ordering a lower court to produce certain documents.)

Members of Mr. Garson's staff said the minister had not received the letter.

The letter said the Provincial Police statutes lay down regulations by which the conduct of officers should be investigated.

It added: "As police reports are issued in a special statute, it is abundantly clear that this tribunal was unlawfully constituted, as substantiated by express statutory enactment under the Public Inquiries Act, and the same token, as the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council has no authority to issue this Royal Commission under the provisions of this statute, the Crown, I submit, is in contempt."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

One of my friends who owns a magnificent and intelligent fox hound allows the dog in the house only at the conclusion of a hunting day. It is a special honor reserved for those occasions. The rest of the time, when the hound comes, sitting there, proud, begging, self-conscious of his glory.

Last night, after a wonderful day spent on three foxes over the first fine snow of December, we were dining, at cold roast beef, baked potatoes with French dressing, and similar humble fare. The hound was getting his share. The master winked at me and reached for a dish which contained several large whole dill pickles. Selecting the largest and juiciest, the master turned and tossed it to the hound.

The poor fellow, seeing this large gift hurtling through the air, caught it with a powerful chop of his jaws. A stunned expression suffused his eyes as he held the sour-salty monstrosity in his mouth. He took an experimental chew. Then, very delicately, he bowed his head and laid the dill pickle on the floor.

My friend howled with laughter.

"That," I submitted, "is a heck of a poor joke!"

"Haw, haw!" hawhawed my friend, reaching out to roughhandle the head of his hound.

"A dog doesn't like to be laughed at," I opined.

"Doesn't he," snorted the lord and master, "a dog's men of our sort don't playing jokes on each other all the time. In what way is the dog inferior to the rest of our friends, that I shouldn't play jokes on him, too?"

The hound, dogpone it, seemed to agree.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE FOLLY OF REDUCTION

In recent years many philosophers and writers on religious subjects have conceived the idea that the way to make Christianity more acceptable is to reduce the tenets of belief to what practically everybody believes anyway.

Of course modern preachers and writers may not the first to do this. Thomas Jefferson re-edited the Four Gospels and threw out all accounts of supernatural occurrences, even the account of the resurrection. In recent generations the attempt has been made to detect what Jesus was a good man. And when that did not particularly impress anyone it declared that what Jesus was a very good man. Those who approved of this thoroughly modern approach seemed to feel that they could just add enough "every" to their statement, they would at last win converts.

The astounding thing is that those branches of the Christian Church which have made the great est demands upon people's faith have been the ones that have grown most rapidly and established their position most securely. The least reflection convinces us that there is a great deal of mystery in religion; in fact if there is no mystery there is no religion.

We never get anywhere by reducing our claims, and certainly not in the field of religion. There is no doubt about the sacred religion that common sense. It takes something more than common sense to save a man from his worst self.

TODAY'S TALK

PRAISE

I wonder how many of us give thought to the comfort and help, moral and spiritual, power that ideal, inspiration? What a long journey a kind word takes. How simple is the effort to give it. What a heartening thing can give so much for so small an expenditure!

Robert Burns wrote a beautiful little poem, which he called "My Butterfly". Some one praised it, and it started the poet over again, and decided he would devote his life to poetry. That a fortunate decision to have made, for today Robert Frost is acclaimed by critics as America's greatest poet, honored as no other poet has been.

It was the praise Meredith early gave to Hardy that encouraged the latter to make literature his life work. I am a modest collector of first editions, without value, but have proved outstanding as thinkers and writers, and quickly they are first efforts went begging—because of a lack of praise. In my collector is penalized by having to pay a bigger price for those books later than for later, and better ones!

You can buy stock and it may begin to rise after twenty-four hours, but when you invest in praise, the rewarding it not, there can be no end to its continual paying of dividends of happiness both to the one who gives and to the one who has received it. There is far more to be gained in this world through praise than anything merely monetary.

And here is a strange fact—those to whom you might think that praise might mean nothing actually crave it more! The biggest a person is, and the most successful, the more keenly does he cherish praise, for he has so much of everything else! So, you see, none of us can ever go wrong in praising anyone.

A famous British editor wrote in one of his books, which I have, that he always went out of his way to praise the efforts of new writers whom he saw showed promise. Would that there might be more such editors, for if there were, we would have more and better writers. Invest in a little praise each day and note how rich it makes you feel!

Reeve Expresses Regret on Leaving County Council

Reeve John Bell, Marmora and Lake township, who is retiring from municipal life, today expressed his regrets at the severance of many years of association with fellow members of Hastings County Council.

Reeve Bell, well-known farmer in his district, was a popular member of the county body. He acted on many committees, and was chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee.

Reeve For 13 Years

Fifteen years ago he was elected a member of his township council. Two years later he was elected reeve, and has held that position for the last 13 years.

He is being succeeded by Mr. Irwin McCoy, a veteran councillor, who has been associated with municipal life for the past 18 years.

CANCER OF THE ESOPHAGUS

The esophagus is the tube which leads from the throat to the stomach. When food is swallowed it does not drop into the stomach, but rather is propelled into the stomach by contractions of the muscular coat of the esophagus. Constriction or narrowing of the esophagus results in increased effort by its muscular coat to overcome the obstruction, it is usually forced upward into the throat and mouth.

Difficulty in immediately "disposing" of swallowed food is one of the early symptoms of constriction of the esophagus. One of the most common causes of construction of the esophagus is the swallowing of lye or other caustic chemical, which burns the lining and results in the formation of dense scar tissue and obstructing mass of scar tissue.

Cancer of the esophagus is not rare. It manifests itself early in its course by causing partial obstruction. Persistence of this symptom should lead any intelligent person to seek competent medical advice at once.

Modern surgery, which has kept abreast of other branches of medicine, is now capable of curing this disease. The point at which cancer of the esophagus is determined not by how large or how small the cancer has been to the eye, but rather, by its complete confinement to the esophagus without invasion of other tissue. Ninety per cent or remote areas. Inasmuch as it is not possible to tell when a cancer may be confined to one locality without "spreading" to the other areas, it follows that early consideration is essential to cure.

A surgical procedure has been devised and perfected which enables the surgeon to so life expectancy with other operations for cancer elsewhere. In the operation for cancer of the esophagus, the surgeon opens the chest, removes the cancerous area of the tube or esophagus, and sews the two ends together. If the cancer has not broken through the wall of the esophagus and has not spread to other areas, success can be expected.

Due to shortening of the esophagus by this procedure, it is necessary to connect the stomach up into the chest through the diaphragm. This duplicates the "upside down stomach," the correct term for which is "diaphragmatic or hiatus hernia."

It is remarkable how well a fairly satisfactory diet can be arranged after this procedure. The transposition of the stomach creates far less disturbance than might be thought necessary. The period of hospitalization is not long prolonged and the patient may soon resume his ordinary routine.

Cancer must be attacked early in any location if cure is to be expected.

I must hasten to assure any reader that difficulty in swallowing may be due to other causes than cancer, and that no one should assume that if some transient difficulty in this respect develops, it is necessarily cancer. On the other hand, the person who is faced with the fact should be able to regard the future with confidence if he seeks attention early. The diagnosis of cancer of the esophagus is not, ordinarily, very difficult. X-ray examination is a requisite and occasionally it might be necessary to remove a small bit of tissue through a tube inserted into the esophagus. This, even, when necessary, is a minor procedure.

The victim of cancer today is in a far different position than one was even ten years ago. But until let us hope that measures to seeking attention for any disorder suspected of being cancerous.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Painful Stiff Shoulder

Fifty-eight years old, painful stiff shoulder for past two years. Ben Told I'll have to have it operated. (Mrs. N. A.)

Answer—Incision and drainage is usually necessary when shoulder bursitis has lasted long; the operation would include "scraping" or other procedure to remove calcification. It is well worth while, for the relief it brings.

Stuttering

I am 30 and I stutter badly. It began two years ago when I tried to answer the telephone while I was working and found I just couldn't talk...never been it is not inherited. (Miss M. Gallup. (N. F. C.)

Answer—I refer you to consult a psychiatrist—your family physician will recommend a good one. Write enclosing stamped addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet on Stuttering.

Tea is Diuretic

Did you ever hear...seems that if I use very much tea my kidneys hurt. Does tea cause a kidney pills but don't know... (J. W. F.)

Answer—Coffee is diuretic (increases kidney function), cocoa or chocolate still more so. Tea is the most diuretic nevertheless! Two or three cups of tea would not be about the same disturbing effect on the kidneys as one cup of coffee or one-half cup of chocolate.

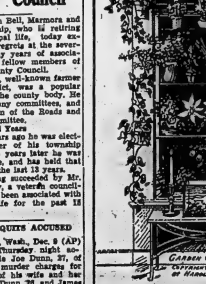
SIX HOSPITAL UNITS ARE EQUIPPED

St. Catharines, Dec. 9 (CP) by The Canadian Red Cross Society. St. Catharines and surrounding Lincoln county was praised Thursday night by an official of the Canadian Cancer Society. Dr. H. E. Bunbaum of Toronto, vice-president of the society's Ontario division, said that a branch of the society set up here two years ago has raised $30,000 and equipped six hospital units. He spoke of a testimonial dinner for E. S. Welch, who recently retired as head of the Lincoln county branch and now is Ontario division president.

WINTER WINDOW GARDENS

Reflect the Holiday Season with A Display of Glowing Beauty

In a previous article the procedure to construct a window garden was described. This illustration indicates the form it can assume by Christmas.



The wood enclosure painted in a light color, silhouettes the trailing ivy and Philodendron which are growing to form a green tracery of foliage. These, with little care, grow luxuriantly. Increase the pots every second day in a pail of water till the soil is evenly moist. Each week a Fertab tablet or Pokon can be divided in the water and will quickly feed the plants. Follow manufacturer's directions.

Plants that will best adapt themselves for window garden culture are Poinsettia, cyclamen, primula, Jerusalem cherry, pardenas and lesser plants. These can be kept in comfy growth and flower by removing seed pods and pinching flowers. It is important that these plants do not receive too much sun.

Keep plants out of draft. Excessive heat will destroy the buds and a temperature never sixty than seventy degrees will produce the best blooms.

Valentine's Day and Easter can be accounted in the home by a lovely display in the window garden. This will be described in a subsequent article.

GOVT. ACTION

The government ordered De Bernonville's deportation, but he had the order quashed through Habeas Corpus proceedings. A new board of inquiry was established and the case will be reconsidered as soon as counsel is ready to proceed.

Mr. Gibson said he would not admit that the Frenchmen were convicted of crimes. They were tried in absentia and had no chance to defend themselves.

Not Proven Guilty

"Although indictments may have been rendered against them, that does not prove that those men were guilty of crime or of the charges which had been laid against them."

The debate occurred during discussion of estimates of the resources department, one of several departments tackled during the day as members moved slowly toward prorogation. There still are estimates in nine half-dozen departments to be passed before members can get home for Christmas.

Many members already have left and at times there were fewer than 50 members in the 262-seat chamber. Some members believe a late Saturday prorogation is possible. Others think the session may go into next week.

In the debate on the collaboration, Mr. Stewart said that seven Jews who had entered Canada under false passports after the war had been deported.

He asked what "circumstances prompted the government to permit these men to enter here, knowing they had deported seven Jewish people for exactly the same reason."

Question Asked

"What was the distinction between the seven Jews and these collaborators?"

Mr. Stewart asked how the Frenchmen could be screened since they had entered the country under false names and false passports.

Mr. Gibson replied:

"The fact that a person had a false passport does not conclusively prove that he is not a desirable person to enter this country. For example, we have had people escape from other countries and come here and landed without any passport at all.

"They have had to be examined and screened to find out what their background was. If they were approved, they were allowed to stay. If they were not approved they were, of course, deported."

Mr. Gibson said the government went over its confidential files and decided that it would be justified in admitting certain ones and not admitting the others.

Mr. Gardiner said if the Canadian government made any mistakes in the matter he hoped "we made them on the side of mercy."

DREW DEMANDS

Mr. Drew and other oppcaition members said it would probably not have come up again this session if Mr. Garson hadn't made his statement rising on a question of privilege when his departmental estimates were called for discussion.

Deadline Key

Mr. Garson said he had recently been told of Mr. McGregor that if a printed report of a combines probe is to be published it is "mechanically impossible" to comply with the provision in the Combines Law which says it shall be made public within 15 days after it is handed to the Minister of Justice.

That deadline is the key of the controversy. The flour report was turned in Dec. 23, 1948, and made public last month.

The minister said Mr. McGregor had come to him recently to see if it would be all right to mimeograph 100 copies of a new report on price-fixing because it wouldn't be possible to comply with the 15-day deadline if they had to be printed. When the minister questioned him, Mr. McGregor had informed him that it had always been found in the past that the law could not be met if copies of the report had to be printed.

Mr. Garson said he would not deny that he should have made the point before "but this is just another example of the position in which I have found myself from beginning to end in this matter." A new minister, unfamiliar with the department or the background of the report and an accumulation of six weeks' work on his desk, he had first seen the report when the deadline was 10 days away.

Mr. Drew called the explanation "extraordinary" and "peculiar" and said it was steamlining less unless Mr. McGregor had said 10 to 12 months were necessary for publication of reports. The necessity to mimeograph imposed no limitation.

Minister Causes Delay

The delay had been caused by opposition of Trade Minister Howe to the report and to general government disagreement over it, Mr. Drew said.

Both Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Garson advanced the theory that once that 15 day deadline passed the law was no longer operative. There was no provision in the law that it should be tabled as soon as possible after that date. After 15 days it became not a matter of breaking the low but of propriety, of what "properly should be done.

Mr. MacDonnell and Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) took the view that, as the latter said, "the inference is that if they have broken the law by now it does not matter if they continue to break it by 10 months or 10 years . . . surely the plain intention of the law cannot be stretched that way."

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) called Mr. Gerson Canada's No. 1 lawbreaker and unloosed the choicest sentence of all in charging that "what we have witnessed in the last and most trivial of all excuses, this grasping at straws on the part of the Minister of Justice, has been an incredible, inept and desperate attempt to palliate, in a belated and blundering brainstorm, a deliberate and calculating breach of the law."

HEALTH MINISTER

Wants Ceiling Lifted

"It seems to me," he said, "that what we are getting now is the use of that phrase 'contributory plan' as an excuse for doing nothing."

Mr. Mowrer and Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra), urged lifting of the ceiling on old-age income a pensioner may earn before having his pension reduced.

Mr. Martin said 75 per cent of the pensioners receive the full benefit of the $10-a-month increase in pensions provided for under the last session. Only 25 per cent received no benefit.

Pensions of up to $40 a month now are paid to needy persons of 70 years and over.

During discussion of pensions, Mr. Martin indicated that family allowances are being paid 4,000,000 children. Since family allowances began in 1945 $1,100,000,000 had been paid out.

Health insurance was discussed at length and Mr. Martin outlined the position when he said:

To Give Support

"The federal government stands ready when satisfactory understandings are reached for co-operation with the provinces to give financial support to provincial health programs."

He indicated that a health-insurance program would thus be supported financially by the federal government and administered by the individual provinces.

The Commons ranged over the whole field of health during consideration of departmental estimates.

Mr. Martin told Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) that the incidence of venereal disease is continuing downward in Canada. Chief reason was increased use of penicillin for treatment.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, supported the idea of a "complete-ly-socialized health and medical plan."

Mr. Fleming said he wanted to see a sound system of health insurance but he was opposed to "anything savoring state medicine."

In reply to questions asked by D. S. Harkness (PC-Calgary East) and F. D. Shaw (S.C.-Red Deer), Mr. Martin said the tuberculosis problem among Indians is being attacked from the nutritional standpoint as well as treatment.

Under the general plan, hospital construction for T.B. was continuing and X-ray plan for Indians was being speeded up.

ELECTION RETURNS

Compulsory Voting

At dissolution Labor held 43 seats in the Lower House, Liberal 17, Country Party 12, Independent Labor 2, Independent 1. Federal elections are held every three years.

Voting in Australia is compulsory and those who neglect to do so may be punished by fine. It is not a simple matter of putting a cross beside the name of a chosen candidate, instead the voter uses a "preferential" system.

This requires him to mark his ballot according to his preference for the candidates—1, 2, 3 and so on. If none has a clear majority, the least popular candidate is discarded, and the second preference votes on his ballot are added to the totals of the candidates concerned.

Voting for the Senate is based on a complicated system of proportional representation, and it may take four weeks or counting to establish the final result.

Elected For Six Years

Senators are elected for six-year terms, though some of those elected today will only serve three years. Each state voted for seven Senators although in future elections five places will be at stake.

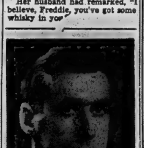
Menzies main attack on the Chifley regime was that Labor planned the complete socialization of Australia, and he evidenced the government's recent unsuccessful attempt to nationalize the banking system.

Labor replied that although its over-all policy was pledged to socialization, it planned to take over only "key" industries and undertakings which operated against the public interest.

Woodsman Faces Murder Charge In Man's Death



Liverpool, N.S., Dec. 9 — (CP) —Fred James Cunningham, 45, burly, bearded woodsman from Milton near this Nova Scotia south shore town today faced a charge of murder in connection with the death Tuesday night of Charles Martin, 71.

Cunningham told a coroner's jury Thursday night he had been "chasing after" 40-year-old Mrs. Martin "a little". He said Martin had accused him of "fooling around with Sweetlips."

The charge of murder was laid shortly after the jury declared the five-foot-tall, 100-pound Martin had died as result of a blow behind the ear from a rock.

Mrs. Martin, a heavy-set woman with long, unruly hair, testified at the inquest that Cunningham had come to the Martin home shortly after supper Tuesday night.

Her husband had remarked, "I believe, Freddie, you've got some whisky in you"

WEDDINGS

GRAY—SANDERS

Marmora.— A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in the parsonage of the Pentecostal Church, Marmora, on Dec. 1, when Muriel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sanders was united in marriage to Ralph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garne Gray, both of Marmora. The Rev. O. MacPherson officiated.

The bride was dressed in pink sheer, with black accessories, and attended by Mrs. Lillie Lucas, sister of the groom, who wore a cerise taffeta dress with black accessories. Each wore a corsage of pink roses.

John Gray, brother of the groom was best man. At the signing of the register, Mrs. O. MacPherson sang "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go", followed by the reading of a poem "A Wedding Prayer".

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where to kiss me," one girl told Mrs. Blair.

Pack 3 Brownies

Tuesday was certainly a big day not only for Joan, but for the entire pack, because this was enrollment day. Commissioner Mrs. J. Watson officiated at the enrollment ceremony, which proved interesting to the Brownies and to a number of parents who were in attendance. Six Tweenies in all were enrolled, and these were: Lynn Fuzzen, Joan Colwell, Jean Purdock, Faye Kalman, Beth Clarke, and Betsy McLaughlin. Two proficiency badges were also awarded to Linda Kent and Beverley Samuels. Commissioner in a short address, pointed out and stressed the importance of the Brownie Promise, the Law and the Motto. She followed up her address by reading a story to the Brownies entitled "The Fir-Tree". This story evolved around Christmas and was very appropriate for the time of year. All in all the entire meeting proved to be an impressive one.

The meeting next Tuesday will have a double purpose, it will be the annual Christmas party, and the closing meeting for the year 1949.

Got Childhood Wish Woman Verger is 81

Hampton, Middlesex, England, (CP)—When Kate Poynter was a little girl she was a tomboy.

She knew, when she grew up, that she wanted to do a man's job and her ambition was to become a verger in a church.

She waited a long time to realize her ambition but when she was 56 the churchwarden of the All Saints Church asked her to become the verger.

"Certainly," she replied. "It's the job I've always wanted."

That was 25 years ago. At 81 she is still going strong and is a well-known figure at weddings and church functions.

"I believe in being active," she said. "If I continue working as hard as I do now I'll live to be 100."

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Today is the day of the people's club — the community recreational project where everybody may play, where everybody may benefit from association with others in a program that makes and keeps life worth living . . . Right across Canada, people are looking at their own communities with new eyes. They see that most neighborhoods have lost their pioneer vigor, their purpose, their unity. The community spirit, the neighborliness have decayed. People are listless. They yawn. They have nothing to talk about, nothing to read, or to putter with. They keep to themselves . . .

But community centres are changing all that. Many are being developed as living war memorials. Thousands of towns and cities are coming alive with help, encouragement and guidance of the national Division of Physical Fitness, the provincial and municipal governments, besides the interests of their own citizens.

At a model community centre, there is recreation for people of all ages, all the time. It is from these healthy, friendly surroundings that Canadians can constantly draw a new lease on life and fit themselves mentally, socially and physically to meet the day ahead—smiling.

Often, people have no interest beyond their duty at their day to day tasks. It is not because they have no time for recreation and fun, but because they don't know How to play, or What to be interested in. The Community Centre opens doors to thousands searching for that contentment, found when all the people play.

People are not robots. They have brains and feelings. They have hopes, dreams, ambitions—talents. A of old, man cannot live by bread alone.

People who know the joy of creating a fine painting, the thrill of producing beautiful orchestral music from talent at hand, the satisfaction of turning out a good basketball team—these people need not resort to artificial stimulants their relaxation. They are healthy, happy people wishing there were more hours in a day, more days in the week.

The wealthy have always had their private recreation resorts, their art lessons, their stamp collections, their music. They have belonged to private clubs, open only to those whose income is large enough to pay the dues.

Calling all cacti fans . . .

If you have a big old fashioned soup dish or fruit bowl that's taking up cupboard space, get it out, fill it to the right level for the time of your life planting the bowl with five or six fascinating different species of cacti.

We've just finished planting a miniature garden in a cacti in a pink soup bowl for the livingroom window. It's a conversation piece already. Now, if we can just get hold of an old soup ladle, paint it another kind of cactus and let it hang down over the soup dish . . . Soup-stunning.

There always talk about increasing the radio licence fee. It is certainly consoling to know that that impending increase has put a tax on cigarette lighters in Turkey. Here in Canada, a tax is required to buy a government lighter licence annually. The government monopoly has a monopoly on matches, they tell us.

Pretty Teeth; Lovely Smile

Teeth need thorough brushing at least twice a day if they are to stay white and sparkling. For good results, use a double-row, six-tufted brush.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Next to the eyes, the mouth is regarded as the most beautiful and expressive feature we possess. Essential to loveliness are healthy gums, sparkling white teeth, exquisitely curved lips.

Physical culture is dependent upon sound biters, and we all realize what beautiful mouth pearls mean aesthetically. Everything possible should be done to preserve them. No money should be spared when professional treatment is necessary and the very best service should be sought.

Eating Hard Foods

Our teeth were given us to use; they are not just ornamental. Exercise them and keep your gums toned by eating hard foods, bread crusts, raw vegetables like turnips, cabbage hearts, carrots. Don't scrch meal. The bed time grooming is particularly important.

Use a small-sized or medium-sized brush with bristles set in groups. Sweep away from the gums, never toward them as it is possible to cause an abrasion that may invite infection. As you brush toward the biting ends of the teeth, use a rolling and shimmying movement.

Har for Margaret Has Blue Ribbon, Pink Rose Petals

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—A small, headspinning Dutch bonnet made entirely of flowers was presented to Princess Margaret when she attended a flower show in a London hotel.

Made of hundreds of "dressed" rose petals of pale pink, it is tied with French powder-blue ribbons and has side clips of ribbons topped by an open rose.

To adjust the millinery, the princess wore a black velvet coat with "a black felt fez turned up in front with velvet and piped with white, with a cascade of ermine tails falling over the front," as described by Aage Thaarup, the royal milliner.

The princess appeared impressed by the variety and beauty of the styles and by the loveliest hat show London has seen since pre-war days.

One 1950 model brought fame to "Piccadilly Polly", the best-known of the flower girls who work in Piccadilly Circus. Polly's tention to the back.

summer "tilter" was reproduced as the Eros Bonnet—a dark blue straw with pink roses tucked into a double brim.

Polly Wasn't There

While the princess admired the bonnet's cheeky tailored gaiety, Polly was unaware of the fuss at the hat show. He had gone home when reporters hurried to Piccadilly.

Bonnets, cloches and sailors hold their own, with new attractive twists to crown and brim. The wide-brimmed Gainsborough is back in full force, with a lemon-sour straw with velvet-draped brim. A huge bouquet of flowers is tucked under the brim.

High crowns and back interest are also prominent features. The back-interest is created by big stiff bows topped by flowers or fruit or by soft drapes of net or chiffon.

The highest crown is a horn-shaped coarse yellow straw. Most high-crowned bodnets have Flemish-Dutch influence and are shaped with anything from gold shells to natural straw coming.

A Quaker bonnet with crown interest has a delicate peacock's tail of soft feathery drawing at-

Bankers See Fraud In Women's Smiles

Johannesburg, (CP)—The word is going about in South African banks: "Beware of a woman's smile".

The warning is being given because of a recent increase in cheque frauds. Commercial firms as well are suffering because they have refused worthless cheques for their customers.

A senior banking official said women figure prominently in this type of fraud.

They choose a long lineup, he said, and take advantage of the teller's impatience and low resistance to feminine charm. The psychological effect of a woman on some tellers was amazing.

While tellers would demand verification of the smallest cheque presented by a strange man, many paid out without hesitation on the sole basis of a woman's smile.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

It takes a lot of patience but you can make a silk purse out of a sow's ear if you're determined.

The Cambridge, Mass., chemist who performed this feat in the 420's procured the glue from 100 sows' ears. Then from the glue he manufactured artificial silk, and from the silk he fashioned a purse.

It only proves what every good cook knows, namely, that the lowliest vegetable can be converted into a masterpiece with proper study and patience.

Chipped dried beef isn't the cheapest of meats. But its salty, bone-like flavor and nutty taste are perfect for cold weather dining.

Chipped beef in glass jars can be kept on your pantry shelf almost indefinitely. If you can buy it freshly sliced at your butcher's or grocer's, it's all the better. Far emergency dinners it's perfect. Although it may be preserved united in bitter ala salty flavor goes best with a creamy sauce.

Creamed Chipped Beef and Swiss Cheese, Serves 4.

Separate slices of 1-4 pound dried beef. Break into small pieces about 2 inches square. Place in a saucepan with cold water. Bring water to a boil slowly and simmer 5 minutes. Discard water.

Melt 3 tablespoons shortening in a saucepan. Add chipped beef and cook and simmer slowly 5 minutes or until beef begins to brown. Add 3 tablespoons flour, mix well and remove from fire. Gradually add 2 cups hot milk. Cook slowly until sauce thickens. Place mixture in top part of double boiler. Add 1-3 cup Swiss cheese cut into 1-2 inch cubes, except for regular Swiss cheese may be used. Keep over fire until cheese melts.

Add 1-2 teaspoon dried mustard, 1-2 teaspoon salt or more to taste and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Keep in double boiler until ready to serve.

Serve on crisp toast cut diagonally, on waffles, or as a filling for patty shells.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Pouches Under The Eyes

Little hammocks under the eyes are the pet peeve of some women. It is not surprising that they do not regard this defect lightly. It makes them look older and sometimes it gives one a disturbed appearance. Then, too, officious relatives and friends are inclined to hint that maybe they are caused by kidney trouble and shouldn't the poor dear see a doctor. Of course poor dear has, and the doctor has told her to get more rest and exercise and not forget the matter; some natty old ancestor has just handed the hammocks down to her as an inheritance.

That state of affairs is probably true if the pouches are a permanent fixture, in which even not much can be done about them. But if they come and go, that is a different matter. One must seek the cause.

Digestive disturbances may be the cause or swollen tissues. The victim of this annoying blemish should plan a simple, easily digested food, just to ease, and see if conditions improve. She should drink plenty of fruit juices and at least three glasses of water a day. She needs the protein, carbohydrates and fat in proper proportions. Beauty specialists realize these days that many good-looks sorrows are due to some diet deficiency.

The restless sleeper may awaken in the morning to find that her eyes are swollen. Nature has not been able to recharge her energy batteries and she is still fatigued from the activities of the previous day. She may be at her best hour after lunch for a nap, the pouches may disappear.

Fresh air and exercise are—or should be—a part of every well-planned good-looks program; they are especially necessary to the lady who leads a sedentary life today, as sluggish circulation may be a factor in the case.

Local treatment is helpful. If you are among the afflicted and have a day to rest for the evening and those little hammocks look especially bad, wash your face with warm water and a bland soap and rinse well. Dip a linen washcloth in water as hot as the flesh can bear, apply to your eyes, holding the cloth close. Repeat half a dozen times. Moist heat will cause the tissues to shrivel. Haven't you noticed that your fingers get shrivel after long contact with hot water?

Apply ice-cold compresses for something, using a dozen held close to the skin. Dry and anoint with a massage cream, paying the first finger on the eyelid close to the nose, sweeping out to the temple, doing several circles there, coming back under the eye to starting point.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Fiance Borrows Money From Her — She's Losing Faith

Dear Mrs. Fairfax:

About a year ago I met a fellow who was my first real boy friend since I have been out of school. Today we are engaged to be married, but there is a doubt in my mind as to whether I should marry him or not.

My family and closest friends are all firmly against our marriage because of his inability to get and hold down a good paying steady job. I watch the want adds every day in the local paper for something I think he could do, but no matter what I suggest, he will do nothing because he says that he is content to do what he is doing. Right now, as a stenographer, I am making twice as much as he is, and I am always loaning him money, since he hardly makes enough to support himself, I am doing this against my mother's wishes because I have all I can do to support myself and help my family. I love this boy deeply, and sometimes think I will marry him in spite of everything. Although it seems to me if he really loved me and wanted to get married, he would do everything to try and get a good job so he could support me.

Do you think I should risk marrying a man who shows so little promise of being able to give me a good home and security?

B. F.

Dear B.F.

I certainly agree with you that any man who was really in love with a girl would be anxious to do everything he possibly could to get ready to provide for her and make her happy. I strongly doubt if one who seems so completely without ambition of any sort, as this young man seems to be, would make very good a satisfactory husband.

Moreover, the fact that he is willing to let you loan him money all the time, is very bad sign. If you married him, I would think it was very likely that he would be dependent on you to support him before very long, certainly to supplement his own earning.

I think you'd better tell this man that unless he shows a decided change in his ideas, you can do without him as a husband.

Her Mother Doesn't Think This Joke Funny

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and recently got a diamond and a hope chest from my boy friend. He bought me a pair of baby's booties to put in the hope chest.

My mother disapproves of this and refuses to be reasonable about it. My friends all received booties for their hope chests as a joke.

Will you please give me your opinion about this.

A. U. R.

Dear A. U. R.:

It doesn't strike me as a very hilarious joke for a young man to give his fiancee a pair of baby booties for her chest, but at the same time I can't see why it should bother your mother so much. It is quite often the case, you and your friends are quite accustomed to this kind of joke and don't take it amiss, then I don't think it is anyone else's business. I can see why your mother might not consider such a thing in the best of taste, but that is the worst I could say about it.

Last Minute Date? Look Your Best in Double-Quick Time

By HELEN FOLLETT

There is a clang on the telephone. The New Number is calling. If it is all right with Miss Lovely, he would like to take her places. Maybe a little dancing. What about it? Miss Lovely says that's just dandy. In half an hour she will be ready for a good time. She can arrange her cropped locks in a hurry, get into her pretty duds, but let us hope that she will take plenty of time to make herself a new face. Hurried make-up will put her out of beauty form.

There is no need of using soap and water; anyway, it is likely to leave the skin surface moist so powder will not go on smoothly. She should use a cleansing oil or a cream of light consistency, spreading it on briskly to bring coloring to the cheeks. A heavy massage cream is not suitable for this treatment. She should include the neck and the ear lobes.

Firelgel of Cotton

Miss L will remove the cream with tissues, then apply a skin tonic or astringent. The best means of application is to use a pledget of cotton, after which the flesh should be tapped briskly, working upward from the collar bones. There will be a fresh look to the flesh. She is now ready for the cosmetic trimmings.

Powder is fluffed lightly, the surplus removed with a powder brush.

She places rouge high on her cheeks, sweeping the pad over her eyelids unless she is about to use shadows. She covers shadows if she starts the application at the inner terminal of the eyelid, continues outward, stops at the far end of the eyebrow. She blends carefully so the pigment is dark close to the lashes.

With the lipstick she is canny because, if it is not a neat, razor edge application, the effect of synthetic beauty is lost. Following present day rules of make-up she will select a natural coloring.

The final touch is a bit of perfume behind the ears, in the bend of the elbows and on the hem of her frock. All set, ready to go!

Hemline Height? Unlucky Old 13

Winnipeg, (CP) — Women's skirts are showing a little more calf, it appears, but are continuing to keep the feminine knee a mystery this season.

That's the word from department store buyers, who advise that skirts are "definitely getting shorter." But they add that "perfectly good—but too short" suits will have to stay in the closet.

One buyer told of attending fall and winter fashion showings in New York and deciding on her return, "to shorten one dress an inch and a half."

But to pin the question down as closely as is femininely possible, the buyer of another store said dresses would only be slightly shorter "maybe 13 inches from the floor, rather than the 12 they have been."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Wedding should follow traditions of bride's family

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please help me. I am unmarried, in my mid-forties, and am guardian for my niece—my sister's child—who is to be married next Spring. I am in a quandary because she is marrying into a family whose customs regarding weddings are different from those I have always held with. We are happy about the whole affair and want to do nothing to conflict with her fiance's family, who are of a different nationality from ours. In our family the bride's family always makes the arrangements for the wedding and reception, and always bears all the expenses. It is the custom of his family to have extremely large weddings—200 or 300 guests—the bride's family bearing the expenses of the "plates" or dinners, and the groom's family bearing the expense of the hall, music, liquors and so forth.

According to custom the invitations are sent out in the name of both parents, like this:

Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and
Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith request the pleasure of your presence at the marriage of their children
Mary and Louis

Under the circumstances, with both families bearing the expenses of the reception, I can understand this plan. But it has always been our custom for the bride's family to have the receptions. What can I do in this case?

My brother-in-law, father of the prospective bride, is living with us also, and although an invalid, he is the head of the household and I will have to bear the expenses.

Our immediate family is small — only about 20 . . . while his family numbers close to 100. I can financially handle the expense of a reception for this number of relatives, but I cannot possibly handle the sort of wedding that his brother is having this month for over 350 guests. I haven't spoken with his mother yet, thinking it wiser to wait until this brother's wedding is over before going into the details of our affair.

What is my best choice . . . to have a simple reception, possibly 80 or 85 guests, or string along with his family in their usual custom?—A Perplexed Auntt-Guardian.

What a fine and gallant soul you are, dear lady . . . and what a wonderful guardian, guardian angel I should say, you must have been to your niece, as well as, apparently, to her invalid father, valiantly keeping your sister's little family together and safe.

I think that now, as the crowning glory of your splendid achievement, you should naturally have the privilege of planning your niece's wedding in accordance with the traditions and customs of your family and home. This course will, I am sure, be for the greatest happiness of all concerned, and surely you, who are paying for the wedding, should have first consideration. You should gently but firmly abide by your plan to have a small informal wedding and reception, inviting only the relatives on both sides, and explaining your wish and traditional preference, the wherefores, your responsibility, her father's circumstance, and so forth. Then have a heart-to-heart talk with her fiance's mother, explaining your wish to abide by the traditions of your family, your wish to have the small, informal reception that you, the hostess, are able to pay for. There is something so right about rightness stated gently and firm that I am sure her mother-heart will be touched, that she will understand and honor your wish, and will graciously co-operate.

Suede Sandal With Platform

By FRUNELLA WOOD

A new party season is just ahead, with early twilight to promote more hours of formal dress.

For the testime or evening date, such shoes as the suede sandal, above, are patter-musts, and we, ourselves, will settle in this very model.

The very low platform sole is both extra pretty and extra comfortable; the twisted design of the sandal thongs sure flattery; the anklet strap as pretty for your ankle as a bracelet is for your wrist.

Women's Whims Force Trappers to Alter Plans

Regina, (CP—Saskatchewan's trappers have to change their production plans as often as women change their minds.

When milady decides she doesn't want to wear fox fur, she means it. And when she calls for mink and muskrat, the trappers jump to it.

That's the word this year: fox fur is almost valueless, but wild mink and muskrat are in heavy demand.

Mink prices will likely be up, with muskrats bring close to last year's $1.27 a pelt. There will probably be plenty of animals taken off the trap lines, and it looks like a good year for the province's 15,000 trappers.

The bright spot in fur production this year will be the beaver take, which should show an increase of 50 per cent over last season, says A. J. Cook, manager of the Saskatchewan Fur Marketing Service here.

He credits sound conservation methods for the expected boost. Thousands of beaver have been "transplanted" from producing areas to lakes and swamps in which none had lived for several years.

Producers already have their eyes on the general fur sale of the fur marketing service, to be held Dec. 19. Ranch mink and wild mink will be in the spotlight, and fancy prices are expected from buyers.

Mink will be the feature at the January sale, too. But from then on it will be muskrat and beaver all the way. A special muskrat sale in June will cap the spring rush. All other sales by the marketing service will be general auctions.

Vagaries of the retail market have knocked the muskrat coat from first spot in popularity. But Canadian women still like this fur. Consumer resistance to high prices was the cause of skidding American muskrat prices last year.

Ranch and wild fox production in Saskatchewan is expected to continue at a low level, as it has done for two years. After long-haired furs went out of style in 1946, ranchers and trappers found prices below the cost of production.

Fox fur producers can take heart, however, from the whims of some New York designers who are trying to convince women that silver fox is really quite attractive. Fox ranchers who have been struggling to maintain their stock soon may see a boom in their specialty.

Marketing service officials cannot say in advance what prices will be like in furriers' shops. There are too many factors in the retail picture to enable price predictions to be made.

Meanwhile trappers are oiling their traps and pinching moccasin shoes as their working season approaches. They expect to be able to look back on a successful season when the last fur sale is held next summer.

Mothers Won't Dally In Aussie Hospital

Sydney Australia, (CP)—Australia is so short of maternity hospitals that its best known one, Crown Street Women's Hospital in Sydney, is starting a plan in which mothers and their babies will return home two days after the child is born.

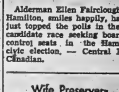
Crown Street now handles nearly 6,000 confinements a year, but even then has to refuse another 2,000 cases admission. The new short-term plan is expected to allow the hospital to receive another 1,000 cases a year.

Doctors emphasize that the new policy has nothing to do with recent arguments about early post-operation ambulation—in other words, getting out of bed sooner after an operation.

Any mother sent home after two days will go in an ambulance and will be visited every day for at least a week after that by a doctor and a nurse. In addition, the hospital must get a guarantee that the mother will have a constant companion for ten to twelve days after her return home and that there will be no overcrowding the home.

And any mother who wants to stay longer in hospital will be allowed to. Already though, several future patients have told the hospital that they approve of the idea.

Nearly all Australian babies are born in maternity hospitals, and Australian doctors have long campaigned not only for more hospitals but for more convalescent homes so that mothers need not return to their household tasks for several weeks after their confinement. But with housing and hospital programs badly lagging, such convalescent homes are a dream of the future.



Prof. Bryan T. Mayes, obstetrics chief at Sydney University, says the proposal must be considered an expedient and not in line with modern principles for the management of motherhood.

TWEED

Village Council Sets Licences Under By-law

Tweed (Special)—At a recent meeting of Tweed municipal council, the by-law governing pool tables and bowling alley licences was re-drafted, and henceforth, pool table licences will be at the rate of $15.00 for the first table and $10.00 for each additional table. Bowling alleys will be $25.00 for the first two alleys and $5.00 for each additional alley. The licence will date from January 1st and all pool rooms and bowling alleys must close at 11.30 p.m.

Harry Coulter, Deputy Reeve, of Hungerford, and Jay Larkin, road superintendent discussed with the council, the matter of the township receiving the heavy rock from the waterworks construction and agreed that they would replace same, with earth "fill" next spring. It was agreed that the return of the "fill" would be on a day-to-day basis and would be delivered as the Tweed council requested it. The by-law affecting plumbers was revised and non-resident plumbers must now obtain a licence to cost $25.00 before they can start any job within the village of Tweed.

Discuss Provisions

A discussion took place in respect to hawkers and pedlars by-law and Mr. B. R. Collins, solicitor, discussed the provisions with the council. Mr. Collins was advised to prepare a new by-law and the amount of licences to be charged, to start with $200 as a maximum, and to be scaled down according to the type of business. The amount of the licence to be charged in all cases, and granting of any licence, will be entirely at the discretion of the council. Mr. Charles Cassidy addressed the council and asked that he be given some consideration in respect to ambulance calls, particularly those where it is necessary for the village constable to call an ambulance in the case of accidents and sudden illness. Mr. Cassidy said he felt that some discrimination was shown in this respect.

The matter of the Dominion Government being requested to pay municipal taxes on the federal property in the village was discussed. The assessment on the property (originally intended for a new post office) does not equal the 4 per cent used for providing municipal taxes under the new legislation. The clerk was advised to write to the federal member, Frank Fowler, drawing to his attention, the fact that since the postal department was receiving rent from the property, the council feel that they should receive municipal taxes for the municipal services rendered.

Tenders Presented

Mr. Proctor, engineer on Tweed's sewage and water extensions, discussed with the council certain points in connection with the program which were cleared up to general satisfaction. He presented to the council, the tenders that had been received from the Port Hope Construction Company for the construction on certain streets, not in the original program, which included Pringle, Isaac, Metcalfe, Bridge and St. Joseph's streets, totalling $12,755.00. As the amounts for the various street extensions were in line with the work under the original contract, the tender of Mr. Simone was accepted.

Buys New Ambulance

Max W. Bush has purchased a fine new 1950 Ford ambulance which will be placed in service shortly. The new vehicle is up-to-date in every respect and is completely equipped with sufficient room for two passengers and one helper. The new ambulance was purchased from Bob Wood, Motor Sales, local Ford and Monarch dealer.

Alex Waddell, bookkeeper at E. W. Jones' garage, is in Belleville General Hospital after sustaining a fractured hip, suffered when he slipped while getting out of bed in his room at Hotel Tweedsmuir last Sunday morning. Mr. Waddell slipped on a mat near the bed and fell heavily to the floor. Unable to attract the attention of other roomers in the corridors, he turned the radio to its full volume and "Tobey" Courneya who went to investigate, found him helpless on the floor. He will be a patient in hospital for some time.

Senator William A. Fraser Tendered Testimonial Dinner, Presented With Scroll, Clock

Trenton (Special) — Political opponents and friends alike 400 strong from every walk in life and from every part of the province union gathered under one roof here last night to honor that "grand little guy" as they called him—Senator W. A. Fraser. It was the occasion of the testimonial dinner for Mr. Fraser who was recently gazetted to serve in the Canadian Senate at Ottawa.

Men came by train and by air and by practically every mode of transportation to pay tribute to the man who had brought renown and prosperity both to himself and the community in which he lived. Most of the speakers referred to Mr. Fraser as the man who had done more for this part of the country than any other living person. It is doubtful if the Powers above ever make another like him one speaker said. Minister of Labor Present

The Honorable Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor, who had flown in from Ottawa earlier said that Senator Fraser symbolized democracy and called upon his listeners to pattern their lives and methods after the Senator's in order that our governmental system and ideals may be preserved for the future generations. Mr. Mitchell in paying his respects to the Senator said that the importance and quality of the men gathered at the banquet reflected the respect and faith the district and whole nation held for the newest addition to the Senate body.

The Honorable William Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare at Queen's Park Toronto, joined Mr. Mitchell and a score of other speakers in lauding Mr. Fraser the highest praises. Everybody said they admired the Senator's honesty, integrity and energy and wished him continued good health and success at his new post.

Presented With Scroll

On behalf of the town of Trenton and in appreciation for his service to the community Mr. Fraser was presented with a scroll signed by Mayor Kenneth Couch and town clerk C. Larry. The Senator who spent much of his life sailing the waters of the Bay of Quinte and who still finds time from his busy schedule to follow his favorite boyhood pastime received appropriately a beautiful ship's clock through W. G. Alyea from the Trenton boys —the Senators personal friends— the lads who went to school with him.

Business, Private Building In Trenton Highest on Record

Trenton — (Special)—Never in the history of the town of Trenton has there been so much business and private construction underway as there is at the present, and it was roughly estimated yesterday that new building permits and renovation jobs would total $600,000 when completed.

The big program now going ahead with unusual tenacity indicates that Trenton is expanding to meet the needs of the growing RCAF establishment and the labor housing project on the town's eastern limits and the other expansions taking place in the immediate vicinity of the corporation. Emphasis on all of Trenton's future plans seems to be on growth and spreading out.

Construction of four downtown business establishments alone will run into $500,000 while permits have been issued at the town office for the erection of individual dwellings and improvements covering the remaining sum. Spring is expected to see all of the business buildings with the exception of the Bell Telephone structure on Middle and Balsam streets, finished and completed and open for business. The Bell building with its new dial system will not be ready until some time in 1951.

Splendid Garage

In the place of one of Trenton's oldest landmarks on the corner of Murphy and Elgin Streets, George Weaver has located one of the finest automobile showrooms and garages in Eastern Ontario. The structure, modern in architectural design outside as well as inside, provides 12,000 square feet of floor space with spacious windows ringing the building on three sides. Mr. Weaver expects the new establishment to be completed and equipped by the middle of January.

Not a stone's throw away from the Weaver building the Bell Telephone's new headquarters is taking shape and when the project's one-storey brick structure has been completed it will provide an additional 700 installations for new telephones with further provision made for up to 1,200 outlets. The building is being erected with enlargements and expansion in mind. Provisions were made in the building plan for another storey and an extension to the rear. Approximately $90,000 will be spent in the erection of this new structure.

Loblaws to Build

Over on Dundas Street Loblaws acquired the site next to the A and P and excavation is almost completed where the most modern super market in this vicinity will be put up at a cost of $50,000. R. S. McKinney of Belleville has the contract to build the store located on the south side of the street. Reaching 137 feet in length the new structure will measure 41 feet across the front and 64 feet deep, the rear which will be used as a store house. A storey over part of the front half of the building will be utilized as an office by the manager and the space remaining will be used as a storage. A right-of-way from the hall and bus terminal will serve the building from the rear, where merchandise will be unloaded from the highway transports.

Up at Hart's Corners on highway 33 below the C. N. R. bridge, West High, formerly of Belleville has made another improvement to his already expansive establishment, the Hotel. Mr. High has added a one-storey structure which, unlike fully sculpted, will cost $50,000. The new accommodation is 75 feet long and with the kitchen included measures 44 feet wide. It is capable of providing seating and dancing room for some 400 people.

Equipped with a seven speaker public address system, the ceiling of the new addition is covered with the latest in acoustic board. Unit fluorescent lighting fits in with the panelling in the walls and ceiling.

The new room was opened last night when Senator W. A. Fraser was entertained at a dinner by his many friends and associates.

FRANKFORD

Top Hatters Still Lead Bowling League

Frankford — Frankford Mixed Bowling League is still very close in the running, as the first half of the schedule nears completion. The Head Pins fought valiantly against the first place Top Hatters, but were able to take only one game. The Head Pins are a much improved team over the first quarter bowling record, and should climb out of last place before long if they continue in their present form. The Aristocrats, tabbed also as dark horses at present, ran their unbeaten string to three nights, as they took seven from the sliding Skyliners. Merry Macs made it five over the Happy Gang while the Uniques took five from the Greenhorns, in the highest scoring series of the evening. The battle of the season will see the Top Hatters and Aristocrats league next Thursday night.

The third was some two pounds of impure uranium metal.

Turns up in Record

Evidences of a shipment of heavy water turned up in old lend-lease records supplied the committee by the State Department.

The records don't indicate from whom the Reds bought the heavy water or how it went out of the country.

When the committee first started the investigation more than a year ago, its senior investigator, Louis J. Russell said it was called off when the State Department said the Canadian government had protested for security reasons.

Now there are indications the way may be clear for the committee to question pregel.

Russell and Investigator Courtney Owens have just spent two days in Canada. The purpose of the tri phasn't been announced.

Mrs. Stewart Brady read an address of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. McMullen, who have lived in the Bethel Community for many years. Mr. McMullen was born near the homestead over 80 years ago, and Mrs. McMullen came to the community as a bride and took up residence.

Presentation

Messrs. Ray Sine and Stuart Brady, made the presentation of a lovely tri-lite floor lamp.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McMullen graciously thanked their friends for all their kindness to them during the year they had lived at Bethel and deeply appreciated the lovely gift. They said anyone stranded in Belleville would always be welcome at their home there.

Mr. Harry Heath spoke briefly paying tribute to the neighborliness of the McMullen family and his sang a Mexican Indian melody.

The ladies served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Mr. and Mrs. McMullen's three daughters, Loretta, Blanche and Eida, with their husbands and children, were all in attendance at the old home on this occasion. Farm Grain from Crews

One hundred and forty-seven years ago, this farm came to a member of the Morton clan as a grant from the Crown and while it did not always stay in the Morton family, still Mr. McMullen was happy when he was able to take up residence there and, continue the family tradition.

Mr. McMullen has found it necessary to leave the neighborhood and he said it was very hard on both him and his wife to decide to live elsewhere.

After an hour of chatting, the guests departed and wished Mr. and Mrs. McMullen every happiness in their new abode.

Montreal Canadiens' Defence Cut by Injuries as Team Goes Into Weekend Scramble

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

All coaches have worries, but coach Dick Irvin of the Montreal Canadiens has more than any other National Hockey League mentor at this stage.

The Canadiens' defensive strength has been reduced to four men by injuries to Hec Lavoye and Glen Harmon, and the Habitants have a tough weekend ahead with Chicago Black Hawks coming up.

The way the league standing is now any one of the five teams can join the league-leading Detroit Red Wings in strategic position for next spring's playoffs. Detroit is alone on top with an 11-point margin over Toronto, but there are only four points between Toronto and the sixth-place team.

Montreal is riding in third place, a point below Toronto, with Chicago, Boston and New York all tied for fourth spot three points behind Canadiens.

No one would dare to predict at this stage which two teams will fail to make the playoffs, but the remains that losses now will loom larger later on.

And the Canadiens have lost three and tied one in their last four starts. The tie with Boston was decided latter containing only. Laycoe suffered a broken bone in the left wrist and will be out for a month. Harmon got a twisted knee and just possibly will be back in action next Wednesday.

While Chicago is at Montreal tonight, Boston Bruins travel to Toronto and New York Rangers play at Detroit. On Sunday the Canadiens go to Chicago, Leafs go to Boston and Detroit to New York.

The remastered Leafs will dress only 15 players for the weekend tussles with the Bruins. Three veterans goalie Turk Broda shed weight and returned to his cage, the Leafs have won three straight to vault into second place. The Leafs announced that plans to use amateurs George Armstrong and Hugh Bolton have been shelved this weekend, but both will be available for emergency in case the Bruins, always tough, throw a monkey wrench into the Toronto advance.

The Bruins have been the surprise team of the league lately, after a rebuilding job that took in almost all positions. Their youngsters are starting to produce and the Bruins may prove as tough on the road from now on as they've always been at their home gardens.

Life of Referee In OHA Can be Plenty Rough

Toronto, Dec. 10 — (CP) —The life of a referee in the OHA Junior Hockey Association can be plenty rough, Ask Al Green (Mr. Hockey, Jr. Jr. Red) Farrell.

According to O.H.A. reports, Farrell is laid up with strained leg ligaments suffered Thursday night when he tripped at the Owen Sound arena after skating into some peanuts thrown onto the ice.

Ah Grant can still show you where a rotten egg struck him while working a game at Guelph arena last December. George Hunter, assistant secretary of the O.H.A., has the one-pound iron nut, 1-3 inches square, that missed Grant the same night.

"It was lucky Hunter didn't hit Grant," Mr. Hunter told the O.H.A. executive Friday night. The executive decided letters containing stiff reprimands regarding the behavior of spectators should be sent to both arenas.

The executive also:

1. Agreed to a protest from Wainfleet that Wainfleet township be given the same rights as a municipality as far as the O.H.A. was concerned, as of Dec. 9. This means Wainfleet's five-mile outturn area for players now starts at township's boundaries—but that any players in this area already playing with a team under O.H.A. jurisdiction can, with their present teams.

2. Passed a motion that any club in the Western Ontario Athletic Association is to be recognized as a member of the O. H. A. The W.O.A.A. is already an affiliate.

3. Accepted Shelburne and Alliston in the junior "D" circuit, laid over a similar request by Stony Creek until further investigation and okayed a entry of F. W. (Dinty) Moore.

Because this is a new entry, allowed Tullsonburg's intermediate "A" club to import six players, three more than usual; but turned down this team's request that it use a Woodstock goalie not a resident of Tullsonburg, or in its area by Dec. 15.

4. Decided in order to prevent complaints to make arrangements with the Maple Leaf Gardens to get itemized receipts for both teams when outside centres hold a split-gate game there.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Joe Maxim, 193, Cleveland, outpointed Bill Peterson, 212, Portland Ore., 10.

Youngest Skater Ever to Win Skating Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Michael Carrington of London, 13-year-old ice prodigy, Friday survived a spill to become the youngest skater ever to win the British figure skating championship at London.

Carrington stopped a three-century fall in the free-skating competition, but had done so in the school figures, to score 984.5 out of a possible 1,000 points. He defeated Graham Sharp, 18, Park of Melbourne, Australia, by 46.4 points.

Park also fell on the skate-scarred ice of Empress Hall, Miss Carrington and Park recovered quickly from their spills to continue their performances.

Jeanette Altwegg of Liverpool retained her women's title, with 1,000 points, and Pat Brighton second in the field of 10.

Bob Hamilton, Landover, Md., holed a tough, 35-foot putt on the 16th green Friday for a five under par 65 and a 36-hole total of 132 to lead the second round of Miami's $10,000 open golf tournament.

He now is 11 under par at the halfway mark of the 72-hole tournament being played over the 6,310-yard Miami Springs golf course.

Tommy Bolt of Houston, Texas, playing his first tournament since 1946, was only three strokes off Hamilton with 36-hole total of 135 on 68-67. Jack Burke Jr. was 2-under-68 to couple with his 67 for the opening round.

University of Toronto Blues trounced Carleton of Montreal Carabins 12-7 Friday night at Toronto to draw into a first-place tie with Carabins in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League.

Before a near-capacity crowd of 2,200 in Varsity arena, the Blues avenged their defeat at the hands of Montreal last week.

Sparked by Norm Fox, Pete Vernon and Cec Turcott, Toronto clicked in the opening frame, six times in the second stanza and five times in the closing session.

At San Francisco, the Track and Field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States Friday night accepted as an American record the time of 1.54 set by the 880-yard relay team of the University of Southern California last May 30 at Compton, Calif.

Recognition as a world record will be sought from the International Federation. The A.A.U. is holding its 51st annual convention.

Mel Patton, world's fastest sprinter, ran the anchor lap.

Winston Churchill, conservative opposition leader in the Commons has been elected a member of the Thoroughbred Breeder Association. His was announced Friday at London. Churchill took up racing as a hobby less than a year ago and now owns a brood mare, an unraced juvenile filly and the three-year-old Colonial II which won three out of six races this summery.

At Owensboro, Ky., three members of the Sebree, Ky., high school basketball team were killed Friday night in a head-on collision between an automobile and gasoline truck. Three other players were injured. Police listed the dead as Donald Pinkston, 16, driver of the car; James Johnson, 14, and Charles Smith, 15. All of the Sebree community.

Windsor Spits Continue Torrid Pace in League

(By The Canadian Press)

Scotty Mai', leading scorer in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series, added six points to his total last night with four goals and two assists while pacing Toronto Marlboros to a 9-1 win over Owen Sound Mercurys.

The victory was Marlboros ninth in a row and increased their first-place lead over Kitchener-Waterloo to 16 points.

In two junior games last night, Windsor Spitfires kept up their torrid pace and also registered their ninth win in a row by beating Barrie Flyers 5-4. Toronto Marlboro retained their three-point first-place lead over the Spitfires by knocking down St. Catharines Teepees 5-3.

At Toronto, Mair opened the scoring after 43 seconds of the opening stanza. Johnny McCormack and Ken Johnson added tallies to give the Dukes a 3-0 first-period advantage.

The old veteran, Flash Hollett, showed he still had some wind in his sails by popping in Toronto's fourth goal, the only score of the middle frame.

The avalanche was finished in the final frame, Mair clicking for three while McCormack notched his second and Howie Meeker counted a single.

Jack Ingoldsby spoiled Pat Boehmer's shutout with less than five minutes to go in the game, sinking the only Mercury counter.

Toppazzini Big Gun

Windsor Ice Barrie Flyers 2-1 at the end of the first period and 4-3 at the start of the final frame. The high-scoring line of Bill Sklankiewicz and Skov notched three of the Spitfire total, each member of the line clicking for a single. Other markers were counted by Erwin Grosse and Jack Bailey.

Gerry Toppazzini was the big gun for Barrie, counting twice. Stan Long and Enzo Zanatta pointed the remaining two.

St. Catharines took an early lead over Marlboros in their game. Obie O'Brien punching in a single at :22 of the first frame. Ron Hurst evened it for Marlboros later and Larry Ezan gave Toronto the lead a one-goal lead with less than a minute remaining.

The Teepees took over in the second session and counted the only two goals of the period. Norm Corcoran knotted the count at two apiece 44 seconds after the opening whistle and Con Switzer put Teepees one up at 16:57.

The Toronto power was not to be denied in the closing stanza. George Armstrong started it off before the five-minute mark and followed it up with his second seven minutes later. Murray Grenke ended the scoring near the end of the period and Toronto went off the ice with a hard-earned two points.

One senior contest and three junior games are scheduled for today, in the senior encounter, Hamilton Tigers journey to Kitchener-Waterloo. In the junior circuit, Guelph tangle with St. Michael's, St. Catharines take on Barrie and Windsor tackle Oshawa.

Villemain Wins Non-Title Bout Over Lamotta

New York Dec. 10. —(AP) — Rapid Robert Villemain officially has evened the score with Jake Lamotta. Now the scrappy little Frenchman wants the middleweight champion to put his title on the line. He may get his wish.

Black-haired Robert, a five-foot 6 1-2 inch bundle of perpetual motion, poured it on the Bronx bull Friday night to win a unanimous 10-round decision in Madison Square Garden. It was a big victory for Villemain, a 2-to-1 underdog in the betting.

That squared accounts for the 25-year-old Parisian who licked Jake in the Garden last March but lost the decision. The verdict one of the rankest in years, resulted in the suspension of the two officials who voted for Lamotta.

"I want Lamotta to fight me for the championship now," said the smiling Villemain after his victory. "I won the last time, too but this time I get the decision. I am very happy to win. I will bring back the championship for my country and Marcel Cerdan."

If Edie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission has his way, Villemain will get the next shot at Lamotta.

Before the fight, Eagan told the gladiators:

"This isn't a championship fight. Whether there will be a return bout for the title depends on the outcome of this fight."

And there's no doubt that Eagan feels that a Frenchman should get the first chance because of Cerdan.

It was from Cerdan that Lamotta won the crown in Detroit his last June. Cerdan was to have met the stocky New Yorker for the title Dec. 3 but went to a tragic death in a plane crash while en route to the United States in October.

Friday night's bout drew 9,599 fans and a gate of $33,476.

The three officials, none of whom worked the last Villemain-Lamotta show, all gave Villemain substantial margins.

Diesel-Electrics Trimmed 12-4 by Peterborough Legion In Clean and Fast Contest

Peterborough, Dec. 10—(Special)—The Peterborough Diesel-Electrics trimmed the Diesels-Electrics of Belleville 12-4 here on Friday night to take over top spot from the Quints squad in their OHA Senior group sweeping to pelish. A good, sized crowd, saw a fast, clean play with Legion having a 3-2 edge the first frame and adding it away with a 6-2 margin in the second to have a 9-4 edge opening the third chukker, when they tallied three without a return.

Chum Fryia led the local attack with five goals, while Bill Crowley had two and an assist. Bill helped on three and Stewart and Greenlaw were in on a pair each. Montgomery, Mortimer and Coombe each hit the hemp once. Vern Goyer stood out for the visitors, scoring a pair and aiding on another. Williams helped on two while Barrett got one and an assist, Day scoring their other one.

Minus Two Players

Diesels were minus two good forwards in McDonald and Leo Goyer, but they found the artificial rink here quite a bit different to the surface in Belleville. They were outplayed all the way, Legionaires played their old hustling style for the first time this season, which brought them the title last year, carrying and busy looking all the way. While none of the goals were set up, it was a fine clean initial frame when Vern Goyer's corner passer put Gasnell in off centre ice.

Both goalies went well in a fast, open type of hockey game. The home defence had an edge on the visitors, but Goyer was good throughout, making many saves. The line of Fryia, Hill and Coombe played most of the hockey, but there was little to choose between the Legion line, Barrett, Williams and Day proved the best trio for the Bellevilla bunch. A few fights broke out but the boys held their heads and stuck to speedy and interesting hockey before a good sized crowd.

Belleville—Goal, Rumley; Defence, Goyer and Woodmansee; centre, Jones; wings, Mulvihill and Woodbeight; alternates, Barnett, Williams, Day, Mober, Cousins, Bastedo, Nolan and Williamson.

Legion: goal Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and Burns; centre, Rochie; wings, Crowley and Vitarelli; alternates, Montgomery, Mortimer, Hill, Fryia, Coombe, Parnell, Greenlaw and Stewart.

Referee, J. Cromble; linesman, P. Callahoe.

B.C.I. Cagers Take Regiopolis By 40-19 Count

Last evening B.C.I. senior cagers triumphed over the greatly improved Wine and Malt Regiopolis squad. It was the second first game and one of superior playing all the way. The multi-million tilt ended 40-19 which proves that our boys really put up a good showing. Referee Souter of Kingston had his hands full for the game was fast and the play was fast. Regiopolis hope to have a better game when they play in Kingston Friday night and after the Christmas holidays. Incidentally, anyone who appreciates good basketball should be out to the legiate series of this year.

Belleville attacked the out-of-towners with a three string team. This meant plenty of power for the line was hitting and relief when the other was tuckered. In the first period the teams scored even - stephen in the start, making points to a tie at margin, but then our boys turned on the heat and the half time score remained at 21-10.

The three-string force proved too much for the Regi boys again in the second half. Even after time the trailers made bursts of speed, but their scoring power the defense did tighten some in the second half for "our side" hooped only 19 and the locals won only 9 points. Wynter (4), Rea (3) and Johnson (3), were the outstanders for Kingston. Faulkner, Buchanan, Summers pushed 11, 8 and 7 points for Collegiate. Thus a good start for the season and we hope a good finish.

Belleville: Buchanan 8; Ketchison 2; Galbraith 4; Summers 7; Faulkner 11; Muirhead, Dolan Mc-Kinnon, Murray, C. Rose, Ewald, Rose, McClay. Dow set 2 points.

Regiopolis: Wynter 4, Casally 2, Rea 5, Flynn, Benincasa 3, Thompson, Carvinko, Munroe, Wealtie 2, Najolachny.

One of his brain-waves is a movable boom allowing distances within the pool to be varied. He believes the customary British pool, long, high judgement and experience gained in the 20 exhibition games his Volanta played in Britain, Scandinavia, Switzerland, the low countries and France.

He and his squad take off by plane today for home after winding up their tour by dropping a 5-3 decision to Australia's Jack Wembley Combines of the English league. The Australians are packed with Canadian pucksters.

"The way I see it," Guertin said in the dressing room after the Wembley game, "Canada won't win."

"From what we saw in Europe, Australia will win easily. Their toughest opponents will likely be the Swedes and Czechs."

Edmonton, Mercurys will represent Canada in the world championship tournament in London next February.

Edmonton will find most European teams are at good defensively as Canadian squads," said Guertin, "but they lack offensive punch. They've no idea how to stage a power play.

"Mercurys have a good, strong team and they won't have any trouble scheduling as we had. At Davos we played seven games in nine nights against fresh teams."

Even at that Hull was undefeated on the continent. The four games the Volanta lost all were on British ice when they met teams that made up all Canadian imports who will not be eligible to play for Britain in the world championship.

Toronto, Dec. 10 — (CP) — Wanted: a talking doer.

Anyone possessing same is urged to ship it to Sudbury no later than Jan. 10. They're committed with the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters to its annual convention.

The main problem on the Federation's mind is posed by resolution to be presented at the convention by officials of zone 2, asking for a ban on the use of decoys in deer-hunting. The Federation needs expert advice on the item on whether it prefers to be hogtied with or without assistance.

Zone 2, covering the Sudbury-Killarney-North Bay area, claims deer hunting unnecessary cruelty on the deer and that their use is prohibited almost everywhere outside Ontario.

Pete (Toronto Telegram) McGillen, zone 2 director, directing, doesn't t' e' x so. He says the dogs startle a wounded deer, suffering by tracking it down and enabling a hunter to finish it off, preventing the animal from being left to a lingering death in some swamp or to fall easy prey to wolves.

How to Protect Deer?

There's another zone 2 argument in which the sporting element would probably be interested. The Northerners fear that over-efficient hunters using the deer-hound's help may reduce the breeding deer population to a dangerously low level.

Pete has a solution for that one, a better way to protect the animals, he argues, is to declare in the second week of the season or to restrict hunters to stalking unarmed hounds.

In defence of dogs, Pete says many old-timers in their day did not get around to the rough country as well as younger men have since the dogs to do their extra leg-work.

Footnote on Fat

For a final glimpse at the anti-pound-on-people, waged by the managing director Conn Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs (Toronto Star) Burnett calls attention to the case of Howie Meeker of Stratford, an earnest young forward on the National League club.

Warned to reduce on pain of suspension, the pint-sized wingman took Smythe's advice so seriously that he slipped from two pounds under—weight. The Leaf management promptly ordered him onto a fattening diet until 10 pounds go on.

Free Ride

Mindful of profitable play-off gates, Ontario Hockey Association is considering a two-division series involving all four teams in its senior 'A' loop. Dan (Kitchener - Waterloo Record) Odette says most of the teams and fans don't like the idea.

The O. H. A.'s critics don't take kindly to the possibility of a last place team loafing its way thru the regular schedule and finishing in the usual fooling with a first-place club that plays top-notch hockey all the way.

Sport Shorts From Britain

London, Dec. 10 — (CP) — A Canadian jockey, Gordon Richards, with an English 'name—former steeplechase rider Bobby Bates—has set up as a trainer on this side of the Atlantic.

For years one of the most colorful figures in French and British racing, Richards, 47, has never learned much English and still has difficulty understanding when anything went wrong—or right. He's been right often as a winning—endeared him to British race-goers.

Bates' two languages difficulty nearly cost him a hard-won racetrack—and Richards' wife a murder-in a fall but insisted on riding Royal Oak II in the next race anyway. He won with an arm hanging nearly useless.

Bates, who is 28, studied, he motioned to a stable-hand to loosen the horse's girth. The boy was just going to when trainer Major J. Goldsmith rushed up shouting in impeccable English and then trying it over again in atrocious French. "Should do you want to be disqualified?"

It took five minutes' frantic sign-language before Goldsmith could persuade Bates that it was against National hunt rules for anyone except the jockey to take off the saddle-cloth or girth after it into the weighing room. Bates took five more minutes getting the hint through to his pal one good hand.

Now Bobby has taken over a training establishment at Findon, Sussex. Most of his string is owned by Mrs. Bobby Bates, who had her first winner this season was Rifle Shot, which won at Bates.

Why did Bobby quit riding? He went to a doctor for a check-up. The doctor told him that he showed him the plate revealing the healed broken bones.

Wembley Lions hockey team feel like the R.C.M.P.—they finally got their man.

It took them two years to track down and capture Dave Maguire of Lions, who has been hiding out wrapped in a Lions livery at last. Maguire, 22-year-old centreman was all set to make a for Lions on 1947 but transfer difficulties kept him in the navy. Now he's cleared his papers from Wembley Lions and Baltimore Clippers with whom he used to perform and Wembley fans are already showing enthusiastic over his play here.

The will be mated next spring with CCBC, the Coronation Cup, Cleveland and Dollar Cup winner.

If every foal was bred for speed of early foot, this will be one.

London Dec. 8. (CP)— Owning racehorses is usually an expensive proposition. Grey-headed John H. Johnson, head of the family-owned Racehorse Owners' Club, says he wants to bring ownership within the reach of men of the little man who supports the racing sport.

Members can be enrolled for five shillings (77 cents) a week or that's $77.20 a year. Johnson says he'll use the subscriptions to buy a string of thoroughbreds and give them to "deserving young valuable prizes."

The racehorse club has stabled the six-year-old Osmanthus and the seven-year-old Duffle Coat at Epsom. Both have been leased for a year. Neither has won a race. Although both have been in the money several times.

Johnson says he's being deluged with subscriptions to the club.

Two Professional Football Loops Will be Merged

New York, Dec. 10—(AP)—With the four-year United States professional football war over, a conflict that took its toll in dollars and cents, the two warring organizations today looked to solving the problems of a new league.

The combination of the National Football League and the All-American conference came with startling speed in Philadelphia Friday, after a 48-hour conference.

The two league merged into the National-American Football League.

Philadelphia, Cleveland (combined with Buffalo), Los Angeles (Los Angeles Dons combined), New York Giants, New York Bulldogs (or New York Yankees players to go to the Giants, remainder to the Bulldogs), Baltimore, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals, (Chicago Rockets eliminated), Green Bay, Detroit, Washington.

The merger is more or less a victory for the N.F.L. which for several years refused officially to recognize the younger circuit. All members of the N.F.L. will join the new league Only three teams of the A.A.C.—San Francisco, Cleveland and Buffalo—have survived.

The 13 teams will be formed into American and National divisions, and for next year's schedule will have what it lacked for the last four seasons—a real world's champion. The winners of the two divisions will meet for the title. The surplus players, both college and pro, all will be thrown into a giant pool. This will include a host of Collegians already drafted by the two leagues.

Draft regulations of the two leagues have been called off. The new circuit will hold a draft session probably in January, to pluck the surplus players from a giant pool.

Bert Bell, N.F.L. commissioner, signed to a two-year contract as major-domo of the N.F.L., said that 1950 will require approval of 11 of the 13 teams to have a player transferred to new club.

Mixed Opinion On Action of Jockey Club

Toronto, Dec. 10 (CP)— A survey of racehorse owners, trainers and breeders showed mixed opinions today on the action of the Ontario Jockey club in reinstating an old rule of the classic King's Plate series which must be trained only in Canada. The historic plate has always been limited to Canadian-breds, and for many years was restricted to Canadian foals. But in last spring many owners, have conditioned their horses in the south during the winter.

The change permitting horses to train south of the border was made five years ago, and was rescinded at the O.J.C. annual meeting this week. In the past five years four of the Plate winners have left winter training on southern tracks—Uttermost in 1945, Brigadier in 1946, Mole in 1947, and Epic in 1948. Jim Fair's Last Mark, the 1946 champion of five, trained throughout in Ontario.

Arthur Brant the veteran trainer of Sam McLaughlin's Oshawa Parkwood Stables who saddled Mole and Epic, thinks the change is what neutral. He thought it would be a big advantage to the tradition of breeding and training the Plate entry entirely in Canada. Fred Hooper, president of the Plate entry training gives a horse a big advantage.

Bert Alexandra, trainer for E. P. Taylor, pointed to the short racing season in Canada each spring before the Plate is run and thought it was necessary to condition them in so short a time and under adverse conditions.

Ted Rambeau, well find most European teams are at good defensively as Canadian squads," said Guertin, "but they lack offensive punch. They've no idea how to stage a power play.

"Mercurys have a good, strong team and they won't have any trouble scheduling as we had. At Davos we played seven games in nine nights against fresh teams."

Even at that Hull was undefeated on the continent. The four games the Volanta lost all were on British ice when they met teams that made up all Canadian imports who will not be eligible to play for Britain in the world championship.

O.H.A. Executive Claims Windsor Used Six Illegal Players in Junior 'A'

Toronto, Dec. 10 (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association, turning down a plan that would take seven recent victories from the second-place Windsor Spitfires in the O.H.A. Junior "A" race, will ask the border club to show cause why it should not be penalized for using two illegal imports.

The executive of the O.H.A. meeting in a six-hour session last night, claims the Spits used illegal players in a 10-game period beginning Nov. 9 and ending last week, chalking up seven wins.

President J. J. (Tiny) McFadden termed the situation the "worst mess the O.H.A. has been into in a number of years". And agreed with a motion that the club "show cause why a penalty should not be imposed for using an unauthorized number of imports."

The Windsor club will be asked to appear before the executive Saturday afternoon, Dec. 17.

According to the executive, it is the first time the O.H.A. has instituted a show cause order over taking action without first receiving a complaint. But this situation can't be overlooked."

It is believed that other teams in the circuit have the illegal imports practice but that (1) they know the O.H.A. was also in the know (2) since more than one team had played against the Spits in tation, none were willing to wait waiting for another to lodge a protest.

Manager Predicts Canada Will Win World Title

Toronto, Dec. 9—(CP)—Canada will win the world hockey championship with ease in 1950, predicts manager Bob Guertin of Hull Volants.

Guertin, who has coached and managed Hull senior teams in various leagues for more that a decade, bases his judgement on experience gained in the 20 exhibition games his Volanta played in Britain, Scandinavia, Switzerland, the low countries and France.

He and his squad take off by plane today for home after winding up their tour by dropping a 5-3 decision to Australia's Jack Wembley Combines of the English league. The Australians are packed with Canadian puck-chasers.

"The way I see it," Guertin said in the dressing room after the Wembley game, "Canada won't win."

"From what we saw in Europe, Australia will win easily. Their toughest opponents will likely be the Swedes and Czechs."

Edmonton, Mercurys will represent Canada in the world championship tournament in London next February.

Edmonton will find most European teams are at good defensively as Canadian squads," said Guertin, "but they lack offensive punch. They've no idea how to stage a power play.

"Mercurys have a good, strong team and they won't have any trouble scheduling as we had. At Davos we played seven games in nine nights against fresh teams."

Even at that Hull was undefeated on the continent. The four games the Volanta lost all were on British ice when they met teams that made up all Canadian imports who will not be eligible to play for Britain in the world championship.

Hull beat the Swiss National Club twice once against the Swedish Nationals on Stockholm ice.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A defending bidder is not in bad shape for the shape he is in. He could have a hand as good as any opening bidder, or a better one, or even one that it not as good. And he has a way of showing it.

An opening of one shows a better than average hand. It promises at least five tricks, four of which are high cards; among which are two sure tricks. To show it is how you bid.

A defender could have the same kind of a hand. How would he show it? Not by a bid of one; by saying double. The call of double in this spot is simply a defender's way of showing a hand that was good enough to open.

An opening of two in a suit shows nine tricks. Such a hand has enough tricks to try for a game in something. It forces the partner to keep bidding until at least game contract is reached.

A defender could have the same kind of a hand. How would he say so? By making an overcall in the opponent suit; by bidding the same suit that his opening opponent has bid; providing he has no losers in it.

An opening of three is a major suit shows eight tricks, a suit of seven or more cards that is re-biddable, a sure trick outside of trump. It can make game if partner has two tricks.

A defender could have the same kind of a hand, or one similar to it. How would he show it? By making a jump overcall in his own suit. His suit, however, need only be re-biddable.

South opens with a bid of one heart when west holds the hand you see here:

♠A J 10 7 5
♥None
♣A K Q 7 3.

West bids two hearts to say he has nine tricks, no losers in hearts, that they should go to at least a game in something. This partner would have opened with a two bid if south had not opened.

Don't use this with Mrs. Knitbingham as your partner. She will pass your two heart bid and it will break your heart.

Mackenzie's Column:

Election to be Most Momentous In British History

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The British Labor Government, having just won another parliamentary by-election to the discomfort of the hopeful Conservatives, is just about set for the forthcoming general election which may come by February.

This general election will determine whether the voters want to continue the experiment of Socialism or to revert to Conservatism under the leadership of Winston Churchill. It bids fair to be one of the most momentous in British history.

If Labor is returned to power it likely will mean, as I see it, that the Socialists will govern the country not only for the normal five-year term but will remain in the saddle indefinitely. Why? Well, because in half five years they will have completed their program of nationalization and other socialistic measures.

It wouldn't be easy to revert to the capitalist system of private enterprise once the country had been socialized.

The current by-election, which was held at South Bradford, wasn't in itself a matter of vast import. However, it was being watched intently by both left-wingers and right-wingers as the straw which would indicate which way the political wind was blowing across the country.

Situations Not Analogous

The Conservatives had taken considerable hope from the recent general election in New Zealand where a Labor government was thrown out of office. However, I fail to see that the two situations are analogous. Britain is a heavily-overpopulated industrial country without many natural resources, while the Dominion is largely a farming country, and a right one at that.

British labor is giving the voters a glowing picture of achievements claimed. For example: the number of unemployed in September, 1930, was 1,407,800 and in September, 1949, was 367,956; unemployment benefits, retirement pensions and health services have been inaugurated; the average weekly wage rate has increased by about 80 per cent since 1939 and the cost of living has increased about the same, but counting overtime pay the increase in earnings has been 103 per cent.

There's a lot more to the story. However, Labor officialdom doesn't claim all the credit for these things. During virtually the whole war period the government was a coalition with the Conservatives in the majority. Furthermore the Conservatives also stand at the present time which have been carried out by the Socialists.

King George, One of World's Keenest Stamp Collectors

BY NORMAN CRIBBINS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 10 (CP) — The King, one of the world's keenest stamp collectors, is to reveal secrets of his remarkable collection, valued at between £500,000 ($1,550,000) and £1,000,000.

A book of coloured reproductions of his finest stamps now is being prepared. To be published late in 1950 or early in 1951, it will contain more than 400 pages and show more than 200,000 stamps. The plates will be in exact color.

There will not however, be any reproduction of a single current stamp. There are strict laws preventing stamps in use from being printed at exact copies.

Whenever the King gets a few moments to spare, one of his favorite haunts is the green-walled stamp room at Buckingham Palace, where the world-famous collection was started by his father, King George V.

Officials say when the King first took over he was put pa- tiently instructed. Though actually he becomes a keen philatelist. His enforced illness gave him the opportunity to spend more time with the 330 red and blue morocco-bound volumes which are in the keeping of Sir John Wilson, keeper of the King's philatelic collection.

All the stamps are those of the Commonwealth. There are about 50,000 of them—yet the collection is not complete. There are gaps which the King is eager to fill.

Among the rarest stamps in the collection is the post office pair of Mauritius, a penny orange and two penny blue—the only perfect specimens in the world. Here worth about £10,000 the mounting has underneath some Arabic numerals, the late King George's private code for the price he paid—£1,400.

Saskatchewan to Assume Responsibility Rent Controls

Ottawa, Dec. 10 — (CP) — Ironside, Finance Minister Abbott announced in the Commons Friday that Saskatchewan "has definitely undertaken to assume responsibility for rent controls as from April 1, 1950."

He added that the federal government will be prepared to consider a request that it, pay the cost of administering provincial rent control in Saskatchewan for a year.

Mr. Abbott tabled correspondence with three other provinces which indicate that:

1. The federal offer to turn over rent control responsibility to any province is "still receiving study" in New Brunswick.

2. The Nova Scotia position in respect to the offer is unchanged.

3. Quebec is always ready to assume its responsibilities, "but it desires that the federal government should do so own without further delay."

Thus only Saskatchewan and Alberta are the only two provinces which have indicated likelihood of taking over rent control into two parts to hear the heavy list of divorce applications.

Acting as Divorce Court for Quebec province, it heard 167 petitions, rejecting eight and 18 were withdrawn and 69 held over to the next session.

Another active committee was the banking and commerce committee. Composed of about 30 members it put in solid work on several highly and highly-technical bills.

Among them was a bill revising regulations respecting bankruptcy, which, after three years of committee study and passage by the Senate, finally went through the Commons and will become law with royal assent.

Senate is Ready To Call a Halt To First Session

Ottawa, Dec. 10 — (CP)—The Senate is ready to call a halt to the first session of Canada's 21st parliament, It's all up to the Commons.

The Upper Chamber Thursday cleared the order paper and is ready for prorogation, possibly Saturday.

It now awaits passage by the Commons of Supplimental estimates totalling more than $2,000,000, brought down last spring by Finance Minister Abbott. There will come to the Senate as "the supply bill", and passage is a matter of routine.

The Commons, considering the estimates for each department, still has six departments to scrutinize. Once this study is finished, the Senate will receive the final bill of the session.

Then the Upper Chamber will hear royal assent to the various bills which already have been passed, and Senators and members of parliament will go home for Christmas as Parliament Hill closes up shop.

Last measures on the Senate order paper included a bill together under one statute all legislation affecting the three armed services. This, said Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, will not go any further this session. Introduced in the Senate it will have to be reintroduced next year—either in the Senate or Commons — and go through the legislative mill again.

Tax Changes Passed

The other bill which the Senate dealt with Thursday night was one incorporating the income-tax changes which have been in effect since Finance Minister Abbott brought the budget last spring. It passed after clause-by-clause study in the Senate banking committee.

A number of members already have left for their homes, including the opposition leader, John T. Haig, who handbook his way out of the Chamber Thursday and headed for his native Winnipeg.

Most of the session has been fairly brief sittings in the Chamber, with the committees doing most of the work. The Senate Divorce committee, perhaps the most hard-working of all, at times split

Justice Wilson Named Chairman Conciliation Bd.

Ottawa, Dec. 10 — (CP)—Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson of the British Columbia Supreme Court has been named chairman of two federal conciliation boards in the railways company-labor dispute, Labor Minister Mitchell announced Friday.

The Justice will head separate boards that will attempt to settle somewhat similar disputes between the railways and 90,000 international union members and 34,000 members of all-Canadian unions.

Other members of the board dealing with the case of the International Unions are Isaac B. Pitblado, K.C., of Winnipeg, representing the companies, and Alfred J. Wickens, Moose Jaw, Sask., for the 12 unions involved.

In the other case the company-union nominees are, respectively, T. R. Meighen, K.C., and J. A. Cooke, both of Montreal.

Mr. Mitchell said he had announced Mr. Justice Wilson as chairman of the boards in the absence of joint recommendations for a chairman from the other two members of the boards.

Wages and hours of work are involved in the dispute, which has been under negotiation for months.

Both groups of unions are seeking a reduction in the work-week to 40 hours with no reduction in take-home pay. If now is granted, they will get 44 or 48 hours on the railroads.

In addition, the International Unions want a wage increase of 7½ cents an hour. The national unions want 10 cents an hour more.

The railways have estimated the wage increases would cost them more than $74,000,000 annually.

The International Brotherhoods are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The Canadian Brotherhood of members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.)

Rich Bulgarian Tycoon on Trial On Treason Count

Sofia, Dec. 10—(AP)—One of Bulgaria's richest men admitted on trial Friday that he joined the communist party after the Second World War, then recruited former industrialists for an anti-Russian sabotage program that cost his country's economy more than $45,000,000.

The wealthy land and rubber tycoon, 63-year-old Ivan Gevrenov, entered the seventh guilty plea in Bulgaria's trial of 11 former government and business leaders on charges of treason, espionage and sabotage.

All are accused of plotting to take Bulgaria out of the Russian orbit and put it under the influence of Yugoslav Premier Tito.

Gevrenov told the seven-man court today that in 1947 he supplied the British intelligence service with information on the production capacity of Bulgaria's most important industrial enterprises.

He described another confessed defendant, former communist finance Minister Ivan Stefanov, as "favoring the capitalist system."

Gevrenov testified Stefanov told him Bulgarians were "energetically working for orientation toward the west" in a movement headed by former communist deputy Premier Traicho Kostov, the chief defendant in the current treason trial.

Chiang Kai-shek Flies to Sichang In Mountains

Taipbeh, Formosa, Dec. 10 (AP) —Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, titular leader of Nationalist China, flew to Sichang, Sikang, in the mountain fastness of inland southwestern China Friday.

His plight preceded reports received here in this new provincial capital of China that communist troops were within 60 miles of Chengtu. Until Thursday Chengtu was China's fourth capital this year. Chengtu airfields were graced with Chinese hoping to escape the approaching Reds.

(Formosa was given to China at a conference between Allied leaders just before the end of the war. Its final disposition still is considered one of the important phases of the Japanese peace treaty expected to be written early next year.)

The Nationalists face grave economic problems here. The island's normal population of 6,000,000 has been swelled to 7,000,000 persons by an influx of Nationalists from the mainland. Many of the islanders, in fact, still want to be a part of Japan or independent of the Chinese mainlanders.

Hopes of the Nationalists to wrest eventual victory from the Reds rest with efforts to build up a strong guerrilla force in China proper.

Premier Yen Hsi-Shan, who flew here from Chengtu Thursday with 14 cabinet members, said the Nationalists were supporting 600,000 guerrillas on the Chinese mainland.

The Reds used guerrilla warfare to great advantage in pushing back the Nationalists from Manchuria to Canton in one year. The war has been going on 22 years.

Six Months to Live.

By Nancy Garden

Men and women were coming and going. There were whispered colloquies, excited recriminations among the changing throng. Just ahead of her sat a young man and woman. 'Americans' concluded Ann, yet between the two others there seemed a growing difference of opinion. Suddenly the young man rose and as he binned to-go he whispered hoarsely, "No nonsense now. You're going and you've got to get it today."

"But, Gerald," the girl began as she sought to lay her hand on his arm, "please—"

"Oh, cut that out," he interrupted roughly as he flung her hand aside. "You know you've got to go. I must get back to the office or I'd stay right here with you. Now, don't you dare to come home without it."

Wondering what tragedy was being enacted beside her, Ann looked at the girl whose eyes followed the young man as he quickly left the room. Suddenly she rose from her chair and slipped down beside her. "Mary, Mary Lambert, is it really you?" she questioned.

For a moment Mary looked at the girl who had approached her in bewilderment. Then a happy smile flashed over her as all lately filled with tears, and a wave of color suffused her cheeks as she took Ann's outstretched hand. "Ann Hampton, you don't know how glad I am to see you."

The girls chatted excitedly. "How many years is it since we two have seen each other?" questioned Mary, "and to think that you've been in New York all these years and I never knew it. What are you doing here?"

Then Ann told Mary about the doctor's verdict and her determination to have one glorious time of travel and adventure before it was too late. There was keen, real distress in Mary's eyes as she listened to Ann's story. Then studying her carefully she said, "You don't look so sick, Ann. Are you sure the doctors know what they are talking about?"

"I guess they do, but what are you doing here? Want to see your brother with you?"

"Yes that was Gerald. You know we've almost come to blows over this affair. You see when mother died she left a small package addressed to some one in Newton. I thought it was one of her old friends. Mother never told us much about her family. However this was her sister, a frightfully wealthy old woman who, with the rest of her family would have nothing to do with Mother when she married dad. Now that it's too late to make amends, Aunt Margaret is holding out on the silver branch and wants me to go around the world with her; I really don't want to go on this wonderful trip, but Gerald insists that I must."

"Oh, my nest! Just think what fun we'd have together."

"I'd love to be with you, but—" A uniformed attendant called Mary and directed her to a desk.

Ann watched her go, and realized that would be touring the world together, her heart beat happily. Then a puzzled frown creased her forehead. Why didn't Mary go?

"Oh Mary, me darlin'" a rising young lawyer who dearly delighted in affecting the brogue of his ancestors, "shure ye're not going to leave us?"

Mary slipped her hand in his as he slowly stopped his car at a picturesque spot which commanded a gorgeous view of the Hudson. "Oh, Terry, I've got to Gerald simply insists that it's my duty and I'll regret it all my life if I don't, and oh," Mary's words ended in a sob.

"You poor little kid." Terry Kelly whispered as he slipped his arm about her. "That brother of yours is just a big bully. Why doesn't he come and see me as he promised? But never mind about that. So you want to go, or would you rather stay with me?"

Mary was silent for a minute. This big lover of hers was impulsive. He could hate as fiercely as he could love, If only she could make him understand. Somehow he didn't seem to have any use for Gerald and Gerald hated him just as cordially. Mary couldn't understand it. She loved them both. Of course while Gerald was a couple of years older than her, self he was easily influenced. That was why her mother had begged her to look after him.

"Aren't you going to tell me, sweetheart?" begged Terry, gently raising Mary's face to his.

"Oh, Terry, it's so hard to know what to do. I want to stay with you, but when I remembered what I promised mother—" Mary's voice broke.

"There, there, child. It'll be all right," said Terry as he kissed the auburn tresses that, like spun silk, brushed against his cheek.

Terry knew well the pursuits in which young Lambert was engaged. Gerald's plea to Mary not to call him up at the office were in line with other deceptions he was practising. Terry knew it was months since he had quit; that he was working with some old friends of his father; that he was nothing more or less than a professional gambler. He hated to disillusion Mary who had always led a very sheltered life which was rather at variance with the trend of the day. More than once he had remonstrated with Gerald He had even offered to get him a good job, for Terry, besides being a lawyer, was keenly interested in politics and already held an important position with his party.

As they drove homeward along the river's side Mary realized that her happiness hung in the balance. Terry declared that if she went with her and it would just prove that she cared more for her brother's happiness than his. In vain she assured him of her love and pointed out to him that it would only mean their marriage would be delayed for a few months.

"But, Mary, you don't know a thing about your aunt. She may be an impossible old woman in spite of her wealth. The idea of taking you for a trip round the world to get acquainted with you That's enough to show she's rather an eccentric woman, I'd say," concluded Terry as he stopped on the gas.

But Mary could not forget the promise to her mother. If only she had married Terry before she found the fateful package.

As they neared the apartment where Mary and Gerald made their home Terry whispered hoarsely, "well what is it to be, little girl?"

The light of a passing auto flashed across Mary's face. As Mary hesitated, then whispered, "I must go," Terry's was hardened and his lips tightened.

"All right," he answered swinging his car quickly to the curb. "Aren't you coming in?" Mary asked brokenly as Terry left her at the door.

"No," he said shortly. "If you change your mind you know where to telephone," he added as he left her.

Never before had Ann enjoyed such a riot of shopping. The time was short but Lucy seemed to know exactly where to go to find everything. Ann was swiftly being transformed from a somewhat somberly-attired, efficient business woman to a light-hearted bit of femininity, whose very clothes seemed to emphasize her sparkling personality.

One evening as she slipped on a dinner frock Ann turned again to the mirror. Yes it was true, She really looked quite lovely. A little wave of color rose to her cheek as she remembered what the saleswoman had said when she tried it on. Despite Ann's denial, she took for granted she was choosing her trousseau. Ann sighed softly. She was just beginning to live, and yet, the doctors had assured her the end was in sight. Well, there was no need to get miserable over it. She smiled bravely as she turned to the glass once more.

The bell rang ... Miss Lambert to see her .... Why yes, by all means show her up. Whatever could Mary want? It was after nine o'clock. Strange that she hadn't telephoned.

Opening the door Ann met Mary's startled gaze. "Are you having a party?" her visitor questioned, as her eyes rested on the gown. "Then I won't come in."

"Of course you will. I'm all alone. I was just trying on some of my new clothes. Whatever happened to you?"

"Oh, Ann," exclaimed Mary, and suddenly her voice broke as her eyes filled with tears.

There, there, Mary, and tell me what the trouble is" Once more Ann was her old dependable and efficient self.

"Ann, you've got to help me," declared Mary as she twisted her handkerchief nervously.

"Of course I will, dear, if you'll only tell me what you want."

"I want you to take my place and go abroad with my aunt. I can't go.

"Has something happened to your brother?" Ann knew enough about him to realize that it would not be out of the way for him to get into some scrape, and she knew how intensely loyal Mary was to the worthless fellow.

"Oh no, and, Ann, he mustn't know. It's Terry."

Quickly Ann ransacked her memory, but for the moment the name conveyed nothing to her. Surely Mary had no skeletons in her life. Her thoughts flew to her own brother. Strange how completely he had passed out of her life.

As Ann took Mary's little hand in hers and tried to calm her, she said "Who's Terry? What right has he to interfere with your plans?"

A smile banished the tears from Mary's face as she quickly told Ann about her lover. "Oh, Ann, please take my place. You've nothing to lose. Won't you?" she pleaded.

"Oh, but that's quite out of the question, Mary. I'd love to help you, but I could never impersonate you. Just think what a fine how-d'ye-do it would be if your brother should discover it!"

As for your aunt why she might even have me put in jail."

Market Situation Alarms Farmers States Gardiner

Says Decisions Have Been Made to Restore Confidence

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP)—Canadian farmers are both fearful and alarmed at the prospects of future markets, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said today.

He said, however, that decisions had been made which suggested "these fears may be oversemphasized." He did not indicate what these decisions were.

He made the statements in a speech delivered at a closed session of the Dominion-Provincial agricultural conference. Copies of his address were later distributed to the press.

Two Fears

Mr. Gardiner said the fear springs from two facts. One was that farmers no longer could depend on a "free market" in the United Kingdom.

The other was their uncertainty as to what Canada's future United States might declare surplus under Marshall-plan aid and the effect this might have on world markets.

The minister, who before the conference indicated in an interview that Canada has as yet no food contracts with the U.K. for 1950, said in his address that the farmers "have some reason for being concerned about the future."

He indicated that if some method could be found by Canada, the United States and the U.K. to remove these fears, it would go a long way to establishing confidence in the minds of the farmers.

Demand Balances Supply

"The farm production during 1949 was as nearly balanced with effective demand as in any year since 1939. The return per unit for that production has been as high as at any time. The volume and net return for farm products promises to compare favorably with our 1949 crop," he added.

In a brief interview before the conference opened, he said no contracts for 1950 had yet been signed with the U.K.

Mr. Charlton said he wondered if the apple growers would believe there are no surpluses.

"I think even the apple growers will believe that," Mr. Gardiner replied."

He also indicated that the surpluses of powdered milk, canned milk "and milk of any kind" were also down.

Mr. Charlton asked if the 56,-600,000 pounds of powdered milk and condensed milk were down since Nov. 9.

"If there were 56,600,000 pounds there then, it is not there now," Mr. Gardiner said.

Freed At Last From Surveillance

For all members of the party including Mrs. Ward, several women and some children, it was the first time they had not been under Red surveillance since Nov. 30, 1948. On that date Prague closed the Consulate and clamped such secrecy on their movements and fate that even the U.S. Senate Department knew virtually nothing about them.

For some time today, only Ward was permitted to board this ship.

LABOR DEFEAT NEAR LANDSLIDE PROPORTIONS

Coalition is Certain Of 25-Seat Majority

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 12—(CP)— The Labor government's defeat in Saturday's election nearly landslide proportions today.

As vote counting continued, the victorious Liberal-Country Party coalition appeared likely to win a majority of 22 seats in the House of Representatives, an edge in the 123-member Lower Chamber of parliament.

Early returns Saturday night indicated the new government would command a majority of only seven to 11 votes, but the swing against Labor became more and more pronounced as counting neared an end.

The count by Monday afternoon indicated the Liberal Party would win at least 55 seats, its partney Country Party would take 17 seats, and the coalition as a group would hold 45. Three other seats were still doubtful.

The 118 seats which appeared settled shaped up this way:

Labor, certain to be elected, 48 Liberals, 14 Country Party, 43 total.

Likely to be elected but still not certain, 2 Liberals, three Country Party, three Labor Party.

Although there are 122 seats in the Lower House, only 121 of the members have votes. The other is the Speaker, representing the entire territory and the federal district of Canberra, the capital, can vote only on issues which directly affect their constituencies.

Rejection of Australia's Socialist Administration Hailed as Sign of Times

London, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Australia's rejection of its Socialist administration was hailed today by Conservative morning newspapers as a sign of the times.

Independent, Labor and Liberal organs, however, were not so sure in their editorials that the opposition victories in both New Zealand and Australia portend a similar coalition success next year in Britain's general election.

The Independent Times of London discussed the "emphatic repudiation" by Australians of industrial nationalization. The paper noted, however, that the new government is pledged to a continuation of the welfare state's main lines. "The anti-socialism of Menzies (the new prime minister, Robert Menzies) and Fadden (Arthur Fadden, leader of the Coalitionist country party) is raiser expressed as a general reaction against the restrictions and controls through which the labor party operated."

The Financial Times said that while the Australian elections were fought on issues similar to those likely to be involved in Britain in 1950, the analogy nonetheless "cannot and should not be pressed too far."

The newspaper said both the New Zealand and Australian electorates "served a very much longer stretch of labor rule before getting their fill than the five years served so far by the British electorate."

The Conservative Daily Mail said the Australian and New Zealand elections show the "British people the only so-called free nation on earth who are still burdened, restricted and harassed by a rigid system which kills liberty and enterprise . . . Surely it is not too much to expect that this land which gave the idea of freedom to mankind will follow the example of her sister nations and find it again."

The Conservative-minded Daily Express urged British Conservatives to heed the lesson from down under. "Cease being 'half-socialists' and 'realize that a genuine, dynamic policy is needed if the socialists are to be overthrown in Britain."

LENGTHY DEBATE FEATURES CLOSE OF PARLIAMENT

Members Wade Thru Mass of Business

Ottawa, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Moves toward constitutional independence and expel opposition attacks against the government's handling of public affairs provided the highlights in the first session of Canada's 21st parliament.

The session ended at 9:35 p.m. Saturday when Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret entered the senate and before assembled members of the senate and commons read the speech from the throne proroguing parliament.

Members waded through a mass of business in the final hours Saturday, approving the estimates of a number of departments rapidly. Only Agriculture department estimates produced lengthy debate.

During discussion of his department's estimates, Agriculture Minister Gardiner bluntly declared that officials of the Canadian government are carrying on a deliberate onslaught against Canadian food products.

He said the British government did not want to buy from Canadian food products, other than wheat, at any price.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, suggested that the British could not buy Canadian food because of the currency situation. The suggestion was supported by Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia).

George Drew, Progressive conservative leader, said Mr. Gardiner was trying to "hide" behind the British government to justify opinistic statements he had been making in recent years. He argued that Canada and Britain are together to solve the currency problem.

The debate on agriculture and the sale of food products was just one of the incidents during the session, which opened Sept. 15.

Engine Takes Fire In Routine Flight Approaching Base

Crashes and Explodes Three Miles West of Rednersville

Four members of the R.C.A.F. at Trenton Air Station were killed Sunday at noon when their two-engined Mitchell bomber type aircraft crashed on the farm of Earl Onderdonk, three miles west of Rednersville in Prince Edward county.

The aircraft had been out on a routine flight and was returning to its base at Trenton when the crash occurred.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Denis C. L. Weber, D.F.C., of the Royal Air Force, was at the controls. His body with a parachute attached was found 1,000 feet from the wreckage.

The other victims were P/O. Leo Vincent Peppin, 25, of Ottawa, co-pilot; LAC. William G. Nevon, 24, of Brockville, Ont., a meteorological observer; and LAC. Allan F. McIntosh, 24, of Dunbarton, Ont., an engine technician.

He won the D.F.C. for sinking a German submarine while an North Atlantic patrol. He brought his wife and young daughter here from England, and his term with the RCAF would have been completed in another month.

McIntosh leaves his wife and three-year-old daughter at Trenton. Neson, who re-enlisted this year at Edmonton after service in the Second World War, is survived by his widow, Peppin, unmarried, is survived by his' parents at Ottawa.

MINISTERS MEET TO STUDY FUTURE FARM ECONOMY

"Deliberate Onslaught" in U.K. to Stop Buying in Canada Says Gardiner

Ottawa, Dec. 12—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner says Canada's 10 provinces will gather here today in a three-day Dominion-Provincial conference to study the future of the country's farm economy.

A forewarning of what the future would hold was given in the Commons on prorogation-day, Saturday, when Agriculture Minister Gardiner declared there was an official "deliberate onslaught" in the United Kingdom to stop buying food from Canada.

"The British people still like our food," said Mr. Gardiner, "and still want to take it, but I am pointing out that officially Great Britain doesn't want it."

Gathering with the provincial ministers here are officials of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, spokesmen for some 650,000 Canadian farmers.

Mr. Gardiner will ask Mr. Gardiner to elaborate on his remarks on the future of the U.K. market, which Canada has built up during the last quarter century as its biggest and most important market for Canadian foodstuffs.

The gravity of Mr. Gardiner's remarks are imbedded in the fact that there still is a great deal of mystery and doubt about 1950 Anglo-Canadian food contracts.

Negotiations over the renewal of new contracts still are continuing and it appears likely that Mr. Gardiner may announce completion of negotiations before the conference ends Wednesday. The discussions are being held both in London and Ottawa between representatives of the Federal agriculture department and the British Food Ministry.

WARD AND PARTY OF NINETEEN FREE FROM RED CHINA

Departure Under Phoney Charges Delayed by Red Tape

By TOM LAMBERT

Aboard Lakeland Victory, off Tientsin, Dec. 12—(AP)— Angus Ward and his party of 19 are free, at last, from Red China . . . and feeling "just how you'll feel after St. Peter lets you in."

It was the first time in 19 months Ward had been able to move without an armed escort. And 23 days of that time he was in a Chinese Communist jail, in solitary confinement at Mukden, where he was United States Consul-General. On 24 of those days he was kept in unheated, or underheated quarters in freezing temperatures.

His jail menu was six slices of bread daily . . . and hot water.

"That's not a very strengthening or fattening diet," he quipped.

Freed At Last From Surveillance

For all members of the party including Mrs. Ward, several women and some children, it was the first time they had not been under Red surveillance since Nov. 30, 1948. On that date Prague closed the Consulate and clamped such secrecy on their movements and fate that even the U.S. Senate Department knew virtually nothing about them.

For some time today, only Ward was permitted to board this ship.

51-Year-Old 'Intell' Found In Manchester

When an old washstand was broken up in England recently James Hall of Stretford, Manchester, uncovered a copy of The Daily Intelligencer published in Belleville June 2nd., 1826.

The paper which had been concealed for a half a century was in a fair state of preservation and arrived in the Editor's mail recently. It had been used as packing. Hidden some time in the washstand shipped from this locality at the turn of the century.

Contrasting the cost of living with today's prices an ad printed under the name of Vermilyea and Son advertised, "See our carpet slippers for ladies, sizes 3 to 7, only 20 cents per pair."

Commenting on conditions in England Mr. Hall wrote: "What would I give to have over again some of the good things of those days, especially with present day Britain. God Bless Canada."

Christmas Party At Vanity Fair Much Enjoyed

A delightful Christmas party was held on Sunday afternoon at Vanity Fair, when Murray Davis, Regional Supervisor of the Canada Vermilyea Company Ltd., along with Frank Lee, manager of the Belleville store, entertained the children of the employees of these stores, Peterborough, Oshawa and Kingston groups also supervised by Mr. Davis held their parties on the same day. More than eighty children were present for the party and each one received a valuable gift, the gift of the Company from Santa Claus, Bill Purtelle of Picton assisted by James Powell of Trenton, dressed as a clown.

Frank High as Master of Ceremonials put the children at anticipation as he told them, that Santa would soon make his appearance. The children, shepherded by their parents, were on their good behaviour and thoroughly enjoyed the program, that was provided. Mr. Lee, as local manager, welcomed the parents and guests and hoped that each parties would further cement the friendly relations between the Company and the Company and that all would enjoy themselves to the fullest.

Frank Hockaday with "Willie McGuire" entertained the children with a line of patter that embodied the Christmas theme, as well as few jokes were directed at certain members of the Company and Mr. Hollowell which Len Foxard entertained with feats of magic and the children crowded about the platform in their anxiety to see better. The big event then was of the arrival of Santa and Mr. Davis was delegated to hand out the parcels from the beautiful tree that was set up on the floor of the club. As each name was called the parents brought their charges to the front and to each and every one Santa had a kind word and hoped for them happiness in the Christmas season.

At the conclusion of the program a social hour was spent.

His automobile an almost complete wreck when it crashed into a tree on the four-lane highway just inside the eastern limits of the city, Garfield Sanford, 28, of Point Anne, escaped last Sunday evening with bruises and abrasions and a laceration over his left eye.

Sanford was stated to have been attempting to pass another vehicle on the four-lane road when his left wheels caught in the soft shoulder and the car was pulled off the road. The vehicle was stated to have travelled well over 400 feet on the shoulder of the road before it crashed into the tree.

Woman Works Cheat Racket On Store

So there's nothing new under the sun, eh?

"Well, this racket might be an old one but it worked to perfection in a Front Street shop on Saturday.

It seems the mest department of the store there two slips for each parcel of meat sold. One is attached to the parcel given to the customer. The other is retained by the clerk.

A woman purchased two parcels of meat, one costing 32 cents, the other $1.36.

When she reached the cashier's desk, the slip bearing the larger amount was missing. Naturally the clerk could not check the cost.

The lady decided to leave the other parcel, and paid the 32 cents.

You guessed it. She had removed the larger slip, (it was found later) and placed it on a shelf on her way to the cashier's desk, and then placed the 32-cent slip on more expensive parcel.

The incident occurred at a busy hour when customers were lined up and this fact helped the slick woman to make her getaway before the trick was discovered.

Three Injured In Two Separate Car Accidents

Three persons were admitted to Belleville Hospital over the week-end as result of two separate motor accidents.

Saturday noon Michael Brant, aged 6, and his sister Verna, May Brant, aged 4, were injured when the car in which they were riding was struck by a gasoline truck at Shannonville. The boy suffered a fractured pelvis and broken collar bone while his sister had severe scalp lacerations.

The two children were riding in a car driven by Leo Stewart of Shannonville who was coming out of a driveway in Deseronto when his vehicle was struck by the gasoline truck driven by John C. Hudgins, Napanee. Both vehicles were badly damaged, the gasoline truck turning on its side.

Sunday afternoon H. Harris, 20 Johnston Street, Belleville, suffered a fractured back and five broken ribs when the car in which he was riding went out of control on Highway No. 14 near the Mountain View cheese factory. The car driven by George Sweetman, 43 Hillside Street, glued on the slippery roadway and went into the ditch.

Both accidents were investigated by Provincial Constable J. Thompson.

YULETIDE SPIRIT AT LARGE

The Christmas spirit has already reached every part of the civilized world. The season has cast its shadow before and the usual activities which accompany the celebration are starting. Christmas entertainments, purchasing and its familiar rush, preparations for homecomings — all speed up at this time of year and nothing can damp up the intensity with which preparations are laid for the coming festival, which is the height of not only the season but of the entire year.

It is the time of carols which have sung their way into human hearts down the ages. That is one of the simplest voices of Christmastide when the people become vocal in hymn and carol.

Already the colors of the season are dominant in the shops. No one could mistake the evidence that the winter festival is at hand. Christmas trees have been making their appearance on the city market. In the churches the preludes to the great volume of anthems heralding the season of good will to all mankind are heard.

The time gathers up all the riches of the ages to celebrate Christmas.

PREVENTION

Dr. Edward L. Bortz, past president of the American Medical Association, tells a way to prevent blood vessel breakdown which is the cause of four times as many deaths as cancer. He says, "Physicians have told us that people do not take care of themselves, they take too few baths, eat too much of the wrong foods and do not bother to relax. And "that's really what kills people," he says. "They wear out their bodies 30 years too soon." They get run down by neglect. The ailments this causes are heart failure, strokes, varicose veins and high blood pressure.

He has launched a drive for health conservation as an answer to the heavy toll of these diseases, and he notes that "the whole philosophy must be changed from curing people when they get sick to one of keeping people from getting sick at all."

And the place to start is in the kindergartens, he says, if possible, where the subjects are the science of living as how to eat and how to exercise, how to work and the importance of adequate elimination.

Lengthening of life's span has ever been the dream of man. One of the Hebrew patriarchs, Methuselah, said to have reached a great age, became a symbol of healthy great age, the dream of mankind from the earliest dawn of civilization.

Doctor Bortz does not look for an age equivalent to Methuselah's but he sees the possibility of the addition of thirty per cent to the length of man's years. That would make one hundred years possible for many according to his view.

The average age of mankind in the countries where medical knowledge is advanced is steadily on the rise. That is due to discovery and the science of knowledge of the human body. Now in China, he says as proof of this, three out of five children die under the age of five. Saving the lives of the young and control of epidemics and widespread knowledge of and health measures under control of governments and municipal health measures would do much. All in all it is a healthier world that we occupy today, as the doctor says, than in the United States C. M. Reid, W. B. Deacon, J. E. Walmsley, F. E. O'Flynn, H. W. Ackerman, R. J. Graham, N. J. Bailey, J. H. Deroche, D. H. Hooper, R. J. Ackerman, George Gibbard and Judge Deroche.

A church league is proposed in the city. The idea is a good one; it has proved successful in many places. Get together boys.

Merchants state that business on Saturday was excellent and it is expected that turkeys will reach a price of 19 cents per pound before Christmas.

No candidates for municipal honors are yet in the field.

Belleville Market: Prices: Butter, 26 cents to 27 cents per pound; eggs, 25 cents per dozen; chickens, 60 cents to $1.00 per pair; ducks, $1.00 to $1.50 per pair; potatoes 40 cents to 50 cents per bag.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 12th., 1919.

At a meeting of the Senior Boys' Brigade in connection with St. Thomas' Parish the following were elected: Captain, Fred Wallbridge; First Lieut., Bert Allen; Second Lieut., W. Bogert; Secretary, J. Thompson; First Sergt., Harry Tom Holden; Third Sergt. W. Huff.

The high wind today carried away the flag staff and the flag from the top of the Town House.

Some time last night the selling yacht Iolanthe, which was anchored off the southeast corner of Victoria Park, sank and this morning only her mast was visible. An effort to raise her was made in vain this afternoon.

The snow shovel is a bad second to the umbrella so far this winter.

20 YEARS AGO

The annual meeting of the Belleville branch of the Bible Society was held in the school room at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when Rev. A. Cook; Treasurer, Rev. A. L. Geen.

At the annual meeting of the Board of Albert College it was decided to proceed with the building of the new college upon the property donated by the City of Belleville. The following were appointed to complete the building committee: C. M. Reid, W. B. Deacon, J. E. Walmsley, F. E. O'Flynn, H. W.

MOON OVER STANTON STREET WITH GUITARS

Last night I got a phone call from my Aunt Frieda.

"If you're home quick," she said, "come quick, Your Uncle Charlie is in trouble."

Half an hour later I was in the flat on the lower East Side where Frieda has been keeping house and hearth for my uncle for the past 25 years.

"What's up?" I asked.

"Charlie is hiding in Brooklyn with his brother," said Frieda.

"Hiding from what?"

"From Solomon Schloomp, the butcher, who is telling how he is going to knock out your uncle's eye."

"What did Charlie do to Schloomp?"

"What didn't he do!" said Frieda. "But better I should tell it to you in seagoing ....."

"So happens last summer your uncle and me, we are one afternoon taking the air on Delancey Street. On the sidewalks, like always, is all kinds chalk-marks and scratch-ups from children and such-and-such has been seeing all his life.

"Is Mary touching,' says Charlie, 'is here on the sidewalks the soul of the whole East Side.' He's a kind expression. Some day should be a real painter to draw up the beauties here.

"Well, like you know, with Charlie to say a thing is something crazy. The next night he is going to the settlement house and is taking with him a piece of chalk and a little a fat girl in a kitchen as it starts. Charlie is a scholars are holding out their thumbs and squinting with the eyes.

"Draw exactly what you see,' says the teacher.

"Half hour later, when the teacher comes for the work, Charlie says that he has done, he begins making noises like busting.

"On Charlie's sheet is only a picture of a thumbnail sitting on top a big pencil.

"That's a class in drawing, not manicuring,' says the teacher. 'You got to learn more complicated ideas.'

"When Charlie comes homes mad, I tell him, 'Let sleeping dogs stay sleeping.' But you know your uncle. Next day drawbe is going your town to the Museum from Modern Art, and when he gets back he is all soggick.

"'Frieda,' he says, 'to be a painter, it don't need perspective. What he needs is guitars. A picture can be a piece fruit or a chair with one legmakes no difference so long as in the corner is a guitar.'

"So, for the next week he is painting guitars — Moon Over Stanton Street with Guitars, Baby on Pushcart with Guitars, and even a picture, Guitar with Onlooker.

"Then, a few weeks later, he buys five files, is opening a little ropollitan for fifty cents a show from a Frenchman on Van Glick, 'Van Goldberg, something ..

"Van Gogh!' I suggested.

"Why this obsession can be long as you're healthy," said Aunt Frieda. "When Charlie is coming from the museum he is saying, 'Today I find out something about-by hair-raising. This Van Cook is all his life selling one picture for few measly dollars, but now when he is dead and can't sell his paintings is worth thirty million. By the time I am dead I make, you will be likewise dead and gone, so who gets the thirty million? My brother. Who should like to have my thirty million? Let him go out and make his own paintings. From now on, I am strictly a old-style realist and am painting only what I see, like Grandma Moses. Which items signing Charlie Schloomp."

"Next day Charlie is going to see our butcher, 'I am going to paint Schloomp,' he says, 'and it says, a whole panorama and Schloomp, likewise. Will be good for the cash register.'

"Schloomp says, 'What I got to do?' And Charlie says I am a mural which he calls by name, Anti Fricda. 'In Herman's cafe, finished Schloomp is saying when he see your uncle he knocks out his eye.

"Was it that bad?" I asked.

"No, your uncle is borrowing from such a picture," said my Aunt Frieda. "In Herman's cafe, Schloomp is sitting and Charlie is painting on the wall nice cute Hinderscene, and Schloomp's first class plucked chickens. But in the middle is the Spirit of Modern Art, a fifteen-pound ..... you should excuse the expression — Virginia ham."

Mackenzie's Column:

Conservatives Jubilant Over Election Results

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Britain's Conservatives naturally are jubilant over the outcome of the New Zealand and Australian elections which have revitalized their Socialist government and replaced them with parties standing for the restoration of private initiative.

The Conservatives profess to believe that these upsets presage a political trend in the direction of socialistic government in the forthcoming general election in Britain. Labor party stalwarts are saying little—and indeed there isn't much for them to say.

As a matter of fact one takes the New Zealand and Australian election returns with a grain of source. On the other hand Britain is small, padly overcrowded and has few natural resources. She can't even grow the food to feed herself.

The two prosperous Dominions are naturally endowed to undertake private enterprise programs and what is called by "free enterprise," Robert Gordon Menzies, who was Australian Prime Minister from 1939 to 1941 said will be her new head of government, has made a study of an area in which ambition is encouraged in which there are rewards for the energetic and the ingenious. Saving, in which "there is no foolish timidity" and in which initiative is active and the idle, the intelligent and dull, frugal and improvident.

Has Britain reached an economic impasse? Are we on the way to depart from the dashing days of the private initiative upon which we have operated for years? The Conservatives emphatically deny it. Britain, they say, is not finished and maintain that she is capable of recovery.

The Conservatives also believe the country can recover, but by their own admission recognized that they think the rehabilitation must be achieved through welfare government.

So the thing simmers down to the proposition that the success of the government is right. The British voters must decide that at the general election next year.

Says UN Will Not Implement Resolution

Montreal, Dec. 13 — (CP) — The United Nations will not implement its resolution to internationalize Jerusalem, Reuven Shreiman, deputy mayor of Jerusalem and member of the Israeli U. In an address to members of the Montreal Jewish community, he said that, should internationalization of Jerusalem be attempted, Israel will not submit under any circumstances to foreign rule."

WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY "NERVOUSNESS?"

Everybody knows what nervousness is except me. For many years I have been trying to understand what a person means when he says he is nervous. I get a different answer from every one. Mostly, the answer is "Well, you know, nervousness." If I don't know what nervousness is, what can I get out of the patient who says his trouble is nervousness?

A patient went to a doctor and said he was nervous. Pinned down, he finally stated that his "nervous" sensation was difficulty in breathing on certain occasions when he was conscious of attraction. The doctor found a failing, degenerated heart. His nervous system appeared to be normal. Another patient complained of nervousness and admitted that he got "indigestion" when social affairs became a bit strenuous. That, to him, was nervousness. The doctor found he had an ulcer of the stomach.

A lady complaining of nervousness finally owned up to a constant suspicion of her husband's fidelity. Her suspicions being proved groundless on numerous occasions, entailing emotional outbursts, she sought to explain her actions on the basis of nervousness." Another lady complained of nervousness and found to be depressed by apparent sterility and feared that she might have cancer. Another complaining of nervousness finally confessed to financial worries and a considerable sum of other people's money in fast women and slow horses.

A lady wa: found to have a morbid, incessant fear of cancer. To her, that was nervousness. A man complaining of nervousness stated that everyone called him "nervous" he developed a headache. A woman said she had a brain tumor. He admitted that he always had a headache. A woman sweat profusely, was under the weight, cried on slight provocation, was constipated and said she "running away," suffered from insomnia, re acted violently to slightly unpleasant things in her environment, and laid the whole situation to nervousness. She was found to have a toxic goiter. She insisted that her "nerves" were "shattered."

The statement, "I'm just a bundle of nerves," means nothing to a doctor. "Doctor, its my nerves," is equally meaningless. It is the supposition that he is "nervous" many a patient has suggested to him that he should take "some of my nerve medicine." The experienced physician is usually on the alert when someone mentions nervousness. It is not unusual for a person to use it as a subterfuge to fallied in some duty or function, or to cover inadequacy, or as a excuse or his delinquency and it to try to convince a physician of his spurious claims, and thus use

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SIX WORDS OF GLORY

Ambition is a mighty force in life when held within proper bounds. When it gets out of control, it is devastating in its effect. Many no one can enjoy a purposeful life day by day without being fired by real ambition. And this is the setting up of worthy goals in life and pressing towards them.

What is the goal worthy of a Christian? Volumes might be written on this, but may not the whole matter be expressed in a few brief words? The ambition of Christ in connection with which we pear to be to fulfill the spiritual destiny God has appointed for him; so to live every day that at the journey's end he will hear these six thrilling words being spoken to him: "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Is there in all the world a man's gaining the whole world and losing his soul. We read the others have held high position or have left great fortunes, often we know, as everyone else does, that these people, in spite of their glamorous careers, were huge failures in the sight of God.

Strive for those six words! Well done, good and faithful servant. The only ambition worth while in life is to gain more by a millionfold than man and his glittering world can give.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

There has been quite a stir in humane circles following the revelation, a couple of weeks ago, at one of the big Canadian dog shows, that the trainers of jumping horses use long sticks to whip the horses on the shins as they soar over the hurdles.

The trainer stands at the hurdle, on the ground. The rider sets the horse at the jump. And as he goes over, if he hasn't the forelegs or hind legs neatly tucked up, the horse gets a lively smack on the shins.

Since these horses cost hundreds and often thousands of dollars each, it is highly probable that the trainers do not like to hurt them. Training animals is much the same whether they are human beings.

Those of us who never were spanked are probably all in jail. Love and infinite patience has doubtless trained many a little dog. But most little dogs are trained with many, a yell and many a yelp, and many a folded newspaper imparting terrific and harmless wallops; and sometimes a kick in the pants.

Whether a horse can be trained to his trade with love alone, the way the maudlin ladies hold might train one of those little, scared, show-type spaniels with soft boldly forebeads and astounded eyes, is a question. The budgerigar is little spanked as a rule, perfectly trained, by love, to come and to go, and to talk and to be good never, never wet the carpet except when badly frightened by the commotion of a bad voice of the curate; or someone's mother-in-law. If love alone can teach a colt to give and have and whoa, then farm boys that grow up with the world's great lovers.

Animals, we think too, have had a tough time all across the world's history; always have had always will. In teaching them, the quickest way is the hard way; men and animals both. But thanks to those who have the brilliant humane spirit, there has been, from the dawn of time, a teeny, weeny little improvement in the lot of animals.

And for that, and to them, the dumb creatures, we must be eternally grateful.

Asked to Lower Prices

It was learned that the U.K. has asked Canada to lower prices of exportable foodstuffs, and even then, it appeared unlikely that the U.K. would take more than bacon and cheese in 1950.

This year's contract called for the shipment of 140,000,000 bushels of wheat at $2 a bushel; 160,000,000 pounds of bacon at 32c a hundredweight; about 46,000,000 dozen eggs at about 46 cents a dozen and 50,000,000 pounds of cheese at 30 cents a pound.

Besides these contracts there were others for $3,000,000 worth of apples—half of which went as a gift of the federal government —$7,000,000 worth of salmon and $100,000 worth of fruit pulp.

Canada has completed shipment of the cheese and fruit pulp, and most of the eggs, salmon and apples. She is in the process of shipping the wheat and last small part of the bacon contract—about 58,000,000 pounds. A short domestic supply has forced her to curtail further shipments of bacon.

More to Contract

Next year there may be a contract for cheese—about 48,000,000 pounds, if Canada reduces the price to about 28 cents a pound—and for bacon, about 60,000,000 pounds, again if the price is reduced from 32c a hundredweight to about 25c.

There is little to indicate that there will be any contracts for eggs, salmon, apples or fruit pulp. The wheat contract, which ends next July, likely will be renewed under the terms of the international wheat agreement of which both Canada and the U.K. are members.

The conference, which will study the outlook for all farm commodities, likely may end up by asking Mr. Gardiner for price recommendations. Items for which there appear to be few markets in sight.

As for cheese, the government now is supporting the price by purchasing at 30 cents a pound and storing it for aging and possible export by the U.S. This surplus now amounts to about 17,000,000 pounds.

REJECTION

The Express said Britain ought "to give thanks at the end of this day for the deep, quiet sanity of the British Empire."

Both the Conservative Daily Telegraph and the Liberal Daily Herald commented on Menzies' appeal to British Conservatives to follow the Australian example.

The Telegraph termed the appeal "unusual frankness, even among fellow members of the British Commonwealth." The Herald, on the other hand, said it is a "pity Mr. Menzies should have made a propaganda statement intended to influence opinion against the Labor government.

The Liberal News Chronicle said the British Conservative press had "succumbed to temptation" in declaring from the New Zealand and Australian results the prospects for their own victory next year. "It would be just as reasonable and just as speculative to suppose that because these two prosperous Dominions have survived socialism for 13 and eight years respectively British is unlikely to cry 'finis' after only four."

District Film Council Holds Monthly Meeting

The Belleville and District Film Council held its regular monthly meeting in the Carby Public Library, on Thursday evening. The president, Mr. C. A. Holmes, was in the chair and there were representatives from various organizations as well as several interested individuals present.

The films, "Canada Calling", "It's Fun to Sing", "Christmas Carols" and "Who Will Teach My Child" have been received. In print of the film, "First Steps" is being circulated by the Rotary Club of Belleville and will be available for distribution soon.

The class for training operators has been meeting on Saturday afternoons. Plans are being made for continuing these classes in 1950 with an evening class for those unable to attend in the afternoon.

A film workshop is being arranged for this district and January 30 and 31 have been selected as tentative dates. Demonstrations on how to use films, advanced training for operators, the care and maintenance of projectors and projection lights will be included in the program.

Rates to Continue

It was decided that single membership rates should continue to be two dollars per year. Where there are several groups in one organization and where a group membership may be obtained for five dollars annually.

The committee studying the demand for religious films reported that several groups are interested. Others want more information as it becomes available. This committee (Sister Mary Verda, Mrs. G. Sparling and Mr. J. Wilson) was asked to continue to explore the field of audio-visual presentation.

"Canadian Film News" is a magazine edited by the National Film Society at Ottawa. It contains articles from across Canada of interest to film fans. Copies were on display and may be seen at the Library.

Many Films Shown

Mr. Ward, the N.F.B. representative, reported that during the month of November over 7500 persons had attended the showing of films from the local library. He showed three films on widely different subjects. "Out In Pain" shows the ravages of drug affliction. "Winter Blunderland" was a sponsored film demonstrating how to drive safely in winter. "What is Democracy" can be best appreciated by seeing it but it should stir up a discussion anywhere.

From the middle of December until the middle of January the colored films on the Royal Wedding will be left in the Library.

Wellington on the Lake

DECEMBER,
There is magic in December,
And a spirit in the air.
And a sense of tender gladness,
You can feel it everywhere.
And in spite of frost and blizzar,
And in spite of tempest's blow,
We can feel its singing presence,
In the softly falling snow.

You can see the happy spirit
In the faces that you meet,
And the harsher sounds grow sweeter
In the busy bustling street.
And do I need to tell you
Why this gladness and this cheer?
'Tis because the Christmas spirit
Lends its gladness to the year.
—Helen B. Anderson.

The snow that fell Wednesday created a world of white and with a mantle of snow covering all, the Christmastide seems very near. "Only two weeks away," said one busy neighbor who is busily making preparations for the festive season.

NO PEANUTS TO BUY IN U.K. FOR MONKEYS

London, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Peanuts are so scarce in Britain that "it's practically impossible to buy a bag for the monkeys at the zoo. But there'll be 100 tons for sale at Christmas, if you can find them. Deaths attribute the windfall to an official error. It seems that somebody blundered and forgot to put peanuts on the banned list.

LITTLE FOR THEIR TROUBLE

Hamilton, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Thirsty marauders who broke a window at the James St. North Brewer's Warehouse Saturday night went to a lot of trouble with a few free beers, police said. Only a case and a half was taken, and this was removed one bottle at a time through the aperture in the broken glass.

Chiang Missed Going on Plane Caught in Trap

Hong Kong, Dec. 12 (AP) — Former Premier Chang Chun arrived here by plane today after 24 hours' detainment by Communist dissenters in Tsunning.

Chang Chun was caught, along with four top Nationalist army commanders, when turncoat troops took over the city for the Communists. He had gone there Friday to hold the governor of Yunnan Province, Li Han, in the Nationalist camp.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek narrowly missed going to Kunming at the same time, Nationalist sources revealed, and apparently would have been caught in the same trap.

Chiang Kai-Shek, meanwhile, was reported from the Nationalists' island fortress of Formosa to be executing red agents and preparing for an expected Communist attack on the island.

Authorities on Formosa executed 11 alleged Red agents Saturday and Sunday. More than 100 others were reported under arrest.

Intelligence reports received by the Nationalists pointed up the expected Red offensive against Formosa. Those were the Russian military advisers were with Communist forces near the Chusan Islands, a Nationalist attack is expected against these islands as a preparation for the offensive against Formosa.

Step to Counteract Threat

Manila, (AP)—The United States has informed the Philippines privately today that it will "take positive action to counteract the Communist threat to Formosa," a high source at Malacanan Palace said today.

The source added that it was understood the U.S. would send adequate arms to enable Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek to hold his last Nationalist stronghold.

(Washington sources said Sunday that the United States was prepared to give Chiang economic and diplomatic support, but not new military aid, in his effort to turn Formosa into a fortress against Chinese Communists.)

SAYS HE IS KAISER'S SON

This young man describes himself as "Prince Otto Wilhelm Von Hohenzollern" and says he is the youngest son of the late Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany. The "prince" married Virginia Kirk of New Orleans about three weeks ago. Almost immediately his claim to royalty was hotly disputed by members of the German royal family and the prince and his bride moved to Mexico City. Now a German umbrella maker, Burt Curt Kenkel, of Bamberg, Germany, says the "prince" is his lost son, Curt, who was officially reported killed while serving in the German army in 1944. He is sending his son's fingerprints and photograph to New Orleans authorities for a check.— Central Press Canadian.

WARD AND PARTY

Before they would permit the other 19 to come up the gangway, the Communists demanded the Consul General sign a statement that they boarded safely and without molestation."

Ward balked. He said he wouldn't sign until all members of his party were brought onto the ship. But they were held on the tug on which they had been brought from Tientsin.

Finally, Ward signed and all 19 came aboard.

Capt. Paul Sexton of the Lakeland also was forced to sign a statement for the Reds. In it he "assumed full responsibility" for the entire group and their belongings.

Ward declared flatly that his indictment and conviction—basis for Red expulsion of his group—was a travesty. He was charged with beating a Chinese employee. Four aids were convicted of similar charges.

WEDDINGS

CHIPPS—BETTERLEY

Before a background of white chrysanthemums and tiny ponia, the marriage took place of Doris Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Betterley, Carrying Place, to Herbert William Chipps, son of Mrs. A. MOSLEM CRUSADER

Doris Shafik, a slim, chic modern Moslem, is shown at the desk in her Cairo office, where she presides as head of Egypt's feminist movement. She is the leader of a gallant fight to cast off the shackles of tradition and free Egyptian women from centuries of oppression. The 32-year-old mother of two small children and wife of a lawyer, is fighting a harsh tradition with the drab modern weapons. She is out to abolish polygamy in her country because she believes it undermines the status of wives and tends to map the family circle. For all her modernism, this crusader for women's rights is a Moslem devoted to her faith. She holds a doctorate of philosophy from the Sorbonne in Paris, and as a sideline to all her other activities, runs a women's magazine called "Daughters of the Nile." — Central Press Canadian.

RCAF, Trenton, was groomsman, and ushers were Mr. Anthony Norris and Mr. John Jeffery, also of the RCAF, Trenton.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Chapped hands a seasonal worry

If you are the boss of the domestic woes around, scouring and scrubbing, dusting and dishwashing, it may occur to you that you would love to sit on a cushion, in fine seam and live on strawberries and cream. This thought comes with terrific force when you regard a pair of paws that should not belong to a perfect lady. Though your sense of duty may be highly developed, though you have pride in your home, and take the daily chores without complaint, rough, red hands get you down.

Shortage of household help has made many women realize what an easy life they had in the past when Lucinda or Jennie or Maggie came and dug her out every week, did the cleaning and ironing. As things are, they are lucky to sneak time for a shampoo and manicure at the public attitude works. It is high time for all of them to learn how to take protective measures against goodlooks griefs. Prevention is easy. Let your hands go to seed and they will never look young again. It just won't do.

If you are on familiar terms with the floor mop and the dish cloth, especially if you do heavy work like cleaning the basement and tending the furnace, do give your hands a break. Remember that nature supplies an oil to keep them smooth, but contact with soap and water many times a day removes this natural lubricant.

Get yourself a pair of rubber gloves and wear them when wiping up the kitchen floor. Incidentally these aids were thick and clumsy, interfered with free movements of the fingers. Now they are almost tissue-thin, slip on and off easily, are sold at 5d. to 10 and get a pair of cotton work gloves and wear them when polishing silver or furniture. Furniture polish has a mean way of trickling into the crevices of your knuckles and is hard to remove. It is an easy matter to protect the hands from dirt and grime; it is not easy to restore them to snowy whiteness and velvet smoothness after they have gone grey and old looking.

Well-kept hands, with beautifully-cared-for nails, are a sweet reward for the care they receive. Hands are always before your eyes to rebuke you if you neglect them.

Have a bottle of hand lotion in the kitchen and in each bathroom. Place them where you will see them, where they will remind you of this good-looks duty.

One can't do anything to change the texture of the skin, or their size, but one can cultivate grace of movement, train them to have nice manners, as it were, to present themselves in the best possible light.

The small, soft, dimpled hands do not belong to the woman of the moment. The capable, expressive hand is a greater asset.

OWL NEARLY WRECKS CAR

Godrich, Dec. 12.—(CP) — A large Arctic owl which crashed the windshield of a bread delivery truck almost left farmers north of here without bread for the week-end. The truck, driven by Johnny McGraw, nearly crashed into a ditch when the owl came through the windshield scattering glass and feathers in all directions.

MARIO ... what's Cooking?

in his distinctive feature about Food...

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

Muffins should be warm as ear muffs, but not nearly as smooth.

Corn muffins, bran muffins and nut muffins are in the best culinary tradition because they are tender, but crunchy at the same time. A muffin that is smooth, like a Twin Mountain muffin, is almost a deadbeat. It's half a cake, and should be eaten with jelly at the end of the meal.

But warm muffins of a crumblier complexion can be piled high along with everything else in the bread basket. They may be eaten with soup, meat and fish or any of the other big acts at the table.

Muffins should be taken out of the oven about 15 minutes before they're served. This is perhaps why commercial bakeries sell so few and why muffins must almost necessarily be baked in home kitchens.

Muffins shouldn't be kept from one day to the next or even from one meal to the next. If a dozen is too many, cut the recipe in half. The number of muffins baked from any formula will depend on the size of your muffin pans. In any event never fill them more than half full; bake them in the centre of the oven shelf.

Grease a muffin pan well with shortening; be sure all sections used are well greased.

Sift together 1 cup previously sifted all-purpose flour, 3-4 cup fine yellow cornmeal, 2 teaspoons double action baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons sugar. Cut 1-2 cup pitted dates into small cubes. Don't smash them. Add pieces of dates to flour mixture.

Beat 1 egg slightly and combine with 1 cup of milk. Add to the milk 1-4 cup cooled melted shortening—butter, margarine, or lard. If shortening is not cooled it will curdle when mixed with cold milk. Salad oil may be substituted for shortening.

Add flour mixture all at once to dry ingredients. Combine by chopping and stirring only until flour is dampened. Batter should be very coarse and lumpy—not smooth.

Fill muffin pans 1-2 full. Bake until brown, 20-25 minutes.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope for his reply.

H. and S. Club Of Q.C.I. School Holds Meeting

A lengthy meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Club was held in the school auditorium on Thursday evening last with Mrs. A. L. Hopkins, president in the chair. The guests were welcomed by the president and an especial welcome was extended to the grade eight pupils, who attended in a body. The minutes of the last meeting were adopted and the treasurer, E. M. Lush, reported the finances in excellent condition.

It was decided, after an informative talk by Miss Phyllis May, teacher of music, to send a school grade at the expense of the club to the musical festival to be held in Kingston early in the New Year. A committee was formed from the club to promote a skating carnival for the school and arrangements were also completed for the holding of the Fathers' Night meeting early in January. C. I. Frederick, principal of the school, gave a report of the activities of the pupils during the past month, which showed discipline of a high order.

Varied Program

The meeting was turned over to the program committee under the chairmanship of Harold Reynolds. Recitations were given by Carolyn and Bobby Franklin and two piano solos by Ronald McBride, which was appreciated by the parents. The grade eight pupils also gave three numbers, while the Carol singing was conducted by Willis Jackson. Miss Phyllis May, A.R.C.T., was the principal speaker and she spoke on the subject "The Development of Music Through the Grades" which was interesting and educational. Miss May explained that any child can be taught to sing in tune. The speaker was introduced by the principal and thanks expressed by the president.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Simmons and her group of the social committee.

Long Distance Phone Bill Jolts Lovelorn Sailor

This could happen in Belleville. It did happen in Toronto.

A lovelorn sailor on leave stepped into a pay phone booth and placed a person-to-person call to his sweetheart in Halifax.

The sailor dropped in his $3.50 when his girl friend came on the line. The conversation between the two just nicely got underway at the end of the regulated time. "Your three minutes are up," broke in the operator. "the rate will be $4.50 at the end of four minutes and 90 cents each additional minute after that. Signal when through . . . please."

A half-hour later the absorbed sailor under cupid's spell, was still talking.

Ten minutes later he drooled goodbyes, thinking nothing about the shock to come.

With 90 cents in his hand, the happy sailor flashed for his report.

The tar could have been knocked down with a feather when the operator told him the forty-minute talk had cost him $36.

"I thought the four-minute rate covered the whole call," explained the bewildered sailor. "You have taken my whole week's wages," he cried.

The sailor did not have enough money on him to cover the bill but the matter was straightened up by putting the charge on his parents' home phone before he left the booth.

In his address, Mr. Lawley gave a vivid description of the advancements that had been made during his term of office and also of the plans that are being carried out at present to be enabled in the different departments such as education, occupations, and suitable living quarters, where they may receive valuable assistance. Mr. Wesley Hollin introduced the speaker and the appreciation of the Kiwanians was voiced by John Bristol. Mrs. Lawley who accompanied Mr. Lawley was the recipient of a box of candy from the club.

Major Advances in Canada's Constitutional Evolution Made in First Session

Ottawa, Dec. 12 — (CP) — First session of the 21st Parliament may go down in history as one that marked major advances in Canada's constitutional evolution.

In the 82nd year since Confederation, parliament took steps to obtain for Canada the power to amend her own constitution in most matters within federal jurisdiction. A preliminary move was made to obtain similar power with respect to matters under provincial jurisdiction.

Legislation was passed to abolish appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London and to make the Supreme Court of Canada the final court of appeal.

The constitutional changes were made after Prime Minister St. Laurent was returned to the Commons with the largest majority held by any party in history. In a fresh 27 general election, his first as head of the Liberal party, he won 193 of the 262 seats in the Commons.

But the large majority did not mean smooth sailing for the government throughout the session. On several occasions wave after wave of opposition criticism rocked government benches.

The criticism reached its peak when it was discovered that the government had failed in its pursuance for 10 months a report of an alleged price-fixing combine in the flour-milling industry. The law required publication within 15 days of receipt of the report.

Little Opposition

There was limited opposition to the constitutional debates, which the Speech from the Throne at the opening of the session, Sept. 15 said were "designed to facilitate the attainment of the constitutional limits of nationhood."

The power to amend the constitution — the British North America Act — has rested exclusively with the United Kingdom Parliament since 1871 when the Canadian provinces decided to federate.

As a result of the legislation sponsored by Prime Minister St. Laurent, the Canadian parliament now will be able to amend the constitution on all federal matters except those dealing with education or the use of the French and English languages.

Mr. St. Laurent called a Dominion - Provincial conference for Jan. 10 to discuss the possibility of transferring to Canada the power to amend the constitution in matters under provincial jurisdiction.

Proposes Conference

In the dwindling days of the session, Mr. St. Laurent announced he was proposing a Dominion - Provincial conference for the fall of 1950 to discuss matters of "common concern" to the various governments. It is expected that social-security measures and taxation agreements will be the major items discussed.

Besides the constitutional measures, there was a wide variety of other legislation passed during the three-month session.

Members ratified the 1949-50 election-year budget which provided for record tax revenues, particularly in the personal income field. The budget was introduced first at the last session of the 20th Parliament but was not passed before the election, although it took effect immediately. It was reintroduced Oct. 20 with minor changes and was adopted.

Build New Highway

Also adopted was a measure authorizing the federal government to spend up to $150,000,000 on the construction of a $300,000,000 four-lane, hard-surfaced, Trans-Canada highway, the provinces will pay the remainder. Work is expected to start next spring.

Two bills were aimed at encouraging coal production in the Maritimes and in the construction of ships in Canadian yards. The first provided for loans to coal mines to encourage mechanization. The second provided for a change in depreciation procedure to permit a quicker write-off of new ships for taxation purposes.

There was no action on agricultural legislation. One bill was passed increasing payments to farmers for cattle destroyed because of tuberculosis. Another measure eased the eligibility requirements under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act.

Reshuffle Department

Three bills provided for a reshuffling of the functions of the Departments of Mines and Resources, Reconstruction and Supply and Secretary of State. A new department was formed to take care of immigration and citizenship matters, with the former under the Resources Department and the latter under the Secretary of State Department.

Some of the other functions of the Resources Department will come under the new Department of Mines and Technical Surveys.

Most of the functions of the Reconstruction Departments will be transferred to the Department of Resources and Development.

As usual, there was a large number of bills sponsored by private members, but only one of them was accepted by the government. It was a measure sponsored by E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops) providing for a two-year jail term to anyone found guilty of publishing, distributing or selling crime comics. With minor amendments by the government, the bill was adopted by both Commons and Senate.

ASK PRAYERS FOR RAIN

New York, Dec. 12 (AP) — Francis Cardinal Spellman Friday requested New York's Roman Catholics to pray for rain for three months and the water commissioner urged installation of water meters as the city's water supplies lessened steadily. The city's reservoirs are nearly two-thirds empty. A vast campaign against waste has been launched.

Delegates Hold Assembly Marked up Some Achievements

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 12 — (CP) — The first United Nations' legislative acts in major political and economic spheres contrasted with the tougher-than-ever East-West taunts in the record of the U. N.'s fourth assembly.

The session opened Sept. 20 with fervent hopes expressed by Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines that it would be a "peace assembly." After 12 weeks, the series of bitter recriminations exchanged between Russia and the Western Powers out-weighed the bids for co-operation.

Tension built up after President Truman disclosed Russia is evidence of an atomic explosion in Russia.

The East-West deadlock on the atomic question remained, yet some observers felt that the assembly marked up achievements.

Small countries displayed new disdain for Soviet policy. With Sweden, Burma, India, Iceland and Pakistan coming out of their neutral corner, the U. N. Secretariat won unprecedented majorities on the basis of peace proposals and atomic energy control — in which Canada was a leader.

However, exasperation of the cold war and the minor role they have bidden to play in the world organization was voiced by some smaller powers.

The Western countries cast the deciding votes Nov. 21 when the U.N. acted for the first time as a world legislature in disposing of Mussolini's former African empire.

Put to Severe Test

The adventure in state-making provided for setting up independent countries in Libya by 1952 and Italian Somaliland within 10 years, with Italian administration under the U. N. meanwhile. A U.N. investigating commission was told to report next year on Eritrea — the third of the strategic colonies.

But the U.N. was put to a severe test on other colonial issues. Efforts to annex Eritrea and Italian Somaliland within 10 years, with Italian administration under the U. N. meanwhile. A U.N. investigating commission was told to report next year on Eritrea — the third of the strategic colonies.

But the U.N. was put to a severe test on other colonial issues. Efforts to annex Eritrea by Britain and France, indicated they will not comply with approved U. N. resolutions which they deem unwarranted interference in their non-self-governing territories.

South Africa walked out of a committee in protest over conduct of the debate on Southwest Africa, a former League of Nations mandated area which South Africa has repeatedly refused to bring under the U.N. trusteeship system.

Ran's Unanimous Vote

Despite'all squabbles, there was a rare unanimous vote on a plan to aid under-developed countries. The assembly doubled the amount already spent on that type of work, bringing it to $477,000. It also laid the ground for an international conference in March in draft plans for a multi-million dollar project along the same lines.

Russia and her satellites and the Western Powers continued their battle ion almost all other issues, however.

When Andrei Vishinsky, Russian foreign minister, sailed for home he described the session as "unsatisfactory," a view which Western delegates ascribed to the overwhelming defeat of Vishinsky's main proposal. That was a plea for a pact among the Big Five powers and prohibition of atomic weapons linked with the United States, Britain and the United States as plotters of a new war.

Instead the assembly gave the Western Powers the largest majority in U.N. history on a major issue — the vote was 53 to 5 with Yugoslavia abstaining — to approve an Anglo-American outline of the essentials for permanent peace.

Directly Attacked

L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, was directly attacked by Vishinsky for the first time after he said Russia is waging an aggressive imperialism that threatens the world.

Pearson's statements in the main assembly on peace and atomic control were final proof to a delegate that Canada is not a major spokesman of the Western Powers whose opinions receive an attentive ear everywhere.

Canada's importance in atomic matters was indicated when the Dominion joined with France to sponsor a resolution approved by the assembly. It endorsed the majority plan for atomic controls and called on the Big Five powers and Canada to continue talks seeking to end the impasse.

The assembly also took action on the following top questions on the 56-item agenda:

China — Side-stepping Nationalist China's call for condemnation of Russia and non-recognition of the Chinese Communists, the assembly urged all countries to keep hands off China.

Elected — India, Ecuador and Yugoslavia were elected to the 11-member Security Council to replace Canada, Argentina and the Soviet Ukraine who finished two-year terms Oct. 31. Canada, Mexico, Iran, the United States, Pakistan and Czechoslovakia were elected to three-year terms on the 18-member Economic and Social Council starting Jan. 1. Pearson's election as chairman of the 59-member Political Committee was viewed as an indication of the influence accorded him by most delegates.

Human Rights — The question of whether Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria violated the human rights clauses of the peace treaties, was referred to the International Court of Justice for a ruling. This grew out of the trials of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary and Protestant church leaders in Bulgaria.

Greece — An arms embargo against Albania and Bulgaria was recommended to last until those countries cease aid to Greek guerrillas.

Congressional Arms — A census of all non-atomic arms was recommended but given no chance of implementation in view of its rejection by Russia, whose all for a census of all arms, including atomic weapons, was defeated.

Best Contribution To N.A. Defence Thru Air Power —Claxton

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Defence Minister Brooke Claxton indicated Saturday he believes Canada can make her most effective contribution to North Atlantic defence through air power.

He told a press conference that the best information available indicates that Canada's emphasis on air force is greater than of any other Allied country in relation to total expenditure on defence.

The Paris meeting of North Atlantic defence ministers had confirmed his impression that this emphasis is the best course for a country of Canada's geographical position.

Claxton said that France and the United Kingdom spent about 30 per cent of their defence funds on their respective air forces. The United States spent 34 per cent and Canada 42.8 per cent.

The Canadian defence minister returns home today, completing a two-week tour of 10,000 miles which included visits to France, Belgium, Luxembourg, The Netherlands and the United Kingdom.

When asked about the possibility of a joint training scheme in Canada for military forces of the Atlantic Pact countries, Claxton reviewed the wartime achievements of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, under which 131,000 men were trained for aircrew in the Dominion.

"I believe the government of the day would adopt the same course if the need arose," he said.

Claxton said he did not believe atomic bombing would be part of Canada's role in military planning.

"We have no plans for a strategical air force of the kind needed for long range bombing," he said. "That doesn't mean that we won't bombs but we won't have the B-36s."

Barking Dog Assisted Hunters To Find Home

Meaford, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP)— A barking farm dog assisted three lost and exhausted Toronto hunters to find the warmth of a Vinter township farmhouse 10 miles south of here Saturday night.

On a jack rabbit drive, the three became separated from companions with Martin (Monty) Mountifield, 70, Toronto Art College, was forced to drop behind from exhaustion. He gave credit to his companion, Peter Bilter, 29, and George James, 35, who carried his gun and pack.

"We kept firing our guns and followed the sound of a dog until we reached the farm house of Maurice Brown," said George James.

FEW OBJECTORS

Montreal, Dec. 12 (CP) — Premier Joseph R. Smallwood of Newfoundland said Friday if a referendum were taken now, less than a year since Newfoundland's union with Canada, there would be a 99 per cent vote in favor of Confederation. The number of dissenters would be "only trifling," the premier said in an interview.

Our greatest asset DOES NOT SHOW IN OUR BALANCE SHEET

Big family — the B of M staff . . . close to ten thousand men and women serving well over a million and a half Canadians in every walk of life from coast to coast.

These are the people who make the B of M — they are our "greatest asset" which no balance sheet can show.

"I am very proud of our staff," said Gordon R. Ball in his report as General Manager to shareholders of the B of M. "The year has been a heavy one in all sections of our business, and our staff have discharged their duties with untiring energy and efficiency . . .

"But mere facts and figures do not, and perhaps cannot, convey to you the spirit and warmth of the services rendered day by day throughout the year, sometimes under most trying circumstances.

"I refer to the staff in many offices where alterations are under way, who carry on with a smile amidst the din of trip-hammers, and with carpenters, plasterers and others working at their trades.

"I refer to the men on the loosely outskirts of Labrador who have unfurled the banner of our institution in territories still undeveloped . . .

"I could go on recounting other tales of a spirit in our institution that cannot be measured in dollars and cents, but which is, nevertheless, our greatest asset . . .

I am very proud of our staff."

ENGINE TAKES FIRE

An RCAF fire truck rushing to the scene hit a hole in the road and smashed into a hydro pole, its driver, LAC. James Bull, was taken to hospital with an injured kneecap.

Took Place at Noon

The crash of the big bomber-type aircraft took place just at noon on Sunday. It crashed in a corner of a pasture field on the Onderdonk farm and exploded on impact.

One of the crew members attempted to bail out of the plane but apparently delayed his jump too long and was killed when his parachute failed to completely open.

No one actually saw the plane hit the ground but several residents of the area saw the plane with one motor afire as it attempted to get back to its base. Then suddenly the plane side-slipped to the left and dove into the ground, the explosion being heard for several miles.

The big two-motored plane crashed into the ground with terrific impact scattering parts of the wreckage about a large area. Motors Scattered

One of the big motors was found in another field after it had hopped a fence and dug into the plowed ground. One of the wheels of the undercarriage bounced over two rows of trees along a lane and was found 40 rods away up against a cedar tree.

The scene of the crash was a trawing card for residents of the area with a constant stream of people wading through the snow and brawing the rain to view the wreckage.

First on the scene were Earl Onderdonk, on whose farm the plane crashed, and Donald and Charles Dempsey, close neighbors. They saw the plane with its motor afire disappear below the hill and then almost instantly there was a terrific explosion.

Mrs. Onderdonk said the explosion shook their house, more than half a mile distant, while a neighbor said the blast opened their kitchen door.

Raced To Scene

"We raced to the scene as fast as we could through the fields," stated Mr. Onderdonk, "but we could do nothing." He said the heat from the blazing plane kept them from going within 25 yards of the wreckage. A rail fence close by was burning and they put the fire out.

Mr. Onderdonk said the body of the airman who had jumped with his parachute was found on the Hugh Weese farm about 40 rods from the scene of the crash. The mangled body of the dead airman was found tangled in the harness of his parachute which had partially opened. The body of the airman was found by Albert Bowerman.

Mr. Onderdonk said it was only by chance that he had seen the blazing plane below the hill. Ordinarily he would pay no attention to planes but this one seemed to be making more noise than usual. He looked up just in time to see the plane dive below the hill.

Saw Plane Afire

Several persons south of the scene of the crash saw the plane with its one motor afire. Included was Mrs. Malcolm Hubbs who tried to notify Trenton Air Station but the alarm already had been given.

Mr. Bray Noyes and his two sons, Earl and William, all saw the plane sideslip to the left and dive almost straight into the ground. Just as the burning plane went into the sideslip he saw what he took to be two objects leave the plane. He later learned he had seen the air man make his unsuccessful leap for safety.

"We saw the plane proceeding north with its right engine afire," stated Mr. Noyes. "When it flew low the plane the fire was coming out of the bottom of the motor and the plane was flying level about 700 feet up."

He said he had watched the plane contine north until it went into the sideslip and disappeared into the trees. Mr. Noyes and his two sons were among the first at the scene.

When he first saw the plane with its motor afire Mr. Noyes said he did not believe the crewmen were aware of the trouble. He believes if they had they would have jumped sooner for safety.

Rescue Squads on Hand

Air force rescue squads from the Trenton Air Station had trouble finding the location of the wreckage which was about half a mile east of a sideroad and about the same distance south of the Redoreville-Carrying Place Road. As result ambulances and fire trucks were delayed in arriving at the scene.

The first fire truck to arrive got bogged down in a mud hole between the sideroad and the scene of the wreckage. The next to arrive missed the same fate when it was directed by Mr. Onderdonk across a sod field.

One of the airmen was thrown clear of the wreckage when the plane plowed into the corner of the field and apparently the bodies of the two others were found in the burned wreckage.

LENGTHY DEBATE

Session Follows Victory

The session followed a June 27 general election in which Prime Minister St. Laurent, going to the country for the first time as leader of the Liberal party, won an overwhelming victory. He took 193 of the 263 seats in the Commons. Progressive Conservatives won 41, CCF 13, Social Credit 10, and others 6.

The opposition while small made its presence felt. Mr. Drew demanded the resignation of Justice Minister Garson when it was disclosed that the government had breached the Combines Investigation Act in the handling of a report of an alleged price-fixing combine in the flour-milling industry.

But as far as history goes, the session quietly will be described as one in which major advances were made toward the country's constitutional evolution. The Throne Speech at the opening of Parliament forecast that the constitutional changes were planned. The Throne Speech read at prorogation told of their accomplishment.

Ended With U.K.

Since Confederation in 1867 the power to amend the Canadian constitution on all matters has rested with the United Kingdom Parliament. Mr. St. Laurent, carrying out one of the promises made on the hustings, sponsored legislation making it possible for the Canadian Parliament to amend the constitution on Federal matters, excluding those dealing with education and the use of the French and English languages.

He called a Dominion-Provincial conference for Jan. 10 to discuss the question of whether the Canadian rather than the United Kingdom Parliament should be allowed to amend the constitution with respect to matters under provincial jurisdiction.

The Prime Minister proposed that a General Dominion-Provincial Conference be held in the fall of 1950. It is expected the conference will discuss renewal of existing Dominion - Provincial taxation agreements and an overall social security program.

Abolish Appeals

Mr. St. Laurent also passed a bill abolishing appeals to the Privy Council in London and making the Supreme Court of Canada the final court of appeal for this country.

The government also acted to help other sections of the economy. One measure provided for loans to Maritime coal companies willing to increase mechanization of their mines. Another changed depreciation allowance provisions to encourage the construction of new ships in Canadian yards.

Mr. St. Laurent announced that the government will pay a subsidy of $3,000,000 to help Canadian merchant fleet in operation pending the formation of an Allied shipping pool.

New housing legislation was passed. It provided for increased loans to prospective home owners reducing the down payment by approximately half. The government also offered to cooperate with the provinces on providing modest houses for sale, rent or subsidized rent.

The last legislation the government offered to pay half the cost of a ten-lane, hard-surfaced $300,000,000 Trans-Canada highway. A Dominion-Provincial conference of technical experts was called for Dec. 15 and 16 to decide on the route the highway will follow and other matters.

No Major Legislation

There was no major agricultural legislation. One bill was passed increasing payments to farmers for cattle destroyed because of tuberculosis. Another measure eased the eligibility requirements under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act.

Three bills provided for a reshuffle in the functions of the departments of mines and resources, reconstruction and supply of state. A new department was formed to take care of immigration and citizenship matters, the former under the resources department and the latter under the secretary of state department.

Some of the other functions of the resources department will come under the new department of mines and technical surveys. Most of the functions of the reconstruction department will be transferred to the new department of resources and development.

As usual there was a large number of bills sponsored by private members. Only one of them was accepted by the government. It was a measure sponsored by R. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) providing for a two-year jail term to anyone found guilty of publishing, distributing or selling crime comics.

LABOR DEFEAT

Australian people are taking little interest in the count of votes for the Senate, which is almost certain to retain its Labor majority. Few people, however believe that a Labor-controlled Senate would block legislation backed by the new government.

18 Holdover Senators

Australians voted Saturday for 43 Senators. Senators are elected by proportional representation. This system is so complicated that names of all 43 elected may not be known until the end of January.

There are 18 holdover Senators —15 of them Labor—serving three more years of their six-year terms. This edge is expected to keep a Labor majority in the Senate if Labor can fill half of the 42 seats at stake.

As counting progressed, there were indications that four ministers in the old government would lose their parliamentary seats as well. They were Defence Minister John J. Edmon, Works Minister Nelson Lemmon, Repatriation Minister Herbert C. Barnard and William J. Scully, vice-president of the executive council.

Soon Take Over

The new Prime Minister, Robert G. Menzies, is expected to select his cabinet and take over from the outgoing Prime Minister, Joseph B. Chifley, next Monday or Tuesday.

The leader of the Country Party, Arthur W. Fadden, is slated to be Deputy Prime Minister. Richard G. Casey, veteran Australian diplomat and his country's first Minister to the United States, is a likely choice to succeed the Minister of External Affairs, Herbert V. Evatt.

Though the Liberal and Country Parties campaigned in complete harmony on an anti-Socialist program, many political observers here already were predicting that the Menzies-Fadden coalition would not last six month. They split in 1941, causing Menzies to lose out as Prime Minister after two years in office.

On foreign policy, both Liberal and Country Parties appeared agreed. Both say they will cooperate fully with Britain and will seek closer contracts with the United States.

$50,000 Loss In Toronto Fire

Toronto, Dec. 13 (C) — Fire Chief Peter Herd Friday night estimated damage at $50,000 in a fire that swept through a 300-foot wooden shed occupied by seven transport companies late Friday on Lisgar Street, in Toronto's west end.

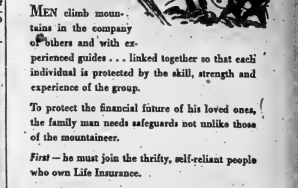
More than 30 transport workers escaped the building as explosions from small fuel oil tanks fed the flames. Shipments of soap, hardware, and canned goods were lost with a number of trucks. The fire is believed to have started from overheated oil stove pipes.

The flames spread to the roof of the York Knitting Mills Toronto hosiery plant, causing $5,000 damage there.

Probe Mystery Romanian Plane Forced to Land

Belgrade, Dec. 12 — (AP) — Yugoslav authorities Sat., were investigating four passengers on a Romanian commercial plane who forced its landing at Belgrade after killing the plane's soldier escort.

The plane, en route from Sibiu, Romania, to Bucharest, landed here with 19 passengers, five crew members and the soldier's body aboard.



The four men told Yugoslav officials they had plotted the forced landing to remain in Yugoslavia. A fifth passenger, a Romanian bank inspector, later said he also wanted to stay in Yugoslavia.

Passengers said two of the four plotters killed the soldier, then the group held the other passengers at bay while they broke into the pilot's compartment and ordered him to fly to Belgrade.

Conductor Hands Dagger to Pontiff, Asks Forgiveness

P Rome, Dec. 12 — (AP) — A trolley conductor handed to Pope Pius a dagger with which he once had planned to kill him and asked his forgiveness, the Rome newspaper Il Tampi reported Saturday.

The dramatic scene occurred Thursday night in the pontiff's private chapel after a special rosary service attended by a small group of streetcar workers and Vatican laborers, the newspaper said. An unofficial Vatican source confirmed the story.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Four teams of the Belleville District Hockey League swing into loop semi-finals tomorrow night and there should be some fast action before two of the wounds are "mucks". Trenton Flyers,which has played consistently good hockey down through the schedule shared second spot from the Bisnetts by virtue of their Thursday night victory, but took third place because of goals average. Northern went down in its first defeat but were secure at the top of the ladder. The planters take on Flyers in one of the semi-final brackets while the Bisnetts are matched with the Rockets Juniors. Both semi-finals kids short. They can play good hockey and no doubt will when the chips are down. Flyers too, are a hard-fighting crew that never gives up until the last whistle has tooted so fandom in general should be in for some neat pastiming in the chase to the wire.

The 2 Repair Depot Tigers were definitely the hard-luck team of the league. They played hard, were fast and tricky but somehow Old Lady Luck nearly always turned her head when gifts were in order. Tigers adopted themselves to whatever style of hockey the opposition favored, and through this system lost a couple of games they should have won. However the gold-striped tellas just couldn't make it — and after all someone had to lose.

* * *

If the semi-finals series are settled in two straight games the winners will probably go into the finals series next week. The nominal aspect of the finals has not been settled as yet, but the loop executive will hold a meeting this week-end to settle that piece of business. A referee and two linesmen will do the officiating with Speedy St. Louis in charge.

* * *

Diesels Electrics trek to Peterborough tonight where they take on the Peterborough Hockey Club in a Senior "B" tussle. The Dee-Kees had their ears pinned back by nearly the cloak last week-end in Kingston Juniors and they'll be out to avenge that item tonight. The team was short three of its stars on that Provincial Capital visit and they will likely be minus the services of Keith MacDonald who has been battling Old Man Flu for the past week with the Petes showing a vastly improved style, it should be a diller of a game. The locals have won two of their three starts and tonight should be interesting for that lep sked.

Canada's dazzling Queen of the Blades, Barbara Ann Scott, now on tour with T. F. Gorman's Skating Sensations of 1950 is playing to packed arenas across Canada. The darling of the Belleville rinks will be here with her troupe on January 16 and 17th and from advance reports the show is one of the best ever to appear in Canadian rinks. A cast of fifty performers comprises the troupe and the show itself is to be a parade of glamour, speed and sensational. Comedy, color and splendor and while of course Barbara Ann is the centre of attraction, she has been surrounded by a raiser of stars of skating scene. The show is a must for lovers of figure skating.

6 Regals Depot Tigers have placed an entry in Intermediate "A" circles and will likely be present at the Belleville and District group of teams . . . That will likely change Dick Bridgman's mind of entering a squad from Trenton this season . . . Percy Eddie Snyder, of Belleville, District Hockey League intends to keep busy this winter. He will not only coach the school which he represents but basketball refereeing at Albert College this week . . . Info on the Intermediate basketball situation hereabouts will be greatly appreciated.

That grouping given our Kockets Juniors should satisfy even the most rabid debater. Kingston Barons, Kingston Victorias, Peterborough Triple Link of Oddfellows, Lindsay and Oshawa rounds out an interesting setup as this village has had for some time in junior ranks . . . It means plenty of hockey, new faces, new tricks and it is hoped, bigger crowds . . . This program the Belleville Hockey Association is getting off on the proper note, is about the last word in publications of its kind . . . Called the "Puck" and shaped like that hunk of rubber, the program is well-edited, has plenty of pictures and is packed with editorial advertorial . . . Plenty of credit should go to Messrs. Cook, Hearn, and the other members of the BHA program committee for a job well done . . . Jake Lamotta, was offered a non-title fight with Oswalde Silva of Brazil at San Paulo, Brazil, yesterday . . . Lamotta who wants a lotta, said okay if given a $15,000 guarantee. That's a lotta for Lamotta . . . The Peterborough Lacrosse team figure the box is the place where their outer Memorial Arena here . . . (It's tabbed Memorial Arena Cor., Del Hume) . . . Here's what Hud man Hume Foster says in his pillar in the Peterborough Examiner:

"The Legion pockets don't like the Memo Arena in Bella Villa. Even Dr. Duncy admit it's a fine spacious spot for hockey. But they figure the Hume halls are infested with anti-Legion germites. The local pack-chasers just can't seem to go right on Quinie ice. Last year in playdowns, they nearly beat the pants off the Nyleus in Kingston, but had to fight to the point of exhaustion to edge Nyleus in the return go in Belleville. And they outplayed Diesels last Monday down there, yet lost out."

Our Diesel Electrics trek to Gananoque come Friday evening, Dec. 16 in search of another Senior "B" conquest . . . But it may not be as easy as it seems . . . The team from the Gateway is the class of the league as it showed here last week and walloped lots Peterborough cocky and confident and walked right out again with the scalps of the vanished Petes Hockey Club hanging on their belts . . . Well, well, well . . . This grouping set some fancy followers on the Peet sheet reminds "The Gans played fine positional hockey in earn the victory though shy three players." . . . The whole team looked good and looked like they were getting tenderer all the time." He does admit though, that the Petes didn't look up to par and deserved the short end of the count . . . So say laddy-bucks had better be on their best behavior . . . This Gan. team will be tough babies to take in their own backyard, and don't say we didn't warn ya, chums . . .

Goals Scarce in Weekend Jousts as Rayner Shows Way With Pair of Wins Over Wings

(By HARRY ECCLES)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Goal-tenders covered themselves with glory in the National Hockey League this weekend, and none more so than Gerry (Chuck) Rayner, whose New York Rangers twice defeated the leading Detroit Red Wings.

There were three shut-outs and a total of only 14 goals in the six games. After winning 1-0 over the Wings Saturday night, the Rangers rubbed it in with a 2-1 victory at New York Sunday. Toronto Maple Leafs at home beat Boston Bruins 2-1 Saturday night, but the Bruins scored a 5-0 whitewash at Boston Sunday. Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks dueled to a 1-1 deadlock in Montreal Saturday, then Canadiens whitewashed the Hawks 3-0 at Chicago.

As a result of this minimum of goal-scoring Detroit Red Wings today is nine points over Toronto and Montreal, tied for second place. New York has vaulted to fourth place another two points back. Boston Bruins are in fifth spot now in last place. Only five points separate the second-place teams and the bottom of the table.

Rayner's great performance at Detroit Saturday set the keynote for the weekend of brilliant goal-tending. Chuck had 19 saves in handing the Wings their first scoreless game this season. Centre Edgar Laprade fired the winner early in the final period as Detroit goalie Harry Lumley saved on 16 shots.

Largest Crowd of Year

The largest crowd of the season at Madison Square Garden, 13,035 turned out last night to see the Rangers do it again. It took Bud Poile's defence and goalie Rayner to keep Detroit's first defeat away from home in 11 games. Laprade was again the scoring hero, providing a pass with which Dunc Fisher scored the only goal and himself scoring the second on a neat lone rush. Only 17 shots scored for Detroit.

It was another goalies' classic at Toronto Saturday when the Leafs hung up their fourth straight in front of Boston. Veteran goalie Turk Broda of Toronto was beaten only by veteran Milt Schmidt. Harry Watson scored for Toronto in the first and Joe Klukay in the second.

Back at Boston Sunday, Gellman scored the second shut-out of the season. Eddie Harrison got the first Boston goal and Paul Ronty scored the second. Gus Broda had been taken from the cage for a Toronto attack late in the finale.

The Hawks and Canadiens couldn't break the ice at Montreal Saturday but it was Frank Brimsek's brilliant goal-tending that stopped a Montreal victory. The Chicago goalie fielded 30 shots, while big Bill Durnan in the Canadiens cage stopped 17. Maurice Richard scored the Montreal goal late in the first period and Bill Mosienko tied it up in the second.

Durnan got his fourth shut-out of the season as the Canadiens walloped the Hawks Sunday night. Roger Leger, Maurice Richard and Doug Harvey were the Montreal goal-getters, but Brimsek saved on 29 others while Durnan was impregnable on a total of 23 shots.

Sports Roundup

(BY HUGH FULLERTON JR.)

New York, Dec. 12 — (AP) — If the bets war between the two pro football leagues didn't accompilish anything else, it filled Bert Bell from the position of part-owner of a hungry club to the top spot with a 10-year contract . . . Bob Stebler, lionhearted university football centre, definitely is "on" formal parties at his fraternity house . . . After one of those affairs recently, Bob complained: "I washed dishes for 3½ hours— and didn't even have a co-ed to help me."

Safety Measure

Lloyd Jordan, who ranks as a professor as well as a coach at Amherst College, claims he probably is the only football coach who ever enjoyed a sabbatical leave . . . That was in 1943, so I should have another next year." Lloyd mused, "And with the material I have coming up, maybe I should take it . . . On second thought, my assistant might do so well I'll be out of a job when I get back."

Monday Madness

Athletic authorities at Holy Cross are waiting for Coach Brimsek to make the first move. They want to know if Dr. Bill is ambitious to undertake another season of football coaching after the disastrous one he just had . . . One report on Bill's difficulties is that the athletes got into so many disputes in the huddles that one player claimed he had to stop three flights before plays could be run . . . Anyway, there's not much chance that they'll buy up Bill's contract. The alumni don't want to pick up a $36,000 tab got by a guy who makes a pretty good living as a dentist and only coaches in his spare time.

Windsor Spits Only Point Off Top Position

(By The Canadian Press)

Windsor's flying Spitfires, paced by Earl Reibel and Glen Howe with three goals each, coasted to their 10th straight victory Saturday night, downing the hapless Oshawa Generals 11-3. The win left Windsor a point shy of the top-dog Toronto Marlboros in Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" standing.

In other junior games Saturday, Toronto Marlboros lost their fourth game in 22 starts, bowing 5-1 before St. Catharines Teepees and St. Michael's College, the other Toronto entry, was laced 8-1 by the fast-improving Guelph Biltmores. In the only senior contest, Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen bounced Hamilton Tigers 6-2.

Windsor struck for three tallies in the first period, seven in the middle frame and closed out with a single in the final stanza.

Oshawa clicked for their three in the third.

Jack Hay, Bob Rawlyk and Earl Reibel were the marksmen in the first frame, Howe and Reibel each tallied a pair in the middle session and singles were added by Erwin Grosse, Howe and Ross Johnstone. Lou Jankowski, Orin Mosienko and Marcel Clements accounted for the Motor-City tallies. Skov's three markers brought his total for the last two games with the Generals to eight.

The Teepees struck early and fast in their conquest of the Marlboros. They tallied three times in the first period and added singles in the second and final.

Broke Marlie Attack

Norm Cocoran, Jack Andrews and Frank Martin pumped in the first-period goals which broke the back of the Marlie attack. Conn Switzer squeezed in the Teepees' second before Marlboros counted their lone goal off the stick of Jack McKenzie. Obie O'Brien was the marksman on the last Teepee counter.

Guelph Biltmore scored four in the first period of their game with St. Michael's, three of them in the last three minutes. Bob Palmer opened the scoring and was followed by Don Bellringer with two markers and Jack Dickeman with four.

Lorne Howes, in the nets for the Collegians, beat the Biltmores to a single by Frank Delgatie in the middle session. Walter Clune, former Belleville performer, netted it 6-0 in the finale before the Irish finally dented Dennis Mooney's armor for a goal by Fred Ingoldsby. Danny Kulik completed the rout with Guelph's seventh and eighth goals.

Took Lead in First

Kitchener - Waterloo, playing before home fans, took a 2-0 lead over the last-place Hamilton Tigers before Hamilton flashed the real fight. Don Sullivan, Mike Doulre, Mickey Roth, and Bill Wild scored the Kitchener goals, all in the first frame. Hamilton's first tally, by Clare Shillington in the middle canto, balanced Flick's Dutchmen marker.

Both clubs added a tally in the final frame, Johnny Blute rapping in his sixth for Kitchener-Waterloo and Johnny Conick collecting Hamilton's second.

Cleveland Barons Increase Lead In West League

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons stretched their lead atop the western division of the American Hockey League to nine points Sunday by walloping the runner-up St. Louis Flyers dropped their two counters.

The Barons massacred New Haven Ramblers 8-2 Saturday and then had enough goal-scoring ability left Sunday to edge the fast-improving Cincinnati Mohawks 5-4.

Meanwhile the Flyers found the going much tougher and dropped a 7-4 decision to Springfield Indians Saturday. They went under by a 4-1 count against Providence Reds Sunday.

The Reds thus maintained their slim two-point margin on first place in the league's eastern section. Buffalo Bisons and New Haven are still deadlocked for second place while Springfield is a close third.

The Bisons won their only weekend contest by defeating the Indians 4-3 Sunday. New Haven downed Pittsburgh Hornets by the identical score.

Indianapolis Capitals and Hershey Bears played-to a 4-4 tie in Sunday's only match-up. The Bears also drew 1-1 Saturday night against Pittsburgh.

Juicy Steaks Will Not Help Says Lecturer

London, Dec. 12—(CP)—British athletes who have been crying for thicky, juicy steaks to help them get back on top in international competition are just wasting their breath, says nutrition expert Dr. Arnold Bender.

Extra meat probably wouldn't help much anyway, he told a gathering of athletes, trainers and newspaper men. His lecture was sponsored by one of Britain's largest proprietary medicine firms (Crookes Laboratories Limited) which has established an athletes' advisory service to try to whip malnutrition among British sportsmen.

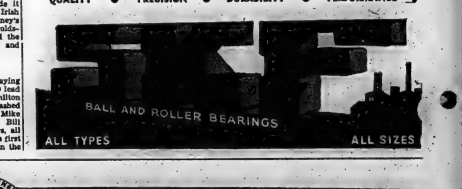
Bender, a member of the extramural board of the University of London, reasoned it this way:

The quantity of protein necessary to the normal body is a matter of constant debate, but depends rather on the size of the body than on the type of work the body does.

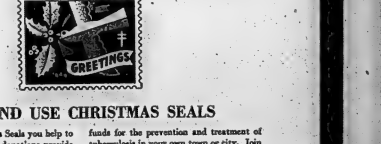
About one gram of protein is needed daily for each kilogram of body weight — or about three ounces of pure protein for a man weighing 150 pounds. If most were the only dietetic source of protein, such a man would have to eat about three pounds a day.

This is far more than one can eat on British rations—but the solution is that proteins are also obtained from milk, eggs, fruit, nuts and even dry bread.

Except in the cases of rapidly-growing children, most nutritionists recovering from a spell in hospital are now just entering training, it is broadly true that when hunger is satisfied by a reasonably balanced diet there is no protein deficiency.



CUBS TAKE OPTION



New York, Dec. 12 — (CP) — Chicago Cub took an option Saturday to buy the Newark franchise of the International Baseball League from New York Yankees. The Cubs have until Jan. 15 to go through with the deal.

If the Cubs buy the franchise, it is reported they may move it to Springfield, Mass., of the defunct New Haven club.

Avery Brundage Outspoken on Professionalism

By The Canadian Press

Avery Brundage said at San Francisco Saturday that college athletes who receive scholarships on the basis of their skill in any sport make themselves professionals.

The president of the United States Olympic Association, attending the Amateur Athletic Union convention here, was asked in an interview:

"If a boy is given a football scholarship, is he eligible for olympic competition?"

"He (the boy) would not even be considered an amateur," the outspoken Brundage replied.

Future screening of candidates for the olympic teams will be more rigid, Brundage indicated. It has been the custom in the past that any college athletes certified by the U.S. National Collegiate Athletic Association automatically received A.A.U. membership cards.

University of Toronto basketballers won defeated 69-30 by Michigan's Albion College in an exhibition game at Toronto Saturday night. Jack Gray, with 18 points was Toronto high scorer.

Carol Addison of the Hamilton Aquatic Club Saturday pulled the upset of the 17th annual Hamilton swimming meet when she stroked her way to victory over the highly-favored Beryl Lewis of Toronto in the junior free-style event. She covered the 50 yards in 30.1 seconds."

Miss Lewis went on to win the junior women's 100 back stroke.

Miss Addison's time was one-tenth of a second faster than that of Kay Miles of London, Ont., who captured the women's senior free-style race.

At Fredonia, N.Y., McMaster University of Hamilton, Ont., had too much stamina for Fredonia State Teachers College Saturday night, walking away with a 72-50 basketball decision on a last-half spurt.

Fredonia led 10-1 in the early moments and trailed by only 35-27 at the half. Shelby was high man for McMaster with 16 points. Tom Barresi had 14 for Fredonia.

The University of Michigan's hockey team did honors to the opening of their enlarged 4,000-seat coliseum with a 12-3 victory over McMaster University Saturday night.

Coach Vic Heyliger's Wolverines, playing their season opener with the Hamilton, Ont., squad, were paced by centre Gil Burford's four unassisted goals. They dropped in two tallies in the first period, six in the second, and four in the third.

At Lexington, Ky., the university of Kentucky outclassed the University of Western Ontario 80-18 Saturday night for their second successive basketball victory of the season.

Montreal Y.M.H.A. basketballers won the first game of a home-and-home total point series for the Canadian Y.M.H.A. championship from the Toronto Branch Saturday night at Toronto 59-50.

Sol Tolchinsky sparked the winners with a 20-point effort. Murray Waxman with 11 and Ben Lande with nine were the other Montreal stars.

McGill University Redmen of Montreal nosed out the All-Star Tillsonburg, Ont., Trojans 67-62 in a basketball game, main event of McGill's athletics night before a crowd of 7,000 Saturday night.

"A lot of footballers will be playing for peanuts" in the Western Interprovincial Football Union next season "and every year," Al Anderson, manager of Edmonton Eskimos of the W.I.F.U., said Saturday.

Anderson was commenting on recent statements by Red Pantages and Pete Thodos of Vancouver that Calgary Stampeders paid them "peanuts" last season. It was reported each received about $1,000 for playing with Stampeders in addition to jobs provided by the club.

"If $1,000 is peanuts a lot of players in the west perfumed, and will continue to perform, for peanuts without shell," Anderson said. He added that his club "overpaid quite a few and underpaid nobody."

Major Leagues Disagree Over Deciding Title

New York, Dec 12 — (AP) — The American and National league are locked in hopeless disagreement over the method of deciding the pennant winner in case of a regular season tie.

Each circuit firmly believes its own system is best. Unless one relents some time during the three day major league baseball convention which opened today Commissioner A. B. Chandler will find himself in the role of arbitrator.

Acting on the recommendation that both leagues adopt a uniform playoff system, the two loops agreed to disagree. The American insists that its present one-game, sudden-death playoff is a more logical one. The National, in a caucus, decided to cling to its best-of-three-game system.

In the event of a deadlock Chandler is empowered to vote in favor of either league. The other must abide by his ruling. Of course, the commissioner can decide to allow each league to follow its own dictates, but that is not likely since he is known to favor a uniform playoff system.

Each league has had need for only one post-season playoff in its entire history. Brooklyn and St. Louis met in a best-of-three playoff in 1946 after finishing in a tie after the regular National league season. The American had a deadlocked season two years later which necessitated a one-game playoff between Cleveland and Boston Red Sox.

Other problems to be discussed at the meetings include radio and television, elimination of darkness-called games, the high school bonus rule, and an increase in number of night games.

More important from the fans' viewpoint is activity in the trade mart. While the minor league convention in Baltimore last week was full of trade talk, not a deal was announced.

60 YEARS OF ACCOMPLISHMENT
1889 1949

In early days, cream was skimmed from the top of milk left standing overnight in pans in a cool, damp cellar. Or cans of milk were immersed in cold water from the well or spring. When the cream had risen to the top, the milk was drained out of the bottom of the can leaving the cream, which was then churned in a dash churn or barrel churn. Today in modern dairy plants no care or expense is spared in protecting the purity of milk, cream and other dairy products. Nickel alloys are used in pasteurizers, coolers, bottling machines and other equipment, because these alloys are corrosion-resistant and easy to keep clean and sanitary.

Canadian Nickel sold Abroad brings in U.S. Dollars

Since more than ninety per cent of the Nickel produced in Canada is sold to the United States and other countries, it brings a constant flow of dollars back to Canada. In fact, Canada's Nickel industry is one of our chief sources of U.S. dollars so essential at the present time to maintain our foreign trade and make available products not produced in this country.

These dollars help pay the wages of the 14,000 Nickel employees, and help provide the dollars which make it possible to pay millions in freight to Canadian railways, to buy timber, steel, coal, machinery and supplies amounting to many millions each year.

These millions, flowing into all industries through the length and breadth of Canada; help create jobs for Canadians.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When arguing with Oxpert Zing, he has me at his mercy. The stubborn goof refuses proof in any controversy.

One of the controversial subjects in bridge is the redouble of a takeout double. What does such a redouble show when used by the responder of an opening one bidder?

Try to prove its needs to most players and you will fall flat on your face. It came up for discussion the other night over the result that was had in the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠K J 5 3
♥A 6 5
♦A J 4
♣K 4

WEST
♥7 3 2
♦10 7 6 5 2
♣Q 9 6 2

EAST
♥K Q 10 9
♦K Q 9
♣J 10 8 7 5

SOUTH
♠A Q 10 8 6 4
♥J 8 4

The south and north pair ended at a contract of three notrump. As you can see, a grand slam is a hopeless one. A child could take all 13 tricks at no-trump, or with spades or hearts as trumps.

The circumstances that led up to this timid contract could take a lot of telling. Perhaps it is worth your time to listen to some of its details. At any rate, let me ramble along with some of them.

Before we get too deep into this thing, know that all four of these players were truly expert. So, if any mistakes were made it would be from using judgment rather than lack of knowledge.

South opened the bidding correctly with one spade. West stuck in a double for takeout. This was an unbreakable deal, of course, but the question is should north have redoubled?

Why is it to be the final judge in such a decision? Will it be some noted expert of national fame? If he has had, different rules for it in different years, he must have been wrong at some time.

Because my Horse Sense rules have never changed can I claim my rule must be right? Not in the eyes or ears of some players who may have a different slant on which system is best.

Evidently it boils down to something like this: What does the most good is what rates masterhood.

MADOC

Madoc—A meeting of the Madoc Public School Home and School Club was held last Tuesday in the public school with a large attendance. Mrs. Rupert, the president, was in charge of the meeting.

A choir of pupils from grades 7 and 8 sang under the guidance of the principal, Mr. Rothwell. The audience was delighted with the sweet singing of the children.

Mr. Jack Baker introduced the speaker of the evening Mr. W. A. Beach of Belleville, director of guidance and recreation at Alberti College. The subject of his address was "Home Influence on the Adolescent." The aim of the home should be to build a 100 per cent life personality. With advantages come responsibilities and then responsibilities must be assumed, in part, early in life. The home must present a solid set of values to guide the child. Mr. Beach's talk was enthusiastically received by the members. Carol singing by the choir, and heartily joined in by the parents followed, and after the serving of refreshments the meeting was brought to a close.

Trinity United W.M.S.

The Trinity United W.M.S. held their meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the parsonage with a good attendance. With the playing of soft music preceding the opening of the meeting and the Christmas decorations symbolic of the true-Christmas idea Mrs. F. H. Naylor had charge of the worship period and program.

Mrs. Percy Holland read the Bible lesson the Christmas Story. Following this Mrs. E. Moore gave short reading bearing on the lesson "Christ Our Saviour Laid the Child," an appropriate hymn was sung and Miss B. Howe gave the Christmas prayer. A reading "The Second Christmas" was given by Mrs. D. Carmen and gave much food for thought.

A solo "Has It On" was sung by Mrs. Poulter and added much to the beautiful thoughts carried through the meeting. A poem "I Touched the Hand of God," by Mrs. Naylor and the closing prayer by Mrs. Moore concluded a wholesome program.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Poulter. Minutes of previous meeting, the treasurer's report and the sick calls report by Miss Love followed. Plans were made for the New Year meeting to be held at Mrs. Moore's. A pleasant social hour followed with the hostess being assisted by Mrs. F. Fleming, Mrs. E. Moore and Mrs. Bennett.

Capital Closeups:
Senior Civil Servants Among Unheard Pillars of Democracy

By DOUGLAS HOWE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 12 — (CP) — A small company of senior civil servants among the unbocored, unsung, and almost entirely unheard pillars of the Canadian democracy.

They are the experts who, in a volnble, irrepressible Commons, must sit in impassive and rigid neutrality, unable to say a word out loud while amateurs discuss topics of which they are masters.

They sit in front of a Cabinet minister desk, one or two or sometimes three of them, flanked by the fat brief cases and files and documents to help the minister answer the questions that flood at him from all corners of the House.

For years, it has been accepted practice that each minister should have the succor and assistance his senior aides can give him in explaining the estimates of his department.

They Tables

They sit at a tiny table directly in front of him. Their faces possess an acrtic discipline. When a question is asked, they look at the minister or at their documents or at the table. If the minister wants something he whispers to them. They whisper back.

If a member makes a whopping assault or error or accusation, they show no sign. If their names are mentioned directly or by inference, they show no sign. If there is a gush of humor that rocks the House, they ignore it.

Trigger-tongued D. Leo Dolan, head of the Government Tourist Bureau, sat with bowed head last week as his name ran in eulogy through the House. He gave no sign he heard.

The week before it was Dr. Keenleyside, deputy minister of the Mines Department. A couple of members made wise about his pile-making abilities. His face flushed, but that was the lone treachery of his emotion.

But, outside the House, they can let themselves go. One of the veterans confessed he sometimes has to smother a chuckle. Particularly when his minister, seeing a political foe arise, mutters "Now what does this son of a . . . want" and then, rising politely, says "In answer to my honorable friend, the answer is . . ."

ACCUSES BRAZIL

Berlin, Dec. 12 — (AP) — Tass-gliche Rundschau, the Soviet Army newspaper, charged yesterday the Brazilian Military Mission in West Berlin is recruiting former German military experts for service in Brazil. Rundschau claimed the Brazilians are sending agents into both east and west zones to recruit former Nazi Wehrmacht technical experts and that they them exit visas to South America.

Canadian-Born Playwright May Have Play That Will Stick

BY FAT USHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 13 — (CP) — A study in insanity which is at times chilling, at times tense and at times a bit on the dull side is Alexander Knox's play, "The Closing Door."

The psychological melodrama by the Canadian-born playwright and actor, newly installed at the Empire Theatre, has its moments of horror and violence. It starts promisingly by delineating the quirks of an insane husband and works up towards an apparently-arresting climax. There is a case of mistaken identity when the insane man tries to kill a brother against whom he has long nursed a smouldering resentment. But the action tends to drag towards the end and the final curtain is a bit cogitived.

Knox, who was born at Strathroy, Ont., and educated in London, Ont., himself plays the part of the insane Vail Trahern and his wife, Dora Nolan, is cast as his baffled but patient wife in the play.

Critics Divided

The Ontario actor portrays his role, in the words of Ward Morehouse of the New York Sun, "with great deliberation and certain fascination."

The New York critics were somewhat divided on the merits of his drama. Howard Barnes of the Herald Tribune rated it "a piece of his arresting and sustained grand guignol." He said it was a psychopathological thriller with interludes of effective and explicit violence." But Brooks and Atkinson of the New York Times said it part of the play "sounds as if it had been jotted down on the backs of cold envelopes."

Richard Watts of the New York Post dismissed it as "a dreary, dull and depressing affair" although he found it started out promisingly.

Frothily Funny

"Clutterbuck," a subtle comedy full or belly laughs, bowed in at the Biltmore Theatre after three years in London. This hilarious piece by Benn W. Levy, a Labor member of the British House of Commons, is just what Broadway needed — a frothy comedy that doesn't try to be funny by hitting you over the head with slapstick.

The play deals with two couples on a cruise who discuss their personal loves — all involving a third couple aboard the ship — Clutterbuck and his Quick demise . . .

"Metropole," William Walden's amusing play about a slick New York magazine — obviously the New Yorker, deserved a better fate than to close after two showings. But producer Max Gordon decided to rush it out after reading a set of rather indifferent reviews.

HISTORIC MOMENT — President of the Indian constituent assembly, Dr. Rajendra Prasad signs the nation's new constitution in New Delhi after it had been adopted by parliament. The assembly had spent almost three years in drafting the document, making the country a democratic, secular state. — Central Press Canadian.

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

The wind was blowing like anything, making the leeves blow around in a circle in the street, and me and Puds Simkins were walking along talking about different subjects such as how all ladies hate blowy weather, and which it would be the most fun to be on a windy day, a leaf or a bird, and Puds said, Oh boy, look, it 'pear rite off.

Meaning some man's hat rolling down the street. As it came it was a hoop instead of a hat, and Puds yelled to the man, We'll catch it for you, mister.

Don't worry, mister, we'll catch it, I yelled.

And we both started to chase it all our mite, me saying, Oh boy, I bet he'll give us a reward for catching it.

If he does, whoever catches it gets the reward, Puds said.

Proving he thawt he was going to catch it and making us both run faster, and the hat stopped against the cecktone and I quick reached down and grabbed it, saying, I cawt it.

You did like heck, Puds said. Meaning on account of him having his foot on the other side of the brim, and he wouldn't take it off till I promised to split the reward, and he took big foot off and there was a big foot mark on the brim, and I said, Heck, there goes the reward.

Maybe he'll give us a reward anyways for leetching him a lesson not to wear stitch a lite color hat, Puds said. You take it back to him and find out, he said, and I said, No, you take it. Hay, here and keecper on running.

he come hitself, I said.

Which he was, being a big mad looking man, and we quick decided to give him a free lesson by throwing his hat on the sidewalk

Sixteen Persons Killed in Ont. During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Sixteen persons lost their lives in fatal accidents in Ontario during the weekend, including four in the flaming crash of an RCAF two-engined bomber at Trenton and three in a collision in Toronto between an automobile and a street car.

In Eastern Canada as a whole, a total of 21 fatalities were reported during the weekend, a Canadian Press survey showed today. Of these 12 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents with icy-covered-roads as did visibility cut by snow and fog being the principal cause of the majority.

Two of the fatalities were attributed to drowning. Two other persons died in fires and another was accidentally shot.

Besides the 16 fatalities in Ontario there were two each in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia and one in Quebec.

In the air crash near Trenton, 120 miles east of Toronto, four airmen of the RCAF Central Flying School at Trenton air base were killed. Dead are the commanding officer and pilot, Sqdn. Ldr. Denis C. L. Weeer, 37, formerly of Margate, Eng, FO Vincent Peppin 23 of Ottawa; Leo William Nesom, 24, of Wetaskiwin, Alta., and Lac. Allan V. McIntosh, 29, of Dunbarton, Ont.

In Toronto, the three persons killed in the automobile-street car collision were Mrs. M. C. Macklin, 20, William Reid and Edna Bellins, of Toronto.

Car Hits Truck

Two Windsor traffic fatalities were reported. R. E. Clapp, 29, was killed when hit by a car and Howard Green of Detroit, suffered fatal injuries in a car-truck collision.

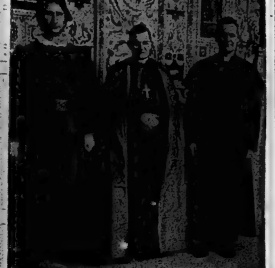
At St. Thomas Wesley Woods, 79, was killed when his car collided with a truck. Victor Wiens, 30, of South Walsingham, died in hospital from head injuries when his car crashed into a ditch at Simcoe.

At Chatham, Peter Reaume, 18 was also killed when his car skidded on ice and plunged into a ditch.

Kenneth Wimperis, 4, died in a fire at home in London, Ont., and Tom Weaver, 52, burned to death in his home at Chatham.

Harvey Doherty 33, of Arras, Ont., died from injuries suffered when his truck went out of control at Bracebridge, Ont., and crashed into a cement bridge.

Body Found in Bay



The body of an unidentified man aged about 60 was found in Toronto Bay. The other drowning was reported from Newcastle, N.B., where a skater, tentatively identified as Ronald Allison, 18, fell through the ice on the Miramichi river nearby.

At Shippegan, N.B., Hilaire Landry, 43, was accidentally shot dead when the rifle he was cleaning went off.

Robert Moore, 14, was killed when struck by a truck as he cycled at Springhill, N.S. At Shelburne, N.S., Thomas Walton, 65, suffered fatal injuries when he slipped on a highway and fell in front of a truck, whose driver said he was blinded by oncoming lights.

Mrs. Lilliane Renaud, about 35, died in hospital after she was found lying on a road at Montreal. It is believed she was a victim of a hit-and-run accident.

TWO AMERICANS TO BE RELEASED

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 12 (AP)— North Korea's communist regime has given definite word that two Americans held nearly seven weeks will be released Sunday. The Americans are Alfred T. Meechler, 28, and Albert E. Wylie, 40. They were advisers to a Korean crew which mutinied and sailed the cargo ship Kimball R. Smith to a Korean Communist port, Sept. 22.

First Division Sailed 10 Years Ago From Halifax

Halifax, Dec. 12 — (CP) —The harbor was inactive here Saturday as Halifax, a port which "thrives in war and is neglected in peace," remained in the grip of a shipping slump.

Idle freighters swung at their moorings and in big Bedford Basin at the head of the harbor wartime supply piers are sinking unused and unneeded into the water, a silent reminder of busier days when convoys assembled there.

At Pier 21, some army officers —on a silent pilgrimage — looked across the harbor and peered through the winter mist towards the Atlantic. Just 10 years ago today they sailed from a bustling, booming harbor with Canada's 1st Division, moving to the Second World War Front.

Ships at Port

The harbor had been different then. The Aquitania, still in service as the grand-daddy of the Atlantic, the Empress of Canada, Duchess of Bedford, Empress of Australia and Monarch of Bermuda took aboard the troops and their equipment.

The battle-cruiser Repulse, the battleship Resolution, the cruiser Emerald and the aircraft carrier Furious, a half dozen destroyers and at least one submarine formed the naval guard.

Early in the morning the convoy sailed, carrying 7,000 men and officers to war. The second contingent followed two weeks later.

In four months Canada had raised and equipped a division— 15,000 men — and they were landed safely in England without a casualty.

During the fighting that followed two members of the 1st Division won the Empire's highest military award — the Victoria Cross. Maj. Paul Triquet of the Royal 22nd won his near Cotton and Private Ernest A. (Smitty) Smith of the Seaforth Highlanders earned his at the Savio River.

The 1st Division — identified by their red shoulder badges and known as the "Red Patches" — was made up on a geographical basis so that all of Canada would be represented.

Legal Action Now Pending Against Bakers

Ottawa, Dec. 12 — (CP)—The first test of Canada's new, harsher anti-price-fixing legislation, which sparked one of the bitterest and longest battles in the first session of Canada's 21st Parliament, is expected to start shortly in Western Canada courts.

Royal assent given Saturday to amendments to the Combines Act cleared the way for the government to institute legal action that has been pending against a group of bakers in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia alleged to have been guilty of price-fixing under the Combines Act.

The onus of proof is placed on the company under the main provision of the new legislation that touched off a debate in which opposition members called on Justice Minister Garson to resign and charged that he could be jailed for breaking a provision of the Act himself.

It eliminates the necessity for the Crown to prove that a company knew of the contents of documents seized and used in evidence or to prove that the company had knowledge of the actions of one of its representatives.

Mr. Garson told the Commons it would be impossible to ever obtain convictions in combines cases unless the amendment was passed.

Although the main amendment was criticized on the ground it reverses a long traditional principle of British law — that a person was innocent until proved guilty — the main debate raged around a clause of the Act requiring that a report of the Combines Commissioner must be made public within 15 days after it is handed to the government.

That period is the hinge of the dispute that arose from the fact a Combines report on the flour-milling industry was not made public for some 10 months after it was first handed in, Dec. 29, 1948. It grew into the hottest issue of the session.

BILINGUAL INSTRUCTION OF CANADIAN SOLDIERS

Montreal, Dec. 12 (CP) — Bilingual instruction of Canadian soldiers is becoming more and more important "because the two languages used in Atlantic pact discussions are French and English," Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, chief of the army's general staff, said in an interview here Friday night.

GARDINER SAYS

Still Like Our Food

The questioning followed Mr. Gardiner's statement that on the official level the United Kingdom does not want Canadian food.

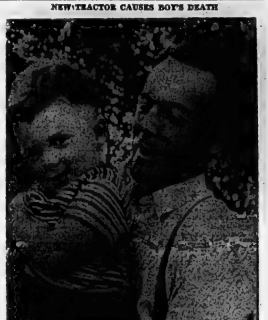
"The British people still like our food and still want to take it, but I am pointing out that officially Great Britain doesn't want it."

Mr. Gardiner reiterated the contention of his Brantford speech of la't Monday in which he charged that there is an official ban in the United Kingdom to drive Canadian products off the British market.

Since 1949, he said, the U.K. has told Canada she doesn't want Canadian food products, except wheat, at any price.

Claims Lack of Foresight

Mr. Charlton said Mr. Gardiner's statement was as important as anything the House has heard in years. But he himself had been warning for several years that this situation would develop.



The U. K. had been forced to go elsewhere for food because the Canadian government's lack of foresight had led to good contracts being unfilled. Time and again Canada had fallen short of meeting set contract quotas.

The farmers had not asked all the traffic would bear for them products, partly for patriotic reasons, partly because they were hoping for a long — range market. Now, having accepted those lower prices, they were faced with a vanishing market.

There were surpluses of agricultural products today, and the minister was "looking for a scapegoat" for the situation and was blaming the British government.

Mr. Charlton insisted that the minister's statement was "the most discouraging" the House has heard in years. It was a situation that bore little relation to government statements in the summer election campaign.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

"No, no, Ann. We'd arrange things so that you would be perfectly safe. You know she has never seen me. I've never see her and I don't even know what she looks like. Besides you and I could easily pass for sisters. Don't you remember when we were at school together that Miss Borland insisted there must be some relationship between us?"

"Well, we've both red hair and blue eyes," conceded Ann, "but Mary, why won't your precious Terry listen to reason? I'm sure it would make mighty little difference whether you get married in June or September. I should think he'd consider it a wonderful advantage for you to stand in with your rich aunt."

"No, Terry doesn't care a rap about that. He's quite well-off, but somehow he just determined that I shouldn't go, and oh, Ann"—Mary sobbed, "I'm crazy about him. I just can't live without him."

"Well, but you don't have to give him up. You can radio to him every day if you want to, or even phone him."

"I know I'll lose him if I go. He'd marry some one else, just for spite. Besides, he says if I go it just shows that I don't really care for him. Please, Ann, won't you take my place?"

A light was falling as Ann returned to her apartment after seeing Mary home. Her thoughts were conflicting ones. She wished to help Mary as she had always done when they were in school, but the idea was preposterous. How could she ever take her place? No, that might involve a great deal more than even she could foresee. As Ann put aside some of the finery that seemed to cover every corner of the room, a paper fluttered to the ground. Stooping to pick it up one sentence caught her eye above the signature "Terry."

"Now," declared Margaret Whiting to her lawyer as she sat in her stately library, "the discovery that my sister has left two children will naturally make a change in my will, Harvard will not fare so well, nor will some of the missions, but the call of 'blood' has got me. I suppose that's because I'm growing old. Perhaps we were really foolish after all to let Mary off when she married Lambert."

John Penfield raised his eyebrows. "Perhaps," he repeated.

"Well, anyhow I'm glad that I'll be able to have some young folk around me now. I don't know how they'll take to me and what I'll think of them. That remains to be seen."

"Just so," replied John Penfield who was given to monosyllabic answers when Miss Whiting held the floor.

Margaret Whiting was a big woman, handsome in a rather florid way. Her dark hair, which was drawn rather closely about her head, did not have a single thread of white in it although she was well over 60. Keenly interested in matters pertaining to her sex, she always stood in the foreground of women's ranks, especially when their goal was the betterment of their fellows in social or political spheres.

Sometimes Margaret Whiting's friends lamented that she had not devoted her keen intellect to the study of law, but as she possessed great means she had little incentive to go in for a career. Besides she was interested in too many things to give the time to specializing. Romance had never figured largely in her life. It was Mary, her younger sister who had all the beaux, and then to think she had thrown away her chances to marry a man who was nothing but a fourflusher. Well at least he had been kind to her even if he had descended from being a stock promoter to a common gambler.

"Yes I must change my will, Mr. Penfield. There had all plenty of time though to do it after I return from my trip, but I'd like you to make a tentative draft of what I have in mind. At least I'll get acquainted with my niece on the voyage."

"Don't you think it might have been better to have had her down here first so that you could discover if she appeals to you," suggested Penfield.

Miss Whiting laughed a hearty laugh. "I suppose most people would have done something to me to meet her in surrounding that will be foreign to both. Of course, as you know, I've been abroad nearly every year, but never around the world. If Mary Lambert—how I hate that name—think I must go back to change it—proves interesting there isn't a thing I won't do for her.

"If not"—a sparkle of amusement flashed into John Penfield's serious eyes.

"Oh well, we can always cut our trip short."

"There's a brother, too, isn't there?"

"Yes, there is, but I'm afraid Gerald takes after his father. He's in business so I don't intend to disturb his career. If he's like Pierce Lambert he'll only be too glad to find a way of getting money without working. I think I must put a clause in my will so that whatever's going to him will be handed out in doles, or he'd simply go through it overnight. However I've no doubt Mary will tell me all I want to know."

A cynical smile hovered for a moment about John Penfield's lips. Despite all the shrewdness of his client there were moments when she revealed a certain guilelessness that seemed quite out of keeping with her character.

An hour later Margaret Whiting was alone. Once more she took up her sister's letter and studied its contents. Strange that Mary had never told her family one thing about herself after her marriage. Was she ashamed of the step she had taken so many years ago? Apparently she had led a rather commonplace and dilecius existence. She had evidently kept one maid, but as Margaret Whiting thought of her own home by the shore, and in the mountains, she wondered how her fragile and once pretty sister had endured such a life. Perhaps she had really loved the man, Margaret shuddered. He was a handsome fellow. Yes as Margaret recalled, Had he been able to fool her about his mode of livelihood? Even in her letter there was not a whisper against the man for whom she had given up so much. It was past comprehension. Unwonted tears rose to her eyes. Could she ever make amends for her treatment of her sister?

"Well, Mary, I'll really have to go." Gerald Lambert looked around impatiently. "I hate like the mischief to leave without seeing my unknown aunt, but business is business, and I can't afford to be late for this appointment. Besides the boat won't leave for an hour later than scheduled time. Perhaps they're holding her up for our dear relative," Gerald laughed in boyish bravado. Take good care of yourself and put your best foot forward with the old dame." Gerald kissed his sister lightly and left the cabin.

Waving farewell to Gerald Lambert, Mary turned away from the railing as he disappeared in the crowd. She had forgotten the incident in the stateroom and there was such a commotion she didn't think to find her. She had never been aboard ship before and everything was strange. At last she found her own cabin. But once inside its narrow confines she suddenly burst into tears. She felt as though her heart was broken. True to his word Terry had refused to accept her explanation, and insisted it was merely that she cared more for Gerald's happiness than she did for him. If only Ann had done as she suggested, but even she had failed her. It was useless. Oh, in honor bound to her dead mother, that she must make this choice so that Gerald might have a chance.

Suddenly there came a quick tap at the door. Could Terry have relented? Was he coming to make it up with her before she left? Quickly Mary wiped away her tears and dabbed a little powder on her nose. Again came the sharp tap, tap. A smile was spreading about her lips as she opened the door. It was only Ann!

"Oh, you are here," exclaimed Ann, "I thought you'd be with your aunt."

A suppressed sob was Mary's answer: "She surely hasn't changed her mind, has she?" asked Ann.

"Oh, no," Mary handed her a telegram.

"Then she's one of the reasons for the delay in sailing."

"I guess so. I wish we might never sail," and Mary burst into uncontrollable tears.

"Oh, honey, don't cry," soothed Ann, for sure we'll have a wonderful time. There may be all sorts of adventures ahead for us!"

"For you perhaps," sobbed Mary, "but I might as well be dead."

"Oh hush, Mary. Wouldn't that Irishman of yours listen to reason?" Even as Ann spoke she remembered the sentence she had inadvertently read in the letter Mary had dropped in her room.

"No, Terry insists I don't love him any more. It's all over between us. Oh, Ann, I wish you'd taken my place."

Suddenly a quixotic idea flashed into Ann's brain. After all if she had only six months to live what had she to lose if she did as Mary suggested? Perhaps it wasn't right to impersonate her. Maybe he old aunt would be furious, but now, as she realized what Mary's predicament was, Ann took her in her arms. "Mary perhaps after all I made a mistake. If your aunt won't be here for an hour or so do you think we could fix things so she would not know? If you do I'll go as Mary Lambert and Gerald can't be such a person as Ann Hampton."

"You really will, Ann?" Mary was smiling through her tears. "Oh, you darling, of course we can fix it. Ann I'll never be able to thank you for what you're doing."

Ann smiled somewhat quizzically. She had determined she would cast off all her old self, the self that was forever bearing other people's burdens, and here she was once again sacrificing herself. Although her jaunty hat and smart suit were totally unlike those she had worn in the office, her natural instincts remained the same. Mary's happiness was at stake. She must have it for her, for unlike Ann, Mary did not have staying qualities that had carried her over the many some too smooth spots in her life.

The girls compared notes quickly. Ann would be at no disadvantage when talking of her mother's folk for, until she had heard from her aunt, Mary had never even dreamed that she had any relatives. Ann knew quite a bit about Mary's immediate family, but in the brief hour at their disposal she quickly learned a few more intimate details of the family history that would doubtless be demanded by Miss Whiting. Fortunately neither of the girls had baggage in the hold, and the matter of changing the labels on their trunks and having Mary's put on shore again was speedily accomplished.

Youths are Also Questioned In Taximan's Disappearance

Huntingdon, Que., Dec. 13, (CP)— Police today arrested two farm youths in a barn near here in connection with the disappearance of a taxi driver and an $800 bank robbery in Huntingdon.

Police said the men asked for some clothes at a farmhouse and the farm people tipped authorities. Soon afterwards police tracked the men down to their hiding place in the farmer's barn.

Both men were armed. They surrendered their weapons without any struggle.

Police said they were questioning the two men about the disappearance of taxi-driver Lucien Brunette, missing three days.

Full Fledged Hunt

The search for the two farmhands became a full-fledged man hunt after Monday's $800 robbery of a Canadian Bank of Commerce Branch at Ormstown, not far from Huntingdon, which is a small Quebec-New York border community about 45 miles southwest of Montreal.

New York State Police joined Quebec police in the hunt.

Quebec police did not announce the names of the farmhands taken into custody. Monday night they said they were looking for two 19-year-olds identified as Kenneth Bennett and Forest Patenaude, both of Huntingdon.

Det.-Lieut. Maurice Nasse (no relation) said Monday night there was "a strong possibility of murder" in connection with the disappearance of Lucien Brunette, 24-year-old Huntingdon cabbie, missing since last Sunday.

His cab was found Monday by his brother, Leo, in a barn off the local road between here and Ormstown, 10 miles away. A puddle of blood was found on the ground near the car.

Investigators reported finding a blood-soaked shirt in the room occupied Saturday night by Patenaude and Bennett in the farmhouse of Patenaud's father, Elzear.

Lieut. Patenaude said the youths were also wanted for questioning in connection with Monday's holdup of the Ormstown branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Taxi-driver William Hooker of Ormstown told police the bank robbers rushed from the bank, commandeered his cab and forced him at gunpoint to drive them to Huntingdon.

They made him drive as far as the Mercier bridge, leading into Montreal, and then told him to drive back a few miles to Rockburn, where they released him, the car and fled into the woods.

SPOTLIGHT FALLS ON WOMEN IN MONDAY'S VOTE

Mrs. Ann Shipley Returned Reeve and Mrs. Stephens as Cobourg Councillor

(By The Canadian Press)

The spotlight fell on two women when the final results of Monday's municipal elections in scattered Ontario centres were tabulated.

Mrs. Ann Shipley was given the voter's approval in Teck township and returned to the reeve's post another term. In a straight fight with Mr. T. Maguire, Mrs. Shipley received a majority of 390 votes.

Running in Cobourg with only one councillor position to decide, "may best"—Mrs. Rhena Stephens, the only woman candidate for town council, led the field with 1,682, a majority of 1,000 next councillor elected. A form... secretary of the advertising and sales club, she attacked councillor said in her campaign that "capital, management and labor, must, in their turn, be to survive, be adult, responsible and fair-minded."

Only one city held elections Monday, North Bay Voters sended T. M. Palmer into the mayor's office with a majority of 439 votes over his single opponent, W. G. Bullbrook.

Joseph Smith squeezed into the mayor's chair at Cobourg with a scant majority of 74 votes and Henry Vine fought a close fight with George Robson for the chief official's office in Napanee, Mr. Vine coming out on top with 602 votes to 515 for Mr. Robson.

Grant K. Meyers' surname didn't help him in his fight to retain the mayoralty in Barrie. He bowed to a sizeable majority to Edwin Wilson.

John J. Carmody triumphed in Pembroke after the final votes were counted, beating Charles Campbell in a straight two-way fight.

Dr. W. L. Ryan received ratification from Bracebridge voters, ousting his office with a total of 656 to 450 votes for his opponent, W. J. Brown.

Other mayors elected in towns included Richard McCullock in Orangeville, Alex Bell in Aurora and Arthur Strathroy.

The town of Dundas spared its voters the trouble of going to the polls. The reeve and four councillors were all elected by acclamation. On Nov. 28, regular nomination day, only two candidates qualified, Leonard Bain and Arthur Dutton and they were declared elected the next day.

Monday, C. R. Werry was passed reeve by acclamation and A. D. McAllister and Dyrett Neilbarcut were chosen for council, also by acclamation.

SAILING SEASON ON GREAT LAKES OFFICIALLY ENDS

Gale Warnings Posted At the Major Ports

The storm gods must have had an eye on the calendar, for one of the worst blows of the autumn hit ports on the Upper Lakes Monday night as the Great Lakes navigation season officially ended.

Termination of regular lisure aces rates at midnight marked the official close, but it will be several days yet before the smoke of the big freighters vanishes from the inland seas.

Gale winds touched 65 miles an hour at times at the lakehead. Storm warnings were up at all major ports. Cloudy and cold conditions at a shower point... and flurries was the forecast. The stiff westerly wind was expected to hold for some time.

Two freighters of the Mohawk Navigation, Limited, Port Arthur, Shaughnessy and the Saskatoon —left the lakehead Monday with grain for Buffalo, Erie, Marie. They are believed the last down-bound vessels on Lake Superior.

Two other vessels of the same company, the Second and the Sandford, are due at the lakehead today, the Second from Sault Ste. Marie, and the Sandford from Duluth. Both are travelling light and are expected to winter at the lakehead.

On the Lower Lakes traffic continued at a slower pace. Ships will be moving for some days after freight movement has stopped above Sault Ste. Marie. Official closing of canals comes Dec. 30.

Marine men at the lakehead said this has been a "normal" season compared to the heavy traffic of the war years. It has been a "good" year, however, in the closing weeks.

A fair number of vessels are still plying their trade on Lake Huron, Lake Erie and Lake Ontario, where ice hazards come later than on the big Sault gateway and Lake Superior.

The C. D. Secord, 346-foot, 9,000 ton veteran of the lakes, has been retired for the season, it is the reason to plow through stormy Lake Superior downbound, but apparently she will rest content after reaching the lakehead sometime today.

For a time yesterday Port Arthur and Fort William the Secord had been caught somewhere in between, until they learned she had left the Soo earlier than expected. But her master, Capt. Wilfrid Bell, was not taking any late season hazards and he was preparing to find shelter en route if wind and waves made it advisable.

MAYOR RE-ELECTED FOR 10TH TERM

Cobourg, Dec. 13.—(CP)—Mayor W. F. Smith was re-elected for a third term in the municipal election here Monday. He defeated by a majority of 35 votes Fisherman, Cobourg dairyman, who ran for the office for the first time.

Hysterical Mania Caused by ACTH Course Ended by Electric Shock

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—Loss of sanity after taking the new hormone ACTH, and recovery by an electric shock, is reported in the American Journal of Medicine today.

The case of mania developed in a woman who was given the hormone for rheumatoid arthritis. She recovered from her arthritis pain and stiffness.

But she developed what doctors call euphoria, which means feeling joy. The joy became mania, the medical report stated. This mania lasted 11 days after all acth treatment has been stopped.

Electric shock promptly ended the mental trouble. It did not return.

The woman was one of eight patients, four women and four men, given acth for rheumatoid arthritis at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons by Doctors Charles Ragan, Albert W. Grokoest and Ralph H. Boots.

She is the only one of the eight to date to show signs of any lasting good effects on her arthritis. In all the others, this report says, severe pain and stiffness came back quickly when the hormone treatment stopped.

The pain returned only slightly in the woman who got the shock treatment, and was still slight 25 days after the last dose of the hormone.

The other seven showed slight improvement, but their kidneys got enlarged hearts, but not enough to cause trouble.

The effects of acth, and its daughter hormone, cortisone, have been dramatic. Apparently easing pains, are a complete medical boon.

The Columbia doctors said they tried to find out why the hormones have their dramatic effects, but they failed. They explained that the present medical articles is published so that other doctors will not have to repeat some of the unsuccessful failure experiments.

Agriculture Expert Predicts Farm Production to Increase But Expects Prices to Drop

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)— Canada's farmers can look to increasing for a year of increased production sold at somewhat lower prices.

Methods of disposing of that production on an a dollar-short world market at as high a price as possible were being explored today at the 10th annual Dominion Provincial agricultural conference.

Agricultural experts reporting to Monday's opening conference session forecast an increased farm output in 1950. But they also predicted that prices next year would tend to be lower than in 1949 and that competition for the world's consuming markets would be stiffer.

Agricultural Minister Gardiner told the delegates that Canadian farmers have been among those being concerned about the future." Some world markets might be closed to Canada if the United States continued to declare farm products surplus under the Marshall Plan aid and it was no longer possible to depend on a "free" United Kingdom market.

He said some way had to be found to improve relationships among Canada, the U.S., and the U.K. to resolve these problems.

An increase in farm output was predicted by C. V. Parker, head of the Bureau of Statistics farm division.

Given normal weather conditions and adequate fertilizing, said Mr. Parker, total farm production next year likely will be higher than in 1948. He forecast heavier marketings of hogs for the first half of 1950, with some declines in the fall. He expected to see a further shift in grain areas from livestock to products and a drop in egg and poultry production was possible.

Farm Income To Decline

There was a likelihood that increased production would not increase farmers' cash receipts and that farm income would decline slightly.

Mr. Gardiner said the general difficulties in the Canadian farm picture seem to be production in the prairie area of Western Canada and a bumper apple crop in the Maritimes.

The Prairie Farm Assistance Act and provincial support would help western farmers. He hopes Britain's power by continuing efforts to sell their coal would get back to a peacetime method of marketing with only limited government assistance.

Wheat production this year estimated at 367,000,000 bushels with 19,000,000 available for carryover and export in the 1949-50 crop year. A fairly average 300,000,000 carry-over into the 1950-51 crop year expected.

Barley: Current crop production 149,000,000 bushels with an extremely small carry-over expected.

Meat: Outlook good with the market likely to absorb record levels. This year's production was 1,400,000,000 pounds.

Eggs: Increase in production expected with volume of eggs available for export likely to be heavier than 40,000,000 shipped in 1948.

Milk: Production expected increase and may reach 17,000,000 pounds.

Butter: Production may equal 1949's mark of 283,000,000 pounds

Prompt Action by OPP Constables Saves Deacon Bros. Plant From Fire

Prompt action on the part of three Provincial Police constables who turned in the alarm when they noticed smoke arising from an upstairs window, was credited today with preventing heavy damage at the Deacon Brothers Limited shirt factory early this morning.

While the alarm of the fire department the blaze was quickly brought under control with damage to the building amounting to approximately $300 while the stock damage is amounted to an estimated $2,000.

Started on Upper Floor

Flre Chief Gerald Vance stated that the fire apparently started on the second floor of the northeast corner of the building at the end of a cutting table. The fire burned through a stair enclosure from the floor to the basement and destroyed some cut material before it was extinguished.

The blaze was kept so easily have been very serious," stated the fire chief. "If the constables had not been there would have been difficulty in getting it under control."

The night watchman left the Deacon Brothers plant, Mr. Fred Telford, had been busy around the plant and had swept around where the fire started not half an hour before the blaze started. While working in another part of the building he had smelled the smoke and was attempting to extinguish the blaze with an extinguisher when the police department arrived.

Provincial Constables Purdy, Gable and Cockburn were driving past in the police cruiser shortly before 2.30 in the morning and noticed smoke rolling out through the east window in the factory. They immediately turned in the alarm and then tried to effect entrance to the building.

For Nessie Used

The fire department was quickly on the scene and by this time the caretaker had opened the side door. Police Constable James MacDonald of the city police force and Captain Stan Pomeroy of the fire department ran up the stairs and tried to control the blaze with extinguishers without success.

One of the city pumpers was then brought into play and fog nozzles were used to put out the fire. There was a minimum of water damage but dense smoke damage was said not to be there as windows and ventilators rapidly cleared the interior of the building.

Mr. Jack Deacon, of Deacon Brothers Ltd., estimated the building loss to around $300 and the loss on stock damage at approximately $2,000.

The fire chief said the alarm was answered with one pumper and the aerial ladder and later a second pumper and crew were ordered out to guard against the blaze getting out of control.

Short-Lived Capital, Chengtu, Left to Reds

Hong Kong, Dec. 13 — (AP) — Chengtu, short-lived capital of China, was reported abandoned to the reds today by the Nationalists.

Arrival of Red forces in the far inland city of 750,000 was expected momentarily.

Dispatches here said Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, Nationalist commander in Central China, was in Hanoi trying to negotiate the passage of Nationalist troops through French Indo-China to Hainan Island. The troops have been trapped on the coast by the Communists.

The Chinese-language new Life Evening Daily said Communist chairman Mao Tze-Tung in Peiping has appointed Gen Lo Han, turncoat governor of Yunnan province, to take orders from Red Gen. Lin Piao Cheng.

In Taipeh, Formosa, new provisional capital of China, Admiral Kwei Yun-Ching, commander in chief of the Chinese navy, said his forces were contemplating laying mines in territorial waters all the way from Shanghai China to the South China Sea.

Kwei said he was blockading all communist held ports in China.

CANADA MAY GET ONLY $11,500,000 IN CHEESE DEAL

Anglo-Canadian Food Negotiations Near End

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—Negotiations on new Anglo-Canadian food contracts are believed to have reached the stage where the United Kingdom has agreed to spend $25,000,000 of her skimpy supply of dollars for the purchase of dollar-area cheese next year.

But as far as Canada is concerned, there's a catch to the agreement. The money is to be spent in North America and only a part of the allocated sum will find its way into the pockets of Canadian cheese producers.

Big Reduction

Best estimates are that about $11,500,000 of the $25,000,000 will be designated for the purchase of Canadian cheddar, compared with an allocation of $15,000,000 in 1948.

It is believed the remainder of the money will be spent in the U.S.

This comparatively - small amount of cheese is to be that the United Kingdom so far has set aside for dollar-area food purchases in 1950.

However, Canada still is pushing hard for the allocation of a few extra million dollars to cover 30,000,000 pounds of cheese. And there are indications that she may be successful.

The negotiations are being carried out in confidential discussions both here and in London.

Limited Purchases

Officials say that at best the U.K. likely will not allocate more than $40,000,000 for new 1950 purchases to cover Canadian bacon and cheese.

There likely will be no U.K. buying of eggs, salmon, apples or fruit juices.

Compared with the $40,000,000 to $45,000,000 commitment in 1950, the U.K. made purchases of about $72,000,000 worth of Canadian bacon, eggs, cheese, salmon, apples and fruit pulp in 1948.

The wheat contract which runs to July, 1951, is not affected by current negotiations. It calls for the shipment of 140,000,000 bushels at $2 a bushel.

Pole, 19 Years Resident of Canada, United With Child He Had Never Seen

Kirkland Lake, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Canada has gained a new citizen, and Peter Kuler, the newcomer, a new son-in-law and daughter to Canada. The Polish immigrant got his new citizenship and permission for his wife—but not his daughter.

Kuler completed the necessary papers for his wife and son to join him, but the latter could come later. Four days before she was to have left, Anna Kuler, who had waited 19 years to join her husband, took poison and died. She did not say why she had taken her life, but probably because she thought the Polish government might permit Wanda to go in her place.

Last weekend Wanda, a pretty girl with dark, sparkling eyes and tightly combed dark blonde hair, arrived to meet her father for the first time.

Washington Plane Crashes Into Mud Of Potomac River

Pakistan Transport Plane Carries 25 to Their Death

By JERRY KOHN /

Washington, Dec 13 — (AP) — A capital airliner wandered off radar path leading into Washington National Airport Monday night and crashed in the mud of the Potomac River, carrying four of the 22 passengers on board to their death.

The 19 survivors—an amazingly high number for a plane crash—were taken to the hospital at Bolling Air Force base, located nearby. Many were badly hurt.

The dead were Mrs. William Cherizer, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Nevills Lassiter, a government employee who lived in Arlington, Va.; and the pilot and co-pilot, W. J. Davis and Lloyd L. Porter, both of Alexandria, Va.

Navy and Air Force members who raced to the scene in crash boats credited a number of factors for the high rescue rate. High on the list were luck and relative calm of the survivors—most of the survivors were able to help spend Christmas.

In addition, there were reports that the plane's wheels were not in the landing position, but were retracted into the fuselage. If true, this would indicate the pilot had changed his mind about landing. It may have kept the death toll down by preventing the plane from turning completely over in the river's mud. With the wheels up, a comparatively smooth water landing was possible.

Left Memphis

The plane, A DC-3, had taken off from Memphis, Tenn., and had made one stop at Norfolk, Va. It arrived over Washington during what officials called the worst traffic days in the history of National airport.

The field was blanketed by fog and soaked by steady rain. Weather conditions were described as "approximately minimum—400-foot ceiling and visibility restricted to 3-4 of a mile.

The DC-3 took its place over the field in a "stack" of planes waiting to land. Ordinarily, the aircraft, all waiting for a chance to land. After about an hour, the DC-3 airliner started down, guided by its own electronic equipment, and by ground-controlled radar at the airport.

It suddenly swerved from the radar path and apparently almost lost it completely. A short time later it was down in the river resting in five feet of mud and water.

Not Far From Spot

The crash scene was not far from the spot where the airliner took planes of an Eastern Airlines transport 55 to their death in the Potomac last January 13 in an aerial collision with a surplus P-38 fighter plane. That was aviation's worst disaster.

Robert Heniey, 36, a sailor from Arlington, who arrived Monday night's crash, told reporters that he and another man, Jeff Buchanon, 25, of Laurel, Miss., were among the first to escape from the wreckage.

POLICE BLOTTER

Little more than routine matters occupied the attention of the police department during the week.

A woman residing in an apartment on Upper Front Street complained that a purse had been stolen from her residence during the night, while Moira Furs Ltd., report'ed thefts of coal from open coal cars near their place of business.

Another resident on the West Hill complained of a transient seeking handouts from residents of that area through calling at doors.

A driver for Rawson Bus Lines reported his bus had lightly struck a man and woman who were crossing Front Street at Victoria against the red light. The bus driver said he was proceeding south on Front Street with the green light when the two pedestrian stepped away from the curb. Neither of the "jay walkers" was injured and they disappeared in the crowd.

POLICE COURT

Appearing for sentence on a theft charge involving the taking of a cash bag from a car on George Street some days ago, Ernest Hawkins, age 45, no given address, was sentenced by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to three months in jail.

Hawkins appeared for trial last week and was remanded for sentence until Monday, when he had a lengthy criminal record, police said.

... third offence drunk was sentenced to three months in jail while a second offence drunk was given one month in jail when he could not raise the $50 fine.

Several other first offender drunks paid the conventional $10 and costs.

The balance of the morning court session consisted of minor traffic offences, including charges for failure to stop at "stop" streets, and for overtime parking and speeding.

Police Station Repairs Will Cost $7,860

Local contractor W. A. Graham, has been awarded the contract to effect alterations and repairs to the local police station, Contract price of the work is $7,860.

A sum of $5,000 had previously been approved by city council to effect repairs on the police station building but the work was held up pending the vote of the taxpayers regarding proposed alterations to the city hall. This was turned down at last week's municipal election.

Speaking to the recommendation awarding the contract for the alterations and repairs to the police station, Alderman Lloyd, as chairman of the board of control said the work was absolutely necessary now that the city hall project had been turned down. He admitted, however, that the cost was slightly more than was anticipated.

Alderman Allin felt expenditure of the $7,860 on the police station was unwise, money thrown away. Alderman Lloyd agreed but stated there was no alternative. Alderman Armstrong wanted to know if it was correct that the Metro would take from five to ten years and when he received a reply in the affirmative suggested it would still be good business.

The city building inspector, J. W. Holley, will supervise the repairing, it was further decided, while the city solicitor was authorized to commence the necessary proceedings to evict the present tenants occupying upstairs quarters in the building.

Was Dismissed By RCMP Says Metallurgist

Toronto, Dec. 13.—(CP)— Despite denials of company officials a former metallurgist at the Malton plant of the A. V. Roe Aviation Corporation, Arnold W. Davis insisted Monday night that he had been dismissed after a secret screening by the R.C.M.P.

Walter A. Deisler, Avro's general manager, said that no employee was being screened and no employee had ever been screened by the R.C.M.P. He said discharge by Kinlin was in the normal course of business.

Davis contended that the screening process began last summer. The Avro plant built the first jet transport plane in North America and now is completing a design of a weather fighter for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Davis, R.A.F. Flight Lieutenant during the Second World War, said he was asked to resign last Wednesday by J. Dilworth, personnel manager of the plant's gas turbine division.

Mr. Dillworth said Davis was no longer associated with Avro, but declined further comment.

Grader With all Attachments Purchased by City Council

Purchase of a new Champion diesel motor grader complete with all attachments, including bulldozer and other extras, was ratified by members of city council at Monday night's meeting. The machine was purchased from Truck and Farm Supply, local equipment dealers, at a cost of $17,033.75.

The tender, the Truck and Farm Supply at the stoved figure was the lowest of the six tenders submitted.

When the tenders were presented to council for opening by Alderman Lumniss chairman of public works, Aldermayn Allin said he was opposed to the purchase of a new grader until rental costs for graders for the past five years were learned. He also wanted a recommendation by the city engineer.

Alderman Tice said rental for graders during five years would have paid for a new grader and this statement was more or less borne out by Alderman Lumniss, when he quoted figures for the past two years, which showed the city had paid out $9,865 for grader rental.

The new grader purchased by the city can be adapted for various work including grading, bulldozing and snowplowing as well as for other work. Delivery of the machine is promised within ten days of receipt of order.

Tax Refunds Will be Sent Before Christmas

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—Christmas presents—some 251,301 of them—started going out to Canadians Monday from the federal treasury.

The presents are income tax refund cheques, and the whole 251,301 cheques are expected to be on their way by tonight. They average about $8 each.

The cheques represent the amounts deducted at source from employees' pay during the budget brought down last spring, were exempted from income tax returns for 1949. That was when the increased exemptions of $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married persons became effective.

The cheques were to have gone out as rapidly as possible. However, when parliament was dissolved last spring, the budget resolutions had not been approved, so the cheques had to wait until a new parliament passed the resolutions.

Passage was obtained Saturday night, when Royal assent to the budget provisions was given.

In the meantime officials have had plenty of time to get the cheques ready, and are being mailed within 48 hours. They will go to employees who should have plenty of time to distribute them to their employees before Christmas.

A tribute to the memory of his untiring service in the Corby Public Library, Ald. H. J. Clarke was presented with an engraved silver rose bowl on his retirement as treasurer of the Corby Public Library Board. Mrs. Clarke received a bouquet of roses as a gift of appreciation.

Keenly interested in the role the library played in the lives of the people of the City of Belleville, especially the children, Mr. Clarke became a member of the board in 1907 and worked along with John Williams, Charles Soliman, Arthur McGinnis, J. J. B. Flint, S. A. Gardiner, Dr. H. A. Yeomans, Col. S. S. Lazier, Alfred Vermilyea, E. J. Butler, the Separate School Board and others.

From the Robertson block the Institute moved to the corner of Front Street and Victoria Avenue, where the location remained until Senator Corby acquired the present library building.

Council Approves Pension Scheme For Police, Fire and Administration Staffs by Government Annuities

City Council wound up its business for the year Monday evening at its last scheduled meeting for 1949. The next meeting of council will be on January 3rd., which will be the inaugural meeting of the new year.

At a comparatively brief council session pensions for city employees again came up for spirited discussion before the by-law providing for back service was approved by the members.

Alderman Bruce Lattimer and Alderman Angus Duffy took leading parts in the discussion with the latter councillor resenting an inference that members of council had not received sufficient information from the pensions committee. He explained that council previously had passed a by-law providing for pensions for future service but had later been directed to give consideration to past service.

He said that a by-law providing both pensions of $1 per year for each year of back service for employees with 20 years service with the city would be tabled for approval.

Claims Dissatisfaction

Alderman Lattimer claimed there was dissatisfaction on the part of many city employees with the proposed pension scheme and brought in a recommendation to rescind the by-law and call for tenders for a pensions scheme. He felt council had not sufficient information on the matter.

Alderman Duffy noted the pensions committee had carried out with the intention of giving the business to a local agent but it had discovered Dominion annuities were the cheapest form of a pension scheme. He said that 82 percent of the municipal pensions schemes in operation in Ontario were based on government annuities.

He said that by taking government annuities the city would save approximately five per cent. This was the only reason which had caused the committee to recommend government annuities in favor of local agents who "pay taxes and vote for us."

Alderman Lattimer wanted to know how many city employees were interested in the pension scheme as proposed by the city. When he was informed that approximately 60 per cent appeared interested he said this was not enough. There should be 80 to 90 per cent, he said.

Not Sufficient Information Claim

"I agree with Alderman Allin that council has not received sufficient information on this matter," he said. "I also feel that city employees might want to get their money out of the pension scheme which would be impossible if government annuities were adopted."

He said that servicing such a plan would be a big item and also wanted to know if the municipal board would pass the by-law providing for past pensions out of each year's city budget as was proposed.

Alderman Duffy said it was impossible to estimate how many employees would participate as it was optional for present employees. Referring to the wish of some employees of wanting the right to get their money back before retiring, the alderman said the only justification for a pension scheme was to protect city employees at retirement age. "The taxpayer is not spending money to set some employees up in business," he said.

Already in Effect

Mayor D. L. Storey noted the by-law was already in effect for future service and reminded council it had only been recommended now the city would lose its provincial government grant.

"Then now you are trying to shove it down our throats," commented Alderman Lattimer.

On question by Alderman Lummiss whether the plan proposed by the city would be approved Alderman Duffy said that such a plan had been approved for the city of Peterborough.

"Do we lose our grant if we do not provide for back service?" asked Alderman Allin. He was told the city would not lose the grant if back service was not provided for.

Alderman Armstrong said that in the opinion of the pensions committee back service could be provided for at less cost to the city by spreading it out over each year's budget. He said employees had made no representation to the committee personally, disapproving of the proposed back pension scheme.

Could Change Scheme

Alderman Thomas suggested that after the by-law was passed the city could change the back pension scheme after the new year and still qualify for the provincial municipal grant.

Alderman Tice said that everybody approved of the pension scheme but the city taxpayer still had to be considered. He wanted to know which was the cheapest plan to provide for back service while Alderman Lattimer said the city had assurance in writing the government grant would be approved. He was told the proposed plan was not the cheapest for the city and that a like plan had been approved for Peterborough.

"I have received more information on the pension scheme tonight than at any previous meeting," stated Alderman Lattimer.

"Then I suggest that you clean your ears," replied Alderman Duffy, "because I have certainly explained the scheme on many occasions and in many different ways."

No Preference

When the by-law providing for past service pensions came up, Alderman Thomas enquired if there was any provision for a minimum pension of say $50 per month, for example, suggesting that many employees would not be satisfied unless a minimum pension was provided. He was told there was no such provision and would not the city too much money.

Alderman Allin said he was opposed to the by-law on the ground that this council could not bind future councils to provide for past service pensions out of their budgets. Alderman Brown noted that the public works employees should not be forgotten.

He was told by Mayor Storey that public works employees were not being forgotten and would be brought into the pension scheme later.

Spirited Discussion

Failure of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to allow Belleville approved veteran preference when allotting rental houses was the subject of some spirited comment on the part of several councillors who felt that local veterans had not received a fair deal.

Alderman Liddle introduced a recommendation asking the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation be asked to give such preference when all points were equal. He was told that such a recommendation had been passed last April but had not been placed in the contract agreement with the housing corporation.

Alderman Thomas said he approved of the recommendation but wanted to know just how a Belleville veteran would be defined.

Not Geiling Fair Deal Claim

Several aldermen cited instances of veterans from outside the city coming in and getting houses and it was said at least in two instances veterans from out-of-town had obtained houses before they had secured jobs in the city.

Alderman Clarke said he felt Belleville veterans were not getting a fair deal and on inquiry had learned only about 50 per cent local veterans had been given houses in the Churchill Heights area.

"Why don't we write the department and complain that Central Mortgage and Housing is not doing its job?" asked Mayor Storey.

It was suggested that Central Mortgage and Housing were agreeable to giving Belleville veterans preference if all other points were equal but Storey wanted a definition of a Belleville veteran. It was felt that veterans claiming Belleville as their residence at the time of enlistment should be considered local veterans.

Alderman Allin said he had understood last April that Central Mortgage and Housing would not allow the clause giving preference to Belleville veterans.

Why Not Carried Out

Alderman Lloyd suggested council find out why the recommendation of April regarding local veterans being given preference had not been carried out.

"It was rank injustice in Churchill Heights," he said. "Some total strangers got houses almost immediately while Belleville veterans had to wait and wait."

Alderman Liddle said that Mr. Alan Vanderwater, housing administrator was showing no cooperation with council. "I have information as to who was getting houses. He was told that Mr. Vanderwater was guided strictly by the point system.

Committee Named

The recommendation was carried and a committee was appointed to have an interview with the housing administrator to see if more co-operation could not be received with respect to Belleville veterans getting rental houses.

Additional street lighting was authorized for MacDonald Ave., where needed, and a light was also ordered for Turnbull Street.

The council traffic committee will have jurisdiction next year as to the allowing of parking permits for commercial and other vehicles. It was stated that such parking permits had been issued indiscriminately this year.

The distribution of evergreen scrolls to veterans of the last war was brought up by Alderman Allin who claimed there were many scrolls not yet given out. Alderman Thomas said some of the scrolls were stored at the Armouries, while Alderman Liddle said some were not yet ready for distribution.

Wants Traffic Signal

Under Motions Alderman Liddle asked the traffic committee to give further consideration to the installation of a stop and go traffic signal at the corner of North Front and Moira Streets.

J. Large was given a contract for the painting of the ceiling in the council chamber at a cost of $67.

Alderman Lloyd resented statements by some aspiring aldermen previous to the election that the public could get no information regarding city business. He said this was wrong as information regarding the city's business, especially that of the rink committee was available at any time.

Commenting on a statement there had been no free rinks provided, he said rinks had been provided last year and four were already built this year. In addition all the free time possible was given at the arena.

Five Members Of 1949 Council Will be Missing

Five members of the 1949 Council attended their last council meeting Monday evening. Three members of this year's council are retiring from public office, while two members were defeated at the polls in last Monday's election.

Retiring are Mayor D. L. Storey and Alderman Orliff "Bollet" Lloyd, and Alderman George Brown who has been transferred to Ottawa, Aldermen U. A. Lummiss and Norman Wilbur suffered defeat in the elections.

Officiating at his last council meeting Mayor Storey expressed his appreciation to members of council for their co-operation during his two year tenure of office.

"As result of the co-operation of council and from city officials I have had a comparatively easy time as chief magistrate, this despite the fact we have accomplished a great deal of city business," stated the mayor.

Expresses Best Wishes

Mayor Storey expressed his best wishes to the incoming council and wished all the community a merry Christmas season.

In reply Alderman Armstrong assured Mayor Storey it had been a pleasure for council to work with him. "It has been a pleasure to be associated with you and with the other members of the council who are retiring from office this year," he said.

Alderman Lummiss also wished members of council all success in the new year, assuring he had personally enjoyed his two year service in council.

Mayor-elect Jack Allin expressed his appreciation to the chairman of the various committees who were retiring from service, stating they would be missed from council. He said they had been good aldermen and expressed the hope they would again offer their services.

Rotarians Approve Formation Of City Recreation Committee

An urgent appeal for members of the club to support a city recreation commission was made to the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday by Rotarian A. Brewer Hunt.

Rotarian Hunt, who is a director of the Chamber of Commerce spoke on behalf of that organization which is sponsoring the project. At the end of Rotarian Hunt's address, Rotarian Arthur Bateman was in the chair in the absence of President Fred Deacon asked for a "show of hands" and the majority of the clubmen signified their support.

The cost of recreation commission here would be roughly $6,000 annually or thirty cents per capita, the speaker said. "The government will pay one-third of the salaries of the recreation director and staff and the balance by the city.

A recreational commission is definitely essential to the well-being of the city, he pointed out. Service clubs have spent money on equipment but it has not prepared because of lack of recreational organization. Rinks, parks, etc., have also suffered because of the same reason.

Did Not Have Support

The Chamber of Commerce have been working for a recreation commission for the past year, Rotarian Hunt told the gathering but it has not had the support of the citizens.

The only way to accomplish anything is for city organizations together with the Chamber to make some presentation to the city for supervised recreation. "I am convinced a recreation commission will pay dividends in the prevention of crime, character building, etc.," Rotarian Hunt said. "The Chamber of Commerce is merely presenting the movement, and if and when such a commission is appointed will turn everything over to it."

The recreation director and his staff would be under the direct control of the commission and not the city council, the speaker pointed out. He urged the support of Rotary for such a commission.

Chairman Bateman said it was a subject for discussion on. He then asked for the "show of hands."

EXPERT GRANDMOTHER DRIVER

A grandmother's fitness to drive safely and swiftly was reported on Monday when a 47-year-old woman was mentioned in the news for driving 84 miles to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto with a nine-months-old baby stricken with dysentery. Authorities say that her expert driving probably saved the child's life.

That is the correct use to which one can put one's ability to drive a car and to drive when driving meant the saving of a life — her granddaughter's.

Some drivers can drive swiftly but many fast drivers are recorded among those running into accidents. They are the ones who are brought to court for recklessness.

But the grandmother in this news story won her race to the hospital and that expression of her pride from the home to the institution 84 miles away will long be remembered in that grateful family.

This woman had proven her ability as a safe driver before this as she even drove a truck when truck drivers were scarce. Her husband operates a trucking business.

In any way woman has proven in this age that she can qualify for any task.

She has shown in many ways that she is qualified on can qualify for many a post if responsibility calls her to assume the duty.

NATURE'S FLING

Unpredictable nature has had her fling with winter in the Middle States and in Manitoba where snow fell the last day or so to a depth of five to eight inches. It has now ever given this part of Canada a touch of that winter in spring which can be appreciated especially as the people hereabouts had their first snowstorm and their first cold weather more than a week ago.

The winter's sting is not so keen to many persons here now as the city has undertaken the task of clearing the walks of snow which would otherwise have to be removed by the occupants and owners of property. The approach of a storm therefore has not the unwelcome touch that it would have had if everyone were to take to shovel and clear away the walks in front of his property. So the penalty of winter is not so deeply felt since mechanism is to clear the walks and the roadways.

What with the tornadoes and blizzards which have swept parts of the United States and given Western Canada and Western Ontario real touches of winter's cold hand, the season has been more rugged than that of the past two years and yet the future as ever is unpredictable except by the men of science, the real weatherman who with records from all points of the compass can tell what the weather is to be like a few days ahead.

In winter this modern counterpart of the old style weather prophet especially proves his value for heavy snow anc winds may easy interfere with plans for travel from one part of the country to another. Everyone can recall a number of years ago when Ontario, especially in the Toronto area, was swept by one of the heaviest snowstorms on record. That was a time when those who planned to travel were careful to get the latest "prediction" in order to make certain that they would be able to make their journey without the possible risk of being snowbound.

To be snowbound in olden days was an experience and not so much a handicap as it would be today when a delay of a day or two would be a matter of some concern. But in the less swiftly moving days of olden times it was rather a delightful experience, not a handicap as it would be today when so much that is associated with our ways of living can be adversely affected by being snowbound.

HONEY

Take this matter of hot biscuits and honey for dessert. It is one of the most delicious combinations one can find. Maybe it is plebeian and everyday fare; that is beside the point. After the bees work hard and long to produce that honey. Honeybees make between 35,000 and 40,000 trips to gather the nectar needed for a pound of honey. A worker gives her life to the task and dies after four to six weeks of summer exertion. Then bees labor in the hive to evaporate the moisture from the nectar and thus the product into the honey we know. Some bees stand as guards at the hive entrance; thousands work as nurses when the height of the season brings two, three or four thousand new-hatched bees a day.

In colonial days, honey was an appreciated food. Men went out to "line" wild bees to their tree homes. — Ottawa Jotrnal.

TOASTMASTER

Just as soon as all are fed,
Then the telegrams are read
From the mayor and governor down
To the member out of town.
After that you must allow
Time "to stand and take a bow"
To the ones you mustn't slight:
"Whom we have with us tonight."
(This is done from left to right.)
When the honored guest you find,
Who has come to make the speech,
Keep the introduction brief
Do not make the speech for him!
Speak his name, and disappear,
He's the one they want to hear.
Get him up! His talk begun
You will have your duty done.

The speakers for the affirmative were Charles Dolan, Campbell St. Charles and Harry McNab, and for the negative side the speakers were William Connolly, Fred Bleecker and T. J. Hurley. After due deliberation the judges W. N. Belair, Thomas Cushing and James Copeland gave their decision in favor of the negative side. The speeches were exceptionally good and would have done credit to more experienced public speakers. The honors for the best speech were carried off by William Connelly.

Five Elections Have Put Governments Back in Office

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, (CP)— Political winds blew favorably in 1949 for five Canadian governments which called elections.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, fighting his first general election as head of the Liberal party, was returned to office with the largest group any party ever had in the House of Commons. The party, in office for the past 14 years won 193 out of 262 seats.

The Coalition governments of British Columbia and Manitoba were returned with increased representation and the Liberal government of Nova Scotia was re-elected with a slightly reduced majority. In Newfoundland, the first provincial election following the Island's entry into Confederation, brought the election of Liberal government.

Mr. St. Laurent took over the prime ministership from Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in November, 1948. He led the government through one session and then called an election for June 27.

The Progressive Conservatives with George Drew, former Ontario premier as their new leader, made what appeared to be a strong bid for power. But when the voting was in, Mr. St. Laurent and his party had gained control of the House country at the expense of the Progressive Conservatives, C.C.F. and the Social Credit Parties.

The 1947 redistribution act, increasing Commons representation by 10 seats, took effect with the election. Newfoundland's entry into Confederation added another seven seats, raising the total from 262 to 269.

The results of the election were in conformation with the party representation at dissolution April 30, in brackets:

Liberal 193 (125); Progressive Conservatives 41 (69); CCF 13 (28); Coalitions 10 (19); Independents four (three); Independent Liberal one (none). (25).

Eight by-elections were called Oct. 31. They were all contested by six government appointments and two deaths. The Liberals retained five seats and one was independent who had campaigned in support of the government. They were given seats in Liberal ranks. The Progressive Conservatives retained the eighth seat.

Provincial Elections

In Nova Scotia, the provincial Liberal government was re-elected June 9 for the fifth consecutive time since 1933.

The Liberals captured 28 of 37 seats in the legislature, generally compared to seven for the Progressive Conservatives and two CCF. The Liberals had 26 seats when there were only 30 seats in the assembly. The Liberals won 29 and the CCF two.

In Newfoundland, the Liberals won 22 seats in the 27-member legislature. Progressive Conservatives won four seats. The other sent went to Peter Cashin, outspoken opponent of union with Canada.

The Liberals were led by Joseph Smallwood, who is largely responsible for bringing the Island into Confederation. The election was held only two months after union.

In British Columbia, the Coalition government—a fusion of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives—was returned to power handily, capturing 44 of the 57 seats in the Legislature.

The Coalition included 29 Liberal-Progressives, 10 Progressive Conservatives, one Independent and one Liberal. The opposition included seven CCF, two Conservatives, one Independent Liberal, one Independent Progressive Conservatives and one Labor-Progressive.

In the 1945 election, the Coalition won 42 of the then 55 seats in the Assembly.

LOCKJAW OR RABIES?

A child was bitten on the brow and lid by a strange dog. The dog was caught after it had bitten two adults, but, as usual, the newspaper clippings a reader sent me do not say whether the dog had rabies. Apparently the two adults suffered no ill effects, but the child died, perhaps within a week or two (again the newspaper reports fail to give the salient facts). The story did not mention that the coroner performed an autopsy which, together with laboratory tests made by the health department, disclosed "positive evidence of rabies."

The coroner, basking momentarily in the warm spotlight, gave the reporter a typical line of lay side information: "He had the typical paralysis of the throat, and even the slightest scuffling of the feet would send him into terrible convulsions and screams." The coroner threatened prosecution of the dog's owner if the owner could be identified on a charge of murder, manslaughter or something of the kind.

No one has discovered a germ or virus or other organic cause of the fatal illness called rabies. Neither autopsy findings nor health department laboratory examinations or brain tissue or other tissues of animals presumably being can scientifically determine or prove that in the animal or human being the disease called "rabies" is present or absent.

Among the latest victims is the king's own nephew, the young Earl of Harewood, son of Princess Mary (the Princess Royal) and the sixth Earl of Harewood who died in 1947. The present 26-year-old earl inherited an estate valued at £784,450 ($2,431,795) and this has been taxed £250,000.

Must Sell Some Property

It's the Earl's hard luck that much of his inheritance consists of an ancestral estate of 24,000 acres on which live hundreds of tenant farmers. In order to raise the cash to meet his taxes he must sell off a lot of property. This has been in the family for generations.

The Earl of Harewood is thus experienced by so many others of this class of society. In the case where property changes hands three or four times during an estate may be virtually wiped out.

This of course means that the day of the crimson-coated squire and his hounds with a "tally-ho" across his rolling acres is just about ended. Thus Britain is losing one of its most cherished traditions.

It's an ironic twist of fate that only as far back as 1922, when the present earl's father married the Princess Royal, the Harewood fortune was huge.

Royal Taste Inherited

The Viscount Harewood, who succeeded his father in the early-on 1929, was hand-picked by King George V for his bride-to-be. He was 40 years old, of impeccable pedigree, and "dependable" upon which the old sea-dog of a king considered the first World War, and with considerable experience in diplomacy. And, as I recall it, he inherited a vast fortune from an uncle, apart from the family estate.

The present Earl of Harewood however, isn't doing so badly. It's tough to lose so much of his ancestral estate, but if my mathematics are correct he still has close to the equivalent of $1,500,000 in property. A feller can squeeze along on that for a while.

He's more fortunate than a good many others. A lot of the landed aristocracy are so close to broke that they are turning their livings in all sorts of jobs, many involving manual labor.

Mackenzie's Column: High Taxation Bears Heavily On Landed Class

(Editor's note: This column is presented as an indication of American opinion on major world events.)

The disappearance of Britain's landed aristocracy through heavy taxation continues apace, and this economic revolution is no respecter of persons.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In the finest house in the neighborhood, when I was a young man, lived a wealthy and pompous old gentleman who made his money in vending and marketing a highly successful rat poison.

Most men who make a comfortable pile of money in the most concern themselves with how they made it. Rarely do you find a rich old fellow who brags upon which the die was cast as to whether honesty would serve him or not.

But this old gentleman whose wealth came from rat poison was very definitely conscious of the rather homely source of his shekels. It is true he had, in inventing and manufacturing his poison, conferred a great boon on humanity, rendered highly important services to industry, trade and commerce. But when I was a younger man, full of vim and vigor in his business, he had no time to ponder the social aspect of the matter. But as he grew older, he adopted a very unctuous, pompous and imposing air. He tried to look like a man who had inherited his wealth from an uncle who was a banker. He had a probably trying to do well what I myself set to like a social register and anybody accidentally mention rat poison in his presence. But the only effect of his lofty behavior was to have everybody nudge everybody else, and say—"Do you see that old geezer? You'd never imagine he made his dough out of rat poison!"

The other day, I was revisiting the scenes of my youth, and among the other changes I noted was that the same old long-legged departed rat killer was equipped with the rear, with a most unsightly rusty iron fire escape of the type you normally see on factories. I enquired of the postman, who knows all the stories along his beat.

"That!" said the postman. "Well, the old guy had that fire escape built on, about the last years of his life. It was said he lived in terror of fire, and that he didn't want to get caught like a rat in a trap."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THINK YOURSELF OUT

A noted physician, whose article I recently read, made the statement that half of the beds in the hospitals thought themselves into them. They were sick and ailing but not only how these same people could think themselves out of sickness but without any help which they could so think they'd enjoy good health and avoid hospital.

Dr. Crosley gave us as a wonderful inheritance, this body of ours, which is mostly normally born as such, to rule over it by the mind—sole executive. Often times that half of humanity in hospitals thought themselves into them. They went on to suggest that they had tried too in my time to be a philosopher; but, I don't know how, philosophers were always "standing it!" I can imagine the old Doctor getting a kick out of that statement. If we will let cheerfulness, creeping into our mind we will think ourselves out of many a difficult situation.

I am sure, too, think themselves into an illness it is just as logical that the mind can think themselves out of it—as thousands or them have. If I be sure, however, that none of us ever thinks himself into any sort of illness or disease. I am equally sure that except a human being to a doctor's office, but thinking, he many a malady or has directed such a one back to himself—to think himself into normal health and conditions.

Nothing is truer than the statement that many of us have had that thinking doesn't make it so.

IMPORTANCE OF TRAINING

Looking back over the football season, practically everyone who has followed the game would be impressed with the fact that the player who keeps the players in good physical shape is certainly as important as the coach who teaches them how to play the game.

For it is the more responsible to see that the school, or club, is represented by a football team of eleven healthy huskies who will start moving down the field in a devastating fashion when the whistle blows. This is intrinsic in the technique of the game; the trainer, in addition to his duties in which it. Serious accidents usually occur on amateur teams that do not use have trainers to attend to this important matter.

Likewise the trainer's work is fundamental. Men with healthy bodies, coupled with sound minds, have a better opportunity to win and keep their jobs than any edge of men whose health has been a matter of no particular concern to anybody.

This holds true not only in football but in life. Keep the conscience healthy, the character strong, and one will not have too much trouble with this temptation or that. The victories of life are usually won by those with robust moral health, and such health is developed in a natural manner, but the result of careful training and discipline.

Christmas Concerts

ST. ANDREW'S S.S.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday School held their Christmas entertainment on Friday evening last, in the nicely decorated Sunday School hall. The entertainment was preceded by a sumptuous supper of which approximately 180 children and teachers partook.

Among the special guests were the Rev. J. G. Hornsby and Mrs. Hornsby and their daughter, Mrs. Adam and Mr. and Mrs. Templer. The supper was provided by the Ladies' Guild, and friends of the Sunday School. Mr. J. W. McKay, Sunday School superintendent was chairman during the evening's entertainment, which began with a sound film, entitled "Mother Goose Presents", the following numbers were then enjoyed: a solo, by Mary Ann Bateman, "Here Comes Santa Claus"; a solo "Rudolph, the Red Nosed Reindeer", by Linda Bateman; piano selection by Marilyn Lancabeer; recitation by Brian Wilson; solo by Sharon McDonald; recitation by Ann Mott; chorus and selection by members of the primary department; song by Donna Blue and Corinne Fargey, entitled "Santa Claus is Coming to Town"; recitation by Wallace Hardwick, "Twas the Night Before Christmas".

Song by Jack and Gerry Butcher, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas"; skit by Helen York's class: "Santa Claus Visits the Sick Children's Hospital"; David Mooncrestion; song, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" by Barbara and Beverley McKenzie; Deana Trill and Jean Muirhead; piano selections by Carol McLean, "The Belle", and "Mary Had a Little Lamb"; song by Carol Warner and Marion Thom, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing"; recitation by Margaret Wilson; song by Lois McDonald, Edith Campbell, and Pauline Gibson, "Silent Night"; piano selection by Peter Smith, "Liebestraum"; song by Edith and Rosetta Campbell, and Marion Thom, "We, Three Kings of Orient Are"; piano duet by Barbara Hein and Agnes Elvins, "Silent Night". Song by Rosetta Campbell and Marion Thom, "Good King Wenceslas"; song by Don Butcher, followed by a violin selection by Albert Lennox, entitled "White Christmas", and the "Teddy Bear's Picnic" by Gary Ward.

After the individual selections, all joined in singing "Here Comes Santa Claus" led by little Mary Ann Bateman, and at this instant who should come in but Santa Claus himself, who received a royal welcome from the Sunday School.

One thing was missing this year from the program, that of the students from the Ontario School for the Deaf, but this was due to the fact that they themselves were having an important appointment with Santa Claus also, and were unable to be present.

CHRISTIAN AND MISSIONARY TABERNACLE

An exceptionally fine "Christmas Message" in songs, recitations and exercises was presented to a capacity audience at the Christian and Missionary Tabernacle, on Friday evening.

The chancel was backgrounded with the Nativity scene, the Shepherds, and the Wise men; while on either side of the chancel wings were two tall Christmas trees, star-topped, brilliant with colored lights, and tinsel icicles, and alternating vari-colored globes. Shining from above, the large, softly glowing Star of Bethlehem, all enhancing the several numbers rendered by the little beginners, the intermediate school, and the senior departments of the Sunday school, who told by song and recitation, the story of the Savior's birth.

Mr. Gordon Brown, Sunday school superintendent, presided throughout the program which opened with the singing of "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing", followed by the opening prayer, and "The First Little Sinner," by Shirley Blakerley. "A Welcome Kiss" was coyly given by wee Billy Irwin, and a solo, "Away in a Manger," by Caroline Kirkpatrick. A recitation, "My Daddy Said," was given by Pat Blakerley; "Thanksgiving on Christmas" by Margaret Kilner, and a solo, "I know," by Carol Brown.

"Like a Christmas Candle" by Mis Dorothea Alyea's class, which was followed by the carol, "Pilgrims of the Starlight," rendered by the Junior School. Myrna Christopher favored with a recitation, "I am Seven," and Paul Brown sang, "On That First Glad Christmas Day." Miss Fern Gerrie's class gave an exercise in "If," and David Ewald, a solo, entitled "This is Jesus' Birthday," while Edward Kilner added his "Somebody's Birthday," as emphasis. Little Catherine Millard sang sweetly, "I Wish They All Might Know Him."

Miss Edith Hawley's class of boys gave an interesting exercise, "A Star In My Heart," and the combined classes of Mrs. Clarence Beattie, and Mr. Wright rendering "The Bethlehem Star," brought the first part of the program to a close. This was followed by the announcements and the Christmas offering.

The second portion began with the singing of the carol "Prayer For Peace," by the school as a whole, which introduced the intermediate class beginning with a song, "Star of Love," by Mrs. Fraser's class, and a recitation, "Ready for Christmas," by Joan Sopha.

Miss Fern Gerrie gave a fine reading of "When the Bells Tolled," and Mrs. Baragar's class a song entitled, "As With Gentle Men of Old," which was followed by a solo, "Silent Night," by Eleanor Rothwell accompanied at the piano by Marlene Browning. Some of the highlights of the evening were the rendition of "O Holy Night" by the male quartet, accompanied by Mrs. Kirkpatrick at the piano; "Hosanna" which was also splendidly rendered by the Young People's choir and Miss Joan Shindell who sang "The Birthday of a King," with feeling and much sweetness. After the singing of "O Little Town of Bethlehem" by the school and a closing recitation, "God Bless You," by Douglas Rose, the prizes and treats were distributed. Those who received prizes for perfect attendances were: Ann Bradshaw, Jean Brookhurst, Miss Edith Hawley, and Mrs. M. Hawley. Those who missed one Sunday during the year, through illness: Raymond Shaw; Jane Whitmer, and Paul Masse. Those missing two Sundays due to illness: Catharine Millard, and Shirley Blakeley.

James Stewart, General Manager, Says Heavy Capital Investment Influence on Business and Employment

Bank's Assets at Record Level

At the Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, held in the Head Office of the Bank, Toronto, December 13th, Mr. Stanley M. Wedd, President, and Mr. James Stewart, General Manager, presented the Annual Statement of the Bank together with a review of business conditions. Mr. Wedd's address to the meeting follows, in part:

Canada's conscious efforts since the war to develop an orderly and prosperous economy have been highlighted each year by changes both in domestic and in foreign relationships. The year now drawing to a close will stand out in this respect.

NEWFOUNDLAND

A world first note in the record of events that Newfoundland will remember was struck in Canada's Province, after a series of negotiations dating back many years. Both countries stand to gain much from the new partnership and Newfoundland will now take her place as an active member of this Confederation. Tradewise, Canada and Newfoundland always have been very close, with Canada first in importance as a source of Newfoundland imports and third in importance as the destination of Newfoundland exports.

DEVALUATION

The most momentous of recent happenings is the devaluation which took place in mid-September last of the British pound, the Canadian dollar and the currencies, adjustments of about twenty-five other countries which are linked more or less closely with the Sterling Area. In all likelihood it will be weeks, or even months, before the full results of these various devaluation operations can properly be appraised.

The dollar today is probably less a dollar problem than a production and marketing problem. Devaluation is, in effect, an attempt to rectify a distorted balance of payments position arising from unfavourable trade developments. For real advantages to accrue from devaluation there must be either a sizable stockpile of goods available for export or a production potential sufficient to meet any increased demand for export goods. In such circumstances, the devaluating country can take advantage of the more favourable competitive position either before economic conditions change internally or before other countries readjust trade barriers or institute competitive devaluation. In the light of the many variable factors which must be satisfied before exchange depreciation can effectively check or reverse a trend in a country's balance of payments, it is perhaps more realistic to regard devaluation as a temporary expedient rather than a corrective. Should this recent step lead eventually to free convertibility of currencies, a positive result much to be desired will have been accomplished. If, on the other hand, devaluation is nullified by continuous price adjustments then, from an economic point of view, the step will prove to be abortive.

TRADE AND TARIFF CONFERENCE

Trade and tariff discussions initiated at Geneva in 1947 continue. Reports of the sessions during the past summer suggest that the principles of multilateral trade have been generally accepted and the leading nations in world trade, the United States, Britain and Canada, are moving toward more liberal commercial policies, although these may not be fully implemented for some time. The revised schedules of tariff concessions negotiated between the ten additional nations which have now joined the general agreement and the twenty-three original members achieved a spectacular reduction in the tariff walls, but they contained the basic principles outlined at the Geneva negotiations.

Canada has reduced tariffs on sixty-one items and has bound against increasing the tariff rates on twenty-four additional items. Of particular importance were the tariff reductions obtained by Canada from the United States under the most favoured nation principle, centering for the most part on certain types of steel products, wood products and meat and dairy products.

THE NATIONAL SCENE

Looking at our domestic picture, it may be noted that the whole national economy as a whole has continued at a high level. Conditions, however, have been more variable than was the case in 1948, although it is likely that there will be an over-all gain this year and it is now anticipated that the dollar volume of business done will reach sixteen billion dollars as compared with fifteen and a half billion in 1948. During the year the number of persons at work reached the highest figure in the employment history of this country.

Canadian agriculture began in 1949/1950 crop year in a strong financial position due in large measure to continuation of high prices on the sale of farm products. There was, however, earlier in the year, widespread drought and insect infestation and, consequently, many grain growers in western Saskatchewan and eastern Alberta, as well as in some localities in central Canada, suffered heavy crop damage, which was not fully overcome by the more favourable weather later in the season.

INDUSTRY

The great expansion of Canadian industry in the last quarter century, and notably in the last decade, is a tribute to the enterprise of Canadian citizens. It is estimated that in the last ten years manufacturing capacity in Canada has increased by about sixty per cent, while the gross value of Canadian manufacturing productions per head of population has risen from about two hundred and fifty dollars per head in the 1926-29 period to the present value of about seven hundred and fifty dollars. In all, there now are approximately thirty-three thousand manufacturing establishments operating in Canada producing goods to a value of over ten billion dollars yearly. Industrial production has moved upwards and reached a new peacetime high towards the latter part of this year.

MINING AND OIL

Today Canada is one of the leading producers of minerals and current production is valued at well over eight hundred million dollars per annum derived from about sixty different substances. This represents a substantial increase in dollar value over any previous record, with higher values per unit produced and increased volume of production both contributing to bring about a new peak. Plans are proceeding for the development of the Quebec and Labrador iron ore deposits estimated at over fifteen hundred million tons. Preinitial operations are projected at a minimum of ten million tons per annum, but some years will elapse before actual production will be under way. Also, in the lower Quebec region the production of titanium is expected to commence in 1950 with an objective, which it is planned to reach in 1953, of 220,000 tons of titanium slag and 175,000 tons of pig iron per annum.

The present petroleum development programme, largely in Alberta, but extending also into Saskatchewan and Manitoba, is the largest ever undertaken in Canada. Alberta now has seventy-one thousand producing oil wells, over twice as many as a year ago, and Canadian oil production has tripled as compared to two years ago. What the new oil discoveries may mean to the future of Canadian economic life is as yet uncertain but if there are further developments on the present continues to increase at the present rate, oil production may rival agriculture in importance as a key to the prairie economy. Equally topical is the possibility that, by becoming self-sufficient or nearly self-sufficient in oil, Canada may substantially reduce her trade deficit with the United States. In 1948 approximately 60 per cent of our imports amounted to about three hundred millions in United States dollars.

The increase in the tempo of the development of the natural resources of the country, to which I have just referred, is undoubtedly of major importance to our economy. One can well envisage that, with our new oil potentials and productive capacity now substantially increased, shipments of metals to the United States markets, the current deficit in our trade with that country should progressively decline and that, in due time, a shift in our pattern of trade may develop.

Today we face many uncertainties. The attempts to gain control of economic forces, which is the goal of the totalitarian, throw difficulties in the way of efforts to establish an orderly trading world. Yet the advantages of peaceful and universal trade are so obvious that one cannot but feel that, in the end, that common sense will prevail.

All in all the year just closing has been a good one for Canada. Our trade generally has reached top figures and employment has been quite well maintained in most fields of endeavour. Yet as the immediate future is concerned I think it is safe to conjecture that the coming year will bring satisfactory results in the aggregate. It is true that competition is becoming increasingly keen abroad and from certain quarters at our borders, but there are great enterprises in the Canadian people and given a reasonably stable world there is no basis for pessimism.

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

Following on from the record activities of 1948 the Canadian economy continued in a generally upward direction and year-end aggregate figures of national income and production reflect the healthy industrial progress this year. This sustained upward trend is reflected in the present position of the Bank. During the fiscal year, assets increased by some 117 millions of dollars—a somewhat greater climb than that of last year—and the figure is now 1,646 millions.

DEPOSITS

An increase of 122 millions is shown in deposits this year as contrasted with 93 millions last year. The Balance Sheet which is before you gives a breakdown of this liability in various classifications, but probably the most significant figure is contained under the heading "Deposits by the Public, not Bearing Interest," — the bulk of the deposits under this heading is in personal savings and the increase of 58 millions over last year evidences the thrift and savings habits of the people of this Dominion and also reflects the generally favourable economic conditions within the Dominion.

INVESTMENTS

Our investment portfolio covering Dominion and Provincial Government and Municipalities issues shows a modest increase over last year of $4 million. The return from investments and the cost of money to the Bank is low—a very small fraction of 1 per cent. However, these securities could readily be converted into cash, they are not subject to wide market fluctuations, and consequently represent a safeguard for our depositors' funds.

While on the subject of investment, it might be noted that over the past few years great strides have been made in the expansion and improvement of industrial and commercial plant and equipment which has involved heavy capital investment and this has been a sustaining influence on the high level of business and employment. Having regard for past experience, there must be an annual rate of capital investment that fits in with the orderly growth of an economy such as ours, although by far it is difficult to express in figures any overall investment. It is important to our economy that private capital investment be encouraged among our own people, but also the factors must be such that citizens of other lands will view our investment possibilities with favour. It is essential, therefore, that a climate continue to be developed and sustained wherein risks and returns come into line and where individual and corporate judgments be given adequate scope.

LOANS

Current loans this year have increased $59 million. This is almost double the increase of 1948. Seasonal upward price movements (fortunately on a small scale), a sustained increase in industrial plant and equipment, plus the continued buoyancy of the Canadian economy to which I have made previous reference have contributed to this position.

VOLUME

So far, I have dealt only in figures which have a dollar sign in front, but I am pleased to say that the progress made dollar-wise has been matched in the increased number of our customers, depositors, borrowers and others who use the facilities of the Bank.

The number of deposit accounts increased by 38,000, and borrowers by 11,300.

In addition, there has been a further enlargement of the number who have a prosperous interest in the Bank as our shareholders have increased by 450 and now stand at 13,936.

STAFF

The figures which you have before you bespeak the calibre of the staff. The steady increase in the Balance Sheet and the level of our earnings tell the story of initiative, energy and good administration generally. We have a large staff—some 7,500—scattered over the length and breadth of the Dominion, in the United Kingdom, the United States and the West Indies. Spread as they are, authority is widely diffused and I cannot speak too highly of the manner in which the Managers and Accountants throughout the service have accepted and wisely used their delegated authority. The men and women in the offices, departments, in the branches have also contributed to the giving of cheerful and efficient service to the public. It is a pleasure for me to express appreciation to the members of the staff for a good job well done, and I am sure this will be heartily endorsed by the shareholders here today.

PICTON

Mrs. Mary Howe Celebrates 101st Birthday

Picton, Dec. 13. — Mrs. Mary Howe, Bloomfield, celebrated her 101st birthday at her home in the village of Consecon. Friends and neighbors plan to celebrate the notable anniversary with her.

"It's nice," she says, "but a trifle too long. There is nothing much to look forward to, just the good times of the past to look back at."

Mrs. Howe sees nothing unusual in the fact she is enjoying good health at the age of 101. She can walk around her home; her eyesight is comparatively good and her hearing is unimpaired. She is a witty conversationalist. Of modern styles she does not disapprove and sees nothing wrong with the use of lipstick, adding hastily, 'Of course I do not use it.'

A cousin of the late Sir Redmond Roblin, former premier of Manitoba, she lives with her daughter, Miss Muriel Howe. Her husband, Daniel E. Howe, died more than 32 years ago.

"All my friends are now ones, the people I used to know have all passed on," she said, adding that though they are new they are very kind.

Mrs. Howe watches for the arrival of her favorite newspaper and through it keeps abreast of news of the day. She has spent all her life in Prince Edward County, being born at Roblin's Mills and living for the past 31 years in the village of Consecon, 20 miles northwest of Picton.

Work of Health Unit Outlined To H. and S. Club

An outline of the work of a health unit in the school and home was given by Dr. John P. Wells, B.D., D.P.H., director of the Health Unit of Prince Edward County, to the King George Home and School Association on Monday night. Dr. Wells expressed the hope that he might be of some assistance in arriving at a favorable decision to establish such an organization in this community.

Let us take an average Canadian community of five thousand people," said the speaker, "and analyze it from the public health nurse's viewpoint. There are about one thousand homes which would average 120 expectant mothers, 120 infants, 1,000 pre-school children, over 1,000 school children, 25 to 50 tubercular cases and their contacts which would be about five to each case, several cases of venereal disease, some aged people, some mental illness, and some cases of handicapped children.

Given to Child Hygiene

"The greatest part of the nurse's time is given to maternity and child hygiene which includes home visiting, conferences and pre-natal teaching to groups; elementary and secondary schools absorb a good percent of her time; then tuberculosis; acute communicable diseases and venereal disease. The rest of her time is taken up with office time, bedside nursing (although this is almost negligible), staff orientation and unassigned time.

"Local practitioners, speaking from personal experience, have been most co-operative and helpful, although some doctors are opposed, believing it to be a case of state medicine. When this prejudice is overcome as they realize the unit is working with them they readily co-operate. In Picton one general practitioner looks after the school clinics.

"These figures provide a base from which to start a program. Joint planning between the Board of Health and the Board of Education usually works out to the best advantage.

Associations Moving Spirit

"In Prince Edward County the moving spirit behind the establishment of a unit were the Women's Institutes and the Home and School Associations. The women are more aware of the value of a health unit, and the approach to the home gets the most consideration.

"Immunizations are done in many parts of the county, and people are taking advantage of the facilities offered. One hundred and twenty-five cases of tuberculosis have been discovered in the county and their contacts investigated. Between three nurses at present in the county, Visits are made to homes to prevent the spread of communicable diseases, but these are made at the end of the day to prevent carrying infection to other homes. In their social welfare work children who need glasses or some medical attention which their parents cannot afford are sometimes referred to service clubs who provide the needed funds. Sometimes behavior problems or 'problems of maladjustment are met and are referred to a psychologist or psychiatrist for treatment.

"That the people are eager for this service in public education for preventive care is evident in the fact that the services are expanding and the county is continuing to support the health unit.

Dr. Wells was introduced by Mr. H. Hall, and thanks were expressed by Miss H. Thompson.

Church Choir Heard

The choir of male voices from Christ Church under the direction of Mr. Arthur Simpson additional to the enjoyment of the evening by their fine rendition of Christmas carols. These included old English and Polish carols as well as such familiar numbers as "God Rest Thee Merry Gentlemen," the "Holly and the Ivy," and "O Come All Ye Faithful." These reflected careful training of the well-blended voices, in some unusual and striking arrangements. Mr. Dana Cooke was the accompanist. Mr. H. Outingdike voiced the appreciation of the audience.

The class award was won by Miss Robertson's Grade one.

A baby fair is to be held in February and conveners and committees have been formed.

Mrs. C. A. Brown presided for the first part of the program. During ill health Mrs. Brown tendered her resignation and introduced Mrs. F. B. Cross as her successor. Mrs. Cross took the chair for the remaining part of the meeting.

Plans were discussed for transporting Grade five to Kingston to sing at the Ontario Festival of music there. It was hoped that some of the parents might accompany them.

Refreshments and a social hour followed the meeting with Mrs. Ivor Butler and her assistants on the social committee serving.

Women's Institute

RIVER VALLEY W.I.

Rawdon,—The Christmas meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held at the spacious home of Mrs. Ross Bush on Wednesday last with about thirty ladies and ten children in attendance.

The home was beautifully decorated with Christmas festoons and two lighted Christmas trees set in large decorated tubs. At each member of the Women's Institute answered the roll call, she drew a gaily decorated parcel from the tub, and many and varied were the lovely gifts.

A smaller tree planted in a similar container held the children's gifts and they thoroughly enjoyed the novelty of drawing their Christmas package.

The president, Mrs. Harold Morgan, presided, and opened with the usual preliminaries. She expressed the thanks to the District President, Mrs. Cory Rose, that was unavoidably absent) to all the Institute members who had cooperated in making the District Rally at the theatre a success. The secretary-treasurer presented the minutes and financial report.

Mrs. J. Donohoe, convener of the card parties, gave a report of the card party held at the apartment of expenses and handed in a balance of over $21.

To Purchase Bond

It was decided to purchase another bond for $100 in the name of River Valley Women's Institute.

The January meeting based on publicity will be held the first Wednesday in January, at the home of Mrs. J. L. Donohoe. Plans were made to send Christmas greetings and boxes to several folks in the district, who are ill.

The program was prepared by Mrs. Don Donohoe and Mrs. John Kane based on Christmas, with the former presiding.

Several Christmas carols were sung throughout the program.

Mrs. Percy Usman read a beautiful Christmas story about a farmer and his wife who adopted a wee baby.

Master Ralph Vandervoort recited a Christmas verse.

Mrs. Sheldon Reynolds read a Christmas message on the theme "When the Wise Men Appeared."

Mrs. D. Donohoe read a poem by Edgar Guest entitled "The Rain-Keeper".

Christmas Concert.

Mrs. John Kane conducted a Christmas concert. Those taking were Misses Mae Brooks, and Evelyn Bush. They awarded the prize for the "Best Christmas Menu" to Mrs. Allan McDonald. The gift was a lovely box of home-made candy, which she shared with all in attendance.

At the close of roll call and opening of gifts the lunch committee served a variety of treats and ments which were most appetizing.

Mrs. Ed. Heasman very graciously extended thanks for hospitality program and refreshments.

Club Approves Two Motions Presented

The Christmas meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association, which took place at the school last night, established a record for attendance, with every seat in the assembly hall filled and many standing at the back. It is estimated that over 450 people were present.

Until 8.45 p.m., the school held "open house", with parents visiting the classrooms to meet the teachers and inspect the cleverly contrived Christmas decorations in the assembly hall itself, the stage had been expertly dressed by two senior volunteers with an almost life-sized nativity of a horse and cutter, backed by a realistic snow-clad landscape. The meeting proper opened with Christmas selections by three different choirs in four and five part harmony, under the direction of Mr. Lewis. These were followed by three items performed by the Public School band directed by Mr. Cooper, the speaker of the evening was the Rev. W. E. Mann, curate of Christ Church, who was introduced by the principal, Mr. E. S. Falaher. Mr. Mann delivered a very interesting and stimulating address on the subject of "The Christian Home."

To Provide Expenses

During the business meeting which followed, two important motions were put to the members and carried. The first of these authorized the association to pay the expenses for one of the grades to enter the singing contest in Kingston early in the new year, while the second directed the president to send a letter to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, supporting their drive towards the establishment of a recreational commission in the city at the same time pointing out the equal importance of improving the city's health services.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. J. A. Layton, on behalf of the association, presented a pair of table lamps to Mr. A. C. Wilkin, who retired from the post of principal last year, after 37 years of service.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

When the pig was opened, the birds began to fly.

In order to stimulate the languid appetites of dinner guests in ancient Rome, chefs would roast a whole pig, and before bringing it to the table would sew up a half dozen live birds in the carcass. As soon as the roast was carved the birds flew out, the host cried "Surprise!" and everybody started to tear his or her pork chops apart.

A state of shock is no longer considered cute or clever at the dinner table. The girl who burst out of a birthday cake at a banquet would hardly have won a smattering of applause in any sheep raising state.

Cooks who decorate beef tongues to look like Cinderella's slipper and who fix hams in aspic to look like guitars are following a decadent and disappearing art.

Menu terms, however, often provide surprises. A steak is literally a thick cut of anything. But a Salisbury steak is as many people have found out, a high class hamburg. It was invented by a Dr. Salisbury whose recipe called for scraped beef formed into a patty. Today it's the best ground meat, enriched with beef marrow and served in large dinner-size portions.

GRILLED SALISBURY STEAK
Serves 6

Have the butcher put 1 1-2 pounds of top round or top sirloin through a coarse grinder once. Ask the butcher for a small piece of beef marrow removed from the bone, sufficient to make a half cup. Chop marrow fine and add to meat.

Season meat with 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper and 1-4 cup grated or finely chopped onion. Add 1-4 cup milk 2 tablespoons bread crumbs and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

It is important to mix meat and seasonings very lightly. Don't knead or work it too long or the meat will be formed into tight patties and will be tough.

Shape meat into 6 cakes of equal size. Place in ice box to chill 30minutes before cooking. When ready to broil, sprinkle with white bread crumbs and paprika. Brush lightly with a few drops of salad oil. Place in a broiler pan (an ordinary pie tin will do) under a pre-heated hot broiler flame. Brown on both sides, turning carefully with spatula.

Remove from broiler flame. Serve at once. Salisbury or hamburg steaks which are not served immediately, develop a flat, steamy flavor. Garnish salisbury steaks with French fried onions —rings of Bermuda onions dipped in milk, then in seasoned flour and fry quickly in deep hot fat.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Your Christmas card envelopes should be good-looking, well-groomed

Here's my Christmas card envelope for you . . . and I've written your name and your address as carefully and as handsomely as I can." What a fine ideal to have in mind as you are addressing the envelopes of your Christmas cards! Then your envelopes will make that bright and endearing first impression they should make. Their pleasing faces will "smile" your Christmas greetings to your friends even before your Christmas cards "speak" your Christmas greetings.

Your envelopes are personal things . . . they carry your handwriting, characteristic of you, heart-warmingly welcome to your friends. They should be neat, carefully groomed . . . nothing careless about them, nothing shoddy.

Listen to these important hints:

1. Write carefully. Never less than in your best handwriting. Illegibly gets you nowhere . . . and often strains your hearers exactly by the same place! "Address your Christmas envelopes plainly" is the annual and ever-hopeful plea of the Post Office Department. It is practical, thrifty wisdom, because your carelessly-addressed envelope may mean (1) that they will find themselves languishing among the millions of other things mistakenly sent to the Dead Letter Office, or (2) that they will unnecessarily and wastefully be detouring about the country in an effort to find out what you really did mean by some of the illegible or abbreviated words you scribbled in the address.

2. Be sure you have the correct address, and that you write it correctly. If you know the Zone Number, use it . . . that is what it is for.

3. Use as few abbreviations as possible, which means practically no abbreviations except Mr. and Mrs. Abbreviations are most "impersonal" envelopes, particularly to Christmas card envelopes, which should not regular the haste that is registered by abbreviating. And abbreviating is unattractive, unless you have hit that you can get over in no time-flat if you set your mind to it. It takes only a second or two to write a word in full . . . just about as long as it takes to make the period after the abbreviation! Try it . . . write N.Z. . . . then New Jersey . . . Write Ont. . . . then Ontario. Really not much difference in seconds, but as much difference in appearance and in possibility, of safe-delivery.

Abbreviations are the chief source of mishaps to envelopes. Expected abbreviations fool the guess and states. Perplexed Post Office attendants scowlingly try to figure out what Carelless Carrie or Careless Charlie means to write N.J., or N.Y., or Mo. or Me. or Md., Ariz. or Ark.; Tex. or Tenn.; Neb. or Nev.; Cal. or Col. Honor the names of states, or, for Canadian addresses, the names of provinces . . . this is good form, good taste, good sense.

North, South, East, West also should be written in full and capitalized in the names of states, cities, and streets.

Keep your pen right on tit way, and instead of abbreviating, write out Street, Avenue, Road, Park, Square. These address-words, written in full, add to the good-grooming of your envelopes.

Write "and" not the sign (&) in Mr. and Mrs.

4. Give honor, too, to the first names of your friends. Write Jones (not Jas.); Charles (not Chas.); Richard (not Rich'd). And no nicknames on envelopes, please: Margaret (not Peggy).

5. Always write a title before a name . . . Mrs., Mr., Miss, ("Miss" before the name even of a very young girl.)

6. Use no unnecessary curlycues . . . they often cause mis-

reading. No need for "To" or "For" before the name, or for "Number" before the street-address, or for a comma between the number and the name of the street. No need for a comma either before or after the Zone Number . . . which, by the way, should be written after the name of the city, not of the state.

7. Never write "City" or "Town" or the name of the box for such as an address. If the letter has to be re-addressed, this generally leads to confusion.

So a careful take-off for your Christmas envelopes . . . and a happy handing for your Christmas cards!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This girl isn't intelligent enough

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 16, and considered very intelligent, since I have already finished high school and am going to business school, so I can't explain how this could have happened to me.

I am in love with a married man. He has been married two years. He has never told me he loves me. In fact, we have never mentioned it. He seems to want to fight it. We are always being thrown together and we have gone out on many occasions alone. One night he commented rather sadly that if he had known he would be meeting me he would never have married. This and many other incidents have led me to believe he does care. I do love him terribly but I also realize this is terribly wrong.

Please help me. How can I forget him?

D.

Dear D.:

I am afraid I think that if you were as intelligent as you think, you would have kept out of any such situation as this. I think, moreover, that you had better start proving your intelligence by letting him go his way and by stopping seeing each other. It is very foolish indeed, and far from intelligent, for a girl of 16 to let herself become involved in any such affair as this. It is very dangerous one for you to be in. You have no assurance whatever that this man is speaking but a playboy, and that he is not giving you the line that you and many like he had met you before he had married somebody else.

The best way to forget him is not to see him any more but to concentrate on boys of your own age.

Her brother is in serious trouble

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My brother has been going with a girl for over a year, the last summer, after enlisting in the Army, he began talk about marrying her. Since he is not legally of age, my mother refuses to give her consent, claiming he is too young to marry and that he can't support a wife.

I felt the same way, until he told me how much he respects the girl and that he cannot live by get married the better, because she is expecting a baby sometime in April. He wants to marry her so that he can take care of her and the baby, and also to save their reputation among their friends.

My brother thinks mother knows about the girl's condition and that is why she refuses to give her consent to their marriage. If my brother's suspicions are correct, would he be selfish and thoughtless for mother to act like this? If she really loves my brother, would she act this way, when so much misery could be prevented by marriage? And what would you advise my brother to do?

L. C.

Dear L. C.:

Of course it is hard to give a definite opinion on a situation like this when there may be many considerations about this matter that I do not know. But if your brother can take care of a wife and baby without imposing financially on his family, who may not be in a position to take an extra responsibility, then it would seem that the best solution to this unfortunate situation would be for him to marry the girl.

What I would advise your brother to do would be to go to your clergyman, tell him the story and ask if he will talk to your brother. I think it is a problem that should be worked out between your brother, some wise friend like this, and your mother.

Fashion Flashes

A RADICAL change in fur colors is promised by a famous woman furrier. She works with fox, clipping it short and dyeing it in the most delicious colors—delicate pastels and deep and vibrant tones as well. The result is a colorful fur coat that is light, warm, durable, and combines the best qualities of a fur coat and a fabric one.

NO END to the umbrellas with novelty handles, prepared for the gift-giving season. Now we have a short umbrella with a ball point flashlight set into a T-shaped clear plastic handle, and placed at an angle that makes it easy to use.

INCREASED acceptance of fabric handbags is noted this season. Something new and different is a bag made of one piece of felt and trimmed with clusters of flowers centred in tiny pearls and rhinestones. Handles are of gold braid. There is a matching headdress that can also double as a belt.

COLOR RISES as colorful evening hats point up dark clothes. A side-tilted hat is of bright red velvet trimmed with clusters of pink pearls, with a strand of tiny pink pearls twisted about a stitching of velvet.

A CHANGE of line is introduced by the slim, fitted coat, a contrast to the full and boxy coats we've seen for so long. A handsome redfor in light Winter navy blue broadcloth has a notched collar, pocket flaps, cuff insets and double breasted buttons of black Alaska sealskin.

OUT TO DINE quite a lot is the restaurant suit. Black velvet is used for a suit with a very slim skirt and a three-quarter jacket, with rippled back and dipping hemline that is worn either loose or wrappy. The jacket is lined in pin crepe de chine and there is a low necked pink crepe de chine blouse with pleated insets.

Meals Dirt Cheap In Elmira School

Elmira, Ont. (CP)—Cover or minimum charges don't worry students eating in the Elmira district high school. They can buy a full course meal for 10 cents.

More than 200 pupils from this town, and from places as far as 20 miles away who attend the high school, give some time and work to make the project possible. They take turns washing dishes and helping the cook.

In the spring they plant vegetables and can them in the Fall. Cafeteria profits paid for the canning machine long ago. During the summer months students are hired to look after the acre of garden and the school orchard. On top of all this the students have just finished building a barn.

As a reward for his work the student gets meat, or a substitute, two vegetables, bread and butter and cocoa—all for 10 cents. Milk or ice cream costs an extra nickel.

Set up as a community school 10 years ago, at a cost of $150,000, the building, with the help of three buses, now serves the town of Elmira and the township of Woolwich and Wellesley. Because it is in a rural community, the accent other than matriculation is on agricultural courses. But classes are also provided in shop work, music or commerce.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Reflections before the mirror

It is possible that most women don't know much about their facial benavior. When a woman looks into a mirror her face is in a state of repose; she doesn't see its ligats and shadows, its varying expressions. An expressive face communicates thougnts and emotions as eloquently as the spoken word. With sparkling eyes and an engaging smile, all is well. With drawn-down mouth corners and lack-lustre eyes, life is bitter.

By its expression a face can look young or old, Many old girls in the sixties and seventies have countenances that deny age because they are alight with gaiety and spirit. Some of our bored young ladies can appear as old as the hills when they assume gravite maps that take on the attitude, "I have done everything. I have been everything. Life is a dreary washout."

That, of course, is a pose. It is supposed to be arty. The freshman in college may have a keen desire to appear wise and sophisticated, and that is the way she goes about putting over the impression that she is a woman of the world. It is a pity. The bloom and loveliness of youth should not be clouded with affectations.

Smile, even if it kills you.

If we could see ourselves as others see us there would be no facial acrobatics to distort pretty features. There would be no twisting of the lips, no stern, steely glances, no disfiguring frowns, no calculating, suspicious looks.

It might be helpful for a woman to stand before a mirror and see what these expressions do to her appearance. Let her compress her lips and hold them tightly against her teeth, as she is likely to do when she is critical or suspicious. How smug, how self satisfied, how superior! Not pretty, not pretty at all!

Perhaps she is of the poetry, wheedling type. Her face becomes soft and immature, lips are parted, open. Then there is the sneering expression. You can't describe it, but you know it when you see it, and you know precisely what it means; words are not necessary.

Let us realize this one important fact; faces are ever in the making or the unmaking. Pleasing expressions send the fibres upward, keeping them strong. So smile if it kills you. Doleful thoughts bring drooping lines, cause the muscles relax and become weak; after that wrinkles can come popping along almost any time. The worrier gets the worrier's face. The woman who nags can look as ugly as sin, no matter how perfect her features may be.

Some Cookery Methods Reviewed

By ANNE ALLAN
(Hydro Home Economist)

Preparations for the festive meals are indeed simplified. Almost every kind of food may be purchased in a form requiring only a minimum of handling in the home kitchen, yet there is no denying that a woman is proud of her own achievements in the art of home cooking. It may only be the icing for the cake or the stuffing for the bird.

The homemaker may not want to experiment with new recipes during the Christmas rush and she does want things to turn out right. We desire a rich brown gravy, a neatly stuffed bird and soft creamy fudge. In many instances the method of preparation makes a difference, so let's review some cookery methods today.

1. Dry bread crumbs should be made from sliced bread that has been dried out in a slow oven until crisp but not brown, then crushed between two layers of wax paper with a rolling pin.

2. To get halved nuts, strike walnuts or filberts on the rounded side with a hammer. Brazil nuts and pecans should be steeped in hot water, then cracked on the end.

3. To blanch almonds, pour boiling water over shelled nuts, let stand five minutes, then rub each nut between the thumb and forefinger so that the meat slips from the pointed end of the skin. Do not soak more than 1-4 pound at one time for their tend to become soggy.

4. To prepare fresh coconut, drain the milk from the coconut from holes pierced with a nail through the eyes; crack the shell with a hammer or chisel; pare off the brown rind and grate.

5. To make a good gravy from a roast, pour the fat from the roasting pan into a measuring cup, and then into the frying pan. Measure an equal quantity of flour and sprinkle it into the hot fat as you stir over moderate heat. Pour a cup of hot water into the roasting pan to rinse out any meat flavor and then add slowly to browned flour and fat. Let mixture come to a boil and add more water if too thick. Taste and season, if necessary, before serving.

6. To stuff a cleaned bird: prop up the bird to stuff the breast cavity. Fold the wings under the body so that they will hold the neck skin. If neck is too short to tie or sew ends and fasten string around wings. Turn the bird on its back and fill body cavity (stuff but do not pack. Insert poultry pins through each side of opening and lace string over them beginning at breast, winding string around tail, crossing it then around each leg before tying ends together.

7. To bake moist potatoes-in-jackets, scrub potatoes, pierce 2 or 3 times with a fork and rub well with bacon fat. Bake in a shallow pan in a moderate oven for 1 hour and 20 minutes.

8. To make smooth fondant, wipe the sugar crystals from the sides of the pan of syrup with wet cheesecloth tied around a fork. Cool sugar mixture when test for soft ball is right. Work candy on a greased platter with a wooden spoon until it is creamy. Knead the creamy mixture until it is free from lumps.

To make a creamy fudge: cool fudge mixture when syrup reaches 238 degrees or is at soft-ball stage. Beat fudge with deep strong strokes. Pour candy into greased pan when it thickens and loses its gloss

10. To caramelize sugar: spread the granulated sugar in a thin layer over the surface of a heavy frying pan. Place over very low heat and let it stand without stirring until a light brown liquid has formed. Stir caramelized sugar cautiously into liquids; the hardened mass which forms will dissolve eventually in a hot liquid.

11. To whip cream: use cream that is twenty-four hours old, thoroughly chilled and fairly rich (at least 30 per cent). Pour cream into a deep bowl and beat rapidly until thick. Too long or slow beating causes fat to separate.

12. To line pans for fruit mixtures: use heavy brown paper or heavy waxed paper. Always cut the paper to fit the pan—do not fold into corners. Grease the shiny side of brown paper.

13. To make a soft coating icing for petite fours: melt fondant candy in a double boiler, then pour over cool cakes placed on waxed paper.

2-3 cup clarified chicken fat instead of 1 cup butter,

Letter Laid Bare Suicide Thoughts

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N. Z. — (CP) — Poignant letters between friends on opposite sides of the world were produced at the inquest into the death of Jean Venot, 45, a French engineer who walked into the sea and shot himself off the wild coast of western New Zealand.

Two days before he died he wrote to Mlle. Paulette Lacaze, of Paris, France: "By the time you receive this letter I shall no longer belong to this world. I am very sorry to have to let you know the terrible news, but my silence would be proof of cowardice on my part. You will be surprised at this awful decision. My last letter was very hopeful.

"Alas! After a good beginning circumstances told me that my mission in this world had come to an end. I am a victim of the war and surviving it was my great misfortune. In this country I have had every chance to succeed. As a result of incomprehensible circumstances I failed miserably.

"My decision was not made in a moment of despair but has ripened and been reflected upon as each event occurred. To those who may inquire about me, you have heard nothing. Silence must reign over my memory.

"Having been a great traveller it is natural that the ocean should be my grave and it is to the Tasman Sea, west of New Zealand, that I bequeath my body. In thanking you for the affection you have always shown me in spite of the blows of life, I ask you to believe that I am taking with me a noble remembrance of yourself. God bless you."

The letter was sent airmail, and Mlle. Lacaze at once replied: "I answer immediately, feeling certain that you will not do as you have written to me. Remember, God has given you life — this superior Gift — and He must keep it and He Himself must decide the moment, and then you will be able to face Him.

"I know that you have been ill, but a convalescent can have a relapse, especially in your case. So you must be patient, very patient. You must not give in, but continue to fight successfully."

But even before she wrote, Venot had left his lodgings, telling acquaintances he was going to work in another town. Instead he died in the surf after disposing of everything that would give a clue to his identity.

The police said at the inquest that inquiries left no doubt that on account of language difficulties and ill-health he had not been able to get suitable employment, and had become increasingly depressed.

Library Should be Cultural Centre of Community Speaker Tells Members of Rotary Club

Three assets are the main stabilizers of the power of the five-cent piece in the cultural life of the city insofar as the rural library is concerned, Cliff A. Holmes, B.A. of the staff of the O.S.D. said in an address to the Rotary Club yesterday.

The speaker drew a fine word picture of what the library is and what it means to the community as a whole, stating "it made a powerful influence on the culture of residents of Belleville."

Speaking on the subject "What You Get for a Nickle," Mr. Holmes said the three assets, that are main stabilizing power of the small piece of money, are, first the realization of the need of a reading centre; second the gift made to Belleville in 1876 by the late Senator Corby, who presented the city with the present library and donated $20,000 for its support, and the interest of which purchases new books, and third the grant from the Provincial library board of $1,750 in 1948.

"In this library," he said, "you can purchase a card for a nickle which will enable anyone to borrow 100 books and enjoy reading pleasure for three years before renewal."

Should Be Cultural Centre

The library, is went on, was more than a centre to provide books. It is and should be a cultural centre where organizations, women's clubs, musical people, high school students, lovers of art, and others can meet. All these constitute an important phase of the life of the city.

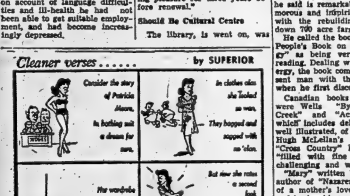
"He appreciated," he said, "the grant of the Rotary Club of $30 to help finance the purchase of a motion picture projector and films. Funds are now being gathered for the purchase of a second projector and films. Last month 77 films were shown to 7,000 people in the city. The film council is a non-profit organization and worthy of support of the city."

Mr. Holmes reviewed a cross section of the year's newest books. He spoke in somewhat lighter vein of the book "Complete Canada" which deals with the newest rage in card games, first created in South America and which is now sweeping the United States and Canada.

Book Recommended

Another book he recommended was "Happily Ever After" which he said is remarkably clean, humorous and inviting. It deals with the rebuilding of a run-down 700 acre farm in Virginia.

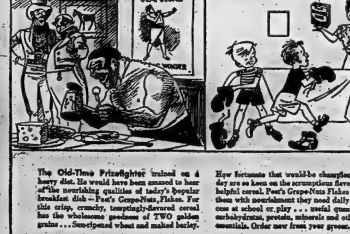
He called the book "The Young People's Book on Atomic Energy" as being very interesting reading. Dealing with atomic energy, the book compares the present man with the cave-man when he first discovered fire.



Canadian books he discussed were Wells "By Moonstone Creek" and "Across Canada" which includes delightful stories well illustrated, of the provinces. Hugh McLellan's new book, "Cross Country" he defined as "filled with fine stories, very challenging and worth while."

"Diary" written by the Jewish author of "Nazarene" is a story of a mother's love for her son, and is absorbing reading for anyone especially at this time of the year.

Mr. Holmes urged all to take advantage of the facilities of the library where 20,000 books are available and "where I hope you will get your nickle's worth."



The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Bill Morrison with club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Gilbert Scott. Rotarian Arthur Bateman was in the chair in the absence of President Fred Deacon.

Insurance Funds Mostly Spent For Necessities

By FORBES REUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

One of the steadiest flows of money coming into Canadian pocketbooks is that from life insurance.

It is, too, largely "bread and butter" money — spent for necessities, and so goes into the most basic things of a country's life: food, clothing, housing, education.

Accordingly, for the most part, it is money that turns over fast. It is people's savings which, having spent a term in major investments, finally comes back to buy groceries.

While a large portion of it goes to support dependents after the death of a policy-holder, more than half goes to the living policyholder, often to support his wife or her income in later years.

Huge Payments

In the first nine months of this year, for example, Canadian families were paid more than $154,937,000 by the 50-odd Canadian, British and United States life insurance companies operating here.

Of this, about $59,800,000 was in death payments, and some $95,430,000 in payments to living policyholders.

The latter figure included $24,-661,000 in matured endowments; $2,833,000 disability benefits; $5,-289,000 annuity payments; $35,-205,000 surrender values; and $27,435,000 in dividends to policy holders.

Provincial Figures

The figures, from the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, give the death payments by provinces, in the nine months, as follows: (amounts in brackets are which death payments made, in brackets):

Prince Edward Island $275,500 (134); Nova Scotia $1,629,000 (1,727); New Brunswick $1,128,-708 (1,137); Quebec $17,253,925 (11,741); Ontario $27,443,000 (22,072); Manitoba $3,061,203 (1,935); Saskatchewan $1,554,613 (829); Alberta $2,589,195 (1,381); British Columbia $4,332,457 (2,236.)

Newfoundland figures are not yet available, but are broken down by provinces of the amounts paid to living policy holders is not given.

Modern Rustlers On Aussie Range

Canberra — (CP) — High farm prices and good seasons have brought out the modern rustler in eastern Australia. Ranchers in the interior, where stations cover hundreds or square miles, are short of help and they say they are losing thousands of pounds a year in stolen stock.

So far none of these rustlers has been caught. They work at dusk or in the moonlight rounding up 30 or 40 sheep into a big fast truck and speed off either to the market or their own properties.

Earmarking with station brands normally checks this sort of thing, but all the big runs are short of staff and have hundreds of animals which have never been mustered and marked.

One stock manager said: "I have been in the farming game for 36 years but I've never known anything like this before. All you need is a truck, a knowledge of stock and a dog. It is very difficult to convince some people that stock-stealing is a serious offence. It is almost impossible to get a conviction before a country jury."

HANDS IN TRAINING...FOR ONTARIO

Learning to Work With Copper and Brass

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. These workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, every effort on the part of workers to become proficient in the art of shaping and moulding copper and brass, will mean greater industrial progress—will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

THE BREWING INDUSTRY (ONTARIO)

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy — that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

Sea-Borne Houses Add New Comfort For Indian Group

Pictou, N.S. (CP)— Wartime houses are being shipped by truck, water and tractor to the nearby Pictou Landing Indian reservation to provide families there with comfortable, sanitary quarters.

Purchased by the federal Indian Affairs department from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the houses will replace the ramshackle buildings which formerly housed the Indians. Conditions were so bad that a few years ago many of the Indians moved to other settlements.

Chief William Bernard said his men will attempt to provide basements and furnaces for the 18 new homes. The old buildings will be razed. He hoped the improved quarters would attract back to the reservation those families which moved away.

The nest, two-storey "pre-fabs" originally were built, to the pier at the reservation where the truck drives off. Then a tractor hauls the 15-ton buildings to the new sites.

Forty-three-year-old Chief Bernard himself moved into one of the new homes. He has been chief at the reservation for six years.

Inland Mission

Close to the Pictou Landing reservation in Indian Island, hallowed ground for the Micmacs of the area. Indians from throughout the Maritimes come to the Island each year to attend a mission at the little church built there more than 75 years ago.

There is a little white church on the reservation itself where mass is celebrated twice a month.

Across the road from the church is the one-room school where Gertrude McGirr of New Glasgow, N.S., teaches 22 pupils, ranging in age from six to 16.

She has been at the school for several years, travelling eight miles from her home. Until two years ago when a bus service was extended she walked two of the eight miles a day to her job.

The men of the reservation make their living at basket weaving and carving axe and pick handles. Lobster fishing is carried out in season and some are employed at a nearby sawmill.

WILD GAME SAFE

Big-game hunting is prohibited in both Dominion and Provincial parks, although angling is permitted.

GUIDE'S BONUS

In sport fishing for the tuna off Nova Scotia's coast, the guide is traditionally given the fish that are caught.

Eskimo Mounties Have Vital Role

Winnipeg, (CP)—Two Eskimo Mounties in hospital here are "itching to get back 'on police duty in Canada's north.

Jimmy Gibbons and Simon Kulik are two of 50 Eskimos serving as special constables with northern Mounted detachments.

"The force couldn't do its job in the Arctic properly without them," a senior R.C.M.P. officer said recently.

Gibbons has been a special constable for 14 years, and because of his good record and length of service he is a "senior man". He draws a monthly salary from Ottawa, like any other constable, and is accorded an honored place in Eskimo Point, his home village, 200 miles north of Churchill, Man. Kulik has been with the R.C.M.P. at Chesterfield Inlet for the last four years.

"Sure it's quite a thing for an Eskimo to become a Mountie," Gibbons said in an interview here. "We don't get uniforms, but then you couldn't wear them up home anyway." At Eskimo Point he is office-sweeper, fire-stoker, snowshoveler and interpreter. But out on the trail he becomes guide, hunter, fisherman and fire-builder. "I play craps too," he admits laughingly.

Both Gibbons and Kulik are suffering from polio, but they vie-lled local R.C.M.P. barracks recently to make sure they wouldn't be "fired" for absence from their Arctic posts of duty. Hospital nurses attending the two men are amazed at their high intelligence. Both are keen bridge-players and experts at cribbage and solitaire.

Ford Company Offers $55 Pension For 30 yrs. Service

Windsor, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada Limited Monday offered its 11,000 employees — members of the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) — a monthly pension of $55 at age 65 for workers with thirty years service or more.

The offer, announced in a company statement, was presented at the union negotiation meeting called two days before the Ontario Conciliation Board is to sit on the month-old contract dispute.

The union had asked similar awards granted by the parent company in Detroit last fall. There, a company - financed pension of $100 a month was approved.

Wallace H. Clark, Ford industrial relations director, said it is estimated the proposal will cost the company $18,000,000 over a period of 20 years "to fund past service benefits alone." He said the plan will cost the company about $1,000,000 annually.

Roy England, president of U. A. W. Local 200, the Ford local, said in a subsequent statement that:

"If Ford workers in the United States are entitled to pensions of $100 per month, Canadian Ford workers are not prepared to accept less."

Crime-Comics and Censorship Draw Ire of Parliamentarians

By H. DENT HODGSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)— Parliament took a good look at obscene and salacious literature this session. Members didn't like what they read.

It took drastic action against tales of crime and bloodshed in the so-called comic books.

And several parliamentarians objected to the way books coming into the country were censored by a cabinet minister and unnamed civil servants.

E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) introduced a private bill banning crime-comics. The government took the bill over and introduced it again after consulting provincial authorities. The maximum penalty under the legislation, which became law with Royal assent Saturday, is two years in prison.

Bill Passes Rapidly

The crime comics legislation passed rapidly although many members and most Senators professed never to have seen a crime-comic book. Typical was the comment of Senator W. H. McGuire (L—Ontario), who studied one exhibit before the Senate Banking Committee and exclaimed with surprise:

"Why, there isn't a page I can find in this that there are not several people being shot."

The issue of censorship of books was raised in the senate Dec. 5 by Senator W. Rupert Davis, who complained about "anonymous" officials in the revenue department "deciding, to some extent, what I shall and what I shall not read."

The same approach was made in the Commons the following day during consideration of revenue estimates. R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) complained about the qualifications of persons doing the censoring and called for some new system.

Although different views were expressed on censorship of books, members of both Houses displayed something close to unanimity on crime comics. The Commons passed the bill without a recording vote and the only senate opposition was to the effect of the ban on small newsdealers and distributors.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) would have amended the bill so newsdealers could not be punished for unwittingly selling what the act defined as a "crime comic."

Act Defined

The definition, as given in the act: "Any magazine, periodical or book which exclusively or substantially comprises matter depicting pictorially the commission on crimes, real or fictitious."

Since the crime-comic section now becomes part of the criminal code, the censorship or crime comics—the decision of what comic book is bad and what is permissible—now will rest with the magistrates.

Meanwhile, books fall into two categories as far as censorship is concerned. Books published in Canada are subject to no federal censorship; books entering Canada from another country may be banned by customs officials under Section 1201 of the customs tariff.

It was this latter censorship that drew fire from Senator Davies and Mr. Knight.

Under questioning, Revenue Minister McCann said he was the person responsible for the banning of books. Actual readers of the books comprised three persons in his department.

He said it did not require "a great literary critic to tell the difference between decency and filth." There was not a single person in his department whose sole duty was censorship.

Senator Davies noted that in 1949, 81 books and 22 magazines or newspapers were refused entry to Canada under section 1201. The section prohibits entry of publications of a "treasonable, seditious, immoral or indecent character."

Dangerous Power

"This Item 1201," said Senator Davies, "seems to give a very dangerous power to someone in the department."

He urged that the present system be changed and wanted the matter brought out into the open. "Let us know," he said, "what is doing the censoring, and what the magistrates have decided."

U.S. Implies Threat To Break Relations With Red Bulgaria

U.S. Legation in Sofia Said "Subjected to Indignities"

Washington, Dec. 13 — (AP) — The United States today backed up a sharp new denunciation of Communist Bulgaria with an unplied threat to break off diplomatic relations entirely.

Protesting against attacks on U. S. Minister Donald R. Heath, the State Department said the legation at Sofia is being subjected to such restrictions and indignities that it has virtually ceased to function.

The prospect of a possible first open break between the United States and one of the Soviet-bloc governments came Monday night. James R. Webb, undersecretary, summoned Dr. Peter Voukov, top Bulgarian representative in Washington, to the State Department for a stiff and forceful lecture.

Charges in Red Press

The occasion was the publication of charges in the government controlled Communist press in Sofia. The articles said that both the State Department and Heath deliberately lied in denying Heath had ever seen Traicho Kostov, former vice-premier who is the No. 1 defendant in the current Sofia "purge" trial.

The State Department noted that for some time the U.S. legation "has been subjected to a series of indignities and restrictions including false charges against American officials, intimidating and persecution of local Bulgarian employees, refusal to issue visas to personnel assigned to the legation, and various restrictions on travel and housing."

Should a break come in relations, it would be a partial reversal of State Department policy. It has been keeping representatives in Communist capitals, regardless of strained relations, so they can serve as a "window" behind the Iron Curtain and send back uncensored reports.

Defence Lawyer's Attitude

Sofia — (AP) — The defence lawyer for Traicho Kostov, former deputy minister on trial as a Titoist traitor and Anglo-American spy, today praised Bulgarian authorities who he says "broke the hands of the traitors."

While-haired Luben Dukmedjiev, one of Sofia's outstanding lawyers, said he could find little basis on which to defend the former No. 3 Bulgarian Communist.

"My task as defence lawyer for Traicho Kostov is quite difficult," he said in his 50-minute defence speech. He said the prosecution and the lawyers had a common task "to find out the truth."

He said, however, there was a gap "on the accused between when Kostov and 10 other alleged spies and saboteurs met Premier Tito of Yugoslavia should also be there with his interior minister Alexander Rankovic, Dukmedjiev said.

COLONIAL LINES WILL TRY AGAIN FOR ADJOURNMENT

Asked to Appear Before Transport Board

Ottawa, Dec. 13—(CP)—Colonial Air Lines of the United States was expected to try again today for adjournment of its show-cause hearing before the Canadian Air Transport Board.

Lawyers representing Colonial attempted unsuccessfully Monday to gain postponement of the controversial case which involves the right to fly the Montreal-New York air-line route.

Colonial had been asked to appear before the board—regulating body of Canada's airways—to show cause why its licence to fly the route should not be suspended.

The five - year - old Colonial has been making an attempt in the U.S. to prevent Trans-Canada Air Lines from operating a New York-Montreal route agreed upon in the bilateral air treaty signed by Canada and the U.S. last June 6.

As soon as the case got under way Monday before John Baldwin, chairman of the board, the Colonial lawyers said that under the U.S. law known as the Logan Act they are forbidden from making any defence under threat of a possible $5,000 fine and three years in jail.

Logan Act Quoted

The Logan Act, they said, sets out that a citizen of the U.S. may not discuss a matter in a court as long as that matter is the subject of discussion on the international government level.

In this case Colonial referred to a conference of U.S. and Canadian government representatives called for Thursday to discuss the general air treaty agreements.

Colonial had been contended that the conference has been called to discuss the dispute at present before the Air Transport Board.

Mr. Baldwin said the board has no such information and that it doesn't recognize that the conference has any special bearing on the show-cause hearing.

The whole dispute centres on Colonial's contention that the air agreement between Canada and the U.S. is invalid, not having been approved by Congress. Colonial submits that the agreement is a treaty and thus must have such approval.

Had Exclusive Right

For 20 years Colonial has had exclusive right to fly the direct Montreal-New York route. The agreement was changed some time ago permitting Canada to name an air line to fly the route. Canada named T.C.A.

Colonial objected, bringing injunctions which prevented the Civil Aeronautics Board of the U.S. from sending the T.C.A. application to President Truman for final approval.

The Air Transport Board's position is that if Colonial contends the air agreement is invalid as far as it applies to T.C.A.'s application, then Colonial's New York-Montreal licence is equally invalid since it was granted under the same agreement.

T. Peter Authery of Washington, counsel for Colonial, at one point intimated Monday that since Colonial is in the legal sense a "citizen" of the U.S., and since the air-line's legal representatives are "rendered mute" by the Logan Act, they might leave the hearing altogether.

DEFEATED LABOR PRIME MINISTER RESIGNS OFFICE

Eight Years of Labor Rule Formally Ends

Canberra, Dec. 13—(Reuters)—Eight years of labor rule in Australia formally ended today when Joseph B. Chifley, defeated Labor Prime Minister, handed in the resignation of his government to the Governor-General, W. J. McKell.

He advised the governor-general to commission the Liberal leader, Robert G. Menzies, to form a new government.

Chifley agreed to remain in office until the new Liberal-Country Party coalition is sworn in.

Menzies is expected to fly to Canberra Thursday to see the governor-general and accept the commission.

Latest count of the general election figures indicate that the Liberal-Country Party coalition will have a majority of more than 31 seats over Labor in the House of Representatives.

With two seats still in doubt, the coalition parties had 75 seats and Labor 44.

There are two other seats in the 123-seat House, representing the northern territory and the federal district of Canberra. They are appointed by the government—in this case the new coalition—but they have not voting rights except on issues directly affecting their constituencies.

The new government will reverse many practice—dropped by the Labor government — of recommending Australians for New Year's birthday honors, the Melbourne Herald reported.

Far-Reaching Changes

The Herald's political correspondent today forecast far-reaching changes by the Menzies government in Australian foreign policy and the conduct of the External Affairs Department.

He said the changes were likely to be developed simultaneously along three main lines—a recasting or general policy in favor of closer co-operative relationship with Britain, the United States and Canada, an overhaul of diplomatic offices aboard and a review of the scope of Australia's representation.

The Herald political correspondent said that the Labor government policies on air transport, shipbuilding and television were "likely to go into the melting pot."

He said the question of commercial operators taking part in the country's television project, instead of its becoming a government-controlled monopoly, would be reviewed. It was unlikely that a television system would be established earlier than the two-year deadline set by the Chifley government.

P.M. Sworn In

Auckland, N.Z. — Sidney Holland, leader of the National party whose election victory ended 14 years of Labor government rule, was sworn in today as the new Prime Minister of New Zealand.

With Holland was his entire new cabinet which also was sworn in at the ceremonies presided over by Governor-General Sir Bernard Freyberg. Holland succeeds Peter Fraser.

The affable 56-year-old Prime Minister has been in parliament since 1935 when he won the seat vacated by his father, who resigned. He was the only National party member in parliament then when the Labor government first was swept into power in a landslide election.

The government's new minister for external affairs, broadcasting and tourist resorts, is Frederick W. Doidge, Australian-born former newspaper man.

Doidge came to Auckland in 1903, became top reporter on the Auckland Star and later went to London eventually to become director of Lord Beaverbrook's powerful group of Empire-boosting newspapers.

He retired from this post in 1935 and returned to New Zealand.

Worker Killed, Likely Confused By Two Freights

Toronto, Dec. 13. (CP)—Pedro Vesley, 67, was killed today when struck by a Canadian National Railways freight train at a crossing in East Toronto.

The accident occurred when Vesley, who was on his way to work, was 200 yards from his destination, the Toronto Brick Company, Ltd. Police said there were two freight trains at the crossing, going in opposite directions, and Vesley apparently was confused.

Vesley's brother, Aurelio, 62, arrived at the scene just as the injured man was being removed to an ambulance. Police said the locomotive that struck Vesley was travelling at only about 15 miles an hour.

Traffic Deaths In Ontario in '49 May be Greatest

Toronto, Dec. 13—(CP)— A survey by the Ontario Highways Department indicates that traffic fatalities in the province this year may exceed the 801 fatalities recorded in 1941, the heaviest list in history.

The report showed 741 deaths to the end of November, one more than in all of 1948.

The survey, however, revealed a paradox, that the number of accidents per car mile travelled is lower than in recent years. It listed 13.3 deaths for every 100,000,000 miles in 1941, the statistical figure dropping to 12.0 in 1945, 8.6 in 1946 and to date this year, 9.3.

Death of William McConvey in a Toronto hospital Monday brought the city's traffic fatality total to 56 so far this year. McConvey was hit by a truck while crossing the road in a snow storm last Nov. 19.

Voices Opposition Any New Exchange Of A-Bomb Data

Senator Would Not Give it To British or Anybody Else

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP) — Opposition to any new exchange of atomic bomb information with Britain was voiced today by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem. Colo.).

Johnson, a member of the Senate-House of Representatives Atomic Committee, told a reporter:

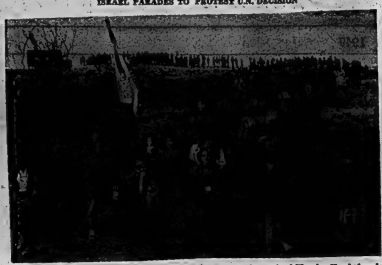
"I don't favor any additional exchange of information with the British, or anybody else."

It was Johnson who created a stir last month when he said in a television program that the U.S. now has bombs six times as powerful as those dropped on Japan in the war and is working on a weapon 1,000 times more powerful.

His outspoken opposition indicated that a proposed agreement for a broader atomic partnership with British and Canada will run into some trouble when it comes before the atomic committee.

Truman administration officials are understood to have promised the committee it will be taken behind the scenes of the British — Canadian — American atomic conference before any attempt is made to put the proposed new agreement in force.

Reports indicate that Britain is ready to abandon attempts to conduct its atomic weapons in exchange for a partnership in the American production effort which would bring British and Canadian scientists into the work here.



This would free most of the Belgian Congo uranium supply for the U.S. use.

The present U.S. atomic act apparently bans any exchange of weapons information, although some officials believe the President could take matters in his own hands if he chose. However, since the act was passed, only non-military atomic cooperation has been carried on by the three countries.

VATICAN RADIO CONCENTRATES ON SATELLITE NATIONS

One of the most important aspects of the Roman Catholic holy year, which begins on December 24, will be the broadcasting of ceremonies throughout the world, with special emphasis on those countries behind the Iron Curtain. Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

As the girl's stood in the aisle a moment or two whispering excitedly, the door of a nearby stateroom was flung open and a handsome man in the forties passed them. He gave them a quick appraising glance, but neither paid any attention to him nor did they realize that their confidence had reached his ears.

"What's up next?" exclaimed the fils clerk to Terry Kelly's private secretary as that young woman returned to her machine with a decidedly dejected expression on her face.

"I think the boss is crazy. This is the third time I've written this letter and it doesn't suit him yet, and it's exactly the way he dictated it to me."

"Well, never mind the poor fish. He'll get over it. Don't let him see it till tomorrow. Gee, some men ain't got no feelings." the fils clerk looked with compassion on her bright friend. "Bet he's had a row with his lady friend, and he's just taking it out on you."

"Him have a lady friend!" answered his secretary. "Who'd want a hot-tempered redhead like him? I've no use for redheads, and she smiled smugly as she thought of the sleek black hair of her boy friend.

"Well, Mr. Kelly's kind of attractive, don't you think?" continued the sentimentally inclined fils clerk.

"Attractive nothing. I'd as soon have his desk dictate to me. It's about as interesting." and once more her fingers danced noiselessly over the keys.

Terry Kelly's office on the twentieth floor of one of Broadway's handsome downtown buildings faced the river, and often as he raised his eyes he could see the great steamers coming into port or getting off on their voyages to distant lands. He had always enjoyed watching them when he had a minute to spare or was thinking out some knotty problem. But within the last two weeks his interest had changed to hatred. One of these days a great monster of the deep would bear away the only girl he loved.

Even as he thought of this there was a faint hope that she would change her mind. Day after day he waited for her message. A hundred times he was tempted to go and see her but he refrained. They had threshed the matter out, but Mary had insisted it was her duty to go. Madly in love with her, Terry had taunted her that her love was a secondary consideration. He would listen to no compromise. He had met Gerald on the street who assured him with a gleam of triumph in his eye Mary was quite excited about the wonderful trip she was going to have.

Terry looked at the calendar in front of him. Mary was sailing today. Well he might as well attend to business again. In a couple of hours she would be down the bay. He sighed. There was still time for him to go to the pier. Should he go? Remembered all he'd been too hard on her. Opening his billfold the man threw out a snapshot of Mary he'd taken one day. Hurriedly slipping it back again he walked towards the window. The sky was clear and blue. Up the river he could see the great smoke stack of the ship that would soon take Mary from him. He remembered the sinful look on her face as she spoke to him of her mother's wish. He'd been a brute after all.

Terry glanced at the clock, snatched up his hat and dashed from the office.

It seemed as though he would never reach the pier. The subway train was stalled and with hundreds of other men and women he revealed his impatience as he looked at his watch again and again. Then the train started. If he could get a taxi he'd make it all right. Once more it seemed as though Terry were destined to meet with nothing but delay. An endless stream of traffic kept pouring downtown and the stalwart policeman busily engaged in conversation with a small dark-eyed siren, heard not the hootings and impatient tootings of automobile horns. At last they arrived and tossing the driver bill Terry darted into the elevator.

"The boat won't leave for an hour yet, maybe longer," declared a uniformed man in answer to Terry's query. Then he was in time. He would see Mary once more. What a fool he'd been Stepping from the elevator he hastened towards the ship when suddenly from behind a broad palm Mary appeared.

"Mary!" Terry exclaimed as he seized her hands.

"Oh, Terry you're just in time" Mary's eyes looked furtively around. "Quick, take me away from here."

"What's the matter sweetheart?"

"I couldn't go, but quick, maybe Gerald finds out that the boat's so late in sailing he will come back again."

"Oh the fool, but how about your aunt? Has she changed her mind?"

"No, I have. Let's get away from here. And oh, I must have my trunks sent—" Mary stood for a minute with parted lips. "They can be sent to Gerald's home. There will be time."

Smiling at the crowd the lady stooped and kissed him. Then pushing him from her she said. "Now go home with Nanna and be a good boy."

Nanna, a sturdy Irish girl, picked him up bodily with a heartbroken cries of "Oh Mummy oh Mummy," filled the air, His mother, as unconcerned as though she had merely handed over a suitcase to the maid, smiled once more upon the company while her roving eyes seemed already to be appraising her fellow passengers.

Ann felt a hot wave of indignation sweep through her and raising her eyes met the steady gaze of a man whose tall figure and sun-bronzed face were in striking contrast to his fellows. Involuntarily she exclaimed, "I should think that woman would be haunted by that baby's cries." Her eyes flashed with her indignation.'

"Oh," replied the man as he glanced casually at the woman in question and turned somewhat abruptly towards Ann, "I don't believe she's that sort of woman." A ripple of coquettish laughter reached their ears.

"I believe you're right," smiled Ann. "Probably the youngster will have a better time without her."

"I shouldn't wonder," he remarked as he threw his cigarette away.

The tugs were hovering around the liner like a flock of small birds. Orders were being followed from man to man, while passengers, searching the crowds on the pier for some particular friends, gave sudden calls or whistles as they found them. A delightfully carefree feeling seemed to pervade the atmosphere for were not all bound for pleasure?

Farewells were still being shouted and innumerable gay flags were fluttering both on the boat and the pier. Jim Riddel looked up to see si Ann. "Seems as though we're going to be fellow passengers, May I introduce myself?"

Ann's eyes smiled their assent. "Why I'm a new arrival, and I suppose you've already guessed I come from the other side."

"How d'ye do, Mr. Riddell. That sounds quite interesting. I am—"For the fraction of a second Ann hesitated. A little flush leaped into her cheeks and from his corner of the two girls before Mary left the ship, watched the little drama before him. "I am Mary Lambert—Miss Mary Lambert," Ann added, "but I don't come from any distant country. That is my home." Ann waved her hand significantly at the fast receding land.

"Well, the United States is certainly a wonderful country. Of course I haven't seen it all by any means, but it's surprising how many of the passengers especially around and in New York."

"Oh yes," replied Ann, "I guess that's a leading characteristic in our country."

Looking back once more to the land Ann realized now that she was really underway. Passengers unable any longer to distinguish their friends among the fast thinning ranks on the pier, were already walking about the decks and talking informally here and there to fellow voyagers.

Jim Riddell, wealthy empire builder although still in his 30s, was congratulating himself on the luck that had followed him since that day he had picked up Ann's pocketbook for her in the shipping office.

Suddenly Ann looked at her watch. "Ah, I must say goodbye for the present," and with a fleeting smile she was gone.

Had she a date with someone else? Jim Riddell wondered. Her eyes seemed to sparkle with expectancy.

As Ann Hampton or "Mary" Lambert" as she now must call herself, hastened to meet her supposed Aunt, she suddenly realized what she had taken upon herself. From now on her comings and goings would be determined more or less by this woman who would doubtless consider that the least she could do in exchange for her generosity. While the real Mary could tell Ann practically nothing about her relatives, somehow Ann realized that Miss Whiting was decidedly erratic.

Threading her way among the hurrying stewards and stewardesses Ann approached Miss Whiting's cabin. One thing she would play to her hare to the best of her ability. Of course if this unknown aunt were utterly impossible then Ann smiled, remembering Mary's last words to her.

"So this is my niece—Mary Lambert," remarked Miss Margaret Whiting as Ann appeared. "Well, there's not much of the Whiting blood in you. None at all except the red hair."

Ann smiled as her supposed aunt studied her closely. "I reckon you can't help that. Hot tempers usually go with red hair. However I hope we shall get along. I'm sorry I didn't get down till so late that I hadn't a chance to see your brother. I suppose he saw you off?" and Miss Whiting's piercing brown eyes held Ann's gaze.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

The stage is all set for the semi-final rounds in the Belleville District Hockey League tonight when Nortern Electrics, defeated only once in ten league starts face the fast-travelling Trenton RCAF Flyers in the first game of their best-out-three series. In the second game the Canadian National Railway Diesels tangle with the Cockian Rickets Juniors in the other bracket. Should be a right nifty pair of tussles as both squads will be out to clinch that all-important first victory. Then on Thursday night the teams go right back at it again in the second scrargis of the series. Should third games be necessary they will be played next week.

Ezzard Charles Wins E.J. Neil Memorial Plaque

(By The Canadian Press)

By unanimous vote, the New York Boxing Writers' Association Monday awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial boxing plaque for 1949 to the National Boxing Association heavyweight champion, Ezzard Charles.

Since 1938 the award has been given annually to the boxer or boxing figure who, in the opinion of the writers, has done the most for the sport during the year. Sportsmanship and clean living in addition to ring performance, is also considered.

Neil, Associated Press boxing writer in the early '30s, was killed in 1937 while serving as a war correspondent in Spain, and the award was set up in his memory.

Charles, a Cincinnati Negro, and Jersey Joe Walcott were named "1-A" N.B.A. to meet for the title vacated by Joe Louis. Charles defeated Walcott this year and was recognized as champion by the national body, although the New York State Commission has refused to name him title-holder.

Strict enforcement of the Olympic definition of an amateur likely would "play havoc" with the pledging of several United States teams, Prof. Nelson C. Hart, Honorary Secretary of the Canadian Olympic Association, said at London, Ont., Monday.

He was commenting on an interview Avery Brundage gave in San Francisco Saturday in which the president of the United States Olympic Association declared that colleges could receive scholarships on the basis of their skill in any sport "provided it's reasionable."

Calling Brundage's stand "well-founded," Prof. Hart added that "a strict application of the Olympic definition of an amateur would likely play havoc with the selection of many United States teams, and particularly the track and field team which is composed largely of college athletes."

Calumet Farm's Coolfown drew even Monday with Greentree's Capot in their paper racing for "horse of the year."

The four-year-old Coolfown beat out his one-year youngerrival in the 14th annual poll of the Turf and Sport Digest, a Baltimore publication.

Capot earlier had been voted the honor by the Daily Racing Form.

At Toronto, jolting Joey Pyle of New Waterford, N.S., and Billy Fifield of Toronto fought to an eight-round draw Monday night in the feature bout of a professional boxing card.

Burt Shotton, Manager of the pennant-winning Brooklyn Dodgers, at New York Monday announced reappointment of Jake Pitler, Clyde Sukeforth and Milt Stock as his 1950 coaches.

At Barrie, Coach Rep Emms of Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association "A" League said Monday he has swapped forward lines with Oshawa Generals. Emms said he traded Ense Vanatta, Rio Caront, and Bobby Holden, with Doug Tower, Reg. Campbell and Doug Warner.

The Christmas rush started at Brantford Monday—for baseball tickets. Shortly after the box-office opened, a mob of fans had bought most of the 1,600 season tickets, put up by Brantford Red Sox of the Intercounty Senior League. The Red Sox won the pennant last year.

McCormack Leads Scoring Race In Senior 'A'

Toronto, Dec. 13. (CP)— A partial answer to why Toronto Marlboros are galloping 14 points ahead of the rest of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A pack is the Dukes' red-hot topscoring line of Johnny McCormack, Scotty Muir and Al Buchanan.

Scoring statistics, released Monday, show McCormack leading the senior scoring department with 12 goals and 22 assists for 35 points.

In second place is Muir with 21 goals, and 13 assists for 34 points. Buchanan, a former Winnipegger has 14 goals and 14 assists for 28 points.

Another reason for Duke's hold on first place is the team's goalie Pat Boehmer, with an average of 2.63 goals a game.

In the junior A scoring division Earl Reibel of Windsor Spitfires is top man with 23 goals and 36 assists for 58 points. Ten points behind is another Spitfire, Erwin Grosse, who has collected 22 goals and 26 assists. In third place is Connie Sachkowski of St. Catharines Teepees with 21 goals and 33 assists for 54 points. Top goaltender in the league is Marlboros Don Lockhart with 2.33 goals-a-game average.

Night Baseball Gains New Ground In Major Loops

New York, Dec. 13 —(AP)— Night baseball gained new ground in the majors Monday as both the National and American Leagues decided to finish "day" games under the lights when necessary.

The National League restored the twilight-night doubleheaders they have ruled out since wartime. The American has condoned such doubles in the past.

No longer will National night games be halted by a curfew at 12:50 a.m. local time. The ban was voted out at Monday's meeting.

The suspended game, a headache in wartime days, was restored by the National League. Under that rule, games called on account of Sunday curfew or to catch a train will be resumed at the point of interruption at a later date.

American League executives did not go all the way with the National in turning on lights to finish day games. They will allow this only in the last series between two clubs at the close of the season.

WANT POWERS CURBED

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)—The Ontario Municipal Association Monday called upon the provincial government to curb the powers of the Ontario Municipal Board which, it was claimed, were infringing on the rights of the municipalities.

The request was contained in a brief which the association presented to Premier Frost.

The scope of the board's work in municipal matters has been continuously extended during recent years and its powers should be reviewed by the legislature to ensure there is no infringement on the autonomy of local councils, the brief declared.

"CONFESSION" CALLED PHONEY

William Lee Wallace, right, shakes hands with his lawyer, E. J. McCormick, as he leaves Calgary police headquarters. Wallace, arrested in Detroit and sent to Detroit police to have confessed to the Aug. 31 slaying of 24-year-old Yvonne Levesque in a Calgary auto camp, was released after 24 days in jail. Police, withdrawing the murder charge they laid, said the "confession" was a fabrication.—

Diesels-Electrics Drop Second Straight Losing to Petes 9-3 in Fast, Clean Contest

Peterborough, Ont. Dec. 13—(Special) — Beating Belleville Diesels-Electrics 9-3 here last night, the Petes climbed into third place in their five team OHA Senior 'A' grouping before a fair sized crowd. Playing their best hockey so far this season, the homesters rammed in four goals in the first frame without a return, sweatered a Ex-Belleville manager in the middle best, and outscored the visitors 4-3 in the third of a speedy and clean contest.

Junior West sparked the Petes attack with four goals and an assist, with Murray Fife and Jerry Creighton, each in on three. Collins was in on a pair, with Coughlin, Garvey and Leonard each figuring in on one. Big Vern Goyer went best for Belleville with two goals. Leo Goyer getting the other, and an assist each going to Schreider, Williams, Mulvihill and Wardhaugh. The Petes drew four of the seven minor penalties.

Seldom a Letup

There was seldom a letup in the speedy scrap, and there was little time out, the players frequently changing on the fly. Both sides stuck to hockey, the only penalties being accidental ones. The Petes got off jump on their own surface and started plugging right from the start to keep the Quinte squad disorganized through the first period. Belleville battled back to leave a little edge on play in the second heat and they pretty well held their own, though an exciting third period. Junior West running up the count with two tallies in the dying minutes.

Both goalies looked good, Plumley only fanning on one, and Harding steady as a rock in his home net. Conlin and Leonard were the pick of the hosts defence, with West, Creighton, Fife, Collins and Garvey all standing out up front for the Petes. Williamson went well at the blue line and Nolan was strong in spots for Belleville, while Vern Goyer and Mulvihill looked best up front over the route for the visitors.

Nifty Safe Effort

Coughlin, Creighton, Collins and Fife, the latter's was a nifty solo, got the first frame goals. Fife aiding on a pair, with Collins and West each getting an assist. West scored in the second from Creighton, and Vern and Leo Goyer each counted for Diesels, the latter helped by Schreider and Williams, Creighton hit the bench with Garvey's pass to open the third and Vern Goyer got it back in a scramble, aided by Mulvihill and Wardhaugh. West then counted three in a row for the hat trick though it was a shirt he won as most valuable player with Leonard assisting on the last marker. Lineups:

Belleville: goal, Plumley; defence, Williamson and Woodman; centre, V. Goyer; wings, Mulvihill and Wardhaugh; alternates, Nolan, Schreider, L. Goyer, Williams. Day, Moher, Barrett and Bastedo.

Petes: goal, Harding; defence, Horton and Leonard; centre, West; wings, Creighton and Garvey; alternates, Fife, Collins, Coughlin, Tompkins, Legrow, Griffin, Jopling and Conlin.

Referee: J. Crombie; linesman, H. Payne.

Johnny Greco Gains First Win On Long Trail

Montreal, Dec. 13 (CP)— Johnny (Jolting) Greco of Montreal came through with his first victory on the comeback trail Monday night when he earned a 10-round decision over middleweight Eddie Krownitz of Brooklyn before 3,912 fans.

Krownitz, at 156, held a 4½ pound edge over the Montreal welterweight.

The fight was listless throughout and the small crowd that contributed a gross gate of $17,415 was continually booing. Jetting s. 3 urging the fighters to give more action.

Greco, Canadian welterweight champion, was making his first appearance in the ring since he was K.O'd last summer by Laurent Dauthuille of France.

The swarthy Montrealer showed little of his former talent as a hard-hitting slugger and appeared slightly out of fist. He was unable to break through Krownitz's smart defensive style. Krownitz, on the other hand, had little more to offer on the offensive than a good left hand jab.

There were no knockdowns in the bout and neither fighter appeared to be hurt by any blows at any time.

Even Break"—

"Drillon was booed in Toronto for not back-checking; booed in Montreal for the same thing. Even these days the fans jeer when Drillon rests against the boards while awaiting the puck from some perspiring teammate. But, as in his big league days, Drillon is still a sports specialist. He can get goals."

CHRISTMAS LEGEND

Dewsbury, Yorkshire, England — (CP) — A bell, known locally as the "Devil's Knell," has tolled on Christmas Eve for the last 700 years. Local legend says the custom was started by a baron, who gave the bell to the parish church as a penance for killing his servant, and asked that it be rung every Christmas Eve to remind him of his crime.

Halifax, Dec. 13 — (CP)—The Maritimes are becoming a happy hunting ground for fellows who used to be in big-time hockey, for Lorne, you almost have to be a former National Hockey League big-wig to get a coaching job.

In Halifax, Marty Barry is assistant coach of St. Mary's of the Maritime Senior Hockey Senior League. Harvey (Bunker) Jackson has taken over Moncton Hawks of the same circuit. Up in the Cape Breton circuit, Sweeney Schriner is handling North Sydney Victorias and Murph Chamberlain has his Sydney Millionaires at the top of the league.

Jackson is the latest arrival down east. It may not be a happy hunting ground — Hawks are a poor third in the four-team M. S. H. L. — but at least it is new ground.

Dave (Moncton Times) McKay reports Jackson's arrival last week:

"Back in 1935 Jackson was a member of a team which played Halifax Wolverines at Halifax. He had never been in Moncton before.

"Only Moncton player he could recall offhand as being familiar with town goalie Calvin Orillon, whom he thought he had met while on the Pacific coast.

Jackson, 32-year-old Torontonian, finished his 15-year N. H. L. career in 1944 with Boston. Since then he had coached at Nanaimo, B. C., and Fenelon Falls, Ont., where he played a bit last year.

Jackson asked McKay how his old Toronto teammate, Orillon, was doing with Saint John. Reason: "I don't have fun needling him," he said.

Ace (Halifax Mail-Star) Foley says Drillon's mates will gets all the needling he feels like from the fans.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 13 — (AP)— Irene Dunne joins Rosalind Russell in a resolution to pursue a comedy career in the future.

Miss Dunne has broken her longest screen absence to begin work in "Come Name My Love," a comedy in which she will sing four songs. Why did she stay away from the screen two years?

"Well, I've been busy and have done a lot of traveling," said the star, who received a variety of plaques and citations for her religious work. "Also, I wanted to return in a comedy, preferably one with songs. I have done enough drama for awhile; I think people now want to laugh."

I reminded her that she'll never win academy awards with comedies.

"That's right," said the oft-nominating Oscar contender. "But I can't seem to win one anyway."

Cuff Notes...

Shirley Temple says she would like to leave the past behind and devote her thought to the future. She has no comment on how the recent divorce might affect her career.

"Shadows of the Manger" is a different kind of Hollywood production. It will be presented in the week preceding Christmas on Hollywood Boulevard in front of the Congregational Church. Among those taking part in the religious pageant are Barbara Britton, Don DeFore, Wendell Corey, Harry Carey, Jr., and Lee Bonnell.

Jack Carson is happy with his straight role in "Bright Leaf." "You can get tired of having beer every day," he says. "Well, I'm tired of corn," added the former Carman, Man., boy.

Capsule Review

"Princess of Purrs" (TCF) is above - average swashbuckling stuff. Beautifully filmed in authentic Italian backgrounds, it has enough highlights to offset the dull moments of florid dialogue. Tyrone Power is properly bashful, Orson Welles and Wanda Hendrix support. Good escapist entertainment.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge is a game of very few words. To be exact, only 15. They are: One, two, three, four, five, six, pass, clubs, diamonds, hearts, spades, no-trump, pass, double, redouble.

Billions of hands. Only 15 words to describe them. Concentrate each word for use in the most essential capacity. Employ it in a manner that will best describe your hand to partner.

Surely such advice makes sense to any reasonable person. Merely because some bid is advocated by some expert does not make it good. It is good only if it answers the best purpose.

South opened with a bid of one spade. West doubled for takeout. It may be a phony. It may not. Decide the action that north should take right here with this hand you hold like this:

♠K J 5 2
♥A 8 5
♦A J 4
♣A K 4

First impression by north must certainly be that there is at least a game in his pack. Not much imagination is needed on his part to visualize a possible slam. It has all the makings.

The south opening promises at least five tricks. The north has five powerful tricks. The strong support for spades in north is plenty for saying that suit the future trump.

So, whatever else north might do in this spot, a game signal should be included. The customary signal for seeing game is a jump bid of some kind; jump to three spades, jump no-trump.

When an opponent intervenes with a double it opens the way for another signal. A player can jump bid or redouble. If used in its best capacity it shows a hand that can help make a game.

Thus, north could jump takeout to a jump bid, or jump assist in spades, or jump in no-trump, or redouble. Either would promise the south hand that they have at least a game between them.

Which one says to you which would you do and why?

Married to Cousins Of Same Name, Give Birth to Sons

Springfield, O., Dec. 13 (AP) — Mrs. Norma Jean Chiles gave birth to a son at Springfield City Hospital. Mrs. Norma Jean Chiles gave birth to a son at Springfield City Hospital.

This is not a passage from Gertrude Stein. Here's the story:

Two girls named Norma Jean married cousins named Chiles. The two girls then gave birth to sons in the same hospital on the same day. And they have the same hospital room.

It's all clear enough, except to the nurses who have to keep the babies identified.

Calls Russia Western World's Only Enemy

Brantford, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Russia is the Western world's only enemy, Col. C. D. M. Baxter of Winnipeg, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, said Monday night at a ceremony opening the new clubrooms of the Legion branch here.

He said he was not war-mongering in his criticism of Bolshevism. "Although some persons would accuse the Legion of war-mongering, there is not an organization in Canada which can do more for promoting peace," he said.

He called on all Legionnaires present to devote themselves to the cause of peace and making stronger the voice of the Legion in urging government heads to follow a policy leading to peace.

Winnipeg Orchestra Plays Boy's Suite

Winnipeg — (CP) — A thrill that most composers only experience in latent years came to a Winnipeg boy here recently.

Slight, fair-haired, 15-year-old John Sinclair played recently on the concert stage at Winnipeg's Civic Auditorium. He played to an applauding audience which had just heard his composition "The Lure of the Kings," played by the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra conducted by Walter Kaufman.

In the 'cello section of the orchestra proudly watching her son, sat his mother.

The young composer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Sinclair of Winnipeg, has studied piano since he was seven. He received instruction at the Regina Conservatory until his family moved to Winnipeg three years ago. Since then he has studied composition under Mr. Kaufman.

A Grade 11 student at Kelvin Technical High School, John has not yet decided just what he would like to do in music. For the present he is content to continue his studies and perhaps do a little composing.

MAY USE HELICOPTER

Sudbury, Dec. 13 — (CP) — A helicopter may be used in fire suppression operations in this district next summer. The suggestion of use of the helicopter was approved at a meeting of the Sudbury district of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests recently. It would be of great value to reach dense woodlands, officials said.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and I said, May pop, Pete Simkins claims he forgets things as quick as I do.

Pete must be suffering from delusions, pop said, and I said, That's what I told him.

When it comes to lapses of memory, you have very few equals and absolutely no superiors, pop said. Other people forget occasionally, when they have other things on their mind or their health is below par, but you are different. You forget all the time, when there is nothing on your mind and you are bursting with vitality and red corpuscles. There's no question about it, you are in a class by yourself. Sometimes I wonder how you do it, whether there's some secret that only you possess, he said, and I said, It dont seem very hard, pop, I mean I just seem to forget naturally, without even trying especially.

That's the way with all geniuses, with no effort at all they perform wonders that ordinery mortals cant even begin to do no matter how hard they try, pop said. It's a fairly common fact to let a thing go in one ear and out the other, but my ability in your case a thing doesn't even seem to go in one ear to begin with. Such perfection in any art is a matter for congradulation I'd be the ferst to congradulate you, he said.

Well then G, pop, I bet you wont be surprized to hear that I forgot to tell you a man named Mr. Clusker called up and said to tell you he'd be at the Elite Hotel till 6:00 and for you to call him up in case you got home by then, I said, and pop said, Believe me, young man, if it didn't just happen that Mr. Clusker is the last person I want to talk to, the tone of this conversation would take a very serious turn.

Making me feel lucky.

CITY CAUGHT UP

Winnipeg (CP)—The city's expansion has finally caught up with sewers built in 1933 as an unemployment works measure.

At that time they were put in lanes which apparently never would need them. Now city engineer W. D. Hume says the city will have to spend about $100,000 to expand the sewers.

NOT ALL SOLID

DENIES MONEY RECEIVED

London, Dec. 13—(AP)— The British Fellowship for Freedom in Medicine denied Monday night that support in 3,000 members had received money from American colleagues for lectures in the United States on the British Health Service. The denial was made in a statement aimed at Oscar R. Uneasy Watch Kept Over Safe, May Blow up

St. Catharines, Dec. 13. (CP)— An uneasy watch is being kept by police today over a safe in the office of the Niagara township Fruit Co-operative on Ridley Rd. The safe is believed to be charged with nitroglycerine, and likely to blow up at any moment.

A police patrol Monday night discovered that an attempt had been made to break open the safe. One explosion had partly forced the door. More of some liquid explosive was then poured into the safe, but the burglars were apparently frightened off by the police just before they were ready to set off the second charge.

A chemical expert from Toronto is believed to have been to neutralize the suspected explosive in the safe. He is expected to arrive this afternoon.

GEN. WILLIAMS, FORMER HEAD OF O.P.P., DIES

Saw Active Service in Both South African and First World War

Toronto, Dec. 13 — (CP)—The final chapter of a story highlighted by more than 50 years' police and military service ended Monday when Maj.-Gen. V. A. S. Williams, 82, died in Sunnybrook Hospital. He had been in hospital a month.

Gen. Williams — his full name was Victor Arthur Seymour — had been an Inspector in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police. He saw active service in the South African War and the First World War.

Born at Port Hope, Ont., Gen. Williams came of a famous military family. His father, Lt.-Col. A. T. H. Williams, commanded the Midland Battalion in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885. His grandfather, John Turner Williams, commanded the Durham Regiment in the 'Rebellion of 1837.

Gen. Williams began his long military and police career in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police after graduating from the Royal Military College, Kingston. He became an inspector in 1887 before joining the Mounted Infantry at Winnipeg.

In 1899, as a provisional lieutenant, he began active service in the South African Campaign with the first Regiment of Mounted Rifles. He was mentioned twice in dispatches and in 1901 was promoted major.

Severely Injured

At the beginning of the First World War he was Commandant of the military camp at Valcartier, Que. He was severely injured on an inspection tour of the front lines at Sanctuary Wood, France, in 1916. He was buried 10 hours by a shell burst and captured.

He was promoted Major General in 1919 and later became Adjutant - General at defence headquarters, Ottawa. In 1922 he was appointed Commissioner of Provincial Police for Ontario and continued until 1929 when he was succeeded by William H. Stringer, the present Commissioner.

Gen. Williams was twice married. His first wife, who died some years ago, was Helen Sutherland, daughter of Hugh Sutherland, of Winnipeg. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. Phillis Williams Arnoldi. Burial will take place at Port Hope.

MADOC

Kiwanis Club, Local Merchants Provide Fine Santa Parade

On Saturday afternoon parents and children from the surrounding country came to Madoc to share with the Madoc Citizens their welcome to Santa Claus.

The parade headed by the Kinsmen boys band of Belleville, assembled at Pidgon's new garage and paraded through St. Lawrence and Durham Streets. Floats with school children, and notable characters, such as Goldie Locks; Three Bears; Three Little Pigs; Popeye and Olive; Mickey and Minnie; Donald Duck; Upside-down Man and others, and school children singing carols, and the most important man of all, Santa Claus, and his reindeer, were followed by hundreds of children.

Following the parade, over 1100 bags of candy were handed out to the children and in the afternoon, the country children were given a free show "Who Killed Doc Robin" at the Empire theatre. In the morning the children of Madoc village, received the same treat.

This happy event was made possible by the Kiwanis Club of Madoc, and the local businessmen, who are to be congratulated on the success of the event.

16 Dutch Seamen Missing After Explosion, Fire

Eight Rescued Including One Who Was Badly Burned

Miami, Fla., Dec. 14—(AP)—A coast guard search plane found the burning hulk of the Dutch freighter lands motorship Dorco 200 miles due east of Miami today and radioed tersely "no survivors sighted."

Sixteen men were missing following an explosion and fire aboard the craft. Eight others were rescued. Cause of the accident was not determined.

A coast guard PBM from St. Petersburg said there wasn't any debris near the smouldering motorship and no sign of other lifeboats in the area.

Coast guard air sea rescue headquarters said a plane planned to meet the American tanker Seaforth Point at the Hole-in-the-Wall about noon to pick up the survivors but nothing was reported badly burned. The Hole-in-the-Wall is at the southern end of Abaco Island in the Bahamas.

Continue Search

The search air and surface craft continued to search the area in the hope that more survivors could be found.

The chief engineer was among the eight picked up from a lifeboat. He said he believed the captain and seven others were trapped in the engine room. None of the men aboard were identified.

Survivors' names were aboard the 971-ton Dorco when it left Port Everglades for Port au Prince, Haiti. The two men not accounted for apparently went ashore before the ship sailed, Coast Guard said.

Coast guard radio station WMH at Baltimore and the Coast Guard base picked up first news of the tragedy late Tuesday. It told of the rescue of eight men.

The message said the flames engulfed, burned and sank. The explosion was heavy, with heavy winds.

WINDSOR MAYOR TO PRESS PROBE ON HOSPITAL

Says Certain Matters Not Brought Before Royal Commission

Windsor, Dec. 14—(CP) — The affairs of the city-owned Metropolitan Hospital will be looked into again before the public today.

Mayor Arthur J. Reaume told a special meeting of city council Tuesday night he will press for investigation of his report of the death of Mrs. Ida Bell, 42, infants born under the care of an unidentified Metropolitan doctor.

The mayor told the special meeting, called to discuss a royal commission into the city hospital's administration, that certain matters were not brought before the royal commission last spring.

He said: "I am sure it will soon become obvious why certain people and groups or this city recently made overtures to focal the limelight (of the commission probe) on the Essex Memorial Sanatorium Ball so as to cover up their own mess."

The royal commission was established after Miss Mildred Mayhew, superintendent of nurses, resigned following a ball held by the Detroit Photographers' Association which the mayor and three other prominent citizens attended, with four nurses from the hospital.

The report by Judge Eric Cross, the commissioner, was published last December and recommended the resignation of Horace Atkin, business superintendent of the hospital, who attended the ball with Mayor Reaume, Dr. F. J. G. Cunningham, entertainment chairman for the East Windsor Hospital, and Gordon Fuller, a building contractor.

HYDRO INCREASES POWER COSTS TO MUNICIPALITIES

Southern Ontario Gets Boost of Ten Per Cent

Toronto, Dec. 14. (CP)—Municipalities in the Southern Ontario Hydro-Electric system will pay 10 per cent more for their wholesale power and the Thunder Bay area 15 per cent more, it was announced Tuesday night.

The question arises: will the individual consumer have to pay more?

Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said it was impossible to answer the question accurately. The situation varies throughout the municipalities, he said, in making the announcement.

But, he added:

"We believe that detailed studies will show that many municipalities will be able to absorb the increase in the cost of power without increases in consumer costs."

The new rate, retroactive from last Nov. 1, is $24.25 each horsepower in Southern Ontario— an increase of $2.25. In the Thunder Bay district the rate will be $27.90— an increase of $3.00.

Mr. Saunders said the increases were necessary because of increased wages, operating and maintenance costs. Also operating costs in Southern Ontario have increased $1,277,000 in 1939 to an estimated $40,061,000 in 1949.

Operating Costs Rise

In the Thunder Bay area, the operating costs will soar from $570,000 in 1939 to $1,644,000 in 1949— an increase of 153 per cent.

"We must safeguard the financial stability of the system," Chairman Arthur E. Salt, Mr. Saunders' colleague, said, so we are with considering which a 10 per cent increase. The commission could not contemplate, in the face of these costs, to have those rates which prevailed a decade ago."

An increase of $2.25 each horsepower of wholesale power would be the highest per unit increase ever given: $900,000; E. M. Ashworth, general manager of the system, said Thursday night. About 400,000 horsepower was purchased annually by the area, he said.

Mr. Saunders also said that retail rates to municipalities for 1949 will be reduced by an average of $1.00 each horsepower in Southern Ontario and $1.30 in the Thunder Bay area.

The commission sells power at an average price on a monthly basis. Municipal electrical ownerpays for its power on a yearly computation it is refunded.

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 14 (AP)— An explosion levelled the main office building of the Swift and Company Packing Plant today and the death toll was estimated at between 30 and 35.

Brig.-Gen. Charles Grahl, Adjutant General of the Iowa National Guard, said in Des Moines that guard officers told him by phone that "30 or 35 were killed."

Walter W. Lindgren, superintendent of public safety for the city, made the preliminary estimate of "at least 35 dead."

Lindgren called it "probably the worst disaster in Sioux City history."

Lindgren said firemen and volunteers had damaged gas masks to get into the debris-choked basement where cries of the injured could be heard.

Announcement Expected End Of Next Week

Ottawa, Dec. 14 — (CP)—The Canadian Air Transport Board is expected to announce before the end of next week whether it will suspend Colonial Air Lines' licence to fly the New York-Montreal route.

Its ruling is expected somewhat after this week's meeting of United States and Canadian government representatives in Ottawa to discuss difficulties in implementing air agreements between the two countries.

The Board — regulating authority of Canada's airways — is taken under advisement evidence presented at a two-day show-cause hearing that ended here Tuesday.

During the hearing the board was asked to "seriously consider" cancelling Colonial's licence for practically "unfair" obstruction of attempts by Trans-Canada Air Lines to get a licence to fly the lucrative route.

Legal representatives of the United States Air Line — "rendered mute" by the U. S. law known as the Logan Act — offered no defence during the hearing at which Colonial was ordered to "show cause" why the New York-Montreal licence should not be cancelled.

CPR Will Replace Steam Engines With Diesels

Ottawa, Dec. 14 — (CP)—N. R. Crump, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, today told the Royal Commission on Transportation that C. P. R. plans to replace steam locomotives with diesel engines.

Already all steam engines have been removed from Vancouver Island and replacement of steam engines will be completed this week on the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo line, he said.

Approximately 58 diesel units had replaced 60 steam locomotives to haul freight along the north shore of Lake Superior, Crump said.

Mr. Crump gave his testimony in elaborating on sections of the C. P. R.'s 1949 annual report, the section which said the railway had reduced transportation costs by greater operating efficiency and constantly-improved equipment.

Mr. Crump said the use of diesel engines would cut fuel costs, would result in faster freight, give greater tonnages of freight and would enable it to remove installations such as docks, ash pits and water towers.

Sixty Persons Left Homeless In Ottawa Fire

Ottawa, Dec. 14 — (CP)— More than 60 persons were left homeless Tuesday night following a fire that gutted a large section of a 40-suite apartment building. A warehouse was destroyed and another building damaged in two other blazes that occured within two hours of the Slater-Street apartment building here.

Fire in the apartment building broke out in the furnace room shortly before 9 p.m. and quickly spread throughout the building. All occupants of the premises escaped unharmed, but many lost all their possessions.

Firemen said water damage would be heavy even in apartments only slightly damaged by fire.

A warehouse owned by Fournier Van and Storage Ltd., on York Street was gutted by a flash fire a short time before the apartment building blaze. The warehouse was filled with empty furniture packing material. While firemen were engaged in fighting the apartment building fire, another fire broke out in a few blaze on the Rock Street premises of Ottawa Car Company. Firemen were also confined to a clothing storage outbound in the building.

The infant girl suffered burns and suffocation and was rushed to hospital at Picton by Mr. August Kalbfleisch, funeral director.

Mrs. Kilsbury found the blazing carriage on returning shortly to the house and beat out the flames confining the blaze to the carriage.

Technical Experts To Meet Thursday

Ottawa, Dec. 14 (CP)—Efforts to draft plans for a $200,000,000 hard-surfaced Trans — Canada highway will be made Thursday and Friday at a Dominion-Provincial conference of technical experts.

One of the major problems the conference will be asked to settle is the route the proposed highway will follow. Choice of the route has been left to the provinces and is some of them there are as many as three routes that the highway could follow.

The conference, called by Reconstruction Minister Winters to discuss technical details, will not be open to the press or public. All provinces have indicated they will send representatives and it is expected there will be 30 or 40 experts at the meeting.

Lawyer Admits 'Buying' Husband For Secretary

Ada, Ohio, Dec. 14 (AP)— A wealthy Ada lawyer said he "bought" a husband for $500 for his secretary to legitimize her child.

Claud B. Andrews, 54, admitted in court testimony that his former secretary, Mrs. Helena Nicholas, 34, during a 10-year period but denied fathering her baby.

In a divorce suit, Mrs. Nicholas claims her former employer has been living and cohabiting in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1939 to cover up the birth of the child.

At a hearing on the suit Tuesday, Mrs. Nicholas identified her $500 husband as George L. Davis. She said she never saw him after the wedding. She obtained a divorce from him on the ground of desertion.

Shirley Jean, pretty high school junior was found dead in her bedroom by her husband, Jack Smith.

Two Farm Hands Found Responsible For Cabbie's Death

One Describes Events Which Led to Slaying

Valleyfield, Que., Dec. 14 — (CP) — Two party-faced young farmhands will be arraigned here today on murder charges arising from the grisly hammer-slaying of Lucien Brunette, 34-year-old taxi-driver.

A coroner's jury Tuesday night at Huntingdon, Que., found Gavin Patenaude and Kenny Bevin, both 18, "criminally responsible" for the death of Brunette, whose battered body was found Tuesday on the edge of a brook near the Quebec-New York State border.

The two boys, both armed, later were captured by police in the hay-loft of a barn where they had taken refuge.

Acting on the jury's recommendation that Patenaude and Bevin be charged with murder, provincial police took them to jail in Montreal overnight and they were scheduled to be moved to Valleyfield today. Valleyfield is near the Canada-U.S. border in south-western corner, about 40 miles from Montreal.

Gavin Patenaude and Bevin testified at Tuesday night's inquest that they had killed Brunette with a hammer last Sunday night and had taken his car, $40.

Missing Since Sunday

Brunette had been missing since Sunday but it was late Monday afternoon that a bank robbery touched off a big police search which led to the youths' arrest. Quebec Provincial Police and New York State police scoured the area after Patenaude had held up a bank at Ormstown, Que., and robbed at gunpoint of $6200.

The next immediate thing known of the boys would be charged with the holding-up of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch. They told the coroner's jury at the inquest that they had robbed the bank.

Patenaude described events which led to the abduction of the bank robbery.

He said he and Bevin borrowed a hammer from a service station here and then called several taxi owners before they found Brunette's cab. They ordered him to drive to Franklin Centre, 15 miles from here, Patenaude said.

Dumped His Body

Shortly before they arrived there, he said, he and Bevin beat Brunette about the head and dumped his body at the edge of the brook.

The following day they went to Montreal and purchased police shells from a St. Catharine Street sports shop, returning to Ormstown by taxi.

Patenaude told the jury they commandeered the cab of Jack Hooker in Ormstown after robbing the bank and gave Hooker $150 "to keep quiet."

The youthful farm workers then spent the next night in a hotel room here and were trapped in the hay-loft by police after a second man reported he was tipped $5 apiece by two youths to "keep his mouth shut."

Starts Shipping 300,000 Toys To Children of Fathers in Prison

Oklahoma City, Dec. 14 (AP) —A 13-year-old boy wrote The Associated Press:

"I have been in prison two months, first time for me, and I know what it is like. I have a lot of brothers and sisters here who are in prison, will you please send us some toys. We will appreciate anything you send them and I know they will be very well pleased."

Dan Vinson, a retired business man, received both letters—part of more than 1,000 he is getting each day. And everyone will be answered with handmade gifts.

Vinson started shipping toys today so that 300,000 youngsters, who might otherwise be forgotten because their fathers are in prison, will have a Merry Christmas.

This gigantic undertaking is the climax to an unpretentious project started in 1946.

Vinson will not accept money. Materials for making toys are donated as are the gifts of services.

"I don't believe in buying toys, anyway," Vinson said. "I like to make them."

Vinson, 65, has put it on a high-pressure schedule.

Right now 4,000 persons over Oklahoma are making all kinds of toys in their spare time at home.

And they are toys any youngster would like to receive.

Five years ago, Vinson began distributing a few toys to Oklahoma prisoners. He sent about 800 underprivileged children Christmas packages with gifts.

This year, Vinson decided something should be done, for children likely to miss out on Christmas because their fathers are in prison.

Letters went out to all prisons in the United States, Canada and Mexico. They asked prisoners to write how many children they have and their ages.

This was announced today by the Cunard White Star Company, which operates the 23-year-old ship.

For the last two years the Aquitania has been under contract to the Canadian government to carry troops to Canada. This contract expired Dec. 1 and the maritime sources suggested that no new charter assignment for the liner has been found.

Consumer Rates Not Affected Says O.H. Scott

Hydro consumer rates in Belleville will not be increased despite today's announcement by Robert J. Scott, Ontario Hydro Chairman.

Quit the wholesale rates for power in Ontario would be increased by ten per cent.

This was the opinion of Mr. O. H. Scott, local utilities manager, who stated that in his opinion there would be no necessity of increasing the hydro consumer rates in this city.

Mr. Scott pointed out that thus far he had only newspaper reports of the wholesale power increase but using average figures for 1949 he said that power costs in the city under the new schedule would be increased by approximately seven per cent. This would mean the wholesale cost of power would be increased by about $14,000 annually.

Mr. Scott explained that hydro rates in different municipalities were on a different basis and that average cost figures indicated a seven per cent increase for Belleville.

POLICE BLOTTER

Theft of a car radio speaker, a set of spanner wrenches and a flashlight, was reported to police today by Jack Dodson, North Front Street. Mr. Dodson said his car was parked on upper Front Street and when he returned to vehicle the articles were missing.

Police attention was called to the fact that a young nine-year-old girl had been left by her parents in a car parked on Church Street opposite the Collegiate campus. The young girl had been in the car for the greater part of the afternoon while the parents were shopping. The little girl was taken into the office of the county treasurer to get warm. When the parents returned they were given a warning by police.

Veteran employee of the Motive Power Department of the Canadian National Railways, Mr. Herbert L. Collins, 209 Dundas Street East, retired from "active services" with the railroad yesterday. He had been with the railroad for the past thirty years.

Mr. Collins' fellow employees of the Motive Power Department expressed their tangible appreciation of three decades of association with the CNR yesterday morning when they presented him with a purse of money. The presentation was made by Mr. W. C. Follwell, assistant foreman of the operation.

Mr. Collins has lived all his railroad life in Belleville. Yesterday, celebrating his 65th. birthday and accepting the gift of his appreciation, he expressed his appreciation of their generosity and regret at the severance of years of happy congenial association.

Says Health Insurance to Ease Costs Of Illness Better Than State Medicine

The position of the medical doctor or today is a far cry from that of the family practitioner of a generation or so ago, Dr. Reg. Anderson, in an address to the Optimist Club, pointed out the great loss in prestige and effectionate regard which has been suffered by his profession in the intervening years. The medical doctor of today is to be regarded as a member of an over-privileged profession.

With vast improvements in medical diagnosi, and treatment, which become ever-more effective, has come, a corresponding increase in the cost of treatment. The speaker pointed out that the average citizen now fears the cost of illness for himself or his family more than the sickness itself. As a result, state-medicine has become an increasingly bright dream for politicians to dangle before their voters. Political propagandists have found the chief opposition to such schemes to come from the medical profession, and in addition, have accused the doctors of purely selfish motives.

Every kind of socialized medicine as practised in Great Britain from Australia and New Zealand to Germany. These attempts have resulted in much waste of time leader.

and money. Doctors offices became over-crowded with trivial complaints, while a mushrooming bureaucracy tied all progress up in a maze of red-tape.

Nonetheless, the speaker stated that it was obvious that some relief must be found for the average man from the financial burden of medical care and hospitalization. The Canadian Medical Association has voiced its approval of the nation-wide extension of existing hospital and medical insurance plans, with government aid to those who cannot afford to contribute. Such insurance plans are administered not by politicians, but by professional men who know their field, and can give economical, practical leadership.

Such nation-wide health insurance would be a far different thing from socialized medicine, often the first step towards a socialist state.

Dr. Anderson was introduced to the club by Mac. Smith, and thanked for him Hue added by Phil Flagler.

Guests of the Optimists were John Crawford and Bill Graydon.

Sam Cowan acted as sergeant-at-arms, and Phil Flagler as song

Way is Cleared For Formation of U.S. of Indonesia

Batavia, Java, Dec. 14—(AP)—The way was cleared today for the long-awaited formation of a sovereign United States of Indonesia. Independence comes after 300 years of Netherland colonial rule over some 77,000,000 island inhabitants in the southwest Pacific.

The Dutch-Indonesian Independence agreement, signed six weeks ago in The Hague, was ratified by the parliament of the independent Indonesian republic, largest of the group which will make up the U.S.I. previously the 15 federal, Dutch-sponsored Indonesian states and the Lower House of the Netherlands parliament approved the agreement.

The parliaments of all the states also ratified the draft constitution.

Negotiations Began in 1946

Negotiations for the granting of sovereignty to the people of this group of 3,000 mainly-rich islands began early in 1942. They were interrupted by the Japanese invasion of the Islands. After the war the negotiations, although resumed, were marked by bloody fighting between Dutch troops and Indonesian republicans before the United Nations stepped in early this year and demanded a truce and peaceful talks.

Among the islands which will become part of the new U.S.I. is the most heavily populated island of Java. The romantic island of Bali, home of graceful ceremonial dances and beautiful gold jewelry, also is in the group. Largest in area is oil-rich Borneo. Inclusion of the Dutch-held part of New Guinea was postponed for one year under the agreement despite demands by the Indonesians that it became part of the U.S.I. now.

Although the new U.S.I. will have full sovereignty, it still will be a federated commonwealth linked to Netherlands by the Dutch crown.

They were on duty until midnight Monday night when the season closed with cancellation of all insurance rates on lake shipping.

ONE OF THE GREAT EXPLORERS

Many Canadians have travelled considerably through Canada but when they consider the travels of the French-Canadian explorer La Verendrye, they can do nothing but pay the highest tribute to the man who came to know this country and what are now the northern states of the American Union in a manner which places him on a pedestal among the greatest explorers of the New World.

His mother's father was a famous historian and his father was the governor of Three Rivers. In 1697 he as a boy of twelve entered the colonial army. In 1707 he was sent to France and was commissioned a lieutenant in the Regiment de Bretagne. With this he served on the Continent, was wounded nine times and was left for dead on the field of Malplaquet in 1709. He came back to Canada in 1711 and was commissioned two years later as ensign in the Colonial Regiment.

In 1727 he became commander of a post on Lake Nipigon. Here he learned from the Indians of great lands to the west and the routes by which they might be reached. An Indian chieftain having shown him a map of a great river flowing into the west, he went to Quebec to seek permission to explore the regions westward at his own cost. But the governor advised him to go to France to get permission and having received that he was given a monopoly of the fur trade.

With four of his eldest sons and a nephew he began the famous journeys in 1731. Next year the party reached the Lake of the Woods and built Fort St. Charles. While he was on a visit to Lower Canada the rest of his party pressed westward and in 1734 erected a fort on Lake Winnipeg before. Then disaster came upon the party in 1736, his nephew died and in the same summer Jean Baptiste La Verendrye, Father Aulneau, and nineteen members of the party were murdered by natives. But La Verendrye in 1738 pushed westward and reached Fort Dauphin where Winnipeg now stands. The explorers went overland to the Missouri River and four of the party in 1744 reached what are thought to be Rockies or Black Hills. They buried a leaden plate on their return journey and in 1913 this plate was unearthed at Fort Pierre, South Dakota. A duplicate was found on the return journey. The explorer went to Montreal and sought aid to carry on his explorations. Honors came to him and in 1749 the governor gave him authority to resume his explorations and while he was preparing for another journey to the west, he died. That was just 200 years ago.

To his fame he has the discovery of Manitobe, the two Dakotas, the western plains of Minnesota, possibly Montana and assuredly a great part of what is Canada's northwest. He had the honor of being the first white to cross the rivers Assiniboine, Upper Missouri and the Red River.

To this man Canada owes a great debt for tireless efforts of exploration in a day so different from this age. La Verendrye gave a graphic description of the Rockies and probably he wrote: "The first sight of the sea. It spreads out silent and immense."

His name today is familiar to the school children of Canada and the United States. In the annals of this Continent this great traveller and explorer built a name which Canadians must always hold in highest regard as one of the founders of the growth of this nation.

THE WINTER BIRDS

The first heavy snows of winter create a critical situation for native birds, both the migrants and the winter-dwellers, of which there are many. Many migrators, possibly including some robins, will stay too late, for reason or another, and are likely to perish when their normal food supplies are covered with snow.

The things that birds like are inexpensive — bread and cake crumbs, vegetable parings, fats and suets and the like — and all that is necessary is to toss such eatables out where the birds can get at them. If there are cats or squirrels around, however, it is better to fix up a simple platform on which the birds can feed unmolested. — Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

SENATE APPOINTMENTS

The members of Canada's Senate are nominated for life by summons of the Governor-General under the great seal of Canada.

TAX RELIEF

A novel provision in the constitution of Brazil is that no taxes be levied upon royalties of authors or the incomes of professors or journalists.

To be humble to superiors, is duty; to equals, is courtesy; to inferiors, is nobleness; and to all, safety; it being a virtue that, for all its lowliness, commandeth those its stoops to. — Sir Thomas Moore.

SKID ROW

Realm of the spirits broken;
Haunt of the "ceased-to-care."
Where seldom a word is spoken,
Untainted with grim despair.

Region of filth and squalor,
Sick mind and wasted frame.
Spoil where the Bridger's dollar
Buys only deeper shame.

Skid Row—the hopeless valley
Where pitiful humans stay
To reckon that lives an alley,
Which useless, is thrown away.

This is the blight of the city
Where fortune and fame are made;
That only the few will pity,
And only the few will aid.

The high wind yesterday leveled a number of trees and fences in the city and district.

It is about time some candidates for the city council announced themselves.

Twenty-eight cents per pound is a pretty stiff price for butter, to the local housewives say.

Mr. F. D. Diamond has been appointing agent for the Canadian Fire Insurance Company.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Due to a step throat, one of my friends has had to give up smoking.

It would not have believed, he said, "how wonderful bread and butter could taste. For years I have been conscious only of the most powerful flavors. And then, quite by a vague, hopeful impulse, I decided to see if you could see only black and white, you would be able to taste only a smoker, who can't really taste anything but sweet and sour, salt and sugar. . .

"The indescribable flavor of a fresh golden brown loaf, sensational tone of broccoli, the positive sweetness of a ripe pear, and chocolate cake of which I could taste. . .

"The point is more, I can do this once an hour, fifteen times a day; and by gum, every pipeful is an astonishment. I've got a carton I found joy! Maybe I knocked the ashes out not five minutes ago; but the fresh pipe has all the delight of an experience never met with before in fifty years.

"Is bet my faltering friend couldn't do that with a steak!

My friend is not only ecstatic. He is also putting on weight. What is more, he is developing a taste for big ripe pears and drooling at the mouth.

For me, I will say this: that, when I stuff an old, dark-curved clay stem pipe with some of that lovely if damp imported Virginia tobacco, and, after tamping it thoughtfully, light it with a match and let it burn good and clear; and when, in addition to the tobacco and begin to pull—I tell you I never dreamed that anything in life could taste.

For me, I can do this once an hour, fifteen times a day; and by gum, every pipeful is an astonishment. I've got a carton I found joy! Maybe I knocked the ashes out not five minutes ago; but the fresh pipe has all the delight of an experience never met with before in fifty years.

Is bet my faltering friend couldn't do that with a steak!

Miss Skourus was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and operating a vehicle while drunk. She was committed to sanitarium following an examination by Dr. Ross and a Belleville doctor, in connection with her father.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH

Last night when I dropped into Jerry's for a firkin of foam, Long George Scully, and Sid Finch—Perry were at the bar, as usual. As usual, however, they were not arguing with each other but with the bartender.

"The truth never hurt anybody," said the bartender, "and the truth is I'm on the hook for 63 beers. And until—you gentlemen have been good enough to pay me 61h."

"Look," said the Inch, "you're a downtrodden worker yourself, and when you turn down another worker's request for a bowl of suds, you're committing class suicide."

"For three weeks successive," said the bartender, "you gentlemen have been promising to pay up, and if it wasn't against the rules to insult a customer, I'd say you liars were making free with the truth."

"What's your beef with a lie now and then?" said Long George. "If it wasn't for the white lie and oil, the wheels of our crumby civilization would come to a dead stop."

"You couldn't be more wrong" said the bartender. "A white lie, tells the truth on any and all occasions."

"If you'll excuse my elegance" said The Inch, "that's a lot of pig swallow."

"I concur with my friend," said Long George. "Look at what happened to Ananias Pecker, when he got miked up with the truth. He was ostracized by the Better Business Bureau, and a few scrappy minutes later his wife was packed and on her way to her mother's home in Canarsie."

"I never her right," said the bartender.

"Served Hogan right," said The Inch. "Everybody found out he was happy as a fly on a white-key cork. Tonight, like every night, he's in his sparkiest glow tapping up the lights and playing 'Melancholy Baby' on the phonograph."

"Besides which," said George, "nobody has heard him say a word against his wife. But the finagling friend who tipped him off—well, he's got to give you credit—never with an off dollar steak."

"You've got a point, maybe," said the bartender, "but I still insist there's nothing like the truth to put you gentlemen get no more beer."

"The truth, I'd like to point out," said Long George, "is probably the most incendiary thing man has discovered since he learned to rub two little sticks together. And if the man of Hogan's ilk isn't enough, let me give you another for instance: The great Companies who recently indicted and impeached Fort Knox to make sure the treasure is still there. Not on your bungstarter. Even the Secretary of Commerce in Congressman would know that an hour after the news hit page one he'd substitute a gold brick bucket-o-Bikini—and that a man actually wearing signals with a twenty-dollar note."

"Which proves what?" said the bartender.

"Which proves," said Long George, "that truth, like oil and mile, shouldn't be tossed around carelessly. If my friends and I sometimes exaggerate, we're not settling our tab, it's only to spare the bartender.

The bartender took a couple of beer glasses wiped them, and said, "I'll drink to that." You know he said, "I never thought about it that much before, but it almost makes me ashamed of myself to throw you gentlemen out."

Mackenzie's Column:
Gulf Stream And Present Day Ideologies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

These days of clashing political ideologies there is tendency to invest doubts and suspicions even between old and tried international friends.

We had a rather startling indication of this when Foreign Minister Bidault, Labor member of the British House of Commons Bevan, in a debate on defence that there were American hotheads who were talking about using the atomic power to divert the Gulf Stream if Britain became too friendly with Russia. Certain owes her temperate climate to the Gulf Stream and presumably if the stream were turned away, country if the stream were turned away, country if the stream were turned away, country

Magistrate Reserves Judgment On Careless Driving Charge

Trenton — (Special) — Judgment was reserved yesterday at the trial of 19-year-old Earl Kendall Meyers of R. R. 2 Trenton, after evidence was adduced when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills charged with careless driving.

Young Meyers was the driver of a truck that went out of control on Dundas Street East and crashed into a roadside store killing John Simpson, 73. Evidence showed that the truck skidded on the greasy rain-swept pavement, when the right front and rear wheels locked as the vehicle was proceeding east along the street.

Measurements taken by the police showed that the Meyers' truck left the roadway 101 feet from the point of impact. Skid marks indicated the vehicle skidded 40 feet before it hit the store.

Victim Crushed

A heavy refrigerator toppled over crushing Simpson, who was sitting in a chair behind the counter. His body had to be extricated from the wreckage. A post mortem revealed that he died from internal injuries the result of a violent blow to the abdomen.

Henry Harris of Carrying Place who was approaching town in his truck from the east, said he saw the Meyers' truck first start to get into difficulty. "A truck coming toward me suddenly began swaying and apparently skidded out of control when the brakes locked," Harris testified. He claimed he could see the right front and rear wheels had stopped as the truck slid sideways.

Crown witness Louis Martin who saw the crash from the sidewalk told the court that it looked like Meyers tried to manoeuvre his vehicle into a laneway in his attempt to avert hitting the building.

Truck Began Swaying.

Mrs. Lena Finlan, who was following the Meyers' truck, said that the vehicle passed her at a slow rate of speed and began swaying about after it had returned to its own lane. Mrs. Finlan testified that the Meyers' truck couldn't have been travelling more than 22 or 25 miles an hour.

While the brakes would stop the truck Police Chief Taylor testified they were in poor condition and the tires were not adequate for driving on wet roads. According to the chief constable's evidence all of the tires on the truck were smooth with the exception of one.

Crown Attorney Gordon Robertson held that Meyers was driving a truck with faulty tires and faulty brakes under circumstances which called for extreme precaution.

Meyers' attorney offered no defence and moved for non suit.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Michael E. Schmidt, pastor of the church.

The wedding music, including a half hour recital before the ceremony, was played by Kenneth I. Miller, organist of the church. The decorations featured palms, ferns, gladioli, and chrysanthemums.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

A cook can't afford to be color blind.

She must use her color sense not only when she buys food, but when she cooks it and serves it. The color of a lamb bone when it is cut tells the age of the animal. If it's pink, the lamb is young and tender; if it's white, the meat is old and on its way to becoming mutton.

There are times when color in food is merely added for eye appeal and doesn't affect the flavor one way or the other. All the color in cheese, for instance, is artificial. When you eat cream of spinach soup in a restaurant and it's a deep intense green, most likely the cook achieved the results with a bottle of green color. Cheap cakes with a deep yellow color often contain egg-shade color to make up for the eggs that weren't used.

The color of fresh fruit is one of the best guides to taste and ripeness. Strawberries, fresh or frozen, should have a deep sandy red color. If you are using the fresh strawberries now being shipped from the south, the stems should be fresh and green, the fruit red without any white tips.

Frozen strawberries, sliced in heavy syrup, will brighten any meal. Strawberries with cream, thick or thin, sweet or sour are a natural team ever since Cardinal Wolsey hit upon the combination for the first time.

Strawberries with vanilla ice cream, vanilla custard or vanilla pudding will gratify sense of color and taste.

STRAWBERRY BLANC MANGE
Serves 6.

Combine 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-3 cup granulated sugar and 1-4 teaspoon salt in a mixing bowl.

Heat, in the top part of a double boiler over a direct flame, 2 cups of milk until bubbles appear around edge of saucepan. Remove from flame.

Pour 1-4 cup of the hot milk into the cornstarch mixture and stir until a smooth paste is formed. Combine paste with the remainder of the hot milk.

Place over bottom of double boiler and cook until smooth, stirring frequently. After mixture is thick continue to cook, covered, 20 minutes longer.

Remove from fire, Add 1 tsp. vanilla. Beat 2 egg whites until stiff. Fold into hot mixture. Pour into custard cups and cool to room temperature. Place in ice box to chill thoroughly.

When ready to serve, unmold onto serving plates. Pour sliced sweetened fresh strawberries over blanc mange just before serving.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply—Ed.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The December meeting of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of the Rev. L. C. Scott and Mrs. Scott, on Thursday afternoon, with a good attendance of members and visitors. The president, Mrs. Sam Elliott, extended a welcome to all. The meeting opened with the use of Christmas hymns with Miss Sarah Stickney presiding at the piano.

Mrs. Harry Murphy read the Scripture lesson from Luke 1 and Mrs. Everett Stratton, group leader, read "The Home of the Holy Family". Mrs. W. D. Robertson gave a reading, entitled "Ready for Christmas". A reading also given by Mrs. Claude Clark. Roll call was answered by short clippings. The minutes of the last meeting were given by the secretary, and adopted as read.

A note of thanks was read from Mrs. J. A. McFarlane for the birthday card. Eleven meetings were held during the year, with the "banner taking the place of the November meeting. There are 44 members in the W.A. Mrs. Claude Clark reported for the sewing committee, stating that there were a number of aprons for sale. Mrs. Stanley MacDonald reported for the parsonage committee, that the needed repairs had been completed, extending thanks and appreciation for the painting and decorating, which the Scott family had done themselves. Mrs. and Mrs. Scott both expressed their appreciation for the changes which had been made for their convenience.

Miss Winnifred Eckhardt reported on the cards sent, of which she is in charge, and the treasurer, Mrs. Claude Clarke, reported that $732.20 had been raised this year. Donations had been given to the M. and M. fund for the new Sunday School room; for tuning the church piano; to the Bible Society; to the "Salvation Army; to the Fred Victor Mission in Toronto; the caroling had been done for the Girls' Club bake sale and chicken supper. A substantial balance remains on hand. It was decided that contributions should be made to all these worthy causes again. Accordingly $35 was voted to the M. and M. fund; $25 to the Sunday School; the Sunday School room and kitchen to be wired for lights; and for an electric stove. Baskets of fruit are to be sent to all sick and shut-in members, and adherents of the congregation. This is done every year at Christmas. Next Sunday will be White Gift Sunday with all gifts, either large or small, acceptable. The true spirit of Christmas is shown by giving.

The president thanked the members for their help, and Mr. Scott voiced his appreciation and thanks to the officers and members for their good work this year. The success of the Auxiliary is due to a great extent to the faithful and efficient leadership of the president, Mrs. Elliott, who has been president for a lengthy term of office, since the organizing of the W.A. and who has given a great deal to the work. Mrs. Elliott has also served as treasurer. Her willingness to help, coupled with her interest in the work, has been appreciated by all the members. It is also due to her that the junior choir girls were supplied with gowns.

Mrs. Charles Kierl presented the new slate of officers as follows. President, Mrs. Sam Elliott; 1st Vice President, Mrs. K. R. Vivian; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. E. Vivian; Secretary, Mrs. Clarence Martin; Treasurer, Mrs. C. Clarke; Press Sec., Mrs. W. D. Robertson; Card Fund Sec., Miss W. Eckhardt; Pianist, Mrs. George Fraser; Assistant Pianist, Mrs. Damon Hinchey; Group leaders, Mrs. E. Vivian, Mrs. D. Stratton, Miss Sara Stickney, Mrs. R. McFarlane, Mrs. R. Shetler and Mrs. Charles Kierl. Parsonage Committee, Mrs. S. MacDonald and Mrs. Damon Hinchey.

The guest speaker, Mrs. J. Woods, Belleville, district president of the W.A. of Hastings and Prince Edward counties, gave a helpful and inspirational address, speaking on the works of the W.A. as well as on the inner resources, spiritual and social. Christian fellowship should be enjoyed in a social way, casting aside all criticism and jealousy, being mothers in the church, making Jesus real in the life by living each day to please Him, and in serving in every way possible.

Mrs. Elliott extended the thanks of all to Mrs. Woods for her fine talk.

After the close of the meeting, delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Scott and her helpers, and a social time enjoyed by all

Bush, the new president, the best of health and success for 1950.

Mrs. S. Westover took charge of the W.M.S. meeting. Reports of secretaries and treasurer were given and plans made for a white gift service to be held on December 11th after the regular church service. Mrs. C. Grills was appointed convener of this service, with help from the Mission Band.

The president thanked all the officers and members for their loyal support and co-operation during the two years as president and said no matter what Martha Circle may do with in the future, her prayers and interest would always be with Aikens' Auxiliary.

Mrs. C. Grills and Mrs. W. Bush extended appreciation to Mrs. Westover for her faithful services as the W.A. and W.M.S. pianist, and said Mrs. S. Westover would be greatly missed in all church work.

Mrs. R. Marshal, program convener, led in a fine Christmas service, the theme throughout, "Our Faith in Jesus Christ".

Scriptures were read by Mrs. Keary, Mrs. K. Jones and Mrs. E. Bubble.

Paris Rebellion Shortens Skirts, Adds Informality

By BARBARA STEVENSON

Paris, (Reuters)—The spirit of America with a French accent can perhaps best sum up the trend of the first fashions for 1950 now being shown in the mid-season collections here.

The second half of the century, so far as fashions are concerned, is likely to be ushered in with a quiet but definite rebellion against the "frou-frou" and stilted silhouette of the '20s which have dominated Paris collections of late.

Jacques Fath, taking his inspiration from the most wearable and commonplace clothes of America —the very day lumber jacket, the battle fatigue jacket and the raincoat for example—has turned them into attractive models for round-the-clock wear.

Shorter skirts appear to be here to stay. Day costumes are generally speaking 15 inches from the ground and occasional models, with disturbed hemlines, by Christian Dior, Edward Molyneux and Jacques Griffe, as much as 16 inches up. Balmain Gres and Piquin keep to 14, with some an inch longer and within the afternoon length range.

Pencil-slim skirts reveal several new tricks in cut, including concealed pleats or slashes to give unhampered walking space.

The most outstanding difference betwegn the autumn shows and the new mid-season collections is in jacket lengths. These are definitely shorter to preserve the balance with the shorter skirt.

Sleeves For Sports

For both active and spectator sport, French fashion houses are offering sack jackets with Dolman and Magyar sleeves and a new adjustable treatment consisting of full, wrist-length sleeves with concealed bands to make them stay put at any desired spot on the arm.

The new sport silhouette is executed in the traditional French wools and tweeds which come in a wide range of lovely color combinations.

A popular mid-season cost for town is fashioned from faille, heavy satin, or a heavy pile velvet, with linings of wool, fur or teddy-bear cloth.

The spotlight in the mid-season day scene is focussed on sleeves. Jean Demees leads this sleeve accent in the grand manner, with leg-o-muttons in a variety of sizes. Epaulded, drooping shoulders remain popular with the fullness gathered and set in below the shoulder line and may go to three inches down the arm.

Fath, still carrying out his multiple button theme, puts buttons) on stiff-fabric tunics worn over pencil-slim skirts and again on asymmetrical wool dresses. The buttons control pleats and abundant skirt fullness.

In the top fashion houses the short-length evening dress is still being sponsored, although very few have yet appeared in the Paris night scene. Molyneux, Fath and Schiaparelli, are showing the strapless short evening dress in pencil lines while Dior sticks to the moulded strapless bodice above a very full skirt.

All these new short gowns are shown with little fitted jackets which turn them into cocktail dresses and in some cases, especially with Fath's models, into little street frocks.

Painting is Love Of Refugee Woman

Toronto (CP)—Painting pictures is fun for Mrs. Hilda Milkelssar who fled the Russians from her native Estonia during the war has been having an eventful time ever since. Four months in Canada, she has already filled a room with pictures done in her spare time.

An assistant nurse in an institution for children here, Mrs. Milkelssar paints at every opportunity. When she outwitted the Reds and reached safety in Germany she painted 120 portraits in the first city she stayed in. Sold them, too, and made a small fortune.

"But the inflation came and the money shrank until it practically vanished altogether," she said. "But I kept on painting for the love of it and I'm painting now just for the fun. In fact, I've been painting since I was a little girl in Estonia."

A graduate of the National Academy of Arts in her native land she was teaching high school when the Russians arrived. Nine relatives were killed in the invasion and her brother was later deported to Siberia.

She wrote her sister back home three years ago but hasn't got an answer.

"The Russians deal immediately with anyone who has been in contact with the outside," she said. "They don't like to see D.P.'s go to Canada either, because it counteracts their propaganda."

London Midwives Going to School

London (CP)— A college for midwives will be set up in the London area.

Under a scheme sponsored by the Central Midwives Board, practising midwives will be able to take time off for a six-month diploma course at the college.

"The standard of training of midwives is already high, but we hope the college will result in still further improvement," said G. Thomas, an official of the board.

The training will be merely theoretical but modern equipment will be provided and opportunity given for visits to nearby hospitals.

Evening Branch W.A. Holds Delightful Christmas Supper

The Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church, held their annual Christmas supper party, on Monday evening at 6:30 in the Parish Hall, with 41 in attendance.

The Christmas theme was carried out in the table appointments of a lovely cloth, poinsettia bordered, centred with a tiny lighted Christmas tree, red Christmas candles, in Christmas holders and matching serviettes, completed the picture.

Following the delicious supper, greetings and short addresses, were given by the Rev. J. Grant Sparling, Mr. Everett Smith and Miss Frances Reid, president of the Auxiliary.

BACK TO NORMAL

Newcastle, England — (CP) — The city council has decided to discontinue boosting "holidays at home." It said travel facilities have improved to permit normal vacationing.

Wives Not Pampered In West Coast City

Victoria, B.C., — (CP) — If Canadian males are overly domesticated it hasn't shown up in Victoria.

Housewives here are inclined to shrugg off as "misguided" the comments of Palle Bojesen, a Dane from Copenhagen, who said in an interview in Toronto that "husbands over here do too much."

"If my husband had to do all the household chores he wouldn't come home . . . I don't think any of them would," laughed pretty blonde Mrs. Robert Obee, a housewife and mother.

"We do the dishes together in the evenings but as for the rest, I think Mr. Bojesen is off the beam."

The Dane's observations that the Denmark we put our women on a pedestal, too, but they'll do anything for us," made no impression on tall, dark and attractive Mrs. Kenneth S. Cladertank.

"He's gone too far," she said. "Ken does the dishes at night while I get my son ready for bed, and most of our friends are the same way. We certainly don't have as much work to do as our mothers did, what with all the modern appliances, but we still keep busy all day long."

Not only does Mrs. John M. Bond not want to be put on a pedestal but she likes doing housework.

"I enjoy my job and wouldn't want to change it for any career. But as for a husband doing all the household work . . . I don't go down to the office and do his work, why should he do mine."

Wholesale Purge Of Ruling Groups Now Under Way

London, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Satellites of eastern Europe's ruling communist parties have been speeded up in a campaign apparently aimed at stiffening red resistance to growing western military preparedness.

Since the Russian-led comintern, met in November, diplomats here agree, the drive to crush independent nationalist feelings and build up Russian prestige has been turned on full blast.

The new rash of purges and government shakeups from Poland to Bulgaria promises an intensification of the east-west cold war, these diplomatic sources believe.

The purges are seen by diplomatic observers not only as an attempt to rid the parties of those who sympathize with the west or with Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito, ousted from the communist information bureau for defying Moscow dictates—but also to tighten the party discipline.

The comintern is made up of communist parties from Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, France and Italy. Last month it ordered its members to purge the party of those who don't toe the line, to stamp out sympathizers with Tito, to step up the Soviet-promoted "Peace" drive, and to boost the Soviet Union.

Trial In Forerunner

The observers saw as a forerunner to this announced campaign the trial in Hungary of former Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk. He was executed on charges of spying, sabotage and plotting with Tito to overthrow the present communist regime there. Rajk himself was at one time a leading member of the country's communist party.

Other events that occured almost simultaneously with the latest comintern meeting appear to be no mere coincidence. They were:

1. In Poland, former deputy premier Wladyslaw Gomulka was expelled from the central committee of the communist party for allegedly continuing an "anti-Soviet," nationalist party.

2. Polish-born Marshall Constantin Rokossovsky, withdrew from the Russian army and became boss of Poland's army.

3. Th3 Bulgarian authority began the trial of former deputy premier Traicho Kostov, who today is awaiting sentence in a Sofia jail on charges of plotting with Tito and being anti-Soviet.

Says Her Goats Don't Smell, Dogs Don't Bark

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—A British nobleswoman told a chancery court Tuesday her goats did not smell and her dogs did not bark.

Lady Marjorie Josephine Garbett—was in court because of a neighbor's complaint that the barking dogs kept him awake nights and the smell of goats prevaded his garden and flies infested his house in Surrey.

He asked the court to end the alleged nuisance.

Lady Garbett told the court she kept 26 pedigreed goats to provide milk for invalids and made no profit on them. She said their sheds were cleaned every week and there were no flies or smell.

Said the Judge: "They must be a very queer kind of goats. All goats smell."

Replied Lady Garbett: "Ours don't."

She also stuck to her story that the dogs do not bark.

The Judge said he couldn't believe it. He granted an injunction against the dogs and goats.

Kings and Queens Of Yesteryear Hold Reunion

Hollywood, Dec. 14—(AP)—The filmtown saw a different kind of premiere Tuesday night, attended by two dozen of its most famous oldtime stars.

The movie kings and queens of yesteryear met in the basement of a bank to honor the anniversary of "The Squaw Man," Hollywood's first feature picture. Cecil B. Demille said he started directing the picture in an orange grove near the bank 36 years ago to the day.

Theda Bara, now a society matron, looked dark-eyed and exotic, if a trifle round. Portly radio actor Francis X. Bushman flashed his famous profile. Ramon Novarro, a real estate dealer, and character actor, was thin-haired but still courtly with the ladies.

Mae Murray, now dabbling in television, flounced around as though she would break into a "Merry Widow" waltz. Any place model manufacturer Reginald Denny seemed as debonair as ever. Jack Holt, still active in films, was bald but still looked able to save a heroine from the ice-jam.

Among the others: William Farnum, Elmo Lincoln, Norbert Kerry, Herbert Rawlinson, Gaston Glass, Mack Sennett, Adolphe King, Claire Windsor, Andy Clyde, Blanche Sweet, and Winnifred Kingston, who appeared in "The Squaw Man."

Laughed one-time idol Bushman: "Nowadays people meet me and say, 'Francis X. Bushman! I thought you were dead!'"

POLICE OFFICERS CLEARED

Los Angeles, Dec. 14—(AP)—Inquiry of Hollywood police vice activities was concluded with the clearing of the last of five police officers of all charges. The fifth to be freed was Police Sgt. Elmer V. Jackson, Brenda Allen, former Hollywood vice queen, refused to testify against Jackson, although she told a grand jury that she paid him $50 a girl a week for protection. The refusal was on constitutional grounds that she might incriminate herself.

Mr. Richardson thanked the Belleville Club for the arrangements made for the conference and claimed it was the duty of all Kiwanians to carry on the work of Kiwania in their community. He claimed division six was the most important division in the O.Q.M. district and hoped that all business men would place it in a prominent place in their store the code of ethics of the Kiwanis Club.

Found Unconscious In Ditch, Dies On Way to Hospital

Peterborough, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Found unconscious in a ditch on Highway 28, five miles southwest of here Tuesday night, Raymond Sanderson, 28, of Port Hope was taken to Civic Hospital but was pronounced dead on arrival.

Cause of his death has not been determined and a post mortem has been ordered for later today by Coroner Dr. Herbert Young. There was no obvious sign of foul play, police said.

Sanderson was found by Provincial Constable George Henderson lying in the ditch by his wife scuthwest of here at 11:20 p.m.

How long the man had been lying there is not known. The possibility of him having been struck by a passing motor vehicle is also being investigated, police said.

On Aug. 24, during a visit to Peterborough to buy electrical equipment, Sanderson reported to police he was knocked down and robbed of $105.

At that time he was taken to hospital where he was treated for cuts and scrapes on the face. He told police he met two men in the east and accompanied them along the C.P.R. tracks west of the city where he was attacked, knocked down and robbed.

Provincial police said Sanderson was in Peterborough on Monday for a visit to his brother, Gordon Sanderson.

Former Sulphide Resident Lands 425-Pound Tuna After Long Battle

You can have your eight-pound black bass or forty - pound muskies but for a real fishing thrill try hooking a 425-pound tuna.

That was the near back-breaking, rod-splitting experience of Leslie Douglas, of Fairfield, Connecticut who landed the monster after a five-hour battle in which he was nearly swept overboard off Ambrose Light, Freeport, N.Y., when the big "horse-mackerel" nearly won the fight.

Douglas is a former resident of Sulphide where his parents still and Mrs. William Douglas still reside. Douglas' wife is the former Myrtle Airey of Sulphide. He has resided in Fairfield for the past 12 years, where he owns and operates a garage and service station.

With five companions, Douglas was in a sea-going vessel when the big fish struck. "He burned off about 200 feet of line when he hit the bait and I played him about ten minutes" Douglas said.

Then the battle began in earnest. The huge tuna spiraled wildly in an effort to get free. It struck the leader a mighty blow with its tail shattering the heavy bicycle rod into splinters. Douglas was lurched clean across the deck of the boat. He almost went overboard and was saved when two of his companions grabbed his leather fishing harness and clung to it.

He managed to retain hold of the rest of his rod and held it while the captain of the boat made repairs. After that he was forced to hold it in a horizontal position.

The battle was renewed and the big fish tried everything it knew, repeatedly diving and breaking water. Douglas paid out his line skilful navigation of the boat's skipper whose clever handling of the vessel aided a lot in bringing the fish to the boat.

In fact it was the captain, who when the fish was diving within 50 feet of the boat, grabbed the line and pulled it to within 15 feet. There it grew up and rolled over on its back and was gaffed by Douglas' companions. It took all six men to haul the big fellow into the craft.

When the day complete the party hooked five albacore which averaged 15 pounds.

Douglas took the big fish and his five friends home in his car where he set, "the fenders would scrape the road surface."

The tuna was the largest fish of any sort caught in the Freeport area, the foremost tuna port in the New York district. It was 200 pounds heavier than the one which won the first prize in the New York Fishing Tournament.

Corrected Report

Sees Little Possibility of Hastings Being Accredited Area in Near Future

Correcting the impression given in a press report in this paper last week that Hastings County will be accredited area for cattle early next year, Dr. H. M. Vanquishand, senior veterinary of the Dominion Department of Agriculture here, said Tues., that he can see little possibility under present conditions of the county being an area by that time or as a general re-test just started recently. It took 2½ years to complete the first test. No one knows, he said, how long it will take to re-test the county as this will depend on the number of veterinarians supplied to do the work.

Hastings County was declared a Restricted Area in August, 1947 and the first general test of all cattle therein, was commenced at that time. This test was completed this week and a tabulation of the figures reveals that the percentage of T.B. reactors was too high to permit the country to be classed as "accredited" which is a higher standing than "restricted" and which is given preference by United States cattle buyers.

Hastings County is therefore to continue as a Restricted Area and will continue so until the finish of its second general re-test, when the standing will again be reviewed.

Until the 2nd general re-test of cattle is completed, and figures tabulated, it is impossible to state definitely that the county will be accredited, although according to the law of averages, it seems probable that it will be, for a period of three years if not six, depending on the number of reactors found.

Will Pick 'Cream' Of Student Crop

Ottawa, Dec. 14. (CP)— The Civil Service Commission announced today that for the fourth successive year recruiting teams are being sent to Canadian Universities to bid for part of the "cream of the university crop" for permanent and summer employment.

About 450 graduates are needed for permanent government posts and about 1,800 undergraduates for summer employment. In the graduate fields the Commission will draw on practically all faculties but most of the appointments will be to students with a professional or scientific background. As many as 175 appointments will be for civil engineers alone.

About 1,600 of the 1,800 temporary positions will go to students with professional or scientific backgrounds. Only 200 positions will call for a background in Arts or Commerce.

The Commission said there is no flat salary to attract graduates but most will enter the government service at around $200 or $225 a month. For undergraduate summer help the salaries are scaled from $110 to, $185 a month.

Farmer, Daughter Under Suspicion In Babies' Deaths

Campbell's Bay, Que., Dec. 14. (CP)—An elderly Allumette Island farmer and his 18-year-old daughter will appear in Magistrate's Court here next month for preliminary hearing on charges in connection with the deaths of two children.

Adonias Demers, 65, and his unmarried daughter, Rita, Tuesday were found mentally fit to stand trial. Police say that the girl, an attractive brunette, is the mother of the two children.

She was remanded Tuesday by Magistrate Roland Millar for preliminary hearing Jan. 11 on a charge of failing to make adequate provisions following the birth of a child two months ago.

The girl's father was remanded to the date for a preliminary hearing on a charge of concealing the birth of another child alleged to have been born two years ago.

No Bail for Daughter

Demers was released on $250 bail, but the court refused to grant bail to his daughter charged of eight Demers children.

An investigation was launched by police late last fall following a report from a parish priest at Allumette Island, 18 miles north-west of here and across the Ottawa River from Pembroke, Ont. The priest told police he had seen the girl two months ago, had seen her since, but that in the interim no newborn child had been christened, blessed or reported.

Police said they had found the body of the child born two months ago, buried near the Demers' farm home.

Police said the girl told them the child had been born at 9 a.m. in the morning and that at 3 p.m. the same day she had taken the baby out, dug a grave and buried the child.

Police said they still were searching for the body of the second child, alleged to have also been buried at the rear of the farmhouse.

New Military Jeep Runs in Water, Engine Submerged

Detroit, Dec. 14—(AP)—High United States army ordnance officials today displayed a new military jeep which Willys-Overland Motors said would run in water deep enough to submerge its engine completely.

The new jeep is an improved model of the military vehicle Willys-Overland produced in quantity for the army during the Second World War.

Delmar G. Roos, Willys-Overland vice, president, described the water-proof engine feature as the outstanding improvement.

Another feature of the new jeep is an arrangement whereby the engine, radiator, transmission and transfer case can be removed completely as a unit for hasty service and replacement in combat.

Roos explained that those parts can be lifted and replaced in the field "without even detaching the engine."

London Letter:

Canadians and Americans Show Most Enthusiasm When Visiting St. Paul's Cathedral in London

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London Dec. 14 (CP)— Of the 2,000-odd visitors who come to historic St. Paul's Cathedral every week, Canadians and Americans show the most enthusiasm.

Black-gowned vergers whose duty it is to answer thousands of good bad and indifferent questions say North American visitors reveal surprising knowledge of the cathedral's history and show the most willingness to "fag up and downstairs."

There are 400 stone steps climbing spirally through three revolutions from the cathedral floor to the triforium gallery where a number of historical exhibits now are on view. Tired, footsore tourists are sometimes known to baulk at the sight of these steps—but not so the North American variety.

"They are game for anything" one verger said. "They'd climb to the gold cross on top of the cathedral if you let them.

"What most Americans want to know is where the king and queen sit when they attend service at St. Paul's. They just love to hear anything about royalty and many of them tell you proudly they are of British descent.

Canadian Visitors

"Canadians on the other hand seem more interested in how the cathedral was built and its historical associations. Many give you the impression they've read up on the subject beforehand."

The visitor's reward for toiling up into the triforium gallery is a priceless collection of exhibits representing the first instalment of what is to become a permanent exhibition.

The oak-panelled library adjoining the gallery houses prints, drawings and engravings by Sir Christopher Wren, St. Paul's famous architect, and several conjectural representations of earlier cathedrals which occupied the same site.

"They are conjectural," an official said, "because we possess little evidence of these former churches—even of the last great church known as old St. Paul's.

Reformation Manuscripts

The library also contains a rich collection of manuscripts, mostly of the reformation period, recently acquired for St. Paul's from collector R. C. C. Fakrnarr of Cheshire.

Ultimately the exhibition will embrace the history of cathedral and its site from the end of the Roman occupation, through the Anglo-Saxon, Norman and medieval periods to the present time.

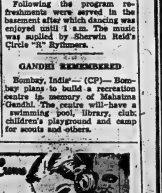
BONARLAW

Mrs. Bateman was the former Miss Iris Hannah of Marmora.

The address was read by Mrs. Joe Thompson and Rev. H. E. Bears acted as chairman. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bateman thanked the assembled guests and all said "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

A short program by local talent was given as follows: Community singing led by Frank Conboy with Mrs. George Williams at the piano, Song, "Here Comes Santa Claus" by Edmund Fleming and Sandra Mehlkeljohn duet by Shirley and Marilyn Bateman, recitation by Edmund Fleming, vocal duet by Marybelle Reid and Marilyn Bateman; Piano solo by Mary Elizabeth Mehlkeljohn and a vocal solo by J. F. Bateman accompanied by Mrs. George Williams.

The following made short addresses,— Thomas Hannah; Geo. E. Thompson, W. J. Barlow and Albert Mumby; Clinton Lough and Fred Bateman.



Following the program refreshments were served in the basement after which dancing was enjoyed until 1 a.m. The music was supplied by Sherwin Reid's Circle "R" Rythmers.

by Kate Aitken
Another Tamblyn Service

HOME MADE CANDY is one of the most acceptable and personal gifts you can give at Christmas. It's a personal gift that takes with it something of you, the giver.
CANDY RECIPE SHEETS are available in every Tamblyn store and are yours for the asking.
FAVORITE RECIPE IS THE ALMOND CREAM
2 cups brown sugar
1 tablespoon corn starch
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
¼ cup corn syrup
3 tablespoons butter
1/3 cup roasted almonds, finely chopped
1 teaspoon vanilla
Put sugar, corn starch, baking powder and salt into saucepan; mix thoroughly. Add milk, corn sy up and butter. Stir over low heat until dissolved; boil more rapidly to soft ball stage 1238 deg. F.). Remove from heat; let stand 3 minutes. Beat until smooth and thick; add nuts and flavoring. Blend; pour into oiled 6" x 6" pan. Cut in squares while still warm. Yield: 1 pound candy.
SALTED NUTS are easily made at home. Simply ½ pound almonds by covering the nuts with boiling water; let stand for 5 minutes; Place in cold water until the skins slip off easily. Dry the nuts and place in a bowl; add 1 tablespoon oil; toss lightly with a fork. Spread on a cookie sheet; sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt. Crisp in a slow oven (300 deg. F.); they should be stirred from time to time so that they may brown evenly. Yield: ½ pound nuts.
CHOCOLATE FUDGE is another Christmas treat. Mix together 2 cups white sugar, 2/3 cup rich milk, 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened grated chocolate, ¼ teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons corn syrup in a saucepan. Stir over low heat until the chocolate has melted, and the sugar is dissolved. Increase the heat; let the mixture boil until it reaches the soft ball stage (236 deg. F.). Stir just enough to prevent scorching. Remove from the heat; add 2 tablespoons butter. Let cool to lukewarm (110 deg. F.) without stirring. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla; beat until the candy has just lost its gloss and becomes thick enough to hold its shape. Pour immediately into an oiled pan; mark in squares before the candy is firm. Yield: 1 pound candy.

Catering to Tourists, Better Farm Management Help Irish Economy

By MICHAEL O'MARA

Dublin, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Sure, the news is all good these days.

For instance:

Tourists

The Republic of Ireland has completed the most successful tourist season in history.

The Republic of Ireland has completed the most successful tourist season in history.

Estimated revenue, computed by the Irish tourist board, was £ 33,000,000 ($102,300,000)—£3,000,000 better than in 1948. Much of the income came from dollar sources.

Here are three ways Irishmen are wooing North American tourists:

1. By making a good impression with courteous treatment at the customs barriers.

2. By adopting food to trans-Atlantic tastes.

3. By playing up Irish legends and drama festivals.

Trade returns for 1949's first nine months show a decrease of imports of £ 8,676,431 to £94,194,232 compared with the 1948 figure.

Work Begun on Renovating Home for Prime Minister

By KAY REX

Ottawa, Dec. 13—(CP) — The boarding is going up on 24 Sussex St., and pretty soon that grey stone mansion—the one to become the new residence of Canada's prime ministers—will be recased in. The structure is to get an $80,000 fix-up job.

Around with plaster, a gang of construction workers moved in on the house. Soon they will have 24 Sussex St. completely sheathed in with new planking, all three stories of it.

When it emerges from its wooden cocoon, this 83-year-old former residence of a Liberal senator and of a Conservative member of parliament, will have become a modern 17-room home for Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and his successors.

Already workmen have dismantled the two huge crystal chandeliers in the dining room. The hundreds of pieces of glass have been wrapped separately in newspaper and stand in crates, awaiting storage.

The great fixtures are reminiscent of the days when royalty visited in the luxurious old home.

Built in 1868 by Joseph Merrill Currier, Ottawa lumberman and Conservative member of parliament for the capital between 1872 and 1883, the house once was the scene of a great ball in honor of Prince Arthur of Connaught, who later as the Duke of Connaught was Canada's governor-general during the First World War.

Mr. Currier's grandson, Cyril Currier of Ottawa, says that on the occasion of the prince's visit in 1870, his grandfather added a ballroom to the building.

When Senator W. C. Edwards, a wealthy lumberman, bought the house at the turn of the century, he removed the ballroom and in its place built a long art gallery.

Now the gallery must go. It will be replaced by slope steps and a terrace overlooking the shrubbery covered banks of the Ottawa River, which are to be landscaped down to the water's edge.

A bulldozer already has cut a wide swathe in the ground to the right of the house where a hydro line for the new kitchen will be built, adjoining the dining room.

In the old kitchen, overlooking the river, there was ear-splitting noise today as workmen ripped out the cavernous wooden cupboards and partitions. This will become the living room, where the Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent will do their entertaining.

In blueprint language, the room will be "20 by 21 feet" or in other words a large living room.

The garage, which now sits to the left of the building, will be torn down, and the ground turned into a garden.

The new garage will be erected near a small grey stone house at the entrance to the spacious grounds, where the caretaker of 24 Sussex St. will live.

The new executive of the club was announced by S. H. Condor, of the nominating committee and the new president of this active group will be Carl House, succeeding Mr. C. E. Way. Other officers named were: Arnold Montgomery vice president; Mrs. Anne Way, secretary; Mrs. Regina Powell, treasurer; Mrs. Jean Reich, pianist; group leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Emerson; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hodgins and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Craig.

During the evening Mrs. Stanley Webb entertained the group with two interesting readings.

Alaska Trip

The highlight of the program was a talk by C. E. Way on his trip to Alaska this past summer. For over an hour he entertained the group, while he pictured the trip taken by himself and Mrs. Way over the Alaska Highway to within 36 miles of the Arctic circle.

He began his talk at the start of the highway at Dawson Creek, British Columbia, where a $3,000,000 bridge was built by the U.S. He noted that, although the Alaska Highway was supposed to have been built in four months, actually this was only a temporary road for carrying supplies to build the main traffic artery, and the permanent one was only completed just prior to the departure of the U.S. engineers.

The Alaska Highway was started at the northern and southern points as well as from the centre", said Mr. Way, 42 feet wide, all gravel, it winds through the Rocky Mountains, following streams and the long deep and narrow lakes. "The beauty is breathtaking" he noted, "and for 2000 miles we travelled through nothing but mountains." In fact, according to the traveller, the rugged mountain terrain didn't end until near Fairbanks, Alaska, which was now a busy town of 9,000 people.

River Boats

Mr. Way described in detail how the river boats piled up the Yukon River from Whitehorse to Dawson, which is pictured the trip taken by himself and Mrs. Way over the Alaska Highway to within 36 miles of the Arctic circle.

Moving pictures of this Alaska trip will be shown at a later meeting. The Harmony Club will sponsor the pageant at the evening service of St. John's United Church on Sunday, December 18th, which will be part of a Christmas program.

Sprawling City Partly Paralyzed As Strike Spreads

Government Shows Deep Concern Over Walkout

London, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Londoners carried the Scriptbis candle to work with them today in fear that the big electric power strike, now in its third day, would spread to "blackout" proportions.

Thousands of office and factory workers set out for the day's toil with candles tucked discreetly in briefcases or lunch packets.

Some of their homes had already been plunged into darkness.

They had been warned that the strike of nearly 2,000 men at four power stations in the London area — including Europe's biggest at Hawthorn on the east outskirts of the city — might soon lead to:

The biggest "blackout" in the sprawling city of 2,300,000 since the disastrous fuel-economy measures in the winter of 1946-47;

Industries being brought to a standstill during power cut periods;

Electric fires, cookers, immersion heaters and lights in hundreds of thousands of homes being turned off.

The government showed deep concern over the strike which began Monday with an unauthorized walkout of 400 workers at the Barnsbury station in North London and spread to four powerhouses.

A special cabinet committee made up of Home Secretary James Chuter Ede, Labor Minister George Isaacs and Fuel Minister Hugh Gaitskell, has been ordered into daily emergency sessions.

Strike leaders and shop stewards in power stations all over the city were meeting today to decide whether to join the strike to "protest against government orders sending service men into the struck powerhouses.

Question of Distribution

The strike arose over the question of distributing a 1½d-an-hour (about two cents) basic pay raise for the country's 80,000 power station workers.

In some stations, where working conditions were hot and dirty, workers have been receiving a 7½-per-cent bonus.

The government decided to top off the wage increase from this bonus on the ground that conditions had been bettered.

The base pay for power house workers is 3s-3d. (51.2 cents) an hour, or — seven pounds, three shoulds ($28.17) for the regular 44-hour week.

The effects of the walkout quickly began to be felt by Londoners.

Factories were crippled.

Some sections were blacked out as street lights failed.

Transportation was snarled. Traffic lights were dead in a large area of south London. Some subway and trolley buses were idled.

Emergency plants were clicked on in some hospitals.

Trade Union leaders and members of the Electricity Authority issued a joint statement appealing to the strikers to return to work. The statement said the workers' action is unconstitutional and violates their working agreement.

Renew Efforts to Have Christmas Trees Loaded Lengthwise

Toronto, Dec. 14 — (CP)—An injury to Mrs. E. C. Kuhl Tuesday night made Toronto Transportation Commission officials renew efforts to have Christmas trees loaded lengthwise on trucks instead of sideways. Mrs. Kuhl was a passenger on a tram which had stopped to allow the operator to change to another car. A truck loaded with Christmas trees put past and one of the trees, loaded sideways, shattered a window, cutting Mrs. Kuhl's face.

100 Army Huts 'Lifted' From Camp At Farnham, Que.

'Drastic' Action is Promised Against Anyone Implicated

Montreal, Dec. 14 — (CP)—A Quebec army command official has promised "drastic" action against any persons implicated in the theft of 100-odd huts, along with plumbing and electrical fixtures, from the large army camp at Farnham in eastern townships.

News of the thefts, held under a security blanket for several weeks was announced Tuesday by Maj.-Gen. R. O. G. Morton, general officer commanding, Quebec command.

An army spokesman said the wooden structures were lifted intact from their beam foundations by a heavy tracked vehicle and sold for prices ranging from $25 to $50 to farmers and other residents in the eastern townships area. He said the "get-rich-quick" scheme has probably netted $50,000 or more.

21 Huts Located

So far, 21 of the stolen kitchen and latrine huts have been located by a telling him: "You just go near the camp and look at the huts. . . I will take your phone number and name and you will hear from me when the sale is coming off."

The huts, spread over recent months, included window frames, electric wire, plumbing fixtures, radiators and even kitchen cutlery.

The camp is under the care of two civilians, employed under the civil service of the National Defence Department.

Meanwhile, the Gazette said in a dispatch from Farnham that its reporter, Karl Gerhard, had visited the army camp shortly before the army and the R.C.M.P. swooped down.

Gerhard said he had heard rumors in Montreal that "war surplus material" could be bought at the camp. A man he identified only as "a caretaker" had confirmed these rumors.

The reporter quoted the "caretaker" as telling him: "You just go near the camp and look at the huts. . . I will take your phone number and name and you will hear from me when the sale is coming off."

WINDOW LIGHTING RESTRICTIONS
TEMPORARILY SUSPENDED DURING SPECIFIED PERIODS

Commencing tomorrow (December 15, 1949) and effective until midnight, December 24th, store window lighting restrictions are suspended between the hours of 7:00 p.m. and 12:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, and all day Saturday, December 17th, and Saturday, December 24th.

This temporary suspension of the restrictions on store window lighting during the Christmas shopping period is possible because of arrangements made to divert additional water through the Welland Canal at the close of navigation. This permits increased output at DeCew Falls.

It is essential, however, that all consumers continue to save electricity whenever and wherever possible. This is particularly important during the heavy load periods from 10:00 a.m. to 12 noon and from 4:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.

SHANNONVILLE

Rev. L.W. Scott Gives Fine Message At White Gift Service

Shannonville—The service in the United Church on Sunday evening took the form of a white gift service. These gifts will be used for the "Good Cheer" baskets distributed at the Christmas season to the aged and shut-ins of the church.

Two solibbly decorated baskets were placed at the back of the church and were filled to overflowing by the generous contributions of the congregation.

The pastor, the Rev. L. W. Scott, chose his scripture lesson from St. Luke 2, and text from 10th verse, "Let us go even unto Bethlehem"

The junior choir was in attendance and sang a beautiful voluntary "Long Ago There Was Born."

Mr. Scott prefaced his sermon by stating: "Many roads lead to Bethlehem. Joseph and Mary travelled a long, busy way, the rough rocky road from Nazareth in the north to Bethlehem, near Jerusalem, in the south, where the Saviour was born.

"Mary and Joseph were ordinary peasant folk. The wife riding the donkey, which was the means of travel in those days. The inns were all filled and these people had to go to a stable, where Jesus was born, continued the speaker.

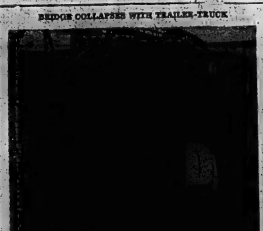
The Workers

"The people came from far and near to see Jesus. The shepherds led by the Heavenly Host singing, was the only way God could get in touch with these, un-educated, uncouth people. They knew nothing of the prophecy, and only these shepherds heard the heavenly singing in this whole valley. They represented the workers, so why shouldn't they have the privilege of seeing Jesus? asked the pastor. Jesus became a worker, and was always very anxious to associate Himself with the labouring class.

Anna was a faithful worker in the temple and through her faithfulness entered Jesus' presence. Simeon was an elderly man, and had been promised that he would live to see the Glory of the Lord. In faith he lived to see the day when the prophecy was fulfilled, seeing Jesus in the temple when He was eight days old.

The Thinkers

"The Wisemen followed the Star. They were the thinkers, and astronomers of the age. There was a religious devotion as they left Herod and followed the star studied the stars. They held the star to Bethlehem. Herod had requested them to look for this new king, but they returned home another way. They found Jesus in a humble cottage, with no royal robe, sceptre or crown. They presented the baby with gold, frankincense and myrrh, stated Mr. Scott.



Therefore, their learning the Wisemen found Jesus. Jesus was a great teacher and thinker and when He was twelve He stood among the doctors and lawyers in the temple, asking questions, continued the pastor.

Christ Calls By Different Means

Mr. Scott continued his sermon with the thought that "Christ does not always call over the same road. He speaks to different by the still small voice; by emotions of people in different ways, tions, and some are trained from early childhood. That it doesn't make any difference which road we travel as long as we arrive to accept Jesus as the King of Kings. Simeon was ready to die then. Christ is the answer to all man's questions. To find Him is to complete life. Herod did not find Jesus, as he went the wrong road, as so many people travel, who go with the wrong motive. We must travel the road of love, life and faith to find Jesus."

At the close of the service, the candles were lit at the worship centre by Misses Beatrice Usna, and D. Carter. Misses Marina Martin and Myrtle Usna, transported the baskets of white gifts to the front where they were dedicated by the pastor. Appropriate music was provided for this impressive ceremony by the church organist, Mrs. Harry Sine.

THE HILLMAN MINX IS HERE TO STAY!

"Strongest coast-to-coast dealer organization of any British car" says prominent west-coast distributor.

An unquestioned authority in the motor business, Mr. Ernie McDermot, of McDermot Motors, Vancouver, B.C., has been selling cars for 29 years. He writes:

"In my opinion, the most important reason for the Hillman's popularity is because the public knows that Rootes Motors is permanently established in Canada, with the strongest coast-to-coast dealer organization of any British car group. Buyers are assured of Hillman parts and service anywhere in Canada—now and in the years to come."

"Yes, the Hillman Minx is here to stay! And, when you also consider the fact that it offers a combination of styling, comfort, dependability and economy which no other car—large or small—can match, it's not hard to see why more and more car owners are turning to Minx ownership as in the same period last year!"

Teen-Age Driver Education No. 1 Remedy For Appalling Toll of U.S. Car Accidents

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

Washington Dec. 14 — (AP)— Safety experts rate "teen-age driver education as the No. 1 remedy for the appalling toll of auto accidents in the United States—now 23,000 persons killed and 1,300,000 injured annually.

Norman Damon, vice-president of the Automotive Safety Foundation, regards the high school driver training program as "the most important single hope for better driver performance".

Damon says "there has been more post-war progress in school driver-training than in any other field of traffic accident prevention."

Lou E. Holland, president of the American Automobile Association, says "extension of driver training to every high school in America would go far toward solving the automobile safety problem."

Holland cites a survey in Delaware showing that untrained drivers were involved in about five times as many accidents as school-trained drivers.

600,000 Participate

Some 600,000 students in 8,000 public and private schools participated in 1948-49 school years reports to the National Education Association Show.

Driver instruction started in the public schools in the early 1930s and has been expanding steadily. However, it reaches only about 10 to 15 per cent of the boys and girls of an age for such training.

Systematic instruction of young people is rated the most promising attack on the auto accident problem for two reasons:

1. The large percentage of young drivers who are involved in fatal accidents.

2. Education of the annual crop of would-be auto operators provides widespread increase in accident avoidance in the years to come.

Antique Furniture Sells Briskly In Antique Shops

London, Dec. 14 — (CP)—Antique furniture, unburdened from Britain's ancestral homes, is selling briskly in thousands of auction rooms and antique shops.

Devaluation of the pound has given the market a strong stimulus. Dollar buying has increased appreciably, and antique dealers are looking forward to a profitable 1950 tourist season.

Apart from foreign demand, Britons with surplus cash have gone in for a small amount of "investment" buying of antique furnishings, as a hedge against inflation.

Dealers estimate prices have shown an over-all rise of about five per cent in recent months.

Besides furniture, demand has been strong for old silver, plate, porcelain and antique jewelry, with prices going up as much as 20 per cent since devaluation

Bank Head Views Immediate Future With Confidence

Toronto, Dec. 14—The year just closing has been a good one for Canada, Stanley M. Wedd, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, said at Tues., annual meeting.

"Insofar as the immediate future is concerned, I think it is safe to conjecture that the coming year will bring satisfactory results in the aggregate.

"It is true that competition is becoming increasingly vigorous both at home and from outside our borders, but there is great enterprise in the Canadian people and, given a reasonably stable world, there is no basis for pessimism..."

Strong Position

In his presentation of the bank's 1949 annual statement, Mr. James Stewart, the general manager, referring to the bank's strong position, said that the assets had now reached a new record of $1,846 million. Deposits had increased $122 million, and significantly this increase included $38 million of personal savings—a striking example of the thrift and economy of the Canadian people.

Britain's Protestant Ministers Want Restrictions on Gambling

London, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Britain's protestant churches called on the government Tues. to place drastic restrictions on all forms of gambling.

But the Anglican Bishop of London admitted churches do some gambling themselves.

Their views were presented to a royal commission on betting, gaming and lotteries, set up to consider whether the gambling laws should be tightened.

They said football pools should be prohibited, horse and dog racing run for sport alone, and gambling on the stock market eliminated entirely.

"The church does not come before the commission completely with clean hands," Bishop J. W. C. Wand, told the commission.

"But it is the state's job something to be sorry for we realize that we have that same necessity for penitence ourselves."

Many British churches conduct what drives, chances for prizes at charity bazaars and similar games of chance to raise church funds.

Roman Catholic views will be presented separately later.

The Protestant memorandum said if horse race betting can't be eliminated every effort should be made to limit betting to that which takes place at the track.

"No moral distinction can be drawn between gambling on racing and gambling on stocks and commercial holdings," the memorandum said. The churches said a distinction could be made, however, between constructive speculation and gambling speculation and added: "So far as is humanly possible the gambling transactions of the stock exchange should be restricted and, if possible, eliminated."

"The permanent committee on gambling of the Church of England has reported that the British public spent about £650,000,000 on gambling in 1948.

The figures covered horse and dog racing, football pools and the Irish Sweepstakes.

$403 in Bogus Bills Seized at Sudbury, Three Men Held

Sudbury, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Swooping down on a Sudbury hotel room Sunday, city police arrested three Sudbury men on charges of having in their possession counterfeit Canadian $10 bills and seized some $400 worth of bogus bills.

Later police arrested a fourth man, also with a quantity of counterfeit money in his possession. A 36-year-old woman was arrested on a vagrancy charge when found with the three men in the hotel room.

All five appeared in Sudbury court Monday and were remanded in custody to Dec. 19.

Facing charges of having counterfeit $10 bills in their possession are: Russell Godin, 24, who police said was recently released after serving a prison term on a narcotics charge; Labo Conio, 39; Jim Lawson, 30, and Kenneth Merrill, 25, all of Sudbury.

Police believe the men were arrested before they had a chance to distribute more than a small portion of the counterfeit bills. It is believed $30 or $40 worth were passed in the city by the gang over the weekend.

N.Z. Government Pledged to Private Enterprise Policy

By J. C. GRAHAM

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z., Dec. 14—(CP) —Sidney Holland, sworn in Tuesday as Prime Minister of New Zealand, pledged his Nationalist government to a policy of private enterprise with no more Socialism or Nationalization.

The leader of the National (Conservative) Party which ousted the Labor Party in the Nov. 30 general election after 14 years of Socialist rule, said "there is not going to be any more Socialism in New Zealand."

"The peg went in this afternoon. That isn't to say the government will never buy anything but there will not be any more Nationalization."

Holland's cabinet was also sworn in at the ceremonies presided over by Governor-General Sir Bernard Freyberg.

Peter Fraser, retiring Prime Minister, declined Holland's invitation to be a member of the New Zealand delegation to the Commonwealth conference at Colombo, Ceylon, in February. Fraser said his new duties as leader of the opposition would not permit him to attend but he would assist the delegation before it left for the Colombo conference to discuss the threat of Communism in the Far East.

Reds Charge U.S. $7,000 to Move Ward's Party

Aboard Lakeland Victory, Taku Bar, China, Dec. 14 — (AP)— Chinese Reds charged the United States Government $7,000 to move ousted Consul-General Angus Ward's party and baggage from Mukden to Tientsin.

Ward told the story Tuesday. The Reds required that he post $12,000 to guarantee expenses. They refunded $5,000.

It's about 900 miles from Mukden to Tientsin. The party of 20 had 10 carloads of freight. (Presumably these were typical Manchurian cars — which hold about 1-3 as much freight as U.S. cars).

The party had only third-class accommodations — wooden benches in unheated cars.

Ward also said he was charged four times the official rate for food for his party. He was permitted to buy only from an officially designated vendor, who called regularly . . . accompanied by an armed guard.

Other vendors publicly sold the same food for one-fourth as much.

Nuclear Energy Available In Five to 10 Years

Montreal, Dec. 14 (CP)—Dr. David Keys, vice-president of the National Research Council in charge of the atomic energy project at Chalk River, Ont., said Monday night it is highly possible that useful power from nuclear energy will be available in five to 10 years." The use of nuclear energy as fuel, however, would not be as economical as either oil or coal.

Speaking at the Faculty Club of McGill University, Dr. Keys said an improvement in the present method for the production of atomic energy is required.

"But I am quite sure it will be done," he added.

When the process has been perfected, he said, it will be possible to operate ships on a few pounds of uranium fission products a year.

From one pound of uranium completely disintegrated by atomic fission it is theoretically possible to get 11,400,000,000 kilowatt hours per pound of energy, he said.

Ordinary coal gives only 3.9 kilowatt hours a pound.

Young Weatherman Owes Life To Faulty Oxygen Mask

Trenton, Dec. 14 — (Special)— Weatherman Bob Verge had a date with death on his 30th birthday last Sunday. A faulty oxygen mask, however, stopped him from making the fateful flight in which four members of the R.C.A.F. Station at Trenton were killed.

A court of enquiry ocened at the air station here Monday night probing into the cause of the tragedy which took the lives of Sqdn. Ldr. Denis C. L. Webber, R.A.F. veteran, FO Leo Vincent Perdu, 23, of Ottawa, and F/O A. C. Allan V. McIntosh, 29, Dunvegan, Ont., and L.A.C. William G. Nesson, 24, of Wetaskiwin, Alta.

Verge, who is with the Department of Transport, was going up as the fifth man of a team taking part in an international weather survey of importance. He had dressed for the trip and was standing on the tarmac awaiting orders to board the big Mitchell bomber that was to carry him and the others into the sub-stratosphere for the tests. "I don't like to think of what happened after that," the young "met" man said relating his story to a reporter.

Left Behind

A routine check disclosed that Verge's oxygen mask was not suitable for the high altitude operation and he was left behind.

Minutes later the big bomber roared away from the airport and soared southward across the Bay of Quinte while the disappointed weatherman returned to the meteorological office, unsatisfied to get a report of the flight from the crew instead of making it himself. It was Verge's first opportunity to make a weather observation from an aircraft although he had been a weatherman for some years. A high blood pressure ailment kept him grounded until recently.

"I was on my way to the mess," Verge said, "when two of my friends, Paul Kowal of Winnipeg and Malcolm MacLeod of Chilliwack, B.C., ran up and began shaking my hands all over the place." "We're so happy to see you." Kowal cried while MacLeod grinned to across the bay where a column of black smoke was rising from the place where the weather aircraft had crashed.

Mixed Feelings

"Those two guys were the best sight of my life", said Verge relating his reactions as he looked at the area where the wreckage was burning. "I wanted to feel happy that I was alive and at the same time I thought of the sorrow the news of the disaster would bring to the families and friends of the men who went down with the ship."

Verge hurried to the scene of the tragedy and found the searchers were looking for him. The rescuers had information that Verge went out on the flight. The searchers were relieved to know that they could abandon the hunt Verge said when he told them that he was Verge the fifth man they were looking for.

Back at the station Verge did not celebrate his birthday, instead he wrote a letter to Calgary to his bride of seven months telling her of his brush with death and how thankful he was to be alive and able to see her again. He had not mentioned any plans of his trip to her in earlier mail.

Not Superstitious

The slight bespectacled weatherman does not believe that 13 is unlucky and will walk under a ladder if necessary, but the events leading up to the incident that kept him off the ill-fated plane Sunday morning have him wondering if fate played a hand in saving his life.

Bill Nesom, the weather observer with whom he was flying, was a special friend of his. Verge admitted asking the newsman if it would be possible for him to express through the columns his sympathy to the next of kin of the men who died.

Verge's wife and parents all reside in Calgary.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Educationists throughout the province, some of them in this city, in efforts to clamp down on organized hockey, had their wings clipped, so to speak, the other day and by none other than the Canadian Education Association. The CEA's survey revealed that the problem was almost nil and that few players had lost their chance for education to make money playing hockey.

* * *

According to a Hockey News story, the Education Association's survey showed that only one student out of every 5,622 in the province of Ontario gave up school to join the professional ranks of hockey. The study was made in most of the larger cities in Canada. The records of nearly 125,000 students were studied.

* * *

In Ontario, out of the 125,000 students under study, only 32 were affected in any way by junior "A" hockey. Of these only 22 left the classroom to play hockey full time. It is thought that most of these 22 boys would have left school anyway even if it was not to play hockey.

* * *

The report from the Canadian Education Association however, showed there were some grounds for dissatisfaction concerning the participation of high school students in the professional hockey, but it has not reached the proportions of a national problem. Said one hockey player who left the cloistered halls for the roaring ice lanes: "I am now earning enough money so that I can go to college next year. I'm having enough money so that I can go to college next year. I'm having enough money so that I can go to college next year. I'm never have been able to if I hadn't taken this year out to play hockey and earn enough money."

* * *

The question along the main item of hockey-dom here is varsity money with the Diesels' chief hopes for a senior "B" championship won their first two starts and then went down to defeat in the next pair of games by scores that were lopsided. The Peterborough Legion took them into camp by a 12-4 count and Monday night the Petes avenged that 6-0 setback on the hockey rave there by plastering a 9-3 defeat on the Men from the Maire. Just what the reason is for these sudden slumps is not known, by this corner anyway, but one of the Petes and Legion haven't improved that much over a period of a week. Perhaps the Diesels' defeats are having a salutary effect on their respective guilties as to what will District League and OHA. They played last night in their different sections and on Saturday night at Peterborough on Friday they gallivant to Gananoque where they take on the dangerous Legionaires of Don Carmichael's ballyhoo.

* * *

This season the Ontario Minor Hockey Association will divide the "A" series into two sections, Major and Minor, according to a bulletin from secretary Jack Corbett. The section will be for teams from cities which operate a minor section will be for teams from cities which operate a city league, and must be championship teams with no strengthening. All teams in such leagues will enter the OMHA and sign special OMHA certificates. Teams in the, major series will be accepted under the same conditions as have prevailed the "A" series in the past, that is, all-star teams. The winners of the two sections will play off for the "A" series championship.

All teams in the "A" series and "B" series, are reminded of the change in regulations passed at the annual convention. Players in these series may now play only for one team only, and cannot any longer be members of teams in more than one series.

The schedule for the Rockets Juniors has been released by Secretary Dick Beare of the Belleville Hockey Association. The program opens here on Monday next against the Peterborough Triple-Links, a right snug team of puckists we are told and on the following, Wednesday they go afield to Lindsay. Then no more hockey for them until December 20th when they entertain the Kingston representatives which, me hearties, are some punkins in junior circles after conceding only their strength in one squad. The Rocks are considering their chances in the OHA group as far to be offered to the hockey populace since this corner started pounding a sports mill.

Dan Cowley's rocketing Rockets with jet-like bursts of speed and excellent offensive and defensive record to a deserved 4-3 victory over a short-handed CNR Diesels team in the District League semifinals last night. Cowley's Cubs playing the best game of the season, came from behind after grabbing a one-goal lead and racked up two third period goals to push the verdict by the odd goal in seven. The youngsters skated like fiends all night, and a large crowd, judging from the noise went home well satisfied with the brand of hockey dished up. It was a torrid fight after a somewhat listless shinnied start that ended in a whistling, rampaging third period. Rockets' played like an inspired team and bottled every inch of the way. Diesels were without Tim Whitman, down with the flu, and two players. They took only a dozen men. But after feeling the Rockets' sting in the second and third bouts, they, too, battled desperately in an effort to pull victory out of defeat. What a battle these teams should stage on Thursday night when they meet in their second clash.

What appeared to be another slam-bang clash in the making turned out to be a near-rout in the game between Northern Electric and the Trenton Flyers. The first period saw both teams in hammer-and-tong action and the only goal scored came with but seconds to go. But the second and third heats were entirely different, Northern, playing inspired hockey behind the flashing offensives of Jackie Warthaugh, the best man on the ice, Don Barrett, Cousins, Semark and the rest, with Williamson, Ken Murphy thrusting back Flyer attacks repeatedly on the defence relied through a disorganized Flyer team to score three in the second period and a half dozen in the third. Flyers can play better hockey than they dished up last night, and they'll be desperate for victory come Thursday evening.

Rockets Roar to 4-3 Victory Over Diesels While Northern Electric Downs Flyers 10-2

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

A victory-hungry, rampaging crew of Rockets Juniors, playing the best game of the current season roared through to a sensational victory in their bracket of the Belleville District League semi-finals in Memorial Arena last night when they edged the favored CNR Diesels by a 4-3 score to win the first leg of the two-of-three series.

In the other half of the twin bill Northern Electric, after a slow, hard-fought first period grounded the Trenton Flyers by a decisive 10-2 count. The teams meet in the second games of the series on Thursday night.

Northern Electric 10
Trenton Flyers 2

Taking advantage of a sudden-ly disorganized Flyer team Electrics with offensive and defensive tactics clicking near perfectly rammed home three goals in the second period after grabbing a 1-0 lead in the first heat, and went on to fire home six counters in the third period to win going away. Flyers got both their goals in the third after Electrics had the game safely salted away.

A large crowd thrilled to the fast pace and speeding assaults in the opening chukker and the game had all the earmarks of being one of those things that "breaks" settle, It was fast rugged hockey with ten penalties being handed out before the men coming in the third period.

Seemed to Will

In the second period the fast-skating Flyers seemed to will before the consistent onslaughts of the shinnies who skated mile going both ways. They faded in the third as Northern, their attacks unrelenting, poured goals ward on one, two and three-man attacks, and only the fine work of Keyes in the Flyer nets especially in the first period kept the count to what it was.

Cousins sparked the winners attack with three goals and an assist. Mulvihill got a pair and a helper. Wardhaugh, the best player on the ice, grabbed a goal and two assists with Whitman, Barrett, Semark and Murphy getting the other tallies.

Play was fast and exciting in the first period and the only goal came with but seconds to go when Cousins hit the corn from a difficult left-wing angle. Whitman made it two from a scramble in the second heat and Mulvihill with Northern a man short grabbed a picture goal high in the net from the left wing. Barrett raced to the goal-mouth and took Williamson's pass to give Northern a four-goal lead.

Play Ragged

Play became more rugged in the third period and Craigford of Northern and Miller got jagged for tripping. Shortly after major-jors. Jones and Mulvihill were in the sin bin early in the period when Cousins started a face-off puck and drilled it into the net. Flyers came back with a neat passing play with "Pop" Lawlor cutting the cords for Flyers first goal.

Electrics surged to the attack but a disorganized Flyer squad tried to hold them in check. Five goals rattled the twine in nine minutes for the planters and a desperate Air Force team scored their second goal when Lawlor fed Gobell a neat pass.

Wardhaugh, Barrett and Semark formed the best line on the ice. Mulvihill and Cousins sparkled with Williamson and Murphy turning in fine efforts on the defence. "Pop" Lawlor, Gobell, Zaleski, Gagnon and Miller looked the best for Flyers with Keys doing a sensational job in the nets. Plumley at the other end also turned in a fine performance.

Rocket Juniors 4, C.N.R. Diesels 3

Dan Cowley's husky crew of beardless puckists pulled the hockey rabbit from the bag in their tilt with Diesels, and playing by far the best game of the season, snatched the favored C.N.R. crew stride for stride and check all through a game that was packed with thrills after a shinny-threatened start. They were down a goal after two minutes of play in the first period but raced back with goals from Fletsch and Art Wright to take a 2-1 period lead.

Joe Nolan tied the count at the seven-minute mark of the second heat and Wardhaugh put Diesels in the lead from Day's pass a minute later.

Rockets took over in the third period and had the better part of the play in desperate efforts to tie the count. Don Hogan had the situation all-even after a minute of play, when he raced in to take Mulholland's pass to beat LeFort. Fans were on their feet in both ends to urge on and direct the ice with the checking getting harder. Diesels flashed to the attack midway through the period and gave Tripp in the Rockets goal some anxious moments. The kid duo of Gilmour and Brown fired home simultaneously to be the winning goal after six minutes of play with the former doing the honors.

Play became faster with players scrambling all over the ice in desperate efforts to change the situation. Fights broke out and Diesel attacks and at the other end Hogan and Fletsch were through alone only to be beaten by LeFort. It was the most exciting period seen in the arena this season. With 20 seconds to go Diesels pulled LeFort out of his nets, and sent six forwards on the attack, but Rockets held the fort and skated off with the victory.

Suffers Hip Bruise

George Graham suffered a painful hip bruise in the second period and Rockets were without his services for the balance of the game. While out there he was a bulwark of strength for the youngsters. Hogan, Fletsch, Bone, and Wright starred on the attack-ers with Trumble and Turland going well on defence.

Vern Goyer was again a tower of strength for the Diesels while brother Lee also added a good job except for the fact he drew a minor and misconduct penalty. Woodman skated miles in a fine effort as did "Knobber" Day. Doug Batstone and Gerry Moore. Tommy Schrieder was very effective on the defence.

Browns-Athletics Trade Involving $100,000 and Six Players Wakes up Meeting

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Dec. 14 — (AP) — The drowsy winter baseball meetings were slow waking up but when the shot came it was a corker—a deal between St. Louis Browns and Philadelphia Athletics involving $100,000 and six players.

Connie Mack's peasant-anxious Athletics shelled out the $100,000 plus four players to the Browns to get one of the American league's top infielders, third baseman Bob Dillinger, and a good outfielder, Paul Lehner.

The $100,000 was the welcome part of the deal for the Browns, whose president, Bill Dewitt, said: "I can't make any money at the gate. I've got to make it selling my best players."

But the Browns also receive veteran third baseman Frank Gustine and three rookies—shortstop Billy Demars and outfielders Ray Coleman and Rocco Ippolitto.

The deal, which busted the trading log-jam wide open, was closed shortly before midnight by Dewitt and Earle Mack, Connie's son and coach, who got together at Commissioner A. B. Chandler's dinner for baseball moguls at a midtown night club.

Two other transactions earlier in the day involving the Boston Braves, Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs, were tossed into subordinate category by this fancy American League swap.

Braves Sell Two

The Braves disposed of two players, sending pitcher Bill Voiselle to the Cubs for infielder Gene Mauch and cash and handing over outfielder Marv Rickert to the pirates for "more than $10,000" plus a minor leaguer to be named later.

This revived talk that manager Billy Southworth planned some sort of housecleaning with his stagnating Braves despite Billy's own insistence he holds no grudges and there will be no "head chopping."

Dillinger, 31-year-old veteran, batted .324 last season and stole 20 bases to lead the league in that department. Lehner is a fleet, 29-year-old flychaser with a stout arm.

In a secret meeting Tuesday the National League decided to uphold the minor leagues who voted to retain the bonus rule. The American league, which has abolished it, voted to repeal the controversial rule. It was understood that Chandler, who does not like the rule, will appoint a committee to study the matter further. The minors may be asked to vote again via a mail ballot.

N.H.L. Wings Into Heavy Grind Through Holiday

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Christmas and New Year's do not spell "Holiday" for the coaches and players of the National Hockey League.

They start tonight on the toughest section of the long schedule with 27 games scheduled up to and including Sunday night, Jan. 1. The Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens each have 10 games over the 18-day stretch. New York Rangers and Boston Bruins have nine, while Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks have eight.

The injury list which hangs over most clubs, particularly Maple Leafs and Canadiens, was scanned with new intensity as coaches prepared for the year-end grind. All clubs are in action tonight with Canadiens at Leafs, Rangers at Hawks and Wings at Bruins. The Leafs and Canadiens go right back at each other again tomorrow night in Montreal.

George Gardiner, the Junior Toronto Marlboros will centre one Leaf line against Canadiens tonight. Decision to give Armstrong his second out of three big league starts was made after scouts at Toronto showed Ray Timgrim, used as centre for the last few games, had a bone chip in his left hand. The club's first-string centre, Cal Gardiner, is still out with injuries and only slippery Max Bentley is fit of Toronto top forward pivots.

The other Toronto centre, Captain Ted Kennedy, has been out of action for weeks but is expected back shortly.

The Canadiens are nearly as hard hit. Coach Dick Irvin said his didn't find a combination that he'd have on the ice tonight. Defencemen Glen Harmon and Ken Reardon are very doubtful starters, and Rocket Richard Warwick isn't expected to skate.

Reardon suffered facial injuries at Chicago Sunday and may have a broken nose. Harmon hurt his knee a week ago, and Warwick is recovering from an operation on a broken nose.

The Rangers have left-winger Pentti Lund on the injured roll. When the team took off for tonight's game at Chicago Lund was left behind with an abdominal injury.

By DOUG GREEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Dec. 14—(CP)—One of the tribulations of a hockey referee has come in for some attention from Scotty (Regina Leader-Post) Meville.

Meville says one of the athletes attending a round-table discussion of referees from Saskatchewan's south country brought up the point. It concerns blasts against refereeing from coaches of teams.

"This whistle tooter," Meville confesses that some of these gents paid so much that refereeing is a way of life. They're in the game because they like it. However, he said it was pretty disheartening after a nice, fair game after some of the coaches weren't fit to coach anything.

"He was told that his remarks would be printed but that his whistle job probably would be in jeopardy. His answer: "Why doesn't that apply to the whole tool" Has a Point

Scotty concludes that the man has something. He feels a writer within bounds in quoting anyone. But he thinks the fault lies with the coaches, and that any criticism of referees should be directed to league officials, not to the press.

"By and large," says Meville, "referees are honest men doing an honest job. Like all humans, they make mistakes. Coaches make mistakes and so do players, but a referee wouldn't last long if he criticized players and coaches for public consumption. . ."

Club Needed?

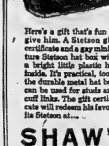
With the dismissal of Nick Metz, former National Hockey League great, as coach of Saskatoon Quakers of the Western Canada Senior League, Cam (Saskatoon Star-Phoenix) McKenzie is moved to say that his successor, Riley Mather, another United States football import, left for his home in California immediately after the Grey Cup final in Toronto. The remaining two imports on the Stamps—Keith Spaith and John Aguirre—now make their home in Calgary.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Billy Evans, the Detroit general manager, was sounding off just after the American league had refused at league meeting to give "something has to be done for the pitchers," Billy argued. "We all want them—no club has enough good pitchers. But in the last 3 years nothing has been done to give the pitchers a break. Everything has helped out the batters—they outlawed freak pitches; they threw out a new ball every few minutes and now they've narrowed the strike zone—when I was umpiring, I'd give the pitcher a new ball any time he'd ask for it, but not when the batter wanted one. The batters would demand a new ball on every pitch if you'd let them."

Hot Stove Stuff



Eddie Dyer of St. Louis Cardinals won't confirm the report that the Reds offered him Blackwell in a deal, but he comments: "This would be a poor time to try and trade him; he hasn't pitched nine full innings since that kidney operation" . . . Minnie Bush, the Indianapolis veteran, probably is the most tireless lobby-pounder in town—a scout who doesn't want his name mentioned, says he'd like to pitch a day to Sam Jethroe, Boston high-priced rookie brought up from Montreal.

"If you pitch with control and confidence, you can get him out, but I'll be surprised if he hits more than .250," the guy says. "But if he gets on base, he'll kill you with that speed."

Louis Resumes 'For Fun' Tour In Home Town

Detroit, Dec. 14 (AP)—Retired heavyweight champion Joe Louis resumes his "for fun" exhibition program before a home town crowd tonight.

And the expected 12,000 house at Olympia stadium is likely to be more than casually observant.

Joe's two bouts tonight, of five rounds each against two opponents, will wrap up his eighth-round knockout victory over Pat Valentino in Chicago a week ago.

Louis's previously scheduled co-participant tonight, Lee Oma refused to go on. Oma's manager, Tex Sullivan, charged that Louis on the basis of the Valentino bout, was making serious business of his exhibition. Joe denies it.

Tonight Louis goes five rounds with Rocco Tolio, Detroit veteran, and another five with Johnny Flynn of Rochester, N.Y. His bout with Oma was to have been for 10 rounds.

Barnett Stops Knockout String Of Earl Walls

(By The Canadian Press)

With a sensational last-round rally, Lloyd Barnett, 181, of Kingston, Jamics, stopped the knockout string of Earl Walls, 188½, of Toronto by earning a decision in the eighth-round bout before packed Albert Hall at London, Eng., Tuesday night.

Walls, who had previously scored four straight knockouts in his fights in Britain, had the Jamaican on the floor four times in the first three rounds, but Barnett weathered the storm to prove superior in stamina.

The positions were reversed in the last stanza when Barnett, with a hurricane series of rights to the head, dropped Walls twice.

Referee Jack Hart lifted Barnett's hand as both boys stood groggily at the bell.

Calgary Stampeders now towering Negro ends—Dooley Sizede and Ezzrett (Sugarfoot) Anderson—said Tuesday "we'll both be back next year."

Sugarfoot left Calgary Tuesday by plane for Los Angeles but Sizede stayed behind for treatment of a shoulder injury. He is expected to leave for Los Angeles in a couple of weeks.

Riley Matheson, another United States football import, left for his home in California immediately after the Grey Cup final in Toronto. The remaining two imports on the Stamps—Keith Spaith and John Aguirre—now make their home in Calgary.

At least one member of last year's Hamilton Tigers, Ontario rugby football champions, has received an offer to play in the Big Four next season. Allie Crooker, quarterback with the Bengals, said Tuesday night he had received an offer from Ottawa Rough Riders' president, Jim McCaffrey and had replied that he "would definitely be interested in a worthwhile offer."

At Toledo, O., light heavyweight Leonard Morrow, 175, of Oakland, Calif., was knocked out at the Sports Arena Tuesday night—by two right crosses thrown by Archie Moore, and a blow to his head when it struck the edge of the ring. Morrow was unconscious on arrival at hospital, but quickly recovered. Although reported not seriously hurt, he was held there overnight for observation.

A Manager-coach Neil Colville of New Haven Ramblers of the American Hockey League announced Tuesday that defenceman Jack Evans has been recalled by the parent New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Phil Wrigley, Jr., President of Chicago Cubs, was re-elected Vice President of the National Baseball League Tuesday at New York. Frank McKinney of Pittsburgh, was re-elected the league's representative of baseball's executive council.

A woman will match her riding skill against John Longden, America's leading jockey at Agua Caliente, Mex., Sunday. The woman is Mrs. Wantha Davis, a native of Liberal, Kas., and mother of a nine-year-old son Her husband is a horse trainer. Walter C. Marty, general manager of the Caliente track, said the Canadian-raised Longden had sent an acceptance for the match race.

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 14 (AP)—If fashion designers are serious about promoting the "boyish look" they can include Linda Darnell out.

"I'll have no part of it," says the busty glamor girl about the proposed return, of the slim silhouette of the '20s.

"I think it looks terrible. Besides, it's unhealthful. Many girls really ruined their figures for life when they bound their chests to get the flat effect.

"Why can't women look like women and men look like men? That's what makes life more interesting."

Canadian Notes

Walter Huston keeps sighing that he's reached the age where he wants to do only one picture a year. But at 67, he plays tennis almost every day.

"I'm not much good," the Toronto-born star admits. "You might say I play a casual game."

Greater faith hath no wife Jessica Tandy's investing some of her own money in the play of her husband, Hume Cronyn. It's called "How I Lay Me Down to Sleep" and the Fredric Marches are starring in it. The London, Ont., native is anxious to open the play at London's Grand Theatre.

Odd Bits

Fred Astaire is now teamed with a gal who may prove to be his best dance partner—Vera-Ellen.

Funniest thing I ever saw on TV was a silent-movie skit by Buster Keaton on Ed Wynn's show. What a great field Video will be for the great old comedians!

Col. Philip Cochran, fabulous figure of the war, is technical adviser on the "Jet Pilot." The script is trying to keep up with the headlines by having Leigh play a Russian spy.

Elsa Lanchester, who has four unreleased pictures, was asked what she'll do next. "I think I'll sit around on my back-log," she answered.

Guelph DP Will Be Allowed to Visit Sweetheart

Washington, Dec. 14 (CP) — Dennis Chrastansky, 24-year-old Czech displaced person now living at Guelph, Ont., will be permitted without question to the United States to visit his sweetheart during the Christmas season.

The Canadian External Affairs Department Tuesday issued him an identification certificate. Immigration officials in Washington said such a certificate needs no U.S. approval and that Chrastansky will be allowed to cross the border without difficulty.

The Czech recently got around immigration difficulties by marrying his fiancee, Kitty Kleiner, aboard the excursion steamer Maid of the Mist at Niagara Falls so that neither had to cross the border.

He came to Canada on a farm contract five months ago. Miss Kleiner is taking postgraduate studies in North Carolina.

He applied for a passport but was informed none could be issued because he was not a Canadian citizen, but that he could apply for a card of identity which would serve the same purpose.

At Guelph Chrastansky said: "this is my happiest moment since I arrived in Canada."

Chrastansky, a displaced Czechoslovak, heard the news in hospital here where he is being treated for a heart ailment.

"I shall phone Kitty this very moment and tell her I shall be with her for Christmas day," he said. "She will be delighted."

Armstrong Raps In Five Goals To Beat Oshawa

(By The Canadian Press)

George Armstrong, Toronto Marlboro's rangy centre star, put on a one-man show last night, rapping in five goals to pace the first-place Dukes to a crushing 10-1 victory over Oshawa Generals in the second game of an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A doubleheader at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens.

The win increased Marlboros lead to three points over the idle Windsor Spitfires.

In the first game, St. Michael's College Majors took over undisputed possession of four place by belting Galt Black Hawks, 6-3. In other games last night, St. Catharines Teepees thumped Barrie Flyers 6-3 to retain third place and in the only senior encounter, Hamilton's lowly Tigers reached up to blast third-slot Owen Sound 5-2.

Marlboros counted three times in the big final frame.

Lorne Pirie notched a pair of markers to come next to Armstrong with his five while singletons were counted by George Aitken, Murray Grenko and Rod Mitchell. Harry Sinden scored Oshawa's lone counter in the finale.

Marlies Open Scoring

Marshall opened the scoring in the first period and also in the second to put the Irish two up. George Ford tallied for the Hawks to cut the lead in half before Marshall came back with his third near the end of the middle frame.

St. Mike's outscored Galt 3-2 in the final frame to pick up the two points, the scores coming off the sticks of Bob Sabourin, Red Ingoldsby and Leo Labine. Bronco Horvath clicked for two Galt markers in the final stanza.

St. Catharines and Barrie split tallies in the opening period at the Garden City, Jack White punching in the Teepee counter and Doug Towers doing the honors for the visiting Barrie club. The Bubs each scraped in a pair in the middle stanza. Con Switzer notched his first for St. Catharines and Wayne Browne added the third Teepee goal. Gord Warner and John Bobenic took care of the scoring department for Barrie.

The home club blew the lid off in the last period, smacking in three markers while holding Barrie scoreless. Norm Corcoran started it off. Con Switzer poked in his second and Frank Martin finished it off, killing any Barrie hopes of sneaking into a third-place deadlock.

Owen Sound and Hamilton played through a scoreless first period in the Mountain City, but the veteran Bengals sprang to life in the second session to flash the red light five times without a Mercury reply.

Owen Sound retaliated with a brace of the night with the high three-string of 649 and a single of 230. D. Batchelor comes through with a threesome of 647 while Joe Legault rolled a single of 264, and Batchelor 252.

The scores:

Saco	(5)	3120
Ont. Inield	(2)	3321
Our Gang	(3)	2813
Just Us	(3)	2541
Hibbards	(4)	2643
Pigeons	(3)	2771

Sacos Increase Lead in Major B Bowling League

Sacos increased their lead to five points over the second place Ontario Intelligencer "Inkpots" in the Major "B" Tuesday Bowling League at Recreation Alleys last night when they defeated the newspapermen 5-2 in a match for the league leadership.

In the other games the "Our Gang" team took the measure of the "Just Us" squad by the same score and Hibbard Electrics polled out with a win over the Pigeons by a 4-3 count.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma started to shake her head to herself after supper, saying, Oop, I don't know what's come over me, William, I'm always the most optimistic of people, even when cold facts are staring me quickly in the face, and here I sit for no apparent reason filled with a sort of nameless dread.

Really William, I mean really, I can't understand it. I mean it's not like me at all, she said.

Soap out of it, my dear, pop said. I warn you that this is the first of all possible worlds, with perhaps a few exceptions that

Well probably never find out about, he said, and ma said, I know it's silly, but I seem to have a foreboding almost amounting to a presentiment. Do you think it's a clue of mental telepathy, and that something terrible is happening to somebody somewhere? she said.

Something terrible is always happening to someone, but you can rest assured it's nobody you know, pop said, and ma said, Well, I wouldn't like this sort of thing to grow on me. Maybe I ought to go and see a syko analyst, she said.

Yes gods, there's no such thing as just seeing a syko analyst, pop said. They want to keep steddy company with you for 5 years. You've just got a mild case of blues in the night, and it'll be over before you know it, he said, and ma said, William, I was rite, it was an actual presentiment.

Tell me more, pop said, and ma said, I've got a cake in the oven that I decided to bake this evening so it would be all ready for the bridge ladies tomorrow, and I completely forgot it and yet it was on my mind all the time.

And she hurry up and ran back to the kitchin and took the cake out just in time.

TO SETTLE ROUTE

All Must Agree

In explaining the legislation through the Commons, Mr. Winters made it clear that the federal government's contributions are contingent on the conclusion of agreements with all 10 provinces. He said highways ordinarily are a provincial responsibility, but the federal government decided to contribute to a trans-Canada highway because of the national aspect of the project.

The national importance would be lost, he said, unless all provinces agreed to participate in the construction program, due to start next spring and to be spread over seven years.

If agreement can be reached on details at the conference, individual agreements will be signed with each province, Mr. Winters said. Individual agreements will be necessary because of the size of the different payments to each province. The basis of payments will be the same in all cases, but the size will vary because of the difference in construction costs in various parts of the country.

The federal government will make payments as the work is completed. Ownership of the highway will be vested in the provinces and the federal government will make no contributions toward maintenance.

In letters to the provinces, the federal government has suggested that the highway be paved a width of 24 feet, and that the right-of-way be a minimum of 100 feet. These and other suggestions will be studied by the conference.

Prepared to Co-operate

Mr. Winters indicated in the Commons that he will be prepared to co-operate with the provinces in trying to work out an agreement on the best route if the conference should reach a stalemate on that score.

With various groups pressing for adoption of different routes, the provincial government have not been faced with any easy decision. In Alberta, for instance, there are opposing groups which want the highway to follow southern, central or northern routes. One would follow the Crows Nest Pass into British Columbia. Another would go through the Yellowhead Pass and the third through the Kicking Horse Pass.

In Quebec, the question is whether the route should follow the north or the south shore of the St. Lawrence River. In Nova Scotia and New Brunswick alternative routes also have been mentioned.

The only direction the provinces have received from the Federal Government so far is that the route follow the shortest east-west route, keeping in mind the needs of the provinces and of all Canada.

WINDSOR MAYOR

Resigned Post

Mr. Atkin resigned his post. The report's general recommendation concerning the ball was that "each conduct was not in the best interests of the hospital because it undermined internal discipline and when it became known, injured the good name of the hospital these men were hired to serve."

Mayor Resume told council that at a closed meeting of the hospital board last March 2 he asked Miss Maybee: "Do you not think that your conduct may have something to do with the fact that you find it difficult to keep proper discipline among your staff?"

The mayor read from a prepared statement: "I told her and I told the board that it was a well-known fact that she and a number of people on her own staff had attended a house party with married doctors also members of the staff."

Mayor Resume said he had brought up the other incident at the same hospital meeting. "I brought up the matter of a doctor, a member of the staff of the hospital who had been called to the home of a former family on a maternity case. Twin boys were delivered by the doctor and it was felt by the doctor that the mother should be taken to the hospital. He called for an ambulance and directed the driver to take the mother to Metropolitan hospital.

Told To Leave Twins

"The driver asked the doctor what he should do with the twins. He was told to leave them because they were dead. The driver informed the doctor as he proceeded back to the home to pick up the twins. Upon entering the bedroom much to his amazement the newly-born boys were crying. He immediately rushed them to the Metropolitan General hospital. They were reported to have died the following day."

The mayor said he now asks council to inquire into this incident and if the council does not, "I shall accept the responsibility" and refer the matter to the attorney-general.

Parts of the report were deferred for later action after council meets jointly with the hospital's board of governors. The hospital board previously approved the report as it stands. Date of the joint meeting for later discussion was not set.

DIDN'T WAIT FOR LAW, BUT FO UND LAW WAITING FOR THEM

With the Italian government of Premier Alcide de Gasperi determined to speed land reform by distributing at least 3,000,000 acres among landless peasants, Communist factions in Italy were eagerly attempting to take over uncultivated land without the formality of waiting for the government to buy the land. A group of Communist farmhands, carrying the Red flag and led by their local secretary is shown here attempting to take over an uncultivated piece of land on the outskirts of Rome. According to the landlord, the land is unsuitable for cultivation. Their back-to-the-farm movement was short lived, as police swooped down on them and persuaded them to withdraw. — Central Press Canadian.

Duplessis Says Parks Should Not Have Radar Stations

Quebec, Dec. 14 — (CP) Premier Duplessis said Tuesday that there appears to be a federal government plan to set up radar installations in Quebec provincial parks and he is opposed to it.

He told a delegation from the Saguenay district that he was not opposed to any step needed for the defence of Canada but he thinks provincial fish and game preserves will suffer if radar equipment and crews are established in them permanently.

(In Ottawa, a national defence department spokesman said that a plan had been considered to establish a number of radar stations in Canada and "in the plan, one station, at least, happened to fit into a provincial park.")

Mr. Duplessis said that three Quebec provincial parks had been singled out for radar installations.

"One is wanted in Gaspe Park, one in Mount Orford Park and one in Laurentide Park," the leader of Quebec's union Nationale government told the delegation. "Why should it be our provincial parks?"

Premier Duplessis said he had conferred with Defence Minister Claxton but added it was "false that a dispute between provincial and federal authorities had occurred on the question of radar.

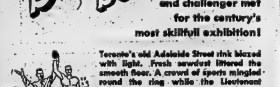
SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Boxing's best!



When champion and challenger met for the century's most skillfull exhibition!

Toronto's old Adelaide Street rink blazed with light. Fresh sawdust littered the smooth floor. A crowd of sports mingled round the ring while the Lieutenant Governor and his party watched from their box. It was a February night in 1885 . . . and the century's biggest event in connection with the world-famous Champion of England, Charlie Mitchell, was to meet John F. Scholes, the local hero.

In the opening rounds, Scholes smashed Mitchell with a surprise barrage of punches. Furiously, Mitchell backed off. The haze of cigar smoke thickened as the rounds went on. Suddenly Mitchell came out of the ropes with a hard blow. Scholes went down, only for a moment . . . but the fight had been decided. Mitchell won in the first . . . 35-36.

Good sportsmanship has won many world friends for Canada . . . just as the spirit of working together has made us one of the world's great nations. These two—sportsmanship and enterprise—keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada unlimited.

The Canadian Amateur Boxing Championships mark their 50th year in Port Arthur, Ont., to determine the boxer who would represent Canada at the British Empire Games in New Zealand next February.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

"Yes, indeed; but he had to leave me shortly after I got aboard as he had an important business engagement to keep."

"Well, I'm glad he thinks of his work first. That's what a young man should to," and Miss Whiting nodded her head approvingly. "By the way what business is he engaged in? I don't think you mentioned it in your letter."

"He's in the stockbroker's office in Wall Street," replied Ann anxious to do her best for Mary.

"Been there long?" questioned her aunt.

Ann hesitated for a moment, what had Mary told her about Gerald's affairs. "Yes, at least he's been with his present firm over a year." Surely that would satisfy the old lady.

"Interested in his work?"

"Oh yes, very much."

Then Miss Whiting talked of Mary's mother and of their home in Boston. She did not mention her father, it was evident that her sister's whirlwind courtship and unexpected marriage had caused such distress in the Whiting family that her name henceforth was never mentioned. Yet Ann felt that before that affair the sisters must have been quite devoted. Mary's mother, unlike her sister, was not interested in social reforms, the welfare of the world or the needs of new laws. She had evidently loved life, and as Miss Whiting assured her supposed niece of her sister's beauty and charm, Ann sensed the link between the sisters.

"Well," declared Miss Whiting, "there's no use discussing the past," and a new note of kindness echoed in her clear cut tones "I want you to have a pleasant trip, and I think, in spite of your red hair, that we'll get along quite well. I've been so busy for the last week or two that I think I shall keep to my room for a couple of days. I always find that it pays me to keep quiet if I want to enjoy the voyage."

There was a look or concern in Ann's eyes.

"Oh, I don't believe I shall be seasick. At least I never have been, but it's as well to take no chances when you're not a good sailor."

"I don't know for I've never been on the ocean before," answered Ann whose only experience aboard ship had been on some of the boats on the Great Lakes.

"Oh, I expect you'll be all right, go and have a good time. Don't feel that you must come and sit with me. Jenkins is here and she'll attend to anything I want. Of course if you wish to stay with me for an occasional hour don't hesitate to come along.

As Ann left the room, Margaret Whiting sighed heavily. Her sister had certainly made compensation in her ill-advised marriage for she acknowledged that, not because of her own hair Mary Lambert was a striking looking girl. Strange that she had not followed her mother's example and made an early marriage. The girl seemed to be well educated and she had a certain reserve and manner that she had not inherited from her father.

But even as she began to make plans for her niece's future, Margaret Whiting rose impatiently from the lounge. Was that a miserish brightness in Mary's eyes, and the color in her cheeks —undeniably pretty—was it almost heetic? Surely she couldn't be—Margaret Whiting seated herself again. No Whiting had ever had anything like that.

"Taking chances is the only way to get ahead," declared Harry Harper, self made man now on his way to his ranch in South Africa from which he directed his mining operations. "A man might stick to his job forever and never really get anywhere, but there are opportunities for every one if they'll only take the chance."

"But if you took a chance and it proved a fizzle what then?" queried a young man who had married above his means of this man who seemed to think of success as easy of attainment.

"Oh well, you can have another chance, I don't mean to say that every opportunity turns out as well as it promises. Sometimes you've lost out, but I was always ready for another opportunity and in the end I've won."

These were the words Jim Riddell heard as he crossed the threshold. Instinctively his thoughts turned to Mary Lambert as he had seen Harper talking with her and a strange feeling of jealousy had entered his breast. Harper was an older man, although he carried himself with a sprightliness that would have done credit to some of the rabid advocates of the daily dozen. He was wealthy to boot, and his manners were most polished.

Jim Riddell scrubbed his brown. Never before had a woman appealed to him. Fascinated with the work of developing unknown resources in many lands he had had little time for pleasure, during his brief visits to the capitals of the world he was eagerly sought after by angling mothers with lovely daughters, by women who were experienced in the ways of matrimony. While their attempts to ensnare him had failed, he had not realized how impervious to their wiles.

But Mary Lambert it was different. The glimpse he had caught of her in the shipping office had aroused his interest, and when he talked with her he congratulated himself that he had at last found his dream woman. But while Mary walked with him and watched the moonlight on the water, when he tried to tell her of his love, she quickly steered the talk in other directions or let him rather abruptly. Could it be she preferred Harper?

The Canadian National Steamships liner Lady Nelson, damaged when she ran aground on the St. Lawrence River mudbank, moves into drydock in Halifax for repairs to her hull. The job will take three weeks. Temporary repairs were made at Lauzon, Que., immediately after the mishap, which occurred on the Lady's last voyage of the season.—(CP Photo.)

As Riddell turned to leave the smoking room Harper followed him. Side by side they paced the deck for a bit. They had certain interests in common for Riddell was well acquainted with the region where Harper's mining operations were under way. In fact as they chatted casually about various spots of the globe Riddell learned that Harper was acquainted with more than one of the capitalists who had joined him in some of the biggest enterprises.

"Oh" exclaimed a coquettish feminine voice as the two men paused by the rail "won't you come and play bridge with us? Miss Lambert and I are so anxious to have a game and everyone seems to have vanished. You do play, don't you?" she cooing said as she laid her hand on Jim's arm.

"Well, a little," Riddell replied while Harry Harper said, "I'll be delighted. Mrs. Tracy. Come on, Riddell. We can be a four some." He added as he followed the fascinating widow who was none other than the woman who had left her son with such indifference when the boat sailed.

Mrs. Tracy had quickly made an inventory of the passengers and had simply thrust herself on Mary Lambert for she saw she had a train of admirers. He played up to her for through his connection she might win the stakes she was after. She knew who Riddell was, but finding that he did little use for her she turned her attention to Harry Harper. He was older and doubtless more understanding. To some people Mrs. Tracy was exceedingly attractive, for in all social arts and graces she was a past mistress, but she did not ring true.

"Shall we cut for partners?" she questioned as they seated themselves at the tables, to which the others assented.

"Oh, Mr. Harper, you and I will have to play against Mrs. Lambert and Mr. Riddell."

"Well, I guess we'll have to watch our step, playing against such experts," and Mr. Harper smiled.

As the game proceeded Mrs. Tracy managed to relate several little bits of gossip about the fellow voyagers, but in spite of her chatter she and Mr. Harper won the game. When she rose from the table Ann turned to Jim "I'm so sorry Mr. Riddell, I'm afraid my poor play spoiled your game."

"Not at all. Perhaps you're like me, can't concentrate on bridge when there too much talking," and there was a twinkle in his eye as he glanced over his shoulder and saw Mrs. Tracy still chattering to Harper. "Are you coming to the dance tonight?"

"Yes indeed."

"You'll save some dances for me?"

"Which?" questioned Ann.

"All of them," he answered as his eyes sought hers.

"What!" Ann exclaimed as she left him. "All!" but her eyes were sparkling as she hastened to her cabin.

"There's really no reason why your niece should not recover completely. If she has the proper care and avoids undue exertion she should be perfectly well within a few months," declared Dr. Wilmot, a noted specialist who was aboard the liner.

"Well, that's encouraging," remarked Miss Whiting. "You know there's never been any tuberculosis amongst our family. The Whiting have always been so strong. It seems very strange that my niece should have any hint of it in her system."

"Oh, but Miss Whiting" interjected the doctor who was an old friend of the family, "you don't need to talk as though it were a crime. Maybe the girl's been working hard and gotten run down, or perhaps on the father's side of the family there may be some weakness. Anyway you don't need to worry."

"I've never talked to her about her father or his people. I just can't do that...I'll certainly appreciate it. Of course, I realize this is your holiday, and doubtless you want to forget about sick people, but perhaps you'll make an exception of her."

"Oh, that's all right. Your niece doesn't really need any medical attention. Indeed I think it better for her not to consider herself an invalid. The trouble with so many lungers is that they're afraid and they won't fight it. But your niece seems to think little of it, and so she's just that much ahead."

Miss Whiting was silent. She was proud to own that Mary had not gone to pieces when the specialist announced the result of his examination. After all she must have some of the Whiting blood in her. As yet she had not learned a great deal from Mary about the conditions that had surrounded her. From now on, however, she would see that she had nothing to worry about. With a fortune at her disposal she would not have to forego any cures that money could buy.

In spite of the specialist's verdict that the shadow was still hovering over her—although there was more than a fighting chance that she would win in her battle for health — Ann took her accustomed walk with Jim Riddell around the deck. Now as she lay luxuriously lounging in her deck chair, she confessed to herself that being the niece of Miss Whiting was not such a bad part. The old lady seemed to have taken quite a liking to her. She had shown her her jewels, and had indicated that one day they be hers. She was very fond of pearls and as her supposed aunt held them at arm's length, Ann marveled at her apparent carelessness in handling such priceless gems. She questioned the wisdom of having them in her stateroom, but Miss Whiting assured her she always took them with her on her travels.

DECEMBER is here and with it lurks the "common cold"! Ontario citizens are reminded now of a few simple helpful rules to safeguard their health, and that of others.

Prevention of the common cold is the responsibility of all, and if everyone plays his part much unnecessary illness, expense and discomfort may be avoided.

With the holiday season looming ahead, when so much happiness depends on everyone feeling fit, why run the risk of "catching cold"—or letting members of your family face that danger?

In the interest of parents and families, the Ontario Department of Health recommends every Ontario citizen to study the common sense precautions suggested below and act upon them:

Five Simple Precautions

1. Take plenty of rest. Avoid becoming unduly tired. Endeavour to follow a well-balanced diet.
2. Avoid becoming wet, chilled or overheated. If clothing becomes wet, it should be changed as quickly as possible.
3. If a cold overtakes you, go to bed until it improves. If it does not clear up rapidly, do not hesitate to seek medical advice.
4. Be thoughtful of others. If suffering from a cold, do not spread germs by coughing or sneezing openly.
5. Avoid crowds as far as possible.

No one wants to be "laid up" with a cold . . . especially at this holiday time of year. By following these five, common-sense precautions you can help yourself and others enjoy a happy, healthy holiday . . . free from the seasonal misery of the "common cold".

TWENTY KIDNAP GIRL "WITNESS" AT JOLIETTE, QUE.

Tried to Have Them Jailed in Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 15 (CP)—Two young Joliette, Que., girls, members of the Jehovah Witnesses, said Wednesday night "a group of 15 to 20 men" kidnapped them in Joliette and drove them to Montreal where they unsuccessfully tried to have them jailed.

The girls, in their 20's, identified themselves as Winifred Parsons and Olive Lundell.

They said they were making a door-to-door call with a Bible in Joliette when the men accosted them. They added they were forced into a taxi with six men and were driven to Montreal.

There, they said, two attempts were made to have them jailed, first at the Police Station No. 1 men's jail and then at No. 13 police station.

They were then released by the men, they claimed.

The girls said the men threatened them, saying: "If you don't go now, we'll be by tomorrow, and 200 the day after tomorrow, to see that you leave Joliette and never come back. We'll have people watching for you at every street corner."

Recited Prayers

During the taxi trip, the six men "recited prayers for five to seven minutes before they took us to Pullman Street jail and then to No. 13 police station," they said.

Joliette police chief Valmore Lapierre said "it seems to have been a very well-organized affair by private citizens."

"We have a report by a constable at the station that the two young girls, apparently Jehovah Witnesses, were seen in the middle of a group of some 20 men, entering a taxi at the bus terminal," he added.

He said the girls had been invited to return to Joliette and would receive police protection.

Toronto Wants $2 Out of $5 Marriage Licence

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)—Mayor Hiram McCallum said today the city will ask the province for a larger share of the $5 marriage licence fee.

The Mayor will ask Premier Frost today to give the city $2 instead of $1 out of the $5.

The provision of staff, space and material were all "unduly" expenses of the city, he said. "All the province does is print the wedding licence form and it gets $4."

Worker Overcome By Gas Dragged to Safety by Associate

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Franky Nagy, gas company maintenance workman, was credited by firemen with saving the life of his fellow serviceman, Robert Reid, 26, Wednesday night when Reid was overcome by gas while repairing a pipe in a six-foot excavation.

Reid was in critical condition when dragged from the excavation by Nagy. Firemen and doctors worked for more than 30 minutes to revive him. He is reported doing well.

Nagy was slightly affected by the gas and was given first aid treatment.

SHIP'S FIREMAN MARRIED BY SPECIAL LICENCE

Belfast, Dec. 15—(AP)—Ship's fireman Samuel Munce married Mary Spiltra by special licence because he didn't want to overstay his 48 hours' leave.

They had a one night honeymoon. Wednesday Munce had to return to his ship. Within two hours he fell overboard and was drowned.

THIEVES GET $34,000 IN JEWELS

New York, Dec. 15—(AP)—Mrs. Doris Fisher Lesnevich of Detroit, told police Wednesday that thieves took $34,000 in jewelry from her Hotel Sherry-Netherland suite. Mrs. Gershenson, former actress, reported said she was here for Christmas shopping.

SIXTEEN KILLED IN GAS EXPLOSION OF PACKING PLANT

Nine of Ninety Injured In Critical Condition

Sioux City Ia., Dec. 15 (AP)—Workmen today searched through the ruins of the explosion wrecked Swift and Company packing plant office building for additional bodies from Wednesday's bomb-like blast which killed 16 persons and injured some 90 others. Nine of the injured were reported in critical condition.

Clarence Chappelle, assistant fi e chief, said he expected to find four more bodies in the Debris.

Some 200 workmen, assisted by mechanical equipment, pulled slabs of concrete and twisted steel out of the basement of the five-story brick structure, "they worked through the night.

Fire Chief Charles Kuhl, who estimated the damage at more than $1,000,000, blamed escaping natural gas for the explosion. County authorities said they and city officials probably would join in another investigation of the remains leading to the building were being checked for leaks.

Origin Unknown

Sheriff Edwin L. Lunde said the "main thing is to try to find out why anybody was down in the basement at that time." He was interested in conjunction with other authorities in finding out what caused the blast to occur.

A spokesman for 12 company officials who owns bera from Chicago by plane said they were conducting a investigation to determine the cause of the explosion. He said the officials couldn't even guess at the extent of the damage.

The dead included 15 men and a young nurse.

Of the 85 on the injured lists reported by four hospitals, 64 remained in hospital.

A comp ny spokesman said about 1,000 persons were in the building at the time of the terrific blast.

The explosion was the second worst in Sioux City's history. The worst was the collapse and burning at the Roff Drug Store in 1918 in which 30 were killed and nearly 100 were injured.

Britain Pressing U.S. And Canada For New Aid Plan

Wants Southern Asia And Middle East Protected

London, Dec. 15. (AP)—Britain is pressing the United States and Canada to help launch a gigant new aid program for the Middle East and Southern Asia, a responsible British source reported today.

He said the idea has come up "in the most general terms" at top-secret, three-power talks now going on in Washington.

The three-fold aim of such a project was said to be:

1. To solve these strategic, potentially-rich regions from the spread of Communism.

2. To help western Europe—mainly Britain—close its debt gap between dollar buying and dollar spending.

3. To take off Britain some of the load she claims she carries in paying off the Wartime sterling debts accumulated by countries like India, Pakistan, Egypt and Iraq.

The source stressed the Washington talks still are in an exploratory stage. No full-scale formal British plan has been handed yet to the U.S. or Canada. The British idea has been talked over, however. Apparently it counters an American proposal for settling the sterling-balance debts.

Asked is Slow Down

The United States suggested during the Washington talks that Britain slow down repayment of the debts, the source said.

This would enable Britain to divert more exports to dollar countries and so help close the dollar gap. At the same time it would open countries like India, Pakistan Egypt and Iraq—all secure and traditional British markets—to American goods.

The British government frankly admitted such a proposal, the source added.

These talks are being held by the three-power working party set up after the September meeting of British, Canadian and American Foreign and Finance Ministers to seek a long range solution to Britain's economic plight.

Britain owes a total of about $3,300,000,000 ($10,329,000,000) worth of sterling at the moment. About half is frozen.

India's share is about $650,000,000, Pakistan's about $150,000,000, Egypt's about $150,000,000 and Iraq and Burma about $20,000,000.

SONS OF FREEDOM PROMISE MAY END TERROR R:IGN

No Repetition of Violence Promise Made by Sect Leaders

Nelson, B.C., Dec. 15 (CP) — Confession, repentance and no repetition of violence was the promise laid down Wednesday night by the militant Doukhobor fringe blamed for years of unrest in this rich area of southcentral British Columbia.

Elaboration of that promise comes Sunday at near-by Krestova, centre of the Sons of Freedom group of the religious sect, where British Columbia police officials will attend a public meeting in Sons' members.

Recognition that it must clear itself of "such doings and come to the right, open path of spiritual life," was made in a signed statement from the Sons of Freedom.

Special squads of provincial police officers have patrolled the area since the provincial government instituted a law-enforcement drive at the start of the month to end railway bombings and put an end for all time to arson and violence.

Inspector R. S. Nelson told the four-man delegation, which presented the statement signed by themselves on behalf of the Sons, that it remained up to the Sons of Freedom members, to make the next move.

The four signers — Aaron Chernenkoff, John J. Postnikoff, William J. Zmolf and Sons' leader, John Lebedoff—said their move followed a warning last Sunday from the provincial police that the Sons this time had gone too far.

Precipitate Crisis

Three attempted dynamitings of Canadian Pacific rail lines—two successful—had precipitated a crisis among angry Nelson citizens, who blame the Sons. The railwaymen demanded safe-handling guards and patrols.

Lebedoff had his home burned down by his own followers for no apparent reason other than that home burnings, accompanied by nudity, are part of Sons of Freedom members, urging them to reform their conduct.

RSM Angus Duffy Given Rank Of Lieutenant in Hasty Pees on Colorful Ceremonial Parade

Traditional pomp and color of a regimental ceremonial parade furnished the background for an impressive ceremony in the Bridge Street Armouries last night when Regimental Sergeant Major Angus Duffy of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment discovered he formally retired from the unit and a minute later was given the rank of lieutenant.

Lieutenant Duffy, a veteran of the regiment for the past twenty years, served ten of them as its regimental sergeant major. He saw service with the unit in Britain, Italy and Sicily in World War II.

With the entire regiment, some 300 all ranks, standing rigidly to attention, and a crowded balcony looking on, R.S.M. Duffy heard Captain Lee Hyslop, regimental adjutant, read the "Part II Orders" that announced him from the army, and conferred upon him the commissioned rank.

A minute later, for the first time in his long and colorful army career, Lieutenant Angus Duffy, "fell in" with his fellow officers to be inspected.

A Special Honor

Brigadier G. Walsh, C.B.E., D.S.O., commanding the Central Area, stated afterwards that "it was a very special honor indeed, due to the fact that army regulations are such that it is impossible for a regimental sergeant major to receive a commission after so many years of service. Regulations now in vogue do not allow for such a very strict, especially in point of view of age."

The regiment as a whole paid a fitting tribute to their former sergeant major when it presented him with a handsome silver coffee pot and hot water container, additions to the tea-service he received on the occasion of his marriage a few years ago.

Turns Over Command

Previous to the presentation of the commission and gift, Mr. Duffy standing in the shadow of the bullet-scarred battle flag of the first battalion of the regiment, formally turned over leadership as regimental sergeant major of the regiment to his successor, Company Sergeant Major T. Stanley Down of "C" Company, Trenton. Behind him the regiment stood stiffly at attention. In front of him were the official party, the commanding officer Lieut. Col. Max Perrin, M.C. and his officers.

Mr. Duffy read, according to army regulations, the formal instructions as laid down for the handing over of the position. Following this, he removed the insignia of his rank from his arm and placed it on that of his successor. For a few minutes he was a "free man" so to speak. Then came Captain Hyslop's promulgation of the Part II Orders giving Duffy his discharge, and immediately conferring on him the new honor.

65 Mile Mercy Trip for Child Ends in Death

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)—A 65-mile mercy trip from the eastern Ontario community of Omemee ended in death today for nine-months-old Mary O'Neil, badly burned when a coal-oil lamp exploded near her crib.

The child died shortly after being admitted to the Hospital for Sick Children here. Doctors said she was almost covered with burns.

Her mother, Mrs. John O'Neil said the girl was asleep when the lamp exploded, setting fire to the room and her bed clothing. She beat out the flames and rushed the doctors, who rushed her to hospital.

The child was brought to the hospital by Dr. William Earle of Omemee in a fast dash by automobile through late-night traffic.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil made the journey with their daughter.

Medical Profession Learns Much From Noronic Disaster; All But Four Victims Identified

By R. J. ANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Identification is was a story of death, of horror, of swiftly changing casualty figures. In the identification is also a story of quiet, patient persistence, an engrossing study of what fire can do to the human body.

Science all but won the battle Wednesday when the last death certificate was issued for the 119 victims of the Noronic disaster. Only four of those who died when searing flames swept the luxury liner on September 17 remained unidentified. Certificates have been issued for all those who died. They will be buried in graves readily accessible at any future time.

The unknown stood in the central morgue last Sept. 17 as the victims of the burned Great Lakes marine disaster in a century were brought in from the Toronto waterfront it seemed impossible that all persons would ever be identified. Death in the Noronic was cruel. Three pounds of twisted, blackened flesh lying on tables, along walls, in corners, in rows, was just indistinguishable.

Of the 322 passengers who put into Toronto for a night on a post-season down-lakes cruise 167 perished when fire — a Federal inquiry determined that a lighted cigarette — swept the queen of the lakes from stem to gleiry within 30 minutes. Seven died later of burns. Three injured persons still are in hospital.

Positive identification had to be made of those who died. Dr. W. L. Robinson, chief pathologist of the Banting Institute was head of a board of identification committee. He told in an interview how he started work:

Canada Faced With Loss of UK Food Contracts

Ottawa, Dec. 15. (CP)—Canadian farmers today were faced with the loss of a greater part of their export trade with Britain unless Agriculture Minister Gardiner termed "essential" to the country's agricultural prosperity.

Mr. Gardiner told the annual loss of the bulk of the U.K. food contracts—except cheese and possibly bacon—would depend on the Dominion's farm leaders Wednesday by Mr. Gardiner.

In a two-hour review of Canada's agriculture outlook at the final session of the 10th annual Dominion-Provincial Agricultural Conference, Mr. Gardiner said the U.K. has set aside "sufficient dollars in the 1950 program to purchase 1950 "if we can agree on price".

He held out a faint ray of hope to the country's hog producers that a small amount of bacon might be purchased next year. But this was not definite and any gain in this direction would be at the loss to Western Canada's wheat farmers.

While some delegates returned to their respective provinces today, agriculture ministers, or their deputies, from all provinces Provinces remained behind to begin a new round of federal discussions. They are meeting with Mr. Gardiner at noon today in an attempt to help bolster the hard-hit maritime potato industry.

In a brief interview following the address, Mr. Gardiner said the U.K. had allotted $25,000,000 in U.S. Funds for the purchase of cheese in North America next year. Negotiators had promised him that the U.K. was prepared to spend most of that money in Canada if the price was low enough.

He said he planned to meet dairy industry representatives next week and work out prices.

Hearing Watched By Labor Groups Across Dominion

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 15 — (CP) — A hearing keenly watched by organized labor across Canada opened here today with counsel for the first demand by a Canadian union for a company-paid pension for all workers.

Involved in the contract negotiations between an Ontario conciliation board are the demands of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) for $100-a-month pension from Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited.

Similar pensions have been granted the U.A.W. by the parent Ford company of the United States. But Ford of Canada because the dominion has no federal social security payment comparable with the U.S., has countered with an offer of $53-a-month, company-financed pension at 65 after 30 years' service.

The union Wednesday said it would withdraw demands for longer vacations with pay, increased premiums for sickness and accidental paid holidays, if the $100-a-month pension is granted.

The union also asks a union shop for the 11,000 workers at the Ford plant. The present talks started in 1948 and were the first under an original collective agreement was signed seven years ago. Last fall the conciliation board took up the case following a reported stalemate between the union and the company on proposed contract revisions.

The hearings' presided over by Mr. Justice Charles P. McTague of Toronto, are expected to last a week.

County Council Members Give Selves Turkey

Kitchener, Dec. 15. —(CP) — Members of Waterloo County Council have voted themselves each a Christmas turkey— from county funds.

The councillors decided the matter today when nine of the 17 members approved the resolution. Councillors favoring the gift said they go in the hole annually on mileage, due to the government limiting outlay for this purpose to five cents a mile.

Reeve Simon Diiner of Wilmot township, opposing the "gift" said fi did not look right for councillors to vote themselves anything like that.

"It's going a bit too far," he protested.

Volunteer Bathles and Shaveless Friday to Save Water in New York

New York, Dec. 15 — (AP) — The wealthy man's news today was not too good for watershort New Yorkers as they scrubbed with extra gusto in preparation for "dry Friday," which will be ushered in at midnight.

No rain or snow in sight to help fill the city's depleted reservoirs.

Tomorrow will be a bathless and shaveless day—all on a voluntary basis—as part of the municipal efforts being made to save the dwindling water supply.

Wednesday and shaving are only part of the water uses that New York's 8,000,000 are asked to forego tomorrow.

The automobile washing industry—some of whose members had balked at the ban on their trade —was falling in line today with the emergency measures ordered by Water Commissioner Stephen J. Carney.

Thirty-two members of the production Auto Laundry Association announced they had voted to comply with Carney's ban. The Association claims to represent almost all of the carwashing establishment in the city.

If tomorrow's water holiday shows up successful, other days will be repeated weekly, to help stave off possible water rationing and lowering of pressure.

The Daily Mirror today suggested that water-short New York City be supplied from Lake Ontario by a 350-mile link across the line sanking beneath canals and rivers in the Mohawk and Hudson valleys.

The plan, which the Mirror said was envisaged by George Elwell, Jr., and Rodman Doremus, two prominent American engineers, would cost from $300,000,000 to $350,000,000, according to the engineers' estimates.

The plan is entirely in the idea stage, but the Mirror quoted the engineers as saying it is entirely feasible to construct two 46-inch pipe lines in the beds of the Oswego and Erie canals, and in that of the Hudson River.

Chemault Planes Leave for Formosa More May Follow

Hong Kong Dec. 15. —(AP)— Eight (or Maj.-Gen. Claire L. Chennault's civil air transport planes left unexpectedly today for Formosa and a highly-reliable source said they were spurred by possible British recognition of Communist China.

Eight other Chennault planes were reported ready to leave for that Nationalist island fortress off the southeast China coast.

Chennault's planes are under Nationalist China registry and fly the Nationalist flag. Therefore, it is believed they could be impounded in case of recognition.

Ground crews and other personnel of the airline were left in Hong Kong.

HEAVY TRAFFIC ON FRONT STREET WORRIES DEPARTMENTS

Heavy traffic on Front Street and in the general downtown area is again worrying police department and the Chamber of Commerce.

A survey which showed that 10,788 motor vehicles of all types passed the Bridge and Front Streets intersection in eight hours supported the complaint of Belleville retailers that there was lack of trade due to the congestion. Merchants found shoppers travelling to other towns close by where parking problems and heavy jamups in regular store hours did not exist.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HOCKEY TEAM BEATS O.P.P. SQUAD

Members of the Ontario Provincial Police and members of the local fire department are going strong on the liniment today following a battle of the year on the ice lanes of the local Memorial Arena Wednesday night.

The police boys squared off against the fire fighters in a game of shinny and sixty minutes later the firemen limped off the ice with a lop-sided 8-3 victory.

The officers of the law, however, are said to be out for revenge and for the next game promise to have greater reserve strength to toss onip the ice.

STRAY DOGS TAKE SHELTER IN BROKER'S OFFICE

A broker's office may not have much resemblance to a dog pound, but two lost canines went to the pound this morning by taking the above route.

When a Bridge Street broker opened his office a Boston bull wearing collar but no tag, and a female wire - haired terrier, crowded in behind him to get out of the cold. The pound keeper was called and the two canines are now waiting owners at the home of city dog catcher Thomas Thorn, on College Street.

FIRE DEPT. LOSES RUBBER BOOT

The City Fire Department is minus one rubber boot today.

It was lost from one of the fire trucks while proceeding to the blaze in the Superior Restaurant. On its side in white is the figure "3".

Fire Chief Vance will greatly appreciate its return to the station by the finder.

POLICE COURT

Convicted on a charge of assaulting LAC Burnette of the RCAF, Eddie Gagne, without harm, Eddie Gagne, Montreal, was sentenced to nine days in the county jail when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today for sentence. Gagne, who was in custody since he was arrested on the charge November 27th.

A brother of the above, LAC D. G. F. Gagne, was convicted on a charge of common assault and was fined $1 and $2.50 costs.

Charges against the two brothers were laid by provincial police following a fight said to have started in the wet canteen of the Trenton air station. LAC Burnette suffered injury to his eye and face and was in hospital for some days following the brawl. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan said the doctor reported Burnette would have no permanent injury as the result of the fight.

A number of traffic cases, including five speeding charges were settled out of court with the motorists paying up to $16, fine and costs for exceeding the legislation speed. Another motorist charged with speeding who failed to quit in an appearance was found guilty and fined $10 and costs.

A Liquor Control Act charge involving "having" of liquor, was settled out of court, the accused paying a fine of $200 plus $13 costs.

POLICE BLOTTER

Young boys in the Charlotte Street area said to be using an old shed as a clubhouse are causing a bit of uneasiness on the part of residents who have reported the matter to police. The complaints are that the boys were smoking and that there was danger of the old building being set afire.

Police investigated the matter and found the boys had been using the old shed as a meeting place, using candles for lights. The boys were warned by the officer to stay away from the building in the future.

A woman who last night came to the police station with a request for a night's lodging in the women's cell, found that the police cell can prove rather expensive quarters. The woman was under the influence of liquor when she entered the police station and she was promptly charged with being drunk. She is now endeavoring to find the required $13 to cut short her stay.

Letter to the Editor

Thinks Criticism Of Official Unjust

December 14, 1949

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

After reading the report of the last council meeting there are two items I would like to comment upon.

Firstly, the unjust criticism of Mr. Allan Vanderwater of the Central Mortgage and Finance Corporation. As an executive member of the Army and Navy and Air Force Veterans I have met and conferred with Mr. Vanderwater on many occasions and found him most co-operative.

The houses in Churchill Heights were allotted on the points system. Points were accumulated by, years of service, number of children, their ages, financial status and financial stability to pay. However, many applicants were found not to co-operate with Mr. Vanderwater. After submitting their applications they either moved to a different address and failed to notify Mr. Vanderwater of their new address.

Mr. Vanderwater produced before me 77 applications for houses from Belleville veterans who had moved away or for various other reasons rejected the houses. Mr. Vanderwater has been an excellent job in allotting the houses and should be commended rather than criticized by certain members of the council.

Secondly, the scrolls that were to be sent to the Belleville veterans.

This is a disgraceful state of affairs. Four years have passed since the cessation of hostilities and the veteran is still waiting for his scroll. Alderman Liddle stated "Some are not ready yet. I would suggest that they see that they are ready and distributed immediately. The scrolls are stored in the Armouries. Since there since the Canadian Legion held their Warriors' Day concert when tickets were sold for a dollar and the scrolls presented, thousands of veterans did not wish to pay a dollar for their scroll and the result is they are still waiting.

The past council should bow their heads in shame for allowing this condition to exist.

J. C. Lundrigan.

Proposes Buckets Of Water be Flown To New Yorkers

London, Dec. 15—(AP)—The London Evening Standard suggests a "buckets for Brooklyn" scheme today to keep New Yorkers from dying of thirst.

"They could be flown across the Atlantic in a constant ferry service," the Conservative newspaper suggests in a tongue-in-cheek editorial titled "Let the buckets."

The editorial comments on the plan of water-short New York to give up bathing and shaving tomorrow in an attempt to keep its reservoirs from running dry.

"We offer the suggestion for your reasons," the Evening News says.

"First, because it is a widely-spread belief in the British isles that all Americans die of thirst if they are deprived for one day of unlimited gallons of iced water. "And second, because the very idea of all those scrubby masculine chins will give us the shudders when we think of our bountiful water supply."

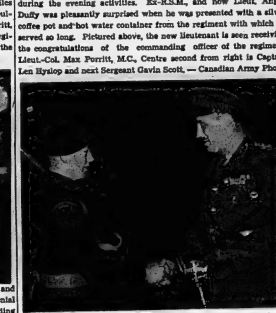
Retiring RSM Receives Lieutenant's Commission



Ex-R.S.M. Angus Duffy, commissioned a lieutenant following retirement, received his two "pips" from Brigadier Walsh at an informal ceremony held in the officers' mess. Brigadier Walsh smiles happily as he places the symbols of rank on the newly-fledged officer's shoulders. Also smiling his satisfaction is Lieut.-Col. Max Porritt, M.C., commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. The ceremony took place before 200 invited guests during the post-parade reception. — Canadian Army Photo.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment paid tribute to its former regimental sergeant major at a special ceremony conducted during the evening activities. Ex-R.S.M., and now Lieut. Angus Duffy was pleasantly surprised when he was presented with a silver coffee pot and-hot water container from the regiment with which he served so long. Max Porritt, M.C., commanding the regiment; Major George Harting, staff officer of Central Command, and Lieut.-Col. Reg. Abrahams, former commanding officer of the regiment.—Canadian Army Photo.

Proudest soldier in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at the ceremonial parade last night was Private Douglas Porter of Picton. Private Porter was adjudged the "best soldier on parade" by judges, and was awarded the Angus Duffy trophy. Upwards of 200 all ranks passed on as Brigadier Walsh presented the trophy and congratulated the young "Hasty Pee." — Canadian Army Photo.

RSM ANGUS DUFFY

Reminiscent of the war days, the armouries rang to the measured tread of marching feet and the blare of martial music as the "Hasty Pees" for the first time since the cessation of hostilities paraded in regimental ceremonial honor.

Parade in Battle Dress

Companies from Belleville, Picton, Madoc, Marmora, Bancroft and Trenton paraded in trim battle dress. Pientifully sprinkled in the marching ranks were young veterans of the Second Great War, Korean veterans with the glitter of war honors and decorations. Their marching and manoeuvring left no spectator good training.

On the sidelines, watching with admiration were many ex-officers of the regiment. In the balcony were a number of former privates of the overseas battalion. Among the officers were noted Lieut. Col. Kennedy, D.S.O., Owen Sound; Lieut. Col. Ron Church, Picton; Major Wensley and many others.

Performs Last Duty

Previous to the general inspection, Lieut.-Col. Reg. Abrahams, Regimental Sergeant-Major Angus Duffy performed his last duties of that office and Sloppy moved that he was so well known overseas, he received out orders and he placed the regiment in position for the ceremonial parade.

With the regiment at attention, and the crack band of the Royal Canadian Regiment, Brockville under the baton of Bandmaster W.O. 1, W. Armstrong playing the National Anthem the color party bearing the Union Jack and regimental colors slowly took up its official position.

Under the command of Lieut. Col. Porritt, the regiment stood at attention as the official inspection party entered the parade floor. Included were Brigadier Walsh, Major George Harting, acting G.O.I. of the Central Area and Lieut. Col. Reg. Abrahams, former commanding officer of the regiment. Following the General Salute the regiment was formally inspected by the brigadier.

The regiment then swung around the parade floor in column of route to the spanking music of "Bonnie by the Sea." Brigadier Walsh took the salute, standing near the Bridge Street entrance to the Armories.

Duffy Trophy Presented

A feature of the parade was the presentation of the Duffy Trophy to "the best soldier on parade." This was awarded to youthful Private Douglas Porter of Picton. He was presented with the trophy by the brigadier, who warmly congratulated him on his achievement. The young soldier also received words of applause from the crowded balcony

Later with the regiment drawn up in a semi-circle in front of him, Lieut. Col. Porritt made the presentation of the silver gifts of the regiment to Lieut. Duffy. In his address he said, "this inspection is purely one of routine affair as far as the regiment is concerned except for one fact, and that is, it is being held in connection with the retirement of its regimental sergeant major, and the appointment of a new one, and that fact makes this parade a memorable one."

A Real R.S.M.

"I feel honored," Col. Porritt said, "that I am the commanding officer of the regiment this year, when Mr. Duffy is retiring after 10 years service as its regimental sergeant major. In my estimation he is a real RSM because he has ploughed the Salt-non when that officer took over the regiment, he had amongst his number of officers and NCO's from its ranks. He held a high opinion for Duffy, for only he has he merits regard as one of the best RSM's in the Canadian Army. The efficiency of Duffy during action in the war years in Italy and Sicily proved that he was worthy of the job."

"I'm also felt honored," the colonel said, "to be present, when Mr. Duffy was given his commission. On behalf of all ranks of this regiment I present this token of their respect, admiration and affection and sincere regard for 20 years of service. It is never a man deserved a commission rank in the Canadian army, it is Mr. Duffy."

The armouries echoed to the cheers of the regiment and the applause of the balcony and other spectators.

Following the presentation the regiment passed for photographs, with the unit was the famous Indian mascot "Pet-awwa-Much" which saw service overseas. Prominent was the battle-banner, still bearing the bullet-and-shrapnel-hole scars of action which was made for the regiment by the nuns in a convent in Campobasso, Italy, while it was resting there.

Later in the officers' mess where the regiment was the military, naval, political and social life of the city were guests of the regiment at a buffet lunch. Lieut Duffy was formally presented with his "pips" by Brigadier Walsh. As photographers' bulbs flashed the ranking officer placed the symbols of rank on Lieut. Duffy's epaulettes, later commending and congratulating him.

"The traditions of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment are second to none," the brigadier said in a brief address. "I fought with it overseas and I am proud of its record. I assure you I will always take the same personal interest in it that I took before."

Reorganized Regiment

Lieut.-Col. Porritt then paid tribute to Lieut. Duffy's career, with "reorganized the regiment at a time when it was practically non-existent. He received poor conditions that existed two years ago when the strength of all ranks was fifty to the present fine numerical status.

The latter presented Lieut.-Col. Reg. Abrahams with a handsome silver tray.

In an appreciative response, Lieut. Col. Abrahams, taken completely by surprise, thanked his former officers for their gift, "I am glad to see my get his commission, in fact I had it in mind in 1941, but had no luck. Now I am one, he is growing old and is no longer the rip-roaring soldier he was in war, although he was in good voice tonight. I am also glad to see he accepted his commission gracefully, he should have done years ago. Seriously Angus Duffy get his commission is the highlight of my army career. As far as reorganizing the regiment goes, I only did my duty to it as an officer, and I am sorry circumstances would not permit me to stay."

During the evening Brigadier Walsh presented Lieut. Col. Abrahams, Captain Bill Davidson, second-in-command of the regiment, Lieut. Duffy and Captain Hyslop visited the serjeants' and sergeants' messes where the "troops" were enjoying sandwiches and refreshments.

A Good Parade

To the sergeants the brigadier said the night's parade was a good one. "You have made progress since I left you three years ago, but there is no use in saying you are perfect, if you think so then you're not good non-commissioned officers. The war proved that the Hasty Pees had the best fighting men in Canada. You have had a personal interest in a very great man in Mr. Duffy. The new RSM has a tough job to follow in his footsteps."

He hoped, he said, the Hasty Pees would soon have the best unit in Eastern Canada, but no matter how many new are in its ranks, they are no good if not properly trained. "This battalion now is better trained than was the one in 1939."

A "Good Show"

Speaking to the rank and file, the brigadier congratulated them on a "good show." "If you follow in Mr. Duffy's footsteps and all of you have it in you, then there will be nothing wrong with the regiment. Your regiment has great traditions and it has always produced the best of men."

Some two hundred people were guests of Lieut. Col. Porritt and his officers at the reception held following the ceremonies and presentations. Former high ranking service officers were present including Major General C. E. Betts, Toronto, Brigadier J. Gemet, now of Rosemore, The Royal Canadian Navy Reserve was represented by Lieut. Commander Dick Hart, Lieut. Addison Lloyd and Lieut. W. Simms. Civil government was represented by Mayor-Elect H. Jack Allin. Members of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment were also present.

During the reception Lieutenant Duffy was the recipient of scores of congratulations.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Christmas is in the air. Homes are busy in preparation, shops are crowded with buyers, all inspired by the associations of Christmastide. Between now and Christmas Eve will be made a great many plans, journeys from near and far will be made to the firesides as friends and relatives meet in the mood of Christmastime, the mood of welcome and of giving, the mood of good will and of kindness to the brotherhood of all mankind.

In the days just past and the days to come before the greatest of festivals there will be exhibited a spirit which speaks volumes for the value of human ideals.

In the Christmas spirit are summed up the ideals which animate men, women and children. No occasion so stresses human brotherhood, which is the motive which should animate all peoples at all times. About the festival there have gathered through the centuries the noblest conceptions of life, traditions which the past two thousand years have continued to lay on men's minds and hearts of the one great human family and the brotherhood of the nations of the earth.

It is fitting in such a time that the occasion should be approached with all the riches of which human life is capable, with music which ever suggests the voice of the herald angels, with the kindest motives and understanding, with love in the heart for all the brotherhood of the earth. To swell the angelic chorus have been added by men the sounds of music of human voices and of instruments, celebrating the gladdest occasion in the history of man for never was a message brought that has so deeply touched mankind as that of the story of Bethlehem and the Nativity.

Over nineteen centuries the chorus of mankind has been singing the praises of the Prince of Peace, whose message remains forever the greatest truth ever revealed to man. In song and story down the generations and in gatherings of families from the four corners of the earth it is the undying power of the birth of Christ whose Coming and whose Life have molded civilization and holds before men and women of all times the messages of brotherhood, of the sacredness of the family life and ties and of all the highest of human ideals, made clear by His Life among men.

SAFEGUARDS IN DECORATIONS

Attention is drawn as the Christmas season approaches to the necessity of careful planning of lighting and decoration so that no tragedy by fire or panic may mar the festivities which are drawing so close.

The public is warned of fire hazards which are greater at this time from the nature of decoration and the special lighting on Christmas trees.

Safety is the slogan for this time of the year for moments of can recall tragedies which have marred the observance in some places through some such untoward events from fire catching into paper or other decorations and the branches of the evergreens used. In Christmastime concerts the young people taking part wear attire which might easily take fire unless all measures are taken to guard against cassathrophe by contact with open flame.

The season is one of great joy, its spirit fills all hearts and to have tragedy from fire is the most bitter event that could take place.

Fire marshals warn every precaution be taken. Decorations should be non-inflammable on the trees and in the places where people meet in large numbers, in halls, in public buildings, and in the homes.

At such a happy time no one wants the spectre of tragedy to stalk among the children or adults.

Injury and death from accident when the nations will be celebrating the Nativity would seem doubly tragic. May there be no lives marred or lost through accident.

Fire safety should be the rule and will be taken by fire departments and by authorities in charge of Yuletide concerts and by the families in the homes. That the coming festival will be free from tragedy is the hope and prayer of everyone. To make sure every possible precaution must be taken.

JUST FOLKS

TABLE POINTER

The silent table pointer I wonder can there be
A finger-waving member in
Who, wanting salt or pepper,
his wish will not express,
But leaves his wife and children,
and even guests, to guess?

My father had the habit. "He's very thoughtful," I've heard people say, "he wants the better or possibly the breast, he'll pass his wife and children,
by long years ago soon

"The silent finger method is d—d's most grievous fault."
My manner often told us.
"He won't say: Pass the salt."
But never doubt he loves us, nor should we have him less
Because his wants at table he thinks we ought to guess."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ANCHOR TO THE SOUL

Some time ago it was necessary for me to preach on Sunday, and as I drove along in my car I listened to a radio broadcast of a Sunday morning service. It struck me if the millions of people who listen to these sermons are helped as much or inspired as much as I was by that particular sermon, "God is Faithful." These three words do not seem to pack a tremendous amount of spiritual helpfulness. They are simple. Yet so splendidly did this minister make his presentation and so moving was his spirit that those words which I had often read stood before my eyes with a new vividness.

He pictured this simple statement as setting forth a religious truth into which we may enter and receive and feel secure amid the storms of life. For if God is faithful through sorrow, disappointment, injustice, and pain, how can we be harmed by any of these calamities. In fact, they cease to be calamities and under God's faithfulness they become, for us, real sources of spiritual blessing.

"God is faithful." What a statement with which to grind our hearts. If God has faithfulness for us, who can be against us?

Boost Halifax As World Port

Halifax — (CP) — A group of boosters, who have submitted forces under the name of the Port of Halifax Club, are going all out to draw attention to Halifax, and make it one of the world's leading ocean ports.

The club was formed two years ago, this year's "Port of Halifax Week" including a Marine and Industrial Exhibition, was an eye-opener for shipping men. The second annual exhibition drew thousands to such displays of every phase of ship and port activities.

They saw port activities in action, modern port machinery in operation, and the romance of trade in a glittering display of samples of foreign products which were brought to port.

Frank K. Belle, a vice-president of the United States Atlantic Shipping Company, frankly told the club's annual banquet that "this port's not good enough, it should be and very well could be." For one thing it was more costly to handle cargo in Halifax than in some ports.

He told members how the port of New Orleans had, through the efforts of a committee, pulled itself up by its boot straps "from a third rate port, to the second most important in the United States."

The club membership is made up of shipowners, manufacturers, industrialists, businessmen and "old salts" deeply interested in the future. So that their work will be perpetuated in the minds of

Britain's Health Minister Westminster's Best Orator

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 15 (CP)—When Aneurin Bevan rises to speak, a cathedral hush descends upon the House of Commons.

If "aye" really gain goings—and it doesn't take much to work him up—you can hear a feather drop. Socialist backbenchers, usually restless and expectantly, the gallery ceases to fidget, the opposition braces for the storm.

When Bevan, his black mustache expands, his voice silky-soft or harsh by turns, stubby fingers jabbing the polish home, silvery-gray hair tumbling thick over a flushed and earnest face.

What he says, it seeks gold in print. In his speech in the devaluation debate last September, the word devaluation was not mentioned. But the fury of directing that pulled sterling from anything heard in this session of parliament.

Irascible, unpredictable Bevan is Westminster's best mob orator, capable of inflaming enemies or inspiring ecstasy among his followers.

Unrepentant Sinner

There is only one word for the way Conservatives feel about him, and that word is hatred.

Bevan reciprocates. His dictionary of abuse for Tories reserves "vermin" still reverberates in British politics. But the sinner refuses to repent. The other day he said it's a good thing millionaires are being taxed out. "They take was going to be sliced up even more, he warned, because redistribution is the road to ruin."

Bevan left school at 13 to work in the Welsh coal mines. He never forgets his working-class origins, the slight stammer which makes his speeches oddly effective.

Opponents claim he sometimes gives vent to a high-pitched Welsh whine when angry. This is merely a cadence known to Welsh people as the "hwyl," the impassioned declamation commonly used by old-time Welsh preachers.

Loose Talk

Nobody says so officially, but the 52-year-old minister probably is the man behind the recent campaign by the "Labor left" to implicate Canada in Britain's economic crisis. Attempts by Canadian correspondents in London to find out what the cabinet thought about the campaign resulted in some off-the-record remarks being boiled down to a suggestion that temperamental cabinet ministers can get into more trouble than they're worth.

At the same time, there's probably a few Tories who count personal antagonisms inside the cabinet.

"There are differences of opinion, of course," one of Bevan's colleagues admitted to the Canadian Press, "but they're usually exaggerated."

Bevan said he doesn't think Bevan's invective is any worse than that of ex-Prime Minister David Lloyd George, another Welshman, who ruled Britain from 1916 to 1922. But they still do not like Bevan. One London hospital received this letter:

"Dear Sirs: Please remove my name from your list of blood donors. Under no circumstances will I give my blood to the minister is out for the blood of all decent people."—By

U.K. Politicians Will Battle Over Nutrition

By R. B. MACLURKIN

London, Dec. 15 — (Reuters)— Politicians will battle over the welfare of 50,000,000 British stomachs today when parliament debates nutrition.

With food a subject of greater concern than ever to the people as Christmas draws near, the conservative opposition is expected to hit as hard as it can at the labor government.

Speakers will draw ammunition from an official document published earlier this week which shows that the annual average consumption of meat fell from 90 pounds a person in 1946 to less under 70 pounds this year.

But the explanation of this, as the government likely will explain, is that supply difficulties in Canada and the U.S. have cut down imports of bacon and canned meat, respectively.

To sharp-tongued Dr. Edith Summerskill, deputy food minister, falls the task of convincing parliament—and British housewives—that food consumption "on average" is only a little below pre-war.

For her case she is likely to depend largely on the statistics given in the official document. "Food consumption levels in the United Kingdom," which estimated that Britons in 1948-49 received a daily intake of calories three per cent higher than in the 1946-48 period and only one per cent lower than the pre-war yearly average.

This increase in calories is explained by the rise in consumption of butter, margarine, lard and sugar which has made good the loss of calories caused by a smaller meat ration.

Opposition speakers are likely to retort that talk of calories is all right for theoreticians and statisticians but the public thinks of food in terms of more appetizing images.

The conservatives are expected to be particularly bitter over the government's restrictions on pig-breeding, pointing to the almost complete absence of pork from Britain's dinner tables.

Postmortem Finding Not Expected for Week

Peterborough, Dec. 15 (CP) — Police said today the result of the postmortem held Wednesday on Reynard Sanderson, 28, whose body was found lying in a ditch on highway 28, five miles southwest of Peterborough Tuesday night, is not expected to be known "for a week or two."

With no evidence of foul play and no clues to suggest the cause or circumstances under which Sanderson died, provincial police are hoping the post mortem will throw some light on the mystery.

Blood, stomach and urinary tests were made in Peterborough Wednesday and samples have been sent to Toronto for pathologists' examination.

Name Directors Of Television For the CBC

Montreal, Dec. 15 (CP)—Fergus Mutrie of Toronto and Aurele Seguin of Montreal today were named directors of television for the CBC, the first appointments to be made in Canadian television on a full-time basis.

The appointments were announced in a press statement by Dr. Augustin Frigon, general manager of the CBC, who said the two radio executives have been assigned to work full-time on development of CBC-TV in Montreal and Toronto.

Alphonse Ouimet of Montreal, CBC assistant chief engineer, will continue to act as co-ordinator of television.

Dr. Frigon said Canada's first television programs would probably be on the air by mid-summer of 1951. An earlier start would be impossible, he added, due to the time needed to build transmitters and studios in Montreal and Toronto and to gather and train a television staff.

Both Mr. Mutrie and Mr. Seguin have recently returned from Europe and the United States where they made extensive studies of television systems.

Mr. Mutrie, Regina-born graduate of the University of British Columbia, is well-known on the Pacific Coast in both music and agricultural circles. His father, J. T. Mutrie, has established at Vernon, B.C., one of the largest reed farms in Canada.

The Montreal television director has been in radio for 16 years, occupying various positions with the CBC in Ottawa, Quebec and Montreal.

In announcing the new appointments, Dr. Frigon said the CBC has "fairly extensive" plans on hand which will be implemented in the near future. He did not give any details.

FIND POLICE WAITING

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)—When Adolph Lavoie, 27, and Donald Fenrom, 25, walked into an eastend store Wednesday night they received a rude reception. Police with drawn guns popped out. They were charged with conspiracy to rob. The police, tipped a holdup was planned, hid in waiting.

The pair were remanded to Dec. 22.

'Lots 'n' Lots of Light' Cries Child Seeing For First Time

Pico, Calif., Dec. 15 — (AP) —"Lights, daddy, lots 'n' lots a light!"

This breathless cry came Wednesday from two-year-old Suzanne Blah. The joy the exclamation brought her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blah, wasn't so much because their daughter was seeing her first Christmas tree. It was because she was seeing—for the first time.

Little Suzanne was born with cataracts over both pupils. Specialists said that with a series of expensive operations she could see.

Blah's American Legion buddies immediately launched a "Sight For Suzanne" campaign.

Suzanne underwent her fourth operation two weeks ago. She needs only one more.

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)—Vernon A. M. Kemp has been appointed commissioner of the St. John Ambulance for Ontario. He has been actively associated with the work of St. John Ambulance since 1921 and is a former assistant commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Tries to Figure Way to Save Veterans Loss

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Lawyer Gourley L. Powell is figuring out a way of saving 100 war veterans in danger of losing $20,000 they invested in a North York housing project through lack of additional funds.

The entire plan was not divulged but it came up for discussion in court here Wednesday when the veterans and representatives of construction companies met to organize and complete the undertaking or admit defeat.

The project, taken by Gable Homes Ltd., and now a collection of eight finished houses, three partially finished and the others an array of walls and cellars — started 18 months ago. That was when 158 veterans paid down payments of $850, to $1,100. Work stopped last July.

Mr. Howell said he would try to have the numerous lien holders paid off at 50 cents on the dollar and have the blanket mortgage on the project paid, so work could at least proceed on the project. This way, he said, the veterans will pay $500 more than they figured but they'll at least have homes.

Hints Britain Has Produced Atomic Bomb

London, Dec. 15 — (AP)— The Daily Mirror today gives its readers the impression that Britain has produced an atomic bomb.

The mass-circulation tabloid says in an unattributed, undaunted article by its atomic affairs writer, Ronald Bedford:

"Britain's atomic weapon, which our scientists have been developing for more than two years, will not be tried out at the forthcoming test of American weapons at Eniwetok atoll in the Pacific.

There was no confirmation from any other source of the inference that Britain already has an atomic weapon.

Government ministers, questioned frequently on the subject in the House of Commons, have refused consistently to give any hint as to whether British researchers have succeeded in making atomic weapons.

Bedford notes that Defence Minister A. V. Alexander, in May, 1948, said atomic weapons were "being developed" here.

Bedford writes that Britain, Canada and the United States at a recent Washington conference on atomic energy decided against testing the purported British weapon during the forthcoming test of American weapons at Eniwetok atoll in the Pacific.

Police Warn Against Drinking And Driving

Toronto, Dec. 15. (CP)—Police issued their annual warning today against drinking and during the holiday season.

Inspector Vernon Page of the traffic department asked householders not to offer liquor to bread truck drivers, milkmen, icemen or other deliverymen. He termed it one of the greatest drinking driving problems in the city at Christmas time.

Red Triangle Club Holds Supper and Theatre Party

A delightful Christmas supper and theatre party was held on Monday evening in the Y.M.C.A. by the Red Triangle Club. Miss Muriel Jobson, president of the club, introduced the special guests of the evening, Mrs. Al Davis, and Mrs. Bagly.

The table was prettily decorated with streamers, while at each place were tiny Christmas trees, shining with snowflakes, and topped by the little square of green tissue denoting the guest's name.

During the supper, Miss June Donnelly was in charge of the record player, and provided a series of pleasing refrains.

Following the supper, a short business period ensued at which $75.00 was voted to be appropriated from the service fund for Christmas baskets for the needy families of the city. Later, the members enjoyed the Christmas story "Come to the Stable," being presented at the Belle Theatre.

Mr. Davis was the winner of the Booster prize.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knox and son of Peterborough, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Knox, of Annilaburg.

A telegram was received from their daughter, Margaret, in Edmonton.

Mrs. W.C. Mikel Given High Post In Association

Mrs. W. C. Mikel was elected vice president of Women's Hospital Aids' Association of Ontario at Annual Convention of the Association held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

Mrs. Mikel who is a past president of the Women's Christian Association of this city which built and operated the present Belleville General Hospital until the city took it over two years ago, also served a number of years on the executive board of the Ontario Hospital Association. She is an active member of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of this city which carries on a commendable work for our local hospital.

Mrs. Selbert and Miss Ivy Dickens were delegates from the local hospital auxiliary.

Presto Music Club Holds Festival Christmas Party

The Church School hall of St. Andrew's Church took on a very festive air on Monday evening last December 12 for the Presto Music Club's Christmas Party. A gayly decorated Christmas tree, whose spreading branches covered numerous gifts centred the stage. Additional greens and mistletoe completed the lovely setting.

As the 60 members and guests gathered, carols were played by an instrumental quartet consisting of cello, Clifford Templer; violin, Donald LaFrance; oboe, Lewis Lambert, with Doreland Houston at the piano. The following program in charge of Loretta McDougall, was then presented:

Vocal "A Christmas Credo Song"—Prokoff by Myrtle Houston;

Vocal, "A Miracle Came to Me"—Coenraad V. Bos; "No Candle Was There and No Fire" —Lehmann by Margaret Hillis;

Oboe, "Marguerite"—Schubert by Lewis Lambert;

Vocal "Gesu Bambino"—Yon by Lee Riedel;

Violin "Ave Maria"—Gounod by Donald LaFrance;

Ladies Chorus "O Lovely Peace"—Handel; "A Virgin's Slumber Song"—Reger by Lee Riedel; Helen Cook; Doris Bungoyne; Frances Aspinall; Evelyn Bird; Ada MacDonald; Margaret Hillis; Loretta McDougall, under the direction of Leona E. Biggs.

Piano "Nocturne No. 8 in D Flat"—Chopin by William Connor;

Vocal "The Holy Child"—Eastlope Martin by Maurice Bissett.

Carol singing was enjoyed by all under the leadership of Clifford Templer and Gladys Connor providing a piano accompaniment.

Hostesses for this delightful evening were Mrs. H. S. Robbins and the Misses Helen Cook and Dorothy Connor. Coffee was poured by Mrs. C. Templer and Mrs. W. D. LaFrance at the bedecked table.

The highlight of the evening was the arrival of Santa Claus as portrayed by S. Alec Gordon's idea of the genial gentleman. Ushered in by the singing of "Jingle Bells," he wore, instead of the traditional red and white suit a choir gown and mortar board with red accessories. Gifts were presented to all the "children."

Report on Toronto Convention Features Hospital Aux. Meeting

On Tuesday afternoon the Hospital Auxiliary held their monthly meeting in the Nurses' residence, Dundas Street, with the president, Miss Ivy Dickens, presiding.

Mrs. D. Wilson and Mrs. Everett Falcon were in charge of the gifts which were to be distributed on Christmas, in daintily wrapped packages, to the indigent patients.

Mrs. R. E. Peterson, was ticket convener, and Mrs. Arthur Hill had charge of the spot dance prizes, which were 12 in number, and would be given following the dance.

Appreciative thanks were extended to the Hospital Auxiliary by the supervisor of nurses, Miss D. Potts for the oxygen tent donated by the Hospital Auxiliary.

Mrs. Harding Ponton was in charge of a committee to supervise the refurnishing of the lounge at the nurses' home. This lounge is being rebuilt, and remodelled.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the keen interest shown by the Owen Sound Hospital Auxiliary regarding the Opportunity Shop in the Belleville market, operated by the Hospital Auxiliary. They intend to begin one of their own in the near future. Belleville Hospital is proud of the position they have set in this manner.

Report By Mrs. Mikel

Mrs. W. C. Mikel gave the highlights of the Ontario Hospital Association convention, held in Toronto. This association embraces all many "separate units" connected with hospital work including dietitians, accountants, engineers, nurses administration, pharmacists, and superintendents. The Ontario Hospital Aids Association is the only group that contributes to the welfare and betterment of hospitals. In 1948 they made nearly $100,000.00 in various means.

The opening session of the Ontario Hospital Association was highlighted by the address of Miss Pauline Jewett, the retiring president in which she gave an outline history of the association which met for the first time in 1924 with 24 hospitals being represented. This year's convention had 168 hospitals represented and about 1,000 in attendance.

The sessions of the Ontario Hospital Aids were most interesting and reports were heard from 69 aids listing their ways and means of raising money for their activities including social work as well as the purchase of hospital equipment, nurses' comforts and the giving of scholarships to nurses. Some of the ways of raising money were unique but the most interesting one seemed to be the Opportunity Shop conducted by the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary for a full account of its management had to be given and many questions asked, about its operation.

Tells of Medical Training

Dr. Sydney Smith, president of the Toronto University addressed the convention and gave many interesting lights on Canadian medicine and the training of doctors. He mentioned that only ten per cent of the sick are treated in hospital where every modern hospital aid is at the disposal of the student. Dr. Smith questioned if the student or young doctor is equally trained to take care of a patient in a home where medical aids are lacking. He advised that young doctors be apprenticed to practising physicians during University vacations. In this way he would get an understanding of human nature and learn that a patient is something more than an interesting case history or laboratory specimen—that he is organic and human.

Tuck Shop Displayed

At the Women's College Hospital where a tea was given for the delegates of the hospital aids, a tuck shop was examined where gifts could be purchased for patients. They also have a cart that can be wheeled from room to room to supply to the patients comforts which they require.

The Ontario Hospital Association always closes its convention with a most interesting round table discussion—many questions pertaining to hospitals that are of a perplexing character were fully discussed to the interest of all.

The 1949 convention was the best held yet and all the delegates felt that they had learned much that was of benefit to their particular hospitals.

Outstanding Reports

The reports from some of the branches were amazing. These reports were given at a special afternoon meeting and Miss Dickens' report of the total amount of money raised $8,318.04 by the Belleville Auxiliary was greeted with astonishment as it was quite the largest amount reported so far, and we patted ourselves on the back and looked a bit smug until as the list grew we felt a bit deflated as many larger amounts were reported. However, we still felt proud of the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary.

The session held for Hospital Aid groups took the form of a round table discussion under the headings—

1 Membership—Kinds and how to obtain. This was chaired by Mrs. Mikel and she told of the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary and its method. It was very interesting members by sending them a copy of a monthly bulletin. She asked for ideas from other groups and some were as follows:

Sault St. Marie made a house to house canvass of the city.

Peterborough—Had two groups with total membership of 4,000. New members are invited to come and sew.

Windsor—Holds an active membership to which each member invites a prospective new member.

Some groups have active members also associate, contributor and life.

The discussion of constitution and by-laws was chaired by Mrs. Whiteside of Windsor, who made the following points.

1. That the constitution set up by groups should be in the form of a stiff elastic band but uniform and simple, following as far as possible the suggested form set forth by the Women's Hospital Aids Association. Copies of this constitution were distributed to those present and we have them here if any one would like to read it. It is interesting to realize that groups all over the province were using this guide for constitution as drawn up by a central group of experienced women.

2. The constitution should clearly define the types of membership in life members, honorary members and honorary life members. A list of life members should be kept and also, a list of past presidents.

The discussion on Ways and Means of raising funds was chaired by Mrs. Fletcher. A table at the front of the room displayed ideas used by various groups. Copies of these ideas were brought back for inspection at a later date.

Other Methods

Sudbury group raised $4,000 by a car raffle.

Peterborough group raised $2,-868 by a Penny Sale.

This was conducted by selling pages of numbers which were used by persons placed on articles up for auction on the day of the sale. An empty store was used and was filled with merchandise donated and went on all day Saturday.

Mrs. Keily of Windsor, described a "country fair" held by their group in the grounds of a large home loaned them for the day and evening. Tickets had been sold and a draw made at the fair and $1,500 made. The articles for the draw were a television set, radio and pair of antique candlesticks. At the fair $1,500 was made at a merchants' booth. Picnic tables were set up and 600 hot dinners served. A fish pond using a naturist fish pond in the grounds was run by a group.

A girl at the fair walked about carrying a sign "Pitch Pocket for 10c". She wore a large apron with many pockets of different colors each holding a parcel donated by members. There were just a few of the attractions and the total sum raised was $5,670.27.

Several groups used a Dime card sent to members and friends.

A little apron was shown with an attached rhyme asking the members to measure their waist line and put a penny in the pocket for every inch measured.

The highlight of this session was the report of Mrs. Dworkin, who reported for the group of Mt. Sinai Hospital in Toronto, a Jewish organization. She gave an amusing pep talk to the session. She was of the opinion that the annual fee of most groups was too small. Her group's fee was $3. Mrs. Dworkin described a tea held in a home in Forest Hill Village, where donations of any amount were "put on the plate". Some were of $50 and even more. This tea was on a Sunday afternoon and included men. Their group raised $35,000 last year.

Several members were interested in the Opportunity Shop in Belleville and Mrs. Mikel explained how it was operated and the use of the Opportunity bags. As far as could be learned it was the only one being operated.

After the discussions were over there were many small groups of women questioning each other and copying ideas in note books and there was a general interest shown in planning for interesting new ways of raising funds.

Woman of Year Mrs. Nora Arnold Plans Holiday

Prince Rupert, B.C., Dec. 15.—(CP)—Civic responsibilities ended Canada's 1948 woman of the year in planning a holiday.

Mrs. Nora Arnold, mayor of this Northern British Columbia port city, didn't seek re-election this year for the chief magistrate's post.

"Instead she's going back to England next spring for the first time since she left intending a six-month visit to her brother. That visit made her relatively a school teacher's bride, business woman, alderman, mayor and Canada's top woman of the year.

While she doesn't plan any further excursions with civic life, close friends say they would not be surprised to see her back in it again after she rests a bit during her trip.

One said, "I don't think Nora will be satisfied for long with humdrum semi-retirement."

Mrs. Arnold will visit with friends in Ontario and make some other calls before flying to England.

Sailing "is too slow for me," she said. "I want to spend the time visiting—not traveling."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

CRUSADE AGAINST USING ABBREVIATION "XMAS"

It's heartening to notice that this year, and indeed for the past several years, there are fewer and fewer cards with "Xmas" on them, both Christmas cards and cards to be enclosed with gifts. That's good news, very good news!

One of the largest publishers of greeting cards wrote me the other day, commenting on my plea for using "CHRISTMAS" and never "Xmas". "We greatly appreciate your words against the use of "Xmas". I assure you that not one of our cards would ever carry that abbreviation."

Another Christmas card publisher writes: "For fifteen or twenty years we have stressed in our monthly house magazine, which goes out to about five or six thousand dealers every month, the hope that the word 'Xmas' would never be used again. You have given me cause for thought in the idea that possibly we can get in touch with our fellow publishers in the hope that we can convince them that they too should drop that abbreviation.

And did you read too that the president and editor of one of the large Western newspapers issued an order to writers on the paper, forbidding the use of "Xmas" in news stories instead of "Christmas"? And the advertising department of the newspaper has been instructed to endeavor to keep "Xmas" out of advertising and try to convince advertisers furnishing copy with "Xmas" in it to change to "Christmas".

Why should we ever abbreviate such a sacred and beautiful word as Christmas? Surely all of us, - designers, publishers, printers, writers, buyers, . . have time to give full honor to this good and great word, Let's all join the crusade against "Xmas" . . and for CHRISTMAS!

CHRISTMAS ANNOUNCEMENT - NEW YEAR'S CELEBRATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I. I am going to announce my engagement on Christmas Day. I will receive my engagement ring privately, but I would like some sort of celebration for the occasion. Since both of us would like all of our friends to share in our happiness, we would invite many guests. A party for so many would be too expensive for me. So could my parents hold an "Open House," say from 4 to 7 o'clock Would it be permissible to have this on New Year's Day, a week after the actual announcement?

2. Should we wait until the day after the engagement-announcement to send out the invitations?

3. Would it be proper for my parents to send informal printed invitations? If so, how should they read?

A. L.

1. Yes, quite correct to have the party to celebrate your engagement on New Year's Day, a week after the engagement is made public.

2. Yes.

3. Not printed invitations, please! Best form is for your mother to send out Tea invitations, on her cards or on informals with the name and address either engraved or written on the front page. Inside write:

Tea
New Year's Day
4 to 7 o'clock

(Or, instead of "Tea," write "At Home" or "Open House").

It makes no difference if the mother must lie to her child about the facts of is birth. It is conceivable that the natural question of a child as to where its father is—a question that might be asked very early in its life—might have to be answered by saying that the father is dead or away. One could hardly expect to do anything other than give the child the simplest possible answer before he is old enough to take in any involved facts. Moreover, if the child is a highly nervous and sensitive type, it might be necessary for his own good to temper the facts all his life. But that would be something to take up with whomever was chosen to be consulted in the matter, as mentioned before.

The final question about how the child is likely to react when it learns the truth, has already been more or less answered. How any given individual will react to a shock is largely unpredictable, particularly in the case of a young person. But nothing of this kind should ever be broken to a girl or boy without the mother having carefully prepared herself beforehand to do it as gently and as wisely as possible.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Serious Problem

Unmarried girls who have not been wise enough to live up to their true standards of conduct and, as a result, have found themselves faced with the problem of a child born out of wedlock have even more difficulties ahead of them than they may at first realize.

The sort of thing I mean reveals itself in the following letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

Will you answer these questions for me?

"I'm a girl ever able to live down the disgrace of having a child born out of wedlock? Won't the child be branded when it grows up? What are the effects on a child that is raised without the companionship of a father? Will the mother have to lie to the child about its real disgrace, and how will the child react when it learns the truth?"

Before I begin to suggest possible answers to these questions for you—and I cannot say in too emphatically—that whether or not a child is to be told that he was born out of wedlock, and when he should be told, if he is to be told at all, depends entirely upon the individual circumstances of the case. Some children, if they are told the facts wisely, suffer no emotional harm; others may be so damaged emotionally that their whole life can be ruined.

For this reason, no general rules can be laid down for handling such a situation. The only thing that a mother of such a child can do is wait until the child seems to be of an age when he can think and reason, and be helped to understand, and then for the mother to talk over with the family doctor, a psychiatrist, or a clergyman the question of whether or not the child should be told and if so, how the situation should be presented to him.

As for the individual questions asked in the above letter, I would say, first, that a girl can certainly live down the disgrace of having an illegitimate child just as she can live down any other serious mistake, depending entirely on what sort of a person she decides to make of herself. If she acts and thinks, so that she becomes a girl of fine, steady character, she will win people's respect no matter what she has done previously.

As for the second question, children born out of wedlock today are "branded" only by ignorant and unintelligent people. Most adults in these times fully understand that it is not the child, but the parents, who are illegitimate, and do not make the mistake of condemning a boy or girl for the mistake of its mother and father.

The third question concerns the effects on a child who is reared without the companionship of a father. The answer to that is obvious. There are vast numbers of children who have been robbed of their fathers either by death or divorce, and who have been brought up successfully by the one parent left to them. If the mother is the right kind of person, the child need suffer no ill effects.

The writer of the letter then asks:

"Is there a way I can tell her mother to let her child about the facts of life?"

THE STORY OF THE SAVIOR

Souls in Anticipation

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

There was in the days of Herod, King of Judea, a priest named Zacharias. He and his wife, Elizabeth, were childless; she being barren. And they both were old. (Luke 1:5, 6, 7.)

One day an angel appeared to Zacharias, saying, "Thy wife shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John. And he shall . . . make ready a people prepared for the Lord." (Luke 1:11, 13, 17.)

Six months later the same angel (Gabriel) appeared in the town of Nazareth to Elizabeth's young cousin Mary; who was betrothed to a man named Joseph. (Luke 1:26, 27.)

The angel told Mary she had found favor with God and would bring forth a son who would be called Jesus. "He shall be great and shall be called the Son of the Highest." (Luke 1:27, 32.)

Fashion Flashes

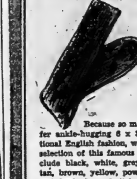
THAT WONDER fabric, nylon, now appears in attractive, dressy, easy-to-care-for bags. Jacquard nylon taffeta is used for a softly gathered pouch on a knobbed gold metal frame. Lining is nylon, too!

IN THE GRAND MANNER, evening dresses appear to be holding their own, especially at gala events—opera premieres and such. Black velvet cutouts in an intricate scrolled design are appliqued on the bodice and full skirt of black net to make for an exquisite gown. The bodice has a softly curved, softly dipping V neckline and cap sleeves, and is posed over flesh colored net.

GOING OVER in a big way with the girl who likes the look of the evening dress, is the short wool evening coat. Black wool is used for a handsome coat that is encrusted with big sequins on the bodice and sleeves. It is lined with white satin.

GLITTER, handled discreetly, marks many of the new evening gloves. Black antelope is used for an elbow-length glove, studded all the way up with tiny floral cutouts, ofwhich with net and centred with a tiny sequin. Gloves are hand sewn.

AFTER MANY SEASONS of eclipse the corde handbag is making a slow but sure return, both along favorite lines and also in new designs. In the latter category, corde is used for a covered box bag with sides of simulated tortoise shell. Double top handles.



NICE AND COZY outlook for hands, come blustery cold weather, now that the old wool glove has undergone all sorts of transformations. Something new is a handknitted and crocheted wool muff glove. It is worn as a gauntlet, the cuffs wired to stand up. The cuffs can be reversed to form a muff with hand crocheted little wrist cuffs.

Tabernacle United Church W.A. Holds Candlelight Service

The December meeting of the Tabernacle United Church W.M.S. was held in the church parlor, on Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. William Harrison, presiding.

Mrs. G. Brickman read the minutes of the November meeting, and roll call was answered by 24 members. There were six visitors present, who were cordially welcomed. Mrs. Paul gave the treasurer's report, and Mrs. A. D. Archibald, as secretary of Christian Stewardship, told the financial story of the year, and stressed the need of every envelope of every member being turned in before the New Year. The Temperance secretary, Mrs. A. H. Fisher, called on Mrs. Farnsworth, a visitor, to give a short talk on temperance. Twenty-four calls were reported to the Community Friendship secretary, Mrs. T. Skegg.

The new slate of officers which was presented by Mrs. A. H. Fisher, was accepted as read upon the suggestion of Mrs. F. R. Hasbeck.

Prior to the devotional period entitled "Worshipping the Christ Child", which was presented by Miss Myrtle Johns and her group No 1, a prelude of Christmas music was rendered by Mrs. R. P. Duff which included the Christmas carol entitle Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night". As the carol "O Come All Ye Faithful" was sung, a candle for the story of the annunciation, told by Mrs. C. Hogle, was lit. Next followed the candle of birth during the rendition of "Holy Night, Silent Night" with its accompanying story told by Mrs. H. Woodward.

"The First Noel" was then sung and a candle was lighted, and the story of the shepherds told by Mrs. T. Skegg.

Mrs. G. Brickman, Mrs. A. Miller, and Mrs. L. Robinson, dressed in the traditional garb of the three Kings of the Orient with gold crowns sang. "We Three Kings of Orient Are", and Mrs. William Baird lighted the candle of the Wise Men, and told their story. This was followed by the hymn of consecration, "Take My Life and Let It Be", and the candle of consecration lighted by Miss Johns.

With the singing of "O Come Let Us Adore Him, Christ The Lord", brought the words of "The Christ Child", very near to all hearts present, and closed the meeting.

Women's Activities

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE

The December meeting of the C.W.L. was held Monday evening with Mrs. R. Doyle presiding.

The president thanked all who had given so generously of their time, in helping to make the bazaar of Nov. 24, such a success.

The meeting voted unanimously to give Rev. Sister Mary Lenore $100 for her Science room in John Street High School.

All members are enthusiastic about the study club period, and which will be reported on at the next meeting by Mrs. Helen Barrett.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Burley, are the committee in charge of buying and wrapping gifts for the hospital patients for the Christmas season.

The C.W.L. would be interested in securing names of any Catholic D.P.'s who are working in the city, and who, so far have not been contacted by the organization. This information could be telephoned to Mrs. K. Doyle, Isabel Street.

The president took great pleasure in being able to announce that a Brownie Pack will be organized at St. Michael's school the first of the New Year. Mrs. Bell will be in charge of this project and will have the loyal support of all parents.

Mrs. Mabel Fitzpatrick, John Street, convener for the Red Cross, would appreciate hearing from any member of St. Michael's who might be interested in sewing for the Red Cross room. This appeal is urgent and all felt that perhaps some newcomers to the city might like to give some of their time to this needy cause.

In reporting the bridge euchre tournaments, Mrs. Leo Callaghan gave the set-up for the presentation of prizes at the final party. At present the euchre players number 36, and the bridge 56, and all will continue to play with euchre bridge prizes added at the beginning of the year.

It was noted the membership of this subdivision is now 450.

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

All answered roll call by a Christmas experience.

Mrs. A. Reid had charge of the next part of the meeting. She called several ladies to the ball as Santa had left some parcels of clothing for them, but they had to put them on and give a fashion show. It was much enjoyed by all. The prizes were won by Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Denyes.

There was an exchange of gifts from a heavily loaded Christmas tree.

Mrs. Chalmers Sr., was then asked to do the honor of pouring tea from a table which was beautifully decorated with a lovely lace cloth, holly and red candles.

The lunch committee and hostess served refreshments topped with ice cream.

Christmas greetings were exchanged and thanks expressed for the fine meeting.

It was decided to send Christmas cards to the shut-ins. The secretary, Mrs. Parsons, read her report for the year. The treasurer, Mrs. J. Mills, expected that the allocation of $300 would be well met. Reports were also given by the "Home Helpers", "Gleaned Today and "Library", "Welcome and Welfare" and supplies.

Mrs. Mantis read a Christmas meditation on the text "Lo the Bridegroom and He will save us". All joined in singing several Christmas carols with Mrs. Parry at the piano.

Clock Shouldn't Set Baby's Feeding Time

London — (CP) — Don't feed baby by the clock, says Dr. R. S. Illingworth, professor of child health at Sheffield University.

Writing in the British Medical Journal, Dr. Illingworth said clock feeding presupposes that babies are not individuals, but are all alike.

"Even if one does not go all the way in allowing complete freedom for the baby to choose its feed times, one should certainly advise the mother to use considerably elasticity in the feeding schedule," Dr. Illingworth wrote.

"She should not waken the child for a feed."

Holloway Street W.A. Holds Meeting in Christmas Setting

Holloway Street Church Sunday school rooms were attractive and inviting on Wednesday afternoon to the members and friends of the Women's Association, when they met for their last meeting of the year.

The tables were decorated in keeping with the festive season, one at hand, for the mid-day luncheon which had been planned by the executive and Mrs. E. Ricketts' group.

Small Christmas trees, some lighted, others frosted and shining met the eye from various angles. In the centre of one table was seen a group of cherubs in lace hats and gowns, flanked by candles in green holders; while on another table, was a popcorn man and snowman, and decorations made from jujube, causing one to wonder what kept them "stuck". Every where were evergreens and candles, brightly burning, emphasizing the coming of Christmas.

Mrs. A. Campbell, the president, welcomed members, friends, and visitors, and extended thanks to the ladies and co-leaders for their help and work in making everything so pleasant. Carols led by Mrs. R. Bell with Mrs. Downing at the piano. Secretarial reports were read and were gratifying.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. E. Ricketts for her successful convenership of the bazaar. It was decided to send Christmas gifts to the shut-ins, also that a donation be sent to the Girls' Work Board of the C.G.I.T. Mrs. Johns reported that a number of cards had been sent to the sick and bereaved. The Rev. C. A. Perkins called on the convener of the nominating committee, Mrs. M. B. Weese for her report, and Mrs. Perkins moved a vote of appreciation to the committee for the hard work and success for the full slate of officers.

Mrs. E. Ricketts, group leader, took charge of the worship period. Mrs. W. Symons led in prayer, and Mrs. Van Ostrum read the Christmas story, "It was Just as God Came", there would be no church, no school, no hospital; no orphanage, and no Christmas. Since Jesus came, all these things are.

A vote of thanks and appreciation was extended by Mrs. C. Johns to Mrs. Ricketts and her group; and also to Mrs. W. Oliphant for her lovely decorations and the effort which had been put forth by all to make the afternoon so pleasant.

Contact Club Holds Annual Christmas Party

Wednesday evening the Contact Club of Christ Church brought another successful year to a close when thirty-four members gathered in the rectory for their annual Christmas Party with the members enjoying games, contests, charades and the singing of Christmas carols.

Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Sparling and her co-hostesses, Mary Colling, Bess Clarke, Mary Kells, Helen Lennox, Molly Symons and Irene Swaine.

Margaret Shappee, president, thanked the Rev. and Mrs. J. Grant Sparling for again opening their home to the Contact Club too small. Her group's fee was $3. Best and Eleanor Smith, the conveners, for the evening.

Editorial Staff of Three Produces Oldest Newspaper in the World

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 15. (CP)— In an office tucked away behind the department stores that line Oxford Street in the fashionable West End, an editorial staff of three produces twice weekly the oldest newspaper in the world.

It is the London Gazette, which has just celebrated its 304th year of continuous publication.

Though the circulation rarely tops 1,600 the paper has a reading public that makes even the Times of London envious. Special copies are hurried from the presses to Buckingham Palace; others are flown to embassies and consulates throughout the world.

The head of every government is a regular reader of the close-printed pages of the Gazette, officially the "appointed organ for all announcements of the executive."

Its most important stories are official announcements emanating from such places as the war office or St. James's Palace.

Twice a year the Gazette scoops the world on the King's Honors Lists. The new year and birthday lists sometimes are in the little office off Oxford Street as much as a month ahead of the day of publication. Editors and printers are sworn to secrecy.

It was a King's dread of the Plague which accounted for the first publication of the Gazette.

In the autumn of 1665, Charles II moved his court from Westminster to Oxford to avoid the rampant disease which was killing hundreds daily in London. Tired of getting his news from the capital by word of mouth, Charles decided he should have a newspaper.

He was afraid to have copies of either the News or the Intelligencer —current London news sheets—sent to him for fer. they would bear the contamination of the Plague.

So he ordered an Oxford printer to bring out a paper. It was called the Oxford Gazette and ran three months before Charles ventured back to London. Diarist Samuel Pepys wrote of it: "It is very pretty, full of news, and no folly in it."

Publication was resumed in London and to this day, anyone must agree there still is "no folly in it."

On her shoulders rest the health problems of more than 600 nomadic Eskimos scattered over an area of hundreds of thousands of square miles and centred on Coppermine, NWT. She is Mrs. Emile Dufresne, nurse with the Department of National Health. Last spring when whole population was stricken with influenza — even Mrs. Dufresne herself — she visited every house, tent and igloo.

MEDICAL

"I went out about noon and then saw this big room full of charred bodies, many with arms and legs burned off. I chose a body — A13, which appeared to me to be an easy body to identify — and started to work."

Extensive use of X-rays as a means of identification was introduced. Never before had so many victims of such tragedies been identified by this means—and not in any previous comparable disaster had so many persons been burned so badly.

A total of 491 men and women died in the Cocoanut Grove night club fire in Boston Nov. 28, 1942, but most of those victims were caught in the panicky rush to exits, trapped in revolving doors. Death was largely due to suffocation. Identification was comparatively easy, as it was in the Ringling-Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus fire at Hartford, Conn., July 16, 1944, when 168 persons died under the big top. Identification of the Noronic victims was made this way:

Pathologists measured the remains from the top of the head to the symphysis pubis, lower part of the abdomen. This measurement averages 35 per cent of a female's height and 52 per cent of a male's. Dentists made charts and inspected dentures. Finally, X-rays were taken which, says Dr. Robinson, "was a remarkable piece of work."

X-Ray Pictures Taken

At least 10 X-ray pictures were taken of every body in the Charnel-house that was the Canadian National Exhibition flower building in use as a central morgue. Films were rushed to hospitals for development. Doctors and technicians worked over the films day and night.

X-ray records of persons believed to have been aboard the ship —all but one of those who died were from the United States— came into Toronto by train, by plane and by automobile. Over a teletype hook-up with Detroit and Cleveland flashed complex medical symbols. Patiently, the men in white bent over their tables in the room of death and checked the records against the record of the big X-ray machines.

Says Dr. Robinson:

"Most of the evidence supplied by autopsies, dental work, etc., was circumstantial and the release of a death certificate was virtually impossible. But with the X-ray findings, identification was complete.

"The medical profession has learned a lot from this experience."

RECOMMEND VENDING MACHINES FOR PROPHYLACTICS

Geneva, Dec. 15.— (AP) — A joint expert committee of the World Health Organization and the International Labor office recommended today that coin-operated vending machines for prophylactics be installed aboard all merchant ships as a measure against venereal disease among crew members. The committee is studying means of improving the hygiene of seafarers.

Nothing Criminal In Collapse of Housing Scheme

Toronto, Dec. 15. (CP)—Judge Ian Macdonnell has found insufficient evidence to warrant criminal prosecution in the collapse of the Pelmo Park housing project here in which investors lost some $93,500 in down payments.

The judge's report, released Wednesday by Attorney-General Dana Porter, held out little hope for the investors. Many put their life savings into the 84-house building project started by youthful Norman Kershaw of Toronto.

Judge Macdonnell said it would establish a "dangerous precedent" for the Ontario government to aid the finishing of uncompleted houses in any way. He said he doubted whether anything could be salvaged through bankruptcy proceedings.

The project started on the outskirts of suburban Weston in August, 1948, with the building of six homes on Pelmo Crescent and later was expanded. Some homes were practically completed but the majority had only the foundations dug. Through an arrangement with an insurance company (Canada Life) another builder is finishing those near completion. Three recommendations

Three recommendations were made by Judge Macdonnell.

The first was that proper financial information should be obtained in large National Housing Act projects at the offset and irom time to time as the project extends.

Secondly, the meaning of a certain section of the Mechanics' Lien Act should be clarified. It states that all sums received by a builder or contractor should be constituted as a trust fund for payment of wages and material and must not be converted to the personal use of the builder or contractor.

Thirdly, that the qualifications of Fred Madill, sales manager for Kershaw, to hold a real estate agents' licence should be reviewed by the registrar of the Real Estate and Business Brokers' Act.

Madill, the judge found, was the only individual who benefited from the operation, receiving a total of $6,000 in commissions.

Kershaw was described as "an incorrigible optimist," without any knowledge of financing or accounting.

Fans Undecided Who Got Better Of Baseball Deal

New York, Dec. 15. (AP) — Baseball's biggest transaction in years—the New York-Brooklyn deal that involved upwards of $500,000 in talent—had buzzing bystanders asking today:

"Who got the better of the trade, the Giants or the Braves?"

In a spectacular 11th-hour swap, the Braves sent their double play combination of shortstop Alvin Dark and second baseman Eddie Stanky in exchange for outfielder Sid Gordon, Willard Marshall, shortstop Buddy Kerr and pitcher Sam Webb.

This swap easily overshadowed three other big league trades, the most important of which sent St. Louis second baseman Gerry Priddy to Detroit for $100,000. The Browns acquired pitcher Lou Kretlow in addition to the bundle of cash.

Priddy's sale added more than $200,000 to the Browns exchequer since late Tuesday night the club collected in excess of $100,000 plus four players from Philadelphia Athletics for third baseman Bob Dillinger.

In a couple of other deals the Athletics traded third baseman Hank Majeski to Chicago White Sox for relief pitcher Ed Klieman, and St. Louis Cardinals required Harry Walker in exchange for flychaser Ron Northey and utility infielder Lou Klein. The Cards are to get another player from the minors at a future date.

Some Say Braves

Lovers of power and punch are on the belief that the Braves got the better of the Big National League deal. They point out that in Sid Gordon and Marshall the Giants sent a pair of sluggers who hit 38 home runs between them in 1949 for a pair who collected only four. Gordon blasted 26-round trippers, Marshall, 12, Dark three and Stanky one. Kerr had none.

Advocates of the fast-fielding, beady hit and run type of athlete think the Giants got the edge. They point out that despite the 169 home runs hit by the Gordon-Marshall duo during their five years with the club the Giants could finish no higher than third. Three times they finished in the second division.

On the other hand, the Braves won a pennat and finished fourth in the last two years that Stanky and Dark played with them.

Durocher certainly will shed no tears over the departure of Kerr and Marshall — and vice versa. The fiery Giant skipper has maintained since practically the first day he took over the club that the hard-hitting right-fielder and classy-fielding shortstop were not his type of, ball players.

Seek New Uses For Rare Metal

Montreal — (CP) — Wanted: a new use for indium, a rare, white metal that is being produced in Canada in commercial quantities for the first time.

The metal — quoted as $2.25 an ounce on world markets — is being refined from the lead-and-zinc ores of the Sullivan mine at Tadanac, B.C.

Its only uses at present are in certain types of dental work, as a non-tarnishing plating agent and on motor bearings. During the war, when indium was worth $14 an ounce, it was used to coat airplane engine bearings.

One of the possible uses suggested by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company engineers, who hope through research to broaden the metal's field of utility, is as an acid-resistant solder. The soft, ductile indium, which looks like tin, is practically non-corrosive.

Indium was discovered as one of the elements 85 years ago. For most of that time it was a laboratory curiosity until about 1930 when a company in the United States began to use it as a non-tarnishing coating for silver wars.

Presence of indium in Consolidated's Sullivan ores had long been known but only recently has it been recovered in commercial quantities by a tedious and complicated process. Refining of one ounce represents treatment of large quantities of ore.

Now the company's engineers are hoping that indium — like aluminum whose price dropped in 80 years from $140 to 17 cents a pound as wider uses brought greater demand — will become more useful and cheaper through research and development.

So I figure I get two months of smooth, comfortable heat for free, with no furnace to fix, no ashes to haul. The unit's right next to the play room and it's so quiet you wouldn't know it was there. Picturesque Past Of Newfoundland Held in Villages

By RUPERT JACKSON

Tizzard's Harbor, Nfld. — (CP) — The adjective has been overworked but there is no getting away from the fact that Newfoundland is a picturesque land.

The colorful place names alone tell much of the province's history. And in tiny settlements like this north shore village, one finds the typical fishermen of Newfoundland.

Tizzard's Harbor is really two harbors, separated by a cape jutting out into the sea, but the main village is confined to the area around the foreshore of the best of the two.

To get here one must travel by boat, and to enter—the harbor the craft must skirt a small island guarding the entrance. Once past this barrier you can see the entire settlement with one sweeping glance.

Down on the waterfront are the fishing stages and the storerooms of the principal merchant. A winding road separates these from the neat homes of the fishermen, scattered among the grassy patches and rough, jutting rocks.

Compared with some of the others, Tizzard's Harbor is well off for transportation. All summer a boat service connects it with other parts of the coast. But in winter, like everyone else in northern Newfoundland, the settlement's people depend on dogteams.

On a hill looking over the village of 250 inhabitants stands the church.

Old Country Wars

The people themselves are slow to change their ancestral customs. The dog of an old Tizzard's Harbor boat-builder died. The old man rolled the dog over with his foot, remarking: "The best dog died best then!" Freely translated that meant: "You are dead, are you!" the old man was of Quaker stock from the west of England.

But besides customs and accents, areas in which English, Irish and French settled in Newfoundland can be distinguished by the settlement names.

Along the south coast are Bay d'Espoir, Cinq Bay, Isle au Bois and Cape la Hune. Another section of the coast is still called the French shore and contains such settlements as Quirpon, Lance au Meadows, la Scie and Croc.

The Irish settled mainly on the Avalon peninsula. Here one finds Ireland's Eye and Irish Cove.

The English imbued their settlements with such names as Cool All Islands, Turk's Gut, Seal Bay, Mutton Chops, Funk Islands, Guernsey Island, Quiet Goose-berry Island, Maidenhair Island, Dildo Run, Horse Chops and Cat Cove.

Many settlers came to escape the tyranny of 16th century England. Their contentment came out in such names as Heart's Content, Heart's Delight, Paradise and Little Heart's Ease.

Other names reflect a touch of irony. Flower's Cove is situated on a barren rock. Little Harbor Deep is a shallow harbor and Thwart Island was so named because it resembles the seat of a dory.

Says 200 Hooligans Upsetting Cambridge

Cambridge, England — (CP) — Two hundred ex-service undergraduates of Cambridge University were called "vicious and ill-disciplined" by Dr. C. K. Raven of Christ's College.

Dr. Raven, who has just given up the post of vice-chancellor, told a meeting of the Workers' Educational Association:

"I should estimate that in the university as a whole there are somewhere about 200 young men who had better not be there, who seem to be vicious and ill-disciplined — the kind of young men responsible for the hooliganism on Nov. 5 last year.

(Last November students caused considerable damage to university buildings. Cars were overturned in the street and some visitors were injured.)

Dr. Raven said his criticism did not apply to 5,000 students "who are doing good work here."

Parliamentary Offices Moved To Jerusalem

Tel Aviv, Israel, Dec. 15 (AP) —The offices of Israel's president, prime minister and parliament were being moved Wednesday to Jerusalem—beating up the Jewish state's rejection of the United Nations plan to internationalize the Holy City.

The knesset (parliament) closed its Tel Aviv session Tuesday night by voting overwhelmingly for the government's decision to speed the transfer of all offices except the ministries bi foreign affairs and defence to what Prime Minister David Ben Gurion called "Israel's eternal capital."

Ben Gurion avoided on outright proclamation of Jerusalem as Israel's capital, presumably in acknowledgment of advice from United States Ambassador James MacDonald urging against any "inflammatory" action.

But the prime minister told parliament that Israel rejected the U.N. plan for an international regime over Jerusalem. He said "we are continuing with the transfer of the government to Jerusalem and hope to complete it as soon as possible."

Parliament decided to meet in Jerusalem on 10 days.

(At Lake Success, N.Y., the 13-country U. N. Trusteeship Council voted to proceed with plans for trying to set up the framework of an international regime in accordance with the resolution approved by the General Assembly. But some diplomats predicted the Israeli decision to move government offices to Jerusalem may wreck the U. N. Program.

(The United States —which with British support voted in a opposing internationalization during assembly debate — was defeated in a move to delay Trusteeship Council discussions on Jerusalem. The council voted 6 to 1, with five abstaining, to proceed with work on drawing up a plan for international rule of the Holy City.)

Mickey Finn in Egg Snakes Take Snooze

Leingsburg, South Africa — (CP) — Eight snakes have succumbed to the "sleeping pill" technique of farmer A. S. Retzhuizen, who became annoyed when the snakes constantly raided his pigeon roots. He said that if pigeons were sitting on the nests, the snakes would soon be neath the birds and remove the eggs.

Mr. Eriethuizen suffers from insomnia. He took some of his sleeping pills and inserted a powder made from them through a tiny hole in the end of several eggs, covering the hole with wax.

Five mornings in a row, a peaceful slumbering snake was found near the nests and three others have been caught since in the same way.

Crew of Three Sails Slow Boat to Canada

Auckland, N.Z. — (CP) — A small New Zealand schooner with a crew of three is on its way across the Pacific to Canada by way of Papeete and Honolulu.

She is the Te Hongi, owned and sailed by Jacques Markwalder, a Swiss who has done a great deal of ocean sailing in small craft. With him on the voyage are an Australian girl, Valda Borchill, and a New Zealander, John Parcel.

They will make a leisurely voyage to the Canadian west coast and expect to take several months on the journey. Mr. Markwalder plans to return to New Zealand in about a year's time.

Mr. Markwalder lost his last boat, the Tronhjheim, at Pitcairn Island in 1944 and later bought the Te Hongi in New Zealand. Built in 1933, the Te Hongi is well suited for ocean cruising and has twice competed in the 1,200-mile Tasman yacht race between New Zealand and Australia.

Mayor McCallum Asked to Give up Time on Air

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum said Wed., that he has been asked to give up his weekly 15-minute broadcasts over the CBC's station CJBC here for the last two Sundays of this year.

The mayor is seeking re-election in municipal voting Jan. 2. He said a message he received from the CBC suggested that he relinquish his time in view of the election.

He has not yet decided whether to switch the broadcast to an independent station.

The mayor, who has broadcast regularly for two years, said he had intended to use his time Christmas Sunday to send greetings to the citizens and to have music played for the rest of the period. He had planned to devote the New Year's Day broadcast to an appeal for every eligible citizen to vote the following day and to an outline of the city's progress during 1949.

AWARDED DAMAGES

Toronto, Dec. 15 — (CP)—Mrs. Kathleen Irwin of Toronto was awarded $1,000 damages Wednesday for pain and suffering caused by a hair-dye treatment.

She told a county court jury she spent 18 days in hospital following treatment by W. T. Pember Stores, Ltd., here.

Dr. Raymond C. Smith testified the 45-year-old widow was "scarcely recognizable as a human being" when he first examined her.

Mrs. Irwin said she had to be led to the hospital, so severe was the irritation and swelling of her face and head.

W. T. Pember Tuesday said Mrs. Irwin was given treatments at the Pember store before her permanent wave to eliminate 'acid in her system.'

Killaloe is Tiny Makes News Daily

Toronto — (CP) — Why Killaloe?

That's what people ask the Toronto meteorological office when they notice the small backwoods village, 85 miles west of Ottawa, included in the daily weather forecasts.

One of the most frequent queries put to Dr. C. D. Howe, superintendent of public weather forecasts, runs like this: "How does Killaloe, with a population of only about 190, rate daily reporting when Kidds Corners with more than 1,000, doesn't even get an occasional mention?"

The old German settlement — pronounced Kill-ah-loo — obtained its weather station more or less by accident.

About 10 years ago, when Trans-Canada Air Lines was setting up a string of emergency landing strips, Killaloe was chosen and a weather station was set up at the airfield, a few miles out of the village.

Three years ago the meteorological division reorganized its forecast regions in Ontario and included the Haliburton region. Getting about for a station to be used as representative of the region, the weathermen chose Killaloe.

Local conditions, topography, drainage and other conditions were found to be just about what was wanted. Hourly readings, given more often in times of changing conditions, seemed just the ticket.

And that's how little Killaloe got into the weather report along with Montreal, Winnipeg and the other big places.

Kennedy Claims Farmers Should Make a Gift

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario said today the province's farmers should make a gift of their surplus food to Britain if the United Kingdom cannot afford to pay for it.

In an interview, Mr. Kennedy was commenting on the dismal picture of 1950 Anglo-Canadian food contracts given in House of Commons Wednesday by Agriculture Minister Gardiner. The Federal Minister said no contracts were sighted for bacon, eggs, salmon and apples.

"This means a tremendous loss to Ontario farmers," said Mr. Kennedy. "We were shut out of profits during the war. We could not get any cream, but had to take skim milk, so to speak, when the war was on, but we were assured of a floor price after the war. Now not only is a floor price denied, but there's no price at all."

He suggested Ontario farmers give their food surpluses to Britain for her contributions to mankind during the last 200 years.

Kingsley Brown, editor of the Rural Co-operator, said in an interview that pressure used against the federal government by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association "has worked to the disadvantage," of Canadian farmers in the loss of U.K. food contracts.

He said the C.M.A. is using its influence to stop sales of British goods to Canada which would give Britain more dollars to buy Canadian produce.

Chief Says Girl Will Not Receive Police Protection

Joliette, Que., Dec. 15—(CP)—Police Chief Valmore Lapierre of this Laurentian town said today that two girl Witnesses of Jehovah would receive no police co-operation if they attempted to continue operations on behalf of the sect in Joliette.

In Montreal Wednesday night, the girls said they had been "kidnapped" by a group of 15 to 20 men who drove them to Montreal and attempted to have them jailed.

The police chief said he would protect the girls, Winnifred Parsons and Olive Lundell, if they returned to pick up personal belongings, but added that they were not welcome to stay.

"Officially," said Police Chief Lapierre, "I know nothing about the case."

"But I do know that the local population is irate over the two girls. They have been here since the spring. This community is 99 per cent Roman Catholic. People are sick and tired of these girls going from door to door and trying to read the Bible to people.

"No case has ever been made against them. They have never been impolite but they have been imposing on people. If they come back I will give them protection to get their belongings. I am certainly not going to provide a constable for their protection against molestation 2 hours a day in their door-to-door canvassing."

Asbestos Miners Given Wage Rise Of 10 Cents Hour

Montreal, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Asbestos miners of three Thetford Mines, Que., firms have been awarded a 10-cents-an-hour pay increase but denied re-institution of the Rand formula, it was shown today in the report of a Quebec labor arbitration board which inquired into their dispute.

The miners, members of the Federation of Asbestos Workers (Canadian and Catholic Congress of Labor) went on strike Feb. 18 with miners at Asbestos, Que., to enforce demands for a 18-cents-an-hour increase, renewal of the Rand formula and other privileges. The basic rate was 85 cents an hour.

The Rand formula calls for a check-off of union dues at source by all employees in a plant.

Copies of the report were mailed to parties concerned by the Quebec Labor department.

Under the Quebec labor laws the arbitration board report is not binding on either party. The majority report was signed by Judge Thomas Tremblay, Quebec, and Raymond Caron, who represented the Asbestos Corporation, Flintkote Mines and Johnson Mines. The union representative on the board, Theodore Lesperance, dissented in a minority report.

The Thetford Mines miners returned to work four months after the walkout which was marked by violence, police beatings and mass arrests at Asbestos, Que. There were no disturbances at Thetford mines where 2,500 miners were involved.

Mental Hospital Will be Opened At Aurora

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)—Ontario Health Minister Kelley said today a new children's mental hospital will be opened at Aurora, by March 1, 1950. The new hospital will take 250 boys from the provincial institution at Orillia.

This, the minister said, would create room at Orillia for 250 cases now requiring hospital care. The new hospital will be devoted entirely to boys.

Sites for two new mental hospitals in the province's $35,000,000 building program will be announced Jan. 15. One is expected to be built at Fort William.

Mr. Kelley said he would make an inspection tour of sites at Sudbury, Kirkland Lake, Timmins, North Bay and Cochrane, for the second.

Will Not Suspend Rent Increases Until Court Ruling

Ottawa, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott said today he is not prepared to suspend rent increases until the supreme court of Canada rules on the federal government's right to administer rent controls.

Commenting on a proposal for such a postponement by Premier Duplessis of Quebec, Mr. Abbott indicated he did not consider Mr. Duplessis' stand any departure from that taken previously.

The supreme court, he said, was not deciding whether the province had the right to assume control of rents. It was deciding whether the federal government had that right.

Recently-announced increases of 10 per cent for unheated dwellings and 22 per cent for heated accommodation had been lifted as far as Saskatchewan was concerned, Mr. Abbott said, only on the definite assurance that that province will take over controls next March 31.

Mr. Abbott said he will reply to Mr. Duplessis' telegram "this afternoon" and that copies will be made public later today.

MANITOBA WILL NOT ENTER FIELD RENTAL CONTROL

Province Does Not Propose Step at Present Time, Says Premier

Winnipeg, Dec. 15 (CP) — Manitoba does not propose to enter the field of rent control "at this time," it was announced today.

The information was contained in a letter sent to Finance Minister Abbott by Premier Douglas L. Campbell of Manitoba. The letter was dispatched following a provincial cabinet meeting on the rent problem Wednesday.

Saskatchewan and Alberta have announced intention of stepping into the rent control field. Their action followed announcement by Mr. Abbott recently that rent boosts of 15 to 22 per cent would be permitted effective Dec. 15, today.

Saskatchewan announced its intention of assuming control from next April 1 while Alberta decided to assume charge with a system of rental courts to adjudicate grievances between tenants and landlords.

Premier's Statement

In his letter, Mr. Campbell traced the steps of federal rent control from Sept. 11, 1940 when Ottawa took charge in that field. The premier noted that "the field of rent control has been occupied by the federal government alone, with the consent and approval of all provinces".

He added, "the Manitoba government has not changed its view that wartime rent control and, consequently, decontrol, should be completed by those authorities who have the experience and knowledge as well as staff to complete the process in an orderly manner."

His letter continued, "within the last year all provincer formally expressed their unwillingness to enter the field of rent control. Manitoba at that time stated, 'we are of the unanimous opinion that, as matters stand at present, the whole subject of rent control should be left for the exclusive consideration, attention, etc., of the Dominion of Canada authorities.' 200 Unemployed Recall Hungry 30's in Vancouver

Vancouver Dec. 15. (CP) — Vancouver's "hungry '30s" where recalled Wednesday as 200 unemployed men milled around the city hall.

They demanded cash relief, continued Unemployment Insurance benefits and 50-per-cent increase in Unemployment Insurance. They opposed soup kitchens.

Mayor Charles Thompson said that unemployment is not a municipal responsibility, but that their four-point plan of action will be studied by city council.

The plan was presented to the mayor by a 12-man group representing the unemployment action committee. It calls for cash relief for all unemployed workers not receiving unemployment insurance, pending a public works program; lengthened credit for those on insurance; a 50 percent increase in insurance rates and no charity soup kitchens.

Frankford Forms District Hockey Association

Frankford—A weekend meeting of the Frankford District Hockey League was held in the office of the E. G. Lohnes Insurance Agency. Only four teams were represented, and it seems quite probable that only four teams will be participating this year. If so, it will be of advantage to the active clubs, since it will mean two games every week, instead of two one week, and one the next as was the case last year. Teams who have entered the league are Bethel-Zion Comblines, Foxboro, Wallbridge and Frankford. The first games, weather permitting, will be a double header on Tuesday night December 27, when Wallbridge and Frankford tangle in the first game, with Foxboro and Bethel-Zion meeting in the nightcap. Besides the representatives of the teams, Earl Bonisteel and Jack Farley were present, representing the rink committee.

BUILD 30 SMALL SHIPS FOR RUSSIA

Rome, Dec. 15—(Reuters)—The Italian government has given permission to Italian shipyards to build 30 small ships for Russia, Giovanni Battista Bertone, Minister of Industry and Foreign Trade, disclosed today.

ernment also recognizes that the federal government is only part way through the process of decontrol.

"In view of the foregoing our government is of the opinion that we should not interfere with the federal government program of decontrol and therefore does not propose to enter this field at this time.

Duplessis Asks Postponement Rent Increases

Quebec, Dec. 15. (CP)— Premier Duplessis announced today that he has asked Finance Minister Abbott for postponement of the recently-authorized rent increases until the Supreme Court of Canada decides on the validity of Federal Rent Controls.

Mr. Duplessis said he had advised the finance minister that the Province of Quebec will step in if the Supreme Court decides that rent control is a provincial matter.

The Federal Government has authorized rental increases of 15 and 22 percent, depending on the type of accommodation. Landlords were authorized to give notice of increases to their tenants today. At the same time the Federal Government announced it was submitting the question of validity of rent controls to the highest court in Canada.

Mr. Duplessis said this morning he had made his plans known to Mr. Abbott in a telegram yesterday.

The premier told Mr. Abbott that if the court decides rent control is a provincial matter, the Quebec Government, without delay, will take steps to establish a system and an organization "able to meet all needs and give justice to all"

Wildcat Strike In Power Plants Flares to Life

London, Dec. 15. —(AP)— A three-day wildcat strike in state-owned power plants flared back to life today hours after it appeared settled.

The 2,700 strikers voted this morning to resume work today, with nothing gained from their wage protest.

But workers at three of the four coal-burned plants failed to go back as scheduled.

The electricity authority had posted notices telling the men they were returning "unconditionally." Strikers said the word was too broad and they would go back only "under terms existing" before the walkout.

The strike was over a disputed 44c (about 31 cents) a man a week, but it caused rush hour jam-ups on London subways and left thousands of households with two little current for cooking and eating.

The pay claim will continue in negotiation.

The strike collapsed because troops maintained partial production, good weather cut demand for current and other workers refused to support the strike, which was denounced in statements by union leaders.

The break came this morning when 1,500 strikers at the Barking Station, Europe's biggest, decided to heed a back-to-work call by union officials. There were only eight dissenting votes.

Another 1,100 workers at the Brimsdown, Taylor Lane and LittleBrook stations quickly followed suit. Workers at other stations planned to resume work this afternoon.

Drivers Having Easier Time Negotiating Hill

Transport drivers trying to negotiate Murphy Hill on West Bridge Street during an icy or slippery time will have a slightly easier time this winter as result of thoughtfulness on the part of the city Public Works Department.

Frequently during the winter months transports are stuck on the hills and remain stalled until the Public Works Department gets on the job with sanding equipment.

This year, however, in an effort to avoid any more delay than is possible on the part of heavy trucks a pile of sand has been "spotted" at the hill to be used by transport drivers to afford traction for their wheels in the interval before sanding equipment arrives on the scene.

Six Months to Live

By Nancy Garden

As Ann drowsed delightfully in her chair she was suddenly roused from her dreams by the sound of voices. Her eyes were closed and to the gaze of a casual onlooker she was fast asleep. Then a little louder came the high falsetto of Mrs. Tracy, "Miss Lambert doesn't look a scrap like her aunt. You wouldn't believe they were related unless you were told, would you?"

"Oh, well," said the deep tones of Harry Harper's voice were wafted towards Ann, "that's nothing out of the way. Perhaps she takes after the other side of the house."

"There's some mystery about her, isn't there?" continued Mrs. Tracy, and from her honeyed tones, Ann could readily imagine how she was looking at her escort.

"Is there?" parried Harry Harper.

"Why yes," answered Mrs. Tracy. "Her dad never set eyes on her until she came aboard ship. I think that was very strange. How does he know he really is her niece?"

"Oh, you silly woman would she be?"

The speakers passed on. Ann was wide awake now. What did Mrs. Tracy mean? Was she up to anything? Surely that was out of the question. She talked quite frequently to Ann's so called aunt. But there was nothing strange about that. She was always talking to some one. But what might the intimate? Surely Miss Whiting wouldn't listen to any of her suggestions.

The air seemed damp and Ann, picking up her books, walked towards her room. A strange dread filled her heart.

"Well, Mary, you don't seem to care a great deal for Mr. Harper," exclaimed Miss Whiting. "Why don't you give the attentions a little more graciously?" and Miss Whiting smiled good-naturedly.

"Oh, Aunt Margaret, you surely don't want me to!" and there was a note of entreaty in Mary's voice.

"Not if you prefer Mr. Riddell, although I think Mr. Harper's a most interesting man. He's quite an authority on pearls too."

At mention of Jim Riddell's name a little flush had risen in Ann's cheeks, but she replied hastily, "Why, aunt Margaret, I'm not specially interested in any one on board ship."

"Oh then, there's some one at home!" questioned her aunt.

"No, no one," replied her niece.

"Well now that surprises me. I should have thought a girl like you would have lots of beaux."

If only Ann could tell her the truth. "Well Aunt Margaret when there's only one girl in a family and when she has a mother who is as I had, there was a smothered sob in Ann's voice as she finished lamely, "I guess I've been bothered much with outsiders."

"There, there, my child, I guess I'm butting into your affairs again. Old women will make mistakes. However don't mind what I've said. Choose your own friends. It's the only way after all. We old folks sit back and with our accumulated wisdom would pick and choose the companions for the young folks around us. But it doesn't do. Our points of view are not the same—not the same at all."

"Oh, that's all right, aunt Margaret," replied Ann impulsively, "I certainly appreciate that you and I are Mr. Harper's o.k., although there's something about him I just don't like. Perhaps it's my imagination," added Ann who wondered if the quizzical way in which he looked at her had any special significance.

Meanwhile, Miss Harry Harper paced the decks the memory of Mrs. Tracy's words flashed into his mind again. Rather a fascinating woman despite all the sorrows she had undergone for Mrs. Tracy never failed to reveal her marital woes. She was always on hand when a man wanted some feminine companionship. Yet her words, innocent or otherwise, as they might have been, had aroused a new train of thought in Harry Harper's mind. There were the whispered instructions the hurried gestures and then the other red-haired girl disappeared to the crowd the deck soon emptied.

Harry Harper had paid little attention to the remarks at the time. He had been amused at the girls, evidently exchanging confidences in whispered tones, unaware that he was hearing all they said. Now everything came back to him with great significance. Mrs. Tracy's remark that Miss Lambert was not what she pretended to be lingered in his mind. He had learned from Miss Whiting that she was just making the acquaintance of her niece. From her remarks it was evident that she had no suspicion that the girl was any other than her sister's child.

Harry Harper, although a rich man with shining interests in farflung corners of the globe, had not always been in this state of affluence. It was only within the last few years that things had begun to look up with him. There were years that he wished to forget, years that had seen him behind the bars at hard labor—years when he had associated with the dregs of society. He had gotten far beyond them, but some things which he learned then he would never forget.

As he thought again of Miss Whiting's words, he wondered why the other red-haired girl seemed so anxious to leave the boat. Who had ever heard of any one running away from what was evidently a big streak of luck? What was behind ' all and what was the connection between the two girls?

Certainly Mary Lambert, the girl on board ship, was charming. It was unthinkable that she could be associated with any of those creatures who prey upon the voyagers to distant lands. Harper acknowledged to himself that he was crazy about her. But his self could not seem to make much headway. The girl, while polite, was not receptive to his advances. She was mighty different in her treatment of Riddell.

However sudden intimations often passed as quickly as they came. Harper believed he might yet arouse Ann's interest in him. She was a beautiful girl, although at times her eyes looked feverishly bright and the delicate blue veins were outlined on her face. As Harry Harper lit another cigaret he tried to quench the thoughts that would rise in his mind as he remembered the parting words and the expression in the eyes of the other red-haired girl.

Ann was an excellent sailor and the days sped swiftly while she got acquainted with men and women from many different corners of the globe. She wrote to Mary giving her full details of her adventure, carefully addressing her letters to Terry Kelly's office. She did not forget Lucy either for she felt she owed her a great deal. Her aunt was enthusiastic about the clothes that as Ann got accustomed to her bright-colored frocks and hats she wondered how she ever lived in the sober-looking garb that she had selected so long in the office.

Then they reached Panama all was excitement for once more they would go on shore.

"You're coming with us, Miss Lambert, aren't you?" questioned Mrs. Tracy as she fluttered around a group of her chosen friends.—

"I guess so," answered Ann who was trying to see everything. It seemed as though she had indeed settled into an entirely new existence since she had stepped aboard. There were days when she felt she had known the other red-haired girl disappeared to the crowd the deck soon emptied.

"I guess so," answered Ann who was trying to see everything. It seemed as though she had indeed settled into an entirely new existence since she had stepped aboard. There were days when she felt she had known the other ones being. Then suddenly would come the memory of Dr. Symon's verdict, but against that was the judgment of Dr. Wilmot Well, even if she had only a few months to live she was determined not to go around as though the sword ' Damocles were hanging over her. There was a greater zest to living now that the time might be so short.

"Your aunt is looking for you" announced Mrs. Tracy a few minutes later.

"Ah here you are," exclaimed Miss Whiting, "now Mary when we get on shore I think I'll just ,/ to the hotel and wait there till you return from your sight seeing. You know I'm not keen on motoring when I haven't my own car."

"Then I'll stay with you," said Mary.

There was a gleam of triumph in Mrs. Tracy's eyes as Harper and Riddell approached. She had not yet decided to give up her pursuit of the younger man. His very indifference to her winning ways inspired her to greater efforts. But he as far as the hotel I'll do well and I'll see all I want to from my verandahs. This ridiculous child seems to think she must stay and take care of me. Of course I won't allow that, I want her to go."

Mrs. Tracy, glad of the chance to monopolize Jim Riddel chattered so insistently that it was impossible to leave her side until after they landed. But when she rushed to the news stand to get some magazines, Jim turned to Ann. "If you don't want to go with the crowd and do the regular sight-seeing, won't you let me be your pilot? I know a nice neighborhood well and I'd show you everything worthwhile."

"Oh, I'd love it," answered Ann.

"All right, let's go when the going's good," Jim whispered as he grasped Ann's arm.

There was a laughing twinkle in his eye, "You'd think we were kids cutting class," said Ann. "I'm sure we'll have far more A.n than the others will," she added as the motors began to hum

"Sure we will," Riddell answered. "Now we're going to walk along the street for a block or two. You won't be tired will you?" Jim turned to Ann and there was a hint of anxiety in his voice.

"Of course not, I'll be glad to walk. You know it pays thing to know that you can only go so many feet in one direction when you're on board ship."

"Right-o."

Together the couple sauntered along the street, stopping wherever Ann desired, for everything was new and strange to her, and Jim was a delightful guide.

"Now I think we'd better have some lunch. What sort ot atmosphere do you crave?"

"Oh, something quite different from what I'm accustomed to at home."

"All right, princess. You don't mind if it's decidedly picturesque do you."

"Why no, the more so the better."

Mr. John Kent of the Hill-Clark-Francis project, at Parry Sound, was a week-end visitor at his home, in Shannonville.

Miss Betty Mastin, nurse-in-training at the Belleville General Hospital, was a Sunday guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mastin.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keirl, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vivian, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grills.

The service in Holy Trinity Anglican Church will be held this Sunday in the afternoon at 3 p.m. A very interesting meeting was held on this occasion.

Shannonville School Notes

Last Monday evening the pupils of the senior room had an enjoyable attendance party at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Phillips, Sidney Avenue, Belleville. The Rev. R. M. Powell, conveyed the small members of ten in his car.

The children enjoyed a number of games. In "Musical Elimination" Ruth Milburn and Lorne Brant emerged the winners. "Sly Wink" proved a popular game, while the "Memory" contest taxed the brains of a great number.

Refreshments were served at 9.30 p.m., after which some of the children visited a school nearby which is being constructed.

Mr. Carman Brant conveyed a number of guests home in his truck and Mr. Caldwell took the remainder.

The boys are now practising for hockey on the river with the hope of a school rink in the near future.

All are busy practising for the school concert on the 21st in the local Orange Hall.

The Home and School Association held their final meeting of the year in the senior room of the local school on Friday evening, Dec. 9th.

Christmas carols were sung, in keeping with the season.

The president, Mrs. Milburn, presided. Mrs. Ray Reid moved the minutes of the last meeting be approved as read.

Good Reports

Mr. Walter Brant, treasurer, gave his report of the proceeds of the bazaar, supper and dance held on December 2nd. Total proceeds were $264.56. Expenses were $72.56 with a balance of $191.91. Balance on hand at the end of 1948 was $274.91. The sewing club through their fine efforts had raised $97.65 of that amount.

Mrs. Milburn thanked all who had helped in any way to make their yearly project such a success.

It was decided that $10 each be given Mrs. Herb Brant, and Mrs. Helen Louis, to purchase new supplies in the sewing club.

It was reported by the secretary Mrs. Helen Louis, that the piano would be tuned in a warmer season.

The president expressed the hope that the association would all be present at the school Christmas concert to be held in the Orange Hall on December 21st.

It was also decided to hold the rink should be in operation as soon as possible. The Jerry Dafoe was appointed to oversee a rink committee and to choose his own assistants.

It was decided to purchase an electric tea kettle and large tea pot for use at the monthly lunches.

Interesting Program

The program consisted of several interesting films being shown "The Pasteurization of Milk," "The Life of Emily Carr," and scenes from her native province British Columbia. A film depicting the branding of cattle, the shearing of lambs, and the conveying of logs down the rivers to the mills. The last film "A Mile Below the Wheat," was exceedingly interesting as it showed the drilling for oil in Alberta and the conveyances of this oil to the place of need.

Films will again be shown in another five weeks to coincide with the films shown in the local school.

The Sunday School of the United Church recently held their Missionary Sunday. The proceeds of this Sunday being donated to the missionary work of the church.

Mrs. George Currie gave a very interesting talk on the life of Beethoven and played several of his compositions on the piano. Misses Shirley, and Helen Cripps sang a pleasing duet "Come a Little Child Like Me."

Forty-two were present on this special Sunday, which will be a future a monthly event.

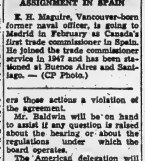
Canadian and U.S. Officials Meet Over Air Pact

Ottawa, Dec. 15 (CP)—Canadian and American officials confer here today on what the U.S. State Department considers "a difference of interpretation of some sections" of the air agreement signed by the two countries June 4.



A five-man delegation is scheduled to fly here from Washington in time t keep a 2 p.m., EST date with a Canadian government group headed by H. O. Morris, assistant undersecretary of the external affairs department.

The conference was requested by the U.S. as a consequence of legal actions by Colonial Air Lines of New York to prevent Trans-Canada Air Lines from establishing a competing service on the New York-Montreal route. The agreement opened the way for a Canadian line to do so.

On the eve of the conference, an official said the Canadian government still is "not aware of any differences of opinion" over the agreement. It has no issues on which it plans to take the initiative and has not been informed of the points the U.S. wishes to raise.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said a week ago Canada is willing to participate in the conference but feels it has done everything possible to implement the pact.

The Canadian group will include John R. Baldwin, chairman of the Air Transport Board, which has reserved decision after a hearing which took evidence as to whether Colonial should lose its Canadian licence to fly from Montreal because of its legal actions. The board consid-

Troubled for Years with Sour Acidity, Gas, Cramps and Heartburn After Meals, This Woman Says Syntona Gave Her Grand Relief.

Mrs. Elizabeth Scandrett

"For many years I suffered from stomach disorders and my entire system became run down, but I have obtained relief by taking Syntona," said Mrs. Elizabeth Scandrett, 443 South St., London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"Anyone who is troubled this way will understand how I suffered—gas, cramps, constipation and heartburn after meals. I was terribly bloated and could not sleep. My nerves seemed to make me so miserable I couldn't get up enough energy to even get my housework done. I often felt dizzy and sore all over. I had pains in my back and my stomach and chest muscles. In my present rundown condition, I—

"I tried so many things without benefit that I was very discouraged when a friend now blessed I take Syntona. In the first month I noticed great improvement and could do my housework. Now I feel fine. I have gained weight, my nerves are calmed down, my stomach is not bothering me and generally I am so pleased with Syntona that I want to tell every other person suffering as I did how they can get relief.

Made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots, Syntona has helped many people in this very same way. It is inexpensive, easy to take, and the results are quickly felt.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

FRANKFORD United Church Ladies Sponsor Attractive Bazaar and Tea

Frankford—The tea and bazaar held in the Batawa Recreation Hall, was one of the most outstanding events of the year. Sponsored by the ladies of the United Church, the bazaar featured some of the most beautiful displays ever seen in this district. The lounge room, indirectly lighted, had a warm, homelike atmosphere. The fireplace glowed with a real log, and in one corner of the room, a large Christmas tree, adorned with many lights and decorations, stood in its splendor. The walls were decorated with fir branches, with a huge candy cane hanging on one side.

The show display, was supervised by Mrs. A. Storey, assisted by Mrs. E. Daniels, and Mrs. G. Flindall. Each table was decorated with a candle, set on a Yule log. Mrs. Arthur Duncan played soft piano music to complete the soft, warm atmosphere.

The tea table, at one end of the room, was beautifully decorated by flowers and candles. Tea was poured by Mrs. N. A. Roberts, president of King Street United Church W.A., in Trenton; Mrs. R. B. Morden, president of Bridge Street United Church in Belleville, and Mrs. J. A. Stickle, of Frankford W.A.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. T. Tillie, president of Batawa W.A., Mrs. Hugh Patrick, and Mrs. Ralph Armstrong. Mrs. J. Moore also greeted, and showed the guests to tables.

Serving were Mrs. J. Paten, Mrs. A. Mushkilew, Mrs. R. Bamber, Mrs. H. Ansley, Mrs. J. Svoboda, Mrs. L. Mueller, Mrs. A. Haviland. Delicious sandwiches and pastry were served with the tea.

In the kitchen, Mrs. Harry Pearce, Mrs. F. Skoualjan, Mrs. G. Ireland, Mrs. G. Bowman, Mrs. F. Rabel and in the main auditorium, Mrs. R. Stewart was in charge of the novelty table, Mrs. H. Geldard assisting.

The apron table was capably handled by Mrs. C. Heldman, Mrs A. Machala, and Mrs. C. Wallace, and the home baking table display, was in charge of Mrs. S. Horcica and Mrs. J. Karlik, Mrs. C. Westlake and Mrs. M. Duff.

The event was by every way a huge success and the Batawa W.A. is to be congratulated on their fine presentation of this bazaar to the people of Batawa and district.

13 Survivors Of Dutch Ship Safe in Harbor

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13 —(AP)— Thirteen survivors of the Dutch motorship Doros were safe today but it was feared the remaining 11 crew members had died.

Five men were picked up by the steamship Williamsburg Wednesday night. They reported the ship's cook had died and was buried at sea.

Eight others were brought here earlier in the day after being rescued from a lifeboat by the American tanker Sparrows Point.

The Williamsburg radioed shortly after midnight that it had picked up the men at 11:30 p.m. EST Wednesday about 35 miles due north of San Salvador, a little south of where they overtook the 921-ton Doros Monday morning.

One Coast Guard plane took off early today to search the area about 300 miles due east of Miami where the Doros, bound from New York to Haiti, exploded and burned.

The Coast Guard cutter Mocona was at the scene, but there was little chance that the 10 men unaccounted for had survived, the Coast Guard said.

In Good Condition

The five survivors aboard the Williamsburg were reported in good condition.

The Williamsburg quoted the men as saying the cook, identified by a representative of the Royal Netherlands Steamship Company as Bruyn van Rosenburg, died and was buried at sea.

The five others were listed as Charles Durham, Antonis Skipsi, Thomas Williams, Lucian Pastel and Franklin Misick.

Roelf Helmers, 51-year-old chief engineer from Amsterdam, and seven West Indian crew members were brought here by a Coast Guard plane and taken to hospital.

Helmers said he believed the captain, chief mate, second and third mates, apprentice electrician, second and third assistant engineers and the steward were lost.

The Doros was carrying general cargo. What caused to her explode remained undetermined.

Vienna—Viennese laundry owners Wed. held a protest meeting and accused two American business men of stealing their customers.

The Americans, Kenn Rogers and Louis Satz, both of New York City, opened a 27-machine self-service laundry here five weeks ago. They have doing a land office business here ever since.

Rogers said the laundry owners have applied pressure on the city government to revoke the laundry licence and have effectively blocked all present plans for expansion.

Viennese housewives who have to wait nearly a month for their clothes to be returned from steam laundries have been lining up for hours before the new laundry.

Prague—The Czech army newspaper took a crack Wednesday at Czech soldiers who spend too much of their time poring over "slime novels and looking at legs" beauties.

Instead of wasting their time this way, the newspaper Obrana Lidu said, they should be devoting themselves to more cultural activities. Pinup girls and Hollywood cowboy pictures previously were banned for soldiers.

The newspaper said the boys who go for the slime novels and leg art were inherited "from the capitalist army."

OLDS CUTS PRICES

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 13, (AP)—Oldsmobile ,Wednesday cut $53 to $65 from the price of its various models in the series "88" cars for 1950. No price changes were announced for the smaller "76" or the larger "98" series models.

The price reductions, which are in addition to a recent $25 cut on Oldsmobile's dydra-matic transmissions, were announced at a press preview of Oldsmobile's new models Wednesday. The new cars will go on public display early in January.

SILVER SNUFFLE

Ten-year-old Wayne Geer of Winnipeg accidentally snuffed a 10-cent piece up his nostril. Doctors, amazed that it worked up into Wayne's sinus, prepared to operate to remove the dime. But the boy awakened on his operation-day with a case of sniffles. He huffed, puffed and blew the coin out. — (CP Photo.)

Jackie Robinson, slugging, second-baseman for the Brooklyn Dodgers, Wednesday received the Gold Medal Award of New York's George Washington Carver Memorial Institute.

The Negro baseball star was cited as a "great American" and for his "outstanding contribution to the betterment of race relations."

Others who have won the award in the past are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, publisher Wm. Randolph Hearst and film producer Darryl Zanuck. It is given in the name of the great Negro scientist.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By CEO. B. CARVER, Sports Editor

ON THE RIALTO

The talk along hockeydom's main stem yesterday and today is the revitalization of the Rockets Juniors. Their mere or less sensational victory over Diesels in the first game of the District League semi-finals Tuesday night was the talk of the town, while those who couldn't talk made signs about the second and third period flop of the Trenton Flyers. Then too, a subject of the boys in the back-rooms and other spots where sport is argued, discussed and given the brave-ho was the fine clicking calisthenics of the Northern Electric team. Opportunists, to say the least, the Northern took full advantage of the fall from hockey grace of the boys in blue and capitulated to the full.

A TOUGH ONE

One of those heart-breakers that sometimes occur in this hectic hockey took place Tuesday night in the dying moments of the Diesels - Rockets game. Down a goal, their goalie removed, the Diesels' forwards put a terrific pressure on the Rockets' nets. They ganged and shot, checked the Rocks a bit droopy and then it happened. Players were sprawled on the ice in front of Rocket's goalie Tripp. A loose puck came out to big Vern Goyer, who had played a terrific game all night and all he had to do was lift the rubber over the prostrate Tripp to tie the score. He let go, but it slithered into the goalie's pads as the gong rang "cease fire". Whew, it was close and a tough one to miss on the part of Goyer. On the other hand jubilant Rockets hurdrapped Tripp so hard that six of his front teeth were jerked loose.

SPEED BOY

Mercury-heeled Jackie Wardhaugh of the Northern was, in our opinion the best man on the ice in the Tuesday night battles. Jackie has been playing fine consistent hockey all season, not only with the Northerns but the Diesels-Electrics as well. But Tuesday night he was flying. He had speed to burn, his stickhandling was a treat to watch, he outskated anything the opposition had and his shots were generally on the mark. And he skated going back as fast as he did on the advance.

TAINT SO

There is no truth in the paragraph of the story of last Thursday night's hockey games to the effect that Keyes, Flyers' goalie has been awarded the Boland Trophy for being the outstanding goalkeeper of the District League during the playing schedule. The writer apparently laboring under some mistaken idea of how the award was to be made. No points have been counted as yet, and the committee in charge will hold a meeting on Sunday to decide the winners of the Boland and Whalen Trophies.

"UP AND AT 'EM"

Tonight sees the resumption of hostilities on the district league semi-final front when the shock troops of the Diesels, Rockets, Northerns and Flyers again go into crash action. And they should be thriller-dillers. Flyers and Diesels definitely have their backs to the wall and must emerge with victory if they want to avoid elimination. Diesels are confident they can hold the measure of the high-flying Rockets, while Flyers, desperate, will be out there all out in a lastimanie effort to snatch a win in the series. There'll be plenty of action when the official bugles sound the 'Charge.'

MYSTERY GAL

They tell me there was a gal who paid admission to the Tuesday night games who could not see, hear or talk. She had ear-muffs over her eyes, mouth and ears. Probably some lady who was paying an election bet for we know the brand of hockey was not as bad as all that.

VENI, VE VIDEOD

Thanks to the hospitality of Jon Lee we glimpsed our first television of a football game a few days ago. We saw Slinging Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins defeat the Green Bay Packers by a substantial count. It was good entertainment, and the first time some gent leaves a half-strand in our Christmas stocking, we'll invest in one.

A humorous situation took place on the playing field during the game. Slingin' Sam had braved a long forward that sailed way out in the end zone. Two fans hopped over the boards and made a desperate dash for the pigskin. As they neared the ball, they noticed a big cop sprinting in their direction. One of the fans, he must have been a football player, half turned and with a beautiful block took the limb of the law out of play, while his mate scooped up the ball and hopped back into the stands. The crowd let off with a terrific roar, while the announcer complimented the tackling-fan with a humorous sally.

PIPE DOWN, WILLYA?

There has been a number of complaints regarding the blowing of whistles by rambunctious fans during the hockey games, especially those of Tuesday night. Why these whistle-tooters cannot get some other sort of noise-making apparatus, except gongs (and they were there too with a flock of cowbells) is beyond understanding. The blowing of whistles similar to those used by the officials not only causes confusion to referees, linesmen and players alike, but to the rest of the fans as well. Come on, fellas, toss these piccolos away and get yourselves a rattle.

REMEMBER WALLY?

Wally Kilrea who coached the disbanded Philadelphia Rockets in the American Hockey League, and who was one of the best liked personalities in the circuit both as player and coach, is now guiding the destinies of the Grand Rapids Rockets in the Eastern Hockey League. That he is performing a top notch job is evident by the record of seven victories and three ties for his club in the first ten games. Wally made a lot of friends here when the Philly Rockets trained in Memorial Arena.

Leafs and Canadiens Draw In N.H.L. and Leaves Them Tied in Second Place

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Unless someone throws a halter on Detroit Red Wings, the National Hockey League race will be a runaway.

Boston Bruins thought they had it last night—and then the roof fell in. They blasted two quick goals only to see the powerful wings counter five unanswered markers and come up with a 5-2 victory. It gave them a 10-point lead in the league race.

Meanwhile, the second-place teams, Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs battled it out to a 2-2 draw at Toronto while Chicago Black Hawks halted New York Rangers four-game winning streak by defeating them 5-3 at Chicago.

The Bruins started off in a flying mood and pulled into the 2-0 lead during the first eight minutes of action on goals by Johnny Peirson.

Then the Wings started. Red Kelley got the first and Jimmy McFadden added the second. Sid Abel, Ted Lindsay and Joe Carveth followed up with one apiece.

At Toronto the game was full of surprises. But the breaking of unbreakable glass shielding rink-side spectators didn't surprise the Leafs more than the 2-2 they took with Canadiens.

Six Spectators Injured

The Leafs were putting the finishing touches on the hard-fought game when Billy Reay tied it up with a fluke shot with less than a minute to play.

The glass item came in the first period. A section of it shattered when Vic Lynn of Toronto and Maurice Richard of Montreal collided. Six spectators required first aid for cut hands and wrists.

At Chicago, the Black Hawks' victory ended a drought of five losses and a tie in their last six games and jolted them out of last place, putting them one point ahead of the Bruins.

The victory margin was provided by Ben Guidolin when he connected twice—in the first and last periods.

The Hawks took advantage of a penalty to Ed Sliwinski at 13 seconds of the first period to score their first goal.—Metro Prystai taking the honors. Edgar Laprade tied it up but Guidolin and Bill Mosienko sent the Hawks into their second lead.

Then Gaye Stewart and Guidolin scored for the Black Hawks while Buddy O'Connor and Pat Egan registered for the Rangers.

BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Ted Lindsay, the National Hockey League's sharp-shooting bad man, today continues to lead the field of individual scorers with a fat four-point margin. He chalked up a goal and an assist Wednesday night to keep him well ahead of teammate Sid Abel and Chicago's Doug Bentley, tied in second place with 28 points. Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens retained third place with 26 points for 21 goals and five assists, while Cordie Howe, Detroit, is one point behind. Boston's John Peirson and Bill Mosienko, Chicago, each claim a 24-point total to share fifth spot in the scoring parade.

Two Major Upsets Recorded in Junior A Race

(By The Canadian Press)

Two major upsets were recorded in Ontario Hockey Association play last night, one in the senior and the other in the junior A league.

The powerful Toronto Marlboros dropped their fourth game in 23 senior starts, being thumped 5-3 by the second-place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen and Windsor Spitfires, currently in the second slot of the Junior League, had their winning streak stopped at 10 games, bowing to Guelph Biltmores 6-2.

In other games last night, St. Catharines Teepees dumped Barrie Flyers 7-3 in a junior contest and Toronto Marlboros' minus their centre star George Armstrong, playing last night with the N.H.L. Toronto Maple Leafs, blanked Owen Sound Greyhounds 2-0. Marlboro' win, coupled with Windsor's loss, increased their first-place lead to five points.

Scotty Mair gave Toronto an early 1-0 lead in the Waterloo arena but the Dutchmen popped in two tallies in the first frame to take the lead. Bobby Bauer and Johnny Bitle doing the honors.

It was all Kitchener-Waterloo in the middle session, Don Bauer and Billy Flick tallying for the Twin City while their defence held Marlboros to a goose egg.

Howie Lee cut the margin to two with the first counter of the final period but Bobby Bauer salted away the two points with his second marker, the final of the game, to make it read 5-2.

Never in Contention

Windsor Spitfires were never in contention after the 11:06 mark of the first period, Guelph having counted four times in that space while Bobby Hannon got a single.

The Biltmores added another pair in the second while Windsor was only able to obtain a single. In the first period the teams played a scoreless draw.

Don Oberlotzer was the big gun for the winners, blasting in three counters. Others were added by Jack Ashley, Steve Brklacich and Vic Dimaros. Glen Skov and Erwin Grosse accounted for the other Spitfire scores.

At Barrie, six counters were rattled in the first frame, four by St. Catharines and two by the home-club Flyers. Red McCarthy opened the scoring for Ballbrie and St. Catharines came back with a pair, both by Con. Switzer. Warr Sharland put Flyers back on even footing but Carl Dixon and Jack White pumped home two more for St. Catharines before the end of the session.

One in Middle Stanza

Only one marker was counted in the middle stanza, that coming for the Teepee crew off the stick of Wayne Brown. Barrie made a futile effort in the initial stages of the final canto, Red McCarthy sopping in his second of the night with less than five minutes to go. Jack White and Carl Boone wrapped it up for the Garden-City band with their second goals of the game.

Marlboros were pressed until the (final bell to knock down a 3-2 decision of Oshawa Generals. Larry Regan gave the Toronto kids a one-goal margin early in the opening frame but it took until 11:06 of the final period More they could add another. Jack McKenzie potted what proved to be the clincher.

No game was carded for last night but Friday will see Owen Sound at Marlboro in a senior battle, St. Michael's in Stratford for a junior contest and Galt at Guelph in the other game.

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons moved into a first-place tie with Providence Reds atop the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night by defeating the Reds 4-1 at Buffalo.

Both teams now have 30 points, two more than the runner-up New Haven Ramblers and three more than third-place Springfield Indians. The Indians and Ramblers were idle last night.

Meanwhile Cleveland Barons stretched their first-place lead in the league's Western Section to 11 points by downing Pittsburgh Hornets 4-2.

Cincinnati Mohawks and Hershey Bears, the two last-place teams in their respective sections, played to a 3-3 draw in the only other game.

George Pargeter, Doug Lewis, Paul Meger and Aldrodt Paul Meger and Murdo MacKay were the Bison marksmen while Ray LaPlante fired the lone Providence tally.

Right-winger Roy Kelly paced the Barons to their 18th victory of the season against only three losses with a pair of goals. Pete Leswick and Ed Reigle notched singles.

Pittsburgh goals were by Tim Horton and Bud Korpan.

Joe Lepine, rugged Cincinnati rearguard, was the big gun for the Mohawks with two tallies. Andy Hegenton fired the other one. Frank Marin, Jerry Brown and Ross Lowe scored for Hershey.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Dec. 15—(CP)— A change has come over basketball as played on the Pacific coast—the referees have taken the show away from the players.

Andy (Vancouver Sun) Lytle didn't take kindly to the shiny arms of swivel-lipped whistle handlers who took the audience-interest away as he watched the Seattle Huskies play University of British Columbia Thunderbirds here.

"What it all added up to is that the drama of basketball, the skilled passing, the fast dribble, the quick pass and run in, is still there but it is all over-shadowed by the omnipresence of the officials, Lytle said.

"I do not see how basketball can be popular with audiences that pay to see an athletic contest and find their pleasure continually barred by officials calling infractions which few of the onlookers, if any, are able to see being committed."

Andy, recently returned to the coast from Toronto, warned: "It was the over-powering presence of Pat Kennedy as referee that helped to slay public interest in the pro game at Toronto. Pat, with as much 'ham' in his makeup as a Sophie Tucker, had the paid attendance taking more gesters at him than at the athletes."

Creating Mountains

A claim that the press shone in deftly creating a mountain out of a molehill has been laid by Lytle in connection with recent blasts inside the Dominion Football Association.

Canadian soccer won't admit a professional league, says Lytle, because "it must bear the outward semblance of purity in case an old country player escaped to this land."

He was referring to recent D.F.A. charges from Toronto that two west-coast players accepted signing bonuses and guarteed in switching clubs.

This charge will never amount to anything, Lytle says. But just for the record he records that the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada realized in the 1930's it couldn't control soccer and ruled it was not a sport.

Campbell Says Hockey May Break Curtain

Ottawa, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Hockey, Canada's national winter sport, could break down the iron curtain, it was suggested Wednesday.

The suggestion came from hockey's leading figure — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League.

If the Russians would abandon their present game — something similar to field hockey — and adopt the Canadian game as many other European countries had done, Mr. Campbell foresaw "tremendous possibilities."

Discussing his favorite subject — "Canada's national game in fact, without taking anything away from the older game of lacrosse" — he stressed hockey's influence internationally in a luncheon address before the Canadian Club.

There were 35 professional teams in North America and of these, 31 were operating in the United States. Next to the R. C. M. P., Canada was best known in the U. S. for her hockey players.

In Europe, too, the game had gone ahead much faster than could have been anticipated. Spiritual ripple to the national sports scene, Mr. Campbell strongly urged that the government keep its financial finger out of the sports pie.

He termed "very dangerous" a resolution passed last year at a national convention of sports governing bodies that the federal government provide funds for sport facilities and administration and development of sports. The convention was called by the National Council on Physical Fitness, a co-ordinating body under the Health Department. It had accomplished much, but the resolution regarding federal funds was dangerous because it could kill off the sports incentive of Canadian citizens, Mr. Campbell said.

New York Dec. 15. (AP)—Manager Billy Southworth of Boston Braves has insisted all along there wouldn't be any house cleaning or head-lopping as a result of all that fendin' and fumin' last season . . . what he must have meant was that he wasn't going to get rid of any good players without receiving plenty in return . . . Billy counts on with a pretty good secondbase combination, Buddy Kerr and Gene Mauch, a better outfielder than the one he gave up, a pitcher, and Sid Gordon, who can play almost anywhere . . . but the deal won't hurt the Giants Eddie Stanky is too smart to hold any of Leo Durocher's past statements against him . . . big deals in the American League came about even, too . . . The Athletics got enough to make them pennant threats; the Tigers also got help and the Browns got cash, which they probably need more than players . . . anyway, the Eddie Stanky meeting set on record. More trade news came out of the press room than out of the meeting.

Harnessed Power

When John Joe Barry, Ireland's mile champion, enters Villanova University in February, Jim Ryun will be there, and a couple of countrymen ahead of him . . . first was James Patrick Riordan, captain of the Irish Olympic team and then came Tomas Clancy, 240-pound weight thrower . . . It was Riordan who was inspecting Villanova's football equipment last spring with Rev. Joseph McKee, the Modernizer of Athletics. James Patrick looked at the helmets, jerseys, shoulder pads, kidney pads, hip pads, knee bandages, etc . . . finally he remarked: "Father Clancy wouldn't be bothered wearin' any of them there gir-r-r-dles."

OPEN EVENINGS

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A bidding system furnishes partners with a means of exchanging information about their hands. That system is best which employs the bidding words for the best advantage to the pair.

When your partner opens the bidding, an opponent may double for takeout. What should you then do with a strong hand? Jump? Or give some other sign that tells your partner of your support?

If you bid something, an opponent could stick in his double at will and fear no danger. What you need is some efficient means of trapping such an opponent as a penalty for his rashness.

At the same time you need some method of advising partner that your hand is powerful. Then, if it is finally decided that opponents cannot be adequately stopped, you will still reach your best goal.

Redouble is a signal that can combine all these features. Not only should it show a hand that can help make game. It is also a signal that the opponent is in bad shape at the moment.

Thus is the redouble a powerful weapon in an important spot. It should not be relegated to indiscriminate use to boot.

Such players employ the redouble for only one purpose: to tell partner the doubled bid can be made. They do not also intend to show the opponents great strength. They thus fall to make the most of it.

South opened with a spade and west stuck in a phony double for takeout in this deal:

NORTH
♠K J 5 7
♥A 6 5
♦K 8 4
♣A K 4

WEST
♥7 3 2
♦10 7 6 3
♣Q 9 8 6

EAST
♠9 8
♥J 10 9
♦K Q 9
♣J 10 3 7 5

SOUTH
♠A Q 10 8 6 4
♥K Q 6 4

If north makes any kind of a bid, west and east are let out of any trap. The phony bidder is trapped only if north redoubles. If the redouble also shows power it serves a double purpose.

North should redouble. It should say: "Partner, I have strength for help to at least a game. Meantime, we have opponents in a devil of a fix." All this and heaven, too.

Movie Column

Hollywood, Dec. 15 — (AP) — Was it murder? Or was it suicide? Or did Thelma Todd accidentally die 14 years ago today?

That riddle has been cause for debate in Hollywood ever since the blonde star was found dead in her garage in 1935. Here's how the death occurred:

Thelma, the fun-loving former school teacher from Lawrenceville, Mass., went to a Saturday night party at the Trocadero in honor of the British comic, Stanley Lupino. A chauffeur picked her up between 2.30 and 3 a.m. and drove her back to her cafe at the beach. She appeared quiet and tired.

When she waved goodbye to the driver at four Sunday morning, it was the last time she was seen alive.

Gas Poisoning

At 10.15 Monday morning, Miss Todd's maid opened the garage door and found the actress slumped in the front seat of her car. She wore a mauve and silver evening gown and mink coat, and jewels ornamented her throat and wrist. She had been dead at least 12 hours — of carbon monoxide poisoning.

The ignition key was turned on and the heavy garage doors were closed. There were no notes or other clues.

Was it murder? Miss Todd's lawyer thought so. "I believe someone knows something about this case which should be told," he said. He added that gamblers had urged the actress to put gambling in her cafe, but she opposed it.

Accident Theory

What about suicide? Young Ida Lupino, daughter of the Troc party's guest of honor, told Miss Todd that night of being tired of the movie business and wanting to quit.

"I've been trying to do that all my life," answered Miss Todd, "but I guess there's only one way out."

But Thelma's mother said: "My daughter's death was accidental." Detective Chief Thad Brown of the Los Angeles police agreed with that theory. "The death is still accidental in my book," he told me this week.

Lindsay Kinsmen Tied by Petes

Lindsay, Dec. 15. (CP)—Peterborough came from behind Wednesday night to tie Lindsay Kinsmen 7-7 in the opening game of their O.H.A. Junior B schedule. Marked by free-scoring fighting on the ice and in the player's boxes.

The Petes forged a tie in the dying minutes.

Ara Kerry paced Lindsay with two goals and two assists while Hank DeSola, John Burn, Bob Lewis, Orlin Crawford and Dawson Rimble added Singletons. Don Floyd, who shot the equalizer and Jerry Desjardine had two each for the Petes. Jack Doris, Benny Mascys, Ross Mason shot the others.

Jack Richlark was given a major and match misconduct for hitting linesman Lloyd Eberts in the third period fight which saw players on the sidelines clash with fists and sticks.

DREAMS COME TRUE

Wanda Kular, 19, meets her father, Peter Kular, for the first time. Mr. Kular worked for almost 20 years in the mines at Kirkland Lake, Ont., dreaming of the day his wife and daughter would come from Poland to join him. Money problems, the war and immigration difficulties meant delay after delay. But Wanda recently arrived in Canada. Four days before Wanda left home, her mother died of grieving. Mr. Kular said he believes she took poison to hasten Wanda's journey to the New World. — (CP Photo.)

Mackenzie's Column: Problem May Be Settled By Compromise

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

While mulling over the unhappy squabble about the internationalizing of Jerusalem, it's difficult to escape the feeling that this problem is susceptible of solution by compromise.

Failing that we are heading for an uncomfortable time, since what happens to this Holy City is a matter of concern to the whole civilized world.

The position is this: The United Nations Assembly a few days ago voted to internationalize Jerusalem. A minority, including Britain and the United States opposed the plan as impractical since the city is partitioned and occupied by armed forces of Israel and Hashemite Jordan.

Jordan and Israel officially still are at a war—a hangover from the Arab-Jewish warfare of 1947-48. Both have served firm notice that they won't give up their respective parts of the city, and just now Israel is running the transfer of her capital to her portion of Jerusalem. Of Israel's action the British Foreign Office has said:

"The move of the Israeli government does not surprise his Majesty's government. At the same time we regret that Israel, which is a member of the U.N. should have thought fit to flout its authority."

At Lake Success, N.Y., some U.N. diplomats predict that Israel's action will wreck the General Assembly plan to put the city under international rule.

In any event, the partition of Jerusalem into two parts, one Jewish and the other Arab, is a accomplished fact. And it's going to take more than words— be they spoken either in peace or in anger—to alter that situation. All other things apart, both Jews and Arabs occupy their respective portions "by right of conquest"— an outgrowth of the late war.

In Ancient Portions

Most of the Holy places of the city are in the Arab ancient portion held by the Arabs In this zone of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Mosque of Omar and the Jewish Wailing Wall. Nearby are the Garden of Gethsemane and the Mount of Olives. The Arabs also hold Bethlehem to the south.

Israel holds the Holy Cenacle—site of the Supper—which is just outside the old walled city. Israel also has Nazareth to the north of Jerusalem, and Cana of Galilee, where Christ performed his first miracle.

The way things now stand the trusteeship council of the U.N. will go ahead with the drafting of an internationalization plan. What fun they may encounter remains to be seen. On this point a message from Tel Aviv to Lake Success quoted Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion as saying:

"It is to be hoped that the General Assembly will in the course of time correct this mistake which in majority has made, and will make no attempt whatsoever to impose a regime on the Holy City against the will of its people."

Internationalization would be calculated to protect the Holy places and keep them open to pilgrims from the outside world. Both Israel and Jordan have promised protection and access, and if the U.N., does not change its mind it presumably will be on the basis of these promises.

Christmas Trees Are Plentiful

By The Canadian Press

Christmas trees appear plentiful this year and the popular family axe—those about as tall as father — should cost the same as last Yuletide— $2 or $3 in most parts of Canada.

A Canadian Press survey shows most dealers plan to charge about this.

Most popular are the Scotch pine and fir (which don't readily shed needles) and the spruce, most abundant of all the yuletide trees. A few paint-sprayed trees are offered but most families seem to prefer their old-fashioned and unpainted. Most of the shining pink and silver trees are bought by merchants for display in the window at prices ranging from $8.50 for a three-footer to $50 for a 12-foot giant.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

This morning at breakfast ma said to pop, William, I was looking at your lite gray hat, the one you always wear out in the evening, and it's a site.

Do you mean a good site or a bad site? pop said, and ma said, I mean a gastly site. How can you possibly wear it to the Berry's tonite in that condition? she said.

I'll see that its condition is changed, my dear, pop said. Benny, I have an important mission for you. I want you to leave my lite gray gastly hat at the hat repairing shop on your way to school, and tell the gentlemen over there to clean and press it, and then go back after it this afternoon, he said.

And he gave me money to pay for it, and the result was I forgot all about it till pritty near supper time, and I ran in the house and got pop's hat and ran all the ways to the hat place with it, and I says' it on the counter saying, My father wants the hat cleened and pressed today.

Today is over, and I'm glad of it, the man said, and I said, well O, the sine in your window says One Day Service.

Does it say Five Minute Service? the man said, and I said, No sir, and he said, Come around when it does.

Which just then who walked in but pop, saying, Hello, Benny, this is a pleasant serprise, I was sure you'd forget all about picking my hat up. Oh, here it is now, he said.

And he picked it up off the counter, saying to the man, How much do I owe you?

You dont owe me a cent, you can lay your hat on my counter for a few minutes any time without charge, the man said.

The result being pop looked at his hat and then looked at me and told the man he'd come back for it tomorrow.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

GARDINER WARNS

May Be 37 Cents

The U.K. bought 50,000,000 pounds of cheese from Canada this year at 30 cents a pound. The U.K. wanted the price reduced to 24 cents. It appears the final price may be set around 27 cents a pound.

Mr. Gardiner said he thought the U.K. would take most of the cheese Canada expected to run to about 63,000,000 pounds— in 1950.

It was the only good news Mr. Gardiner had to offer the conference yesterday on U.K. contracts. Of the 1949 contracts for bacon, cheese, eggs, salmon and apples that last year earned Canadian farmers some 72,000,000, only the $23,000,000 for cheese was in sight.

A small amount of bacon might be purchased next year, but this was not definite. A suggestion had been made that part of the $250,000,000 Britain has set aside for the purchase of Canadian wheat during the 1949-50 crop year be transferred to bacon. This suggestion was being explored.

At Cross Road

He warned that Canadian farmers appear to be "at, or near, the crossroads" where a plan based upon long-term governmental negotiated contracts can not be continued.

There will be "general regret" among farmers, said Mr. Gardiner, if such contracts must end.

"In my opinion it is essential that we sell considerable quantities to the U.K. if agriculture is to remain prosperous. I think we must sell a very considerable part of our bacon and cheese, most of our apples and most of the eggs we produce in surplus."

He had these other things to say:

1. The freight-rate subsidy on movement of western feed grain to eastern Canada would be continued next year.

Old Wheat Acreage

2. He advised western farmers that they cut down their wheat acreage next year from 27,000,000 acres to 22,000,000 acres. Of the remaining 44,000,000 acres available for planting, 22,000,000 should be devoted to coarse grains and grasses and 22,000,000 left in summerfallow.

3. The interpretation people had placed on his statement in the Commons that there was a "deliberate" effort in the U. S. to squeeze out Canadian foodstuffs from Britain was not the interpretation he meant. He had used the word "deliberate" because the move against Canadian foodstuffs had been "planned." He said he realized the planning stemmed from Britain's lack of dollars.

Got Gyped in Boom

H. H. Hannam, president of the 400,000-member Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said "Canadian farmers face a worse market outlook at this time than do the farmers of any other agricultural country."

Farmers "got gyped" at the beginning of the boom period and now they were the "first to take the rap" at the end of it. He urged Canadians to be "generous in applying price supports to agricultural commodities."

Saskatchewan's Agriculture Minister T. C. Nollet said he could not understand why people had given "some person" leadership when that person had not found a solution to problems facing farmers.

There was talk of price reductions, yet farmers were paying higher costs now than they ever had. Estimates needed western feed grains. But, he warned, farmers out west were not going to grow this grain if they were not certain of getting satisfactory prices in return.

A. C. Taylor, Agriculture Minister for New Brunswick, said world trade problems were manmade. If they had been made by human hands and human minds then these same human hands and human minds could solve them.

If a solution could not be found to the market problems before spring seeding time, Mr. Taylor suggested that another conference should be held.

14-Year-Old Boy Held by Police In Boy's Death

Toronto, Dec. 15—(CP)—Police today held a 14-year-old boy in connection with the death Wednesday night of altar boy Michael Dodds, 9, believed beaten by a gang of youths last week. Death is believed to have been caused by a brain injury.

Chief Coroner Smirle Lawson said the boy's injury probably was caused by having his head pounded against the pavement. Police said they learned that in a "test of strength" Dodds had been thrown to the ground by one of a gang of suburban New Toronto youngsters.

They are also investigating a report that Dodds, along with several other boys, was returning home from altar boy practice at St. Leo's Roman Catholic Church when a group of older boys hounded them about their religion and then set upon them.

Dodd's parents said Wednesday night that he had also fallen at an ice rink Saturday, but did not appear to be injured at the time.

Sunday, Michael was taken ill and brought to hospital. A brain operation was performed later by Dr. C. P. McCormick. He was placed in a respirator and died Wednesday.

Brantford Mayor Dies of Pneumonia

Brantford, Ont., Dec. 13 — (CP) — A cold he contracted during a strenuous election campaign and which later developed into pneumonia, early today took the life of Mayor Walter J. Dowden who had been re-elected Dec. 6 for his third consecutive term.

He had been ill with a cold in November, but recovered sufficiently to take an active part in his bid for re-election. He suffered from a relapse, however, soon after he was returned to office in a three-man contest.

His condition became serious last Saturday, and he was taken to general hospital.

Mayor Dowden had operated a tailoring business for some years and was prominent in Progressive-Conservative circles. He was a defeated candidate in the federal elections in 1945.

He is survived by his widow, seven sons and three daughters. One son, Walter S., was killed in action in France in 1944 while serving with a field battery. Another son, Sydney, survived the same engagement.

Two Children Burn to Death In Toronto Fire

Overheated Stovepipes Believed Cause of Blaze

Toronto, Dec. 16.— (CP)—Two children were burned to death today when a fire destroyed a three-room wooden cottage in suburban Islington.

Dead are Hughie Roberts, 4, and his one-year-old brother, Lloyd.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Roberts, were both absent at work when the fire started. The children were in charge of their 11-year-old sister Rosie.

Four other children were at school — Morris, 15, William, 13, Belle, 8, and Ronald, 6.

Overheated stovepipes are believed to have caused the fire. There was no estimate of damage.

A neighbor, Mrs. Bert Hiscott noticed the blaze and called to an Etobicoke policeman who was working at a nearby building. The policeman tried several times to get the door open and even cuts the children but he was driven back by smoke and heat.

Was Getting Fuel

Rosie Roberts said she was out of the house getting some wood from a neighbor when the fire broke out and was prevented by flames from re-entering the house.

Chief Coroner Smirle Lawson said the children died of accidental asphyxiation and burns.

Firemen said the house was gutted. They had no chance to enter during the fire, which started at 10:30 a.m. and was under control by 11.30.

Coroner Dr. W. A. Ferrion said: "Apparently the elder boy awakened when he smelled the smoke and pulled the covers over his own and his brother's head."

Rosie said: "I went out to get some wood for the stove. It was behind a neighbor's house. Suddenly I heard men shouting. I ran back to see what was wrong and they told me the fire was in the house to get the babies. The house was filled with flames."

Family Forced To Flee Dwelling In Night Attire

Markdale, Ont., Dec. 16. (CP)—A fire, which threatened a block of business buildings on Markdale's main street, early today forced a young couple and their baby to flee for safety in night attire. Markdale is 24 miles southeast of Owen Sound.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Mills and their baby escaped injury when flames spread to the second floor apartment from a fire believed to have originated in the Markdale Dairy premises below. The flat was completely gutted and the couple lost all their personal property. Damage to the dairy has not yet been determined.

Prompt action by the Markdale volunteer fire department is credited for preventing the fire from spreading to adjacent buildings.

Pickwickian Club Holds Reunion In Old Dickens Inn In London

London, Dec. 16.—(CP)—Go to the George and Vulture, an old Dickens inn tucked away in the heart of financial London, and you may meet Mr. Pickwick, a spectacled gentleman called "Mr. Pickwick Paper."

If "Mr. Pickwick" is there it will mean that the illustrious Pickwick Club, founded in 1906, is holding a reunion. And with him will be 45 fat, thin, short, tall, handsome and ugly Pickwickians laughing and joking around a long table in the inn's dining room as they did in Dickens' famous "Pickwick Papers."

The club met recently after a lapse of 13 years and from now on regular reunions will be held, in the chair is 76-year-old W. Fred Bonner, who has been known as "Mr. Pickwick" for the last 35 years.

"Bless my soul!"—he exclaims at regular intervals while his fellow characters—big business men who call themselves Sam Weller, Nathaniel Winkle, Tracy Tupman and Mr. Snodgrass—disport themselves around the long table.

As the contents of the punch bowl—largely rum — ebb away, the ancient time-blackened beams of the George and Vulture ring with the shouts and guffaws of the festive Pickwickians. But the menu for the Pickwickian repast has suffered under Cripps-Wickham austerity.

Before the war it consisted of the traditional oysters, turtle soup, Pickwick pudding — steak, kidney pie and Pickwick brewery in their jacket sprouts and Pickwick tart (apple and cranberries). Now, however, only the steak and kidneys and cranberries are hard to find and the oysters are very limited in number.

"Oysters are the best" said ruddy-cheeked Douglas Williams, son, 69-year-old secretary of the club, who is known to his colleagues as Sam Weller.

"Object of the club is to perpetuate the memory of Dickens in his silliest form. We have lost some of our members during the war, and there will be some titles to fill. But we intend to confine our membership to 60 because after a visit to the number of Pickwick characters."

ONTARIO HAMLET IS ALMOST WIPED OUT BY FIRE

Three Just Manage To Escape Blaze

Vankleek Hill, Ont., Dec. 16 — (CP)—An early morning fire today virtually destroyed the hamlet of McGillivray, nine miles west of here on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Damage was estimated at $100,000. There were no injuries among the population of about a dozen persons, although a number were forced into zero weather in night attire. Eight persons were made homeless.

George Seguin, 64, general store keeper and postmaster, his wife and their 16-year-old niece, Betty Brazeau, were among those who just managed to escape. They were aroused by a neighbor, Robert McDuff, whose home and garage were destroyed.

Two-Storey Frame Structures

Also destroyed in the blaze, believed to have started about 1 a.m. EST, was the two-storey Blaxkmith shop of Hilliare Berault.

The burned buildings were two storey frame structures.

Made homeless were Mr. and Mrs. Beriault, their son Joseph, including 18 months old grandson Marry Pollard, the Seguins and Miss Brazeau.

The fire, which originated in the rear of the general store, was discovered by Mrs. Seguin when she returned home early today.

A brisk wind fanned the flames and the Seguin store, the blacksmith shop and Beriault homes also were destroyed.

The fire disrupted telegraph and telephone lines and for a time seriously threatened the CPR station.

The Vankleek Hill fire department, district residents and dozen CPR section men helped fight the fire. Making use of a nearby well, they succeeded in halting it before it could spread to lumber sheds and a granary owned by Mr. Seguin.

Vankleek Hill is about 50 miles east of Ottawa.

Damage Claim Filed Against City of Sudbury

Sudbury, Dec. 16. (CP)— A faint echo of the two-hour gun battle that claimed four lives here last June 24, was heard by Mr. Justice J. C. Makins in the $67,61 damages against the City of Sudbury, launched by A. Pellerin, of suburban Gatchell.

Pellerin was shot in the leg one of the left calf while assisting police in the basement of the building next door to the one in which Clarence Brosseau had barricaded himself to launch the spectacular shooting affair.

He had previously lived in the Brosseau home and was helping police by describing the interior and possible spots at which Brosseau might appear. He was wounded when a policeman in the darkness accidentally wounded up activities in London.

Mounting Opposition To Communist Rule Says Correspondent

(Editor's Note: Fred Hampson, chief of the Associated Press Staff in China, got out of communist Shanghai Dec. 9 after four years in the great city. This dispatch tells of mounting opposition to communist rule.)

By FRED HAMPSON

Aboard the Sir John Franklin Off Shanghai, Dec. 10 (AP) — (Delayed) — Communist controls are racing with time as the chill blasts of their first winter in power sweep over China.

They are racing to get their people ready for winter's grim collidated and to end the civil war before internal opposition to their regime stiffens.

Their huge armies, their growing bureaucracy, some of war and reorganization have imposed upon them the most ruthless that crushed their Kuomintang (Nationalist party) enemies.

Sixty to 90 per cent of the Chinese I polled who were opposed to the Kuomintang now are opposing to the reds.

Inflation has returned again. Price controls have broken down.

Discontent is widespread in Red-held cities. Unemployment is at dangerously high levels. Prices of rice and rice they ordinarily stockpile against the off season because they are in the hands of wandering by the red military forces as they fight and consolidate.

There are reports already of food shortages in some districts. But the controlled press and the limitations on travel make it impossible to get the facts. There still is enough food in the cities.

The communist New China news agency is a dispatch from Peiping Dec. 4 admitted the Reds were in serious economic and financial difficulties. The dispatch obviously came from high quarters.

It seems to me the reds are attempting to hold power in spite of economic reverses in two ways:

1. My intensive country - wide indoctrination, trying to convince skeptical population that the present troubles merely are growing pains of a new nation.

2. By direct military force at danger points.

There is no immediate danger of a major uprising against the Red regime because communist party has or is permeating every phase of Chinese life to organize and to watch.

The danger to the red regime lies rather in the steady pressures of an unhappy people, the realization of overextended peasants who are short of food, the opposition of labor which is tired of promises and yet more promises which already won't stretch far enough.

When the communists entered Shanghai last the silver dollar was quoted at 300 to 1 (U. S.). When I left Shanghai Dec. 9, one American dollar bought 18,500 communist dollars, and up to 20,000 on the black market.

Few Chinese seem to have faith in the future under the reds. Even the most people were faithful the Kuomintang government during its last corrupted and crumpled into uselessness and who hoped the reds would bring in stability, now fear it.

Would they rather have the old Kuomintang government back? Most of them hesitate over that one. But quite a number answered like this:

"At least I could make a living under the Kuomintang, on a very good living but a living."

Turkeys are Plentiful at Prices Lower Than Last Year Says Report

(By The Canadian Press)

For the housewife planning a Christmas dinner centred on the traditional roasted turkey, here's good news: Turkeys are plentiful at prices lower than last year's. Turkey breeders raised more gobblers this year than in 1948 and exports were fewer. Prices last year of 73-80 cents a pound in many parts of Canada encouraged growers to build up their flocks for this season and it has been a favorable year for turkey raising.

Reports indicate that most Canadians can count on buying a good turkey for approximately 57-65 cents dressed weight on the hoof. Where buying has already started prices generally are lower for dressed bird during the last week before Christmas—retailers report a preference for birds weighing 10-16 pounds, smaller birds than in more years past.

But when a family is large enough to do justice to a big bird it can be found—even will accommodate a turkey weighing 17 or 20 pounds—heavyweight bird should be the best buy this year, in Montreal, for instance, grade A turkeys weighing more than 17 pounds are on sale at 53 cents a pound, compared with 63 cents for lighter birds of comparable quality.

A Canadian Press survey keys shows the turkey situation good almost everywhere in Canada, with Quebec there and southern Ontario showing the greatest increase in production. Ontario and Alberta will market more than 6 million turkeys each, while Quebec will market 2,000,000 birds this year, mostly to Toronto and elsewhere in Southern Ontario.

Hopping to cash in on eight - pound turkeys suitable for families with up to two children is Otto Wiggins, farmer in the Inglewood district northwest of Toronto. Wiggins, who sells direct, compared with 83 cents for lighter birds of comparable quality.

Toronto, Dec. 16. (CP)—Four firemen were injured and damage was estimated at $100,000 today when a fire swept through an east-end warehouse.

Firemen from six stations answered the alarm and had the blaze under control within two hours.

Employees of the Canadian Food Factory and Women's Bakery, occupying the premises, claimed the fire on an old fuse box in the basement of the building when the fire broke out.

Firemen Arthur Chalmers was most seriously injured. He was overcome by smoke and collapsed injuring his back.

Admits Killing Transient Sailor, Gives Self up

Accused Says He Dumped Body Into Old Quarry

Port Colborne, Dec. 16 (CP)— Police said a 43-year-old man walked into Port Colborne police station Thursday night and told them he had killed George Morrison, 41-year-old transient sailor, and dumped his body into a quarry in nearby Humberstone township.

Held by provincial police is William Mahagen of Port Colborne, who told them he had struck Morrison on the head with a heavy piece of concrete during a drunken fight Wednesday night. The two men lived in an old galvanized-iron shack in the bush near the quarry, a mile west of Port Colborne.

Led Police to Body

Police said Mahagen led them along a blood-stained trail from the shack to the quarry where they found Morrison's body in two inches of ice. The back of the skull was crushed.

Mahagen had told them the two men were drinking when the argument broke out. When Morrison did not revive after being felled by the piece of concrete, Mahagen said he became panicky and dragged the body to the quarry.

Dr. A. A. Thompson, coroner, said Morrison died instantly when the blow was struck.

Police said Mahagen told them his brother had advised him to give himself up.

Morrison, a veteran of wartime service in the Merchant Marine, was a prisoner of war in Germany after his ship was captured. He had no known relatives.

Separated From Wife

Police said Mahagen's wife, Frances, from whom he was separated for more than 10 years, resides in Port Hope. A sister, Mrs. Ed. Lucas, resided in the Humberstone district and killed a Buffalo youth and wounded another in a car accident with the two youths who were leaving a winter fair in Welland, Ont., en route to Pleasant Beach. Later in the year Jake Koebel of Humberstone was killed when struck by a car as his shack and William Christiansen was injured.

Szendry received a 20-year sentence on appeal after conviction for manslaughter and ordered to be hanged. Christiansen died on the Welland County General hospital Dec. 7 for Koebel's murder.

KEY WITNESS TELLS OF FIGHT ON MAIN STREET

Four Appear in Lindsay Court for Hearing on Murder Charge

Lindsay, Ont., Dec. 16 — (CP) —Wearing the same hunting clothes in which they were arrested after the Nov. 18 knifing of Jack Loucks, 37, Lindsay laborer, three Hamilton men and one Toronto man appeared before Magistrate K. A. Gee, in Victoria county court today when they were charged with murder.

J. J. Robinette, K.C., Toronto, is appearing for the three Zaboddik brothers, John, 33, Paul, 28, and James, 33. The late appearances of Joseph Szendry, Toronto, who replaced John White of Hamilton as counsel for the alleged knifer, Joseph Szendry, 20, marked the start of the preliminary inquiry.

Mrs. Catharine Loucks, the widowed mother of three children, sat in the front of the crowded room.

Stan Bright, Lindsay photographer, identified several photos taken at the scene of the murder on Kent Street, also one of the body and another of the panel truck used by the three in an all-night escapade which ended near Peterborough.

Key Witness Heard

Wesley Aldred, Lindsay laborer, and key witness said: "I was going into the Big 20 restaurant about 12.30. When I wheeled over to the curb I met a Mr. (Sic) Szendry near a panel truck. I saw a fellow named Joe Kars and Mr. Loucks and a Mr. Thornton. Oliver and a Mr. (Tiny) Smith.

"Loucks was standing nearby and then went over to the truck and talked to a man in green shirt identified as Yuzwa. I heard no argument. Kearns called Yuzwa a - - - - and said "why didn't you come out and fight like a man?' Yuzwa got out of the truck and Loucks yelled at him, 'Come on, you going now, you - - - ? Loucks had caught onto Yuzwa's shirt and Yuzwa asked 'what do you want boys?' He seemed to do it as a joke to make Yuzwa mad.

Went Back to Sidewalk

"Then he turned around and went back to the sidewalk. Yuzwa came back and told Loucks to get away from the boys. Loucks walked west on Kent. Yuzwa said 'I'll give you a ride home.' Come on over and we'll show you.' Loucks said he wasn't scared and walked back to the truck and up the sidewalk and turned around and faced east. There was a scuffle and Loucks and Szendrey came out of the restaurant.

C.R. Phillips New President County Ski Club

The annual meeting of the Hastings County Ski Club was held in the City Hall on Thursday evening. Mr. R. A. Pringle, president, reported on the activities of the Club last year, He stated that, due to the efforts of working parties this fall, the tow was now ready to operate as soon as there is sufficient snow.

The club's run and tow is located on the slope one-and-a-half miles north of Frankford on the west side of the Trent River. The tow is 800 feet long and is the latest equipment available, installed this year. The run is open and clean and there is no danger of tangling with a fence.

To reach the hill it is best to take highway No. 2 to Trenton and then proceed north on highway No. 33.

He hoped the new executive would draw up a constitution on the basis that, as soon as the deficit was paid up, the club properties and the tow would belong to the current members who would each year, at an annual meeting, elect their executive for the following year. Election of officers for 1950 was also held.

Officers Elected

Mr. Charles R. Phillips, Northern Electric Co. Ltd., was elected president. Mr. R. A. Pringle, was elected to the office of vice-president. Wilfred Argue was elected secretary-treasurer.

Charles James, Northern Electric, won first prize, a pair of skis or $10 in lieu; Ken MacDonald, second prize, a set of poles, or $5.00 in lieu and Ada Moore of Bellville third prize, a set of ski harness or $3.50 in lieu.

Membership applications were then distributed and the members were urged to make every effort to secure a strong membership for the coming season. Printed application forms may be obtained from Mr. Wilfred Argue, Barrister, 256½ Front St., who is the new secretary-treasurer.

Any person selling ten memberships will be given a free membership in the club for the coming season.
